FRANK SIR WILFRID.

Canadian Premier Speaks Out About Alaskan Boundary.

THE MOST IMPORTANT QUESTION

Present Situation Not Creditable Either to the Government of the United States or of Canada—Reciprocity With the United States No Longer an Issue in the Dominion.

New York, June 16.—The Herald says: "The most important question just now, as affecting the relations and friendly feeling existing between Canada and the United States, is the Alaska boundary question. This situation is full of danger, and all that is required to precipitate a disgraceful conflict is the discovery of gold in the disputed territory."

Thus spoke Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Prime Minister of Canada, before leaving the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday with Lady Laurier, to take steamer for London to attend the coronation ceremonies and the conference of Colonial Premiers.

"That so extremely important an issue," he continued, "should have been left open so long is not creditable to either Government. When the Joint High Commission adjourned sine die the Alaska boundary question was referred back by each side to its respective Government, and from that day to this nothing has been accomplished looking toward a settlement of the old dispute. We are most desirous that it should be settled on its merits, to insure continued friendship, to avoid local and sectional conflict and to remove the cause of serious international irritation."

Asked whether he had any hope of again drawing attention to the Alaska question while he was in England, Sir Wilfrid replied that he would endeavor to obtain for it the serious consideration of Lord Lansdowne and United States, Ambassador Choate.

"We are perfectly willing to submit the question to arbitration," he added' "but so long, of course, as the United States maintains that there is nothing to arbitrate the menace of open conflict on the disputed ground must continue to exist."

"When, during the sessions of the Joint High Commission arbitration was first suggested, it was feared that there could be no agreement as to how the court should be composed. The war with Spain had just been closed and inasmuch as most of the governments of Europe were thought to be hostile to the United States in that conflict, the American Commissioners feared that their country might not be accorded absolutely impartial treatment in the arbitration tribunal of European governments.

"At the same time the British members of the Joint High Commission was no less apprehensive regarding the possible presence in the court of representatives of South American governments, on account of the influence upon them of an application of the Monroe Doctrine. But the attitude of the United States Government, now is that there is nothing to arbitrate. It appears to me there cannot be a question if there are not two sides to it, two points of view. Here is a most serious question. The Canadian Government is prepared to accept the decision of an international arbitration court, and it is for such a solution, ultimately that we hope."

The Canadian Premier had been asked to state his opinion of what the outcome of the conference of Premiers at London would be.

"The main subject to be discussed by the Colonial Premiers at London," he answered, "is altogether too delicate a one to talk about offhand. There seems to be a tendency here and elsewhere to exaggerate the importance of the suggested trade arrangements between Great Britain and her Colonies. There is in England, no doubt, a party of considerable strength that favors free trade with the British empire. But it must be remembered that the colonies raise their revenues through their customs tariffs; and colonial expenses are necessarily large. To admit all the products of England, and the sister colonies, into Canada free, would entail a revolution in the system of taxation.

"Until the colonial Premiers have met and expressed their views, no one can tell how much there is that may be regarded as feasible in the ideas of the imperial federationists. The English Government itself has made known that it has no intention of giving any definite pledge regarding preferential relations with the colonies until the Ministers have heard the opinions of the colonial Premiers on the subject. The grain tax levied by the home Government, may be a small beginning, but it is too soon yet to so consider it, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer has denied that it is intended to be a prelude to preferential duties and that it is an entering wedge of protectionism.

"So it must be quite plain that a discussion now of the probable or possible outcome of the conference of Premiers would be premature. There appears to be in some quarters a disposition to involve questions of defence, which are purely military, with those of revenue and customs, which are purely political, and this may make it more difficult to reach a practical conclusion."

Speaking of the recent seizure of an American fishing vessel at a Cape Breton port, Sir Wilfrid said that this isolated case did not necessarily mean that there was more activity than usual on the part of the Canadian officials, in prosecuting American fishermen who violated Canadian regulations, although in this whole eastern fisheries question there was the seed of dissention, which might be fostered at any time by an overt act or the accidental collision of a private American interest with the official arm of Canada. In this particular case an effort had been made to prevent an international issue. The captain of the American vessel had refused to take out a license, and yet had acted precisely as if he had had one. He was given the alternative to taking out a license or paying a fine amounting to as much as the license would have cost him.

Sir Wilfrid regretted he had not the time to visit the many American cities on the subject of reciprocity. But so far as Canada is concerned, he said, this is not an issue any longer, because, having done what she could to bring about negotiations, and failed, Canada would no longer discuss the subject until invited to do so by the Government of the United States.

MORE HOME TESTIMONY.

Abundant Proof That as a System-builder and Nerve Restorative There is Nothing Superior to

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is easy to make great claims for a medicine, but we prefer to submit to your judgment the statements of your friends and neighbours here in Peterborough. Look into these cases and prove for yourself the exceptional virtue of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. R. Wareham, 307 Sherbrooke Street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—

"One of my children has suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, and, in fact, was all run down, pale and languid. These troubles we attributed to over-study and confinement at school. She began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I can say that we have found this treatment exceedingly helpful. It has relieved her of headache, steadied her nerves and built up her system wonderfully. We can see a great change in her, as the colour is returning to her face, and she is gaining in flesh and weight."

Mrs. F. Turner, 306 Aylmer Street, Peterborough, Ont. and Whose Husband is Employed at the Hamilton Foundry, states:—

"For some months past I found myself growing very nervous and gradually becoming a victim of sleeplessness and subject to frequent attacks of nervous headaches. About six weeks ago I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and cannot speak too highly of this medicine. I can sleep well now, the headaches have entirely disappeared, and I believe that my system generally has been very much improved by the use of this treatment."

You will find it interesting to weigh yourself, while using this preparation, and note the increase from week to week. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is certain to prove beneficial to you if your blood is thin and watery, and the nerves exhausted. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A Deliberate Suicide.

Hamilton, June 16.—A man deliberately committed suicide Saturday morning by placing himself under a train for Toronto leaving the James street Station. The wheels of a baggage car passed over his head and arm, and death was instantaneous. A police summons was found in an inside pocket, which showed the deceased was William Gusterson, a fish peddler, who was up in court a few days ago for peddling fish without a license. He was 45 years old, and leaves a wife and one son.

An Argument For Social Frankness.

It is best to be sincere, as a family in Germantown recently found out. They had been entertaining a distinguished novelist from abroad who was not altogether acquainted with society's way of saying things it does not mean. The time came for her departure, and as the host was handing her to the carriage he said very courteously, "I am sorry you cannot stay longer."

To which came the unlooked for retort, "Oh, but I can!"

There was only one course open. The trunks were taken down, the carriage sent away, and, to the consternation of her hosts, the lady re-entered the house.

FOOLED HIS SUPERIOR.

An Astonished Pasha and a Lieutenant Who Won Promotion.

Kassim Pasha when minister of war for Egypt was very particular in regard to the personal appearance of his officers and issued stringent orders that they should never appear unshaven in public. One day he met upon the street a lieutenant who had bearded the pasha and disregarded his orders. "To what regiment do you belong?" demanded the indignant minister. "To the —— regiment, at Abasseuh," replied the frightened lieutenant. "Get into my carriage at once so that I can carry you to the encampment and have you publicly punished," was the stern command which followed.

The young man obeyed, and the twain rode along gloomily enough for some time, when the pasha stopped his carriage and entered an office where he would be detained for some time on business. Seizing the opportunity, the culprit sprang from the vehicle, darted into a neighboring barber's stall and regained his post before the return of his jailer minus his beard. For the remainder of the route the officer buried his face in his hands and seemed the picture of apprehension.

Abasseuh was reached at last, and all the officers were assembled to witness the degradation of their comrade, who all the while kept well in the rear of his chief. "Come forward, you son of a dog!" cried the irate pasha, when there stepped before him an officer with a face as clean as a baby's and a look of the most supreme innocence. His excellency gave one look of blank astonishment and then, with an appreciative smile breaking over his war worn features, turned to the assembled officers and said, "Here, gentlemen, your old minister is a fool, and your young lieutenant is a captain."

Warned in a Dream.

An instance in which a dream was useful in preventing an impending catastrophe is recorded of a daughter of Mrs. Rutherford, at Ederton, the granddaughter of Sir Walter Scott. This lady dreamed more than once that her mother had been murdered by a black servant. She was so much upset by this that she returned home, and, to her great astonishment and not a little to her dismay, she met on entering the house the very black servant she had met in her dream. He had been engaged in her absence. She prevailed upon a gentleman to watch in an adjoining room during the following night.

About 3 o'clock in the morning the gentleman heard footsteps on the stairs, came out and met the servant carrying a quantity of coals. Being questioned as to where he was going, he answered confusedly that he was going to mend the mistress' fire, which at 3 o'clock in the morning in the middle of summer was evidently impossible. On further investigation a strong knife was found hidden in the coals. The lady escaped, but the man was subsequently hanged for murder, and before his execution he confessed that he intended to have assassinated Mrs. Rutherford.

A Dazed Porter.

Scene—Pullman car entering St. Louis. Porter obsequiously whisk-brooming woman passenger. After lingering expectantly he receives a tip—a five cent nickel. He looks at it critically, then drops it into the cuspidor, remarking defiantly, "Ah'm er portah frum Chicago!" "Open this window!" commands the woman. He obeys, whereupon she stoops, picks up the cuspidor and empties it upon the track; then, drawing herself up haughtily, observes, "I am a lady from Boston."

When in the station every passenger had left the car the porter said to the conductor: "Los' dat nickel, en' Ah'm er fool. It teaches me er lesson, howsomdever, never tel fool wid none o' dese Yankee women. Why, der ain't er woman through de whole west who'd er thought o' castin' dat nickel on de roadside when dey knowed Ah wanted it."

Ugliness at a Premium.

In the town of Haschmann, Germany, prizes are offered yearly for the men who will marry the ugliest or the most crippled and to the women over forty who have been jilted at least twice. The money was left by a big financier, and he, realizing that beauty is an attraction hard to overcome, made a provision in his will that out of the income of the fund not less than £10 shall go with the ugliest girl in any year and the cripple shall receive £12. The four women over forty who have been jilted by a lover receive, when the funds will permit, £10 each, but the trustee can vary this amount and at his own discretion offer a larger prize to some one who will marry an unusually ugly girl or one to whom nature has been specially unkind.

The Two Orphans.

Two little girls leaned over the fence that incloses the playground of the Little Wanderers' home, says The Christian Register.

"Oh, my!" said one. "Don't they have a good time? If I should be an orphan, I am coming here."

"Oh," said the other, "the one at Roxbury is ever so much better. I would go there if I were an orphan."

"I wouldn't," replied little girl No. 1, "'cause in this one I'd be near papa and mamma."

Who Sir Roger de Coverley Was.

Sir Roger de Coverley was the name of a member of the imaginary club of twelve under whose direction Addison's Spectator was professedly published. He was an old school, bluff, good hearted and simple English gentleman. The dance named after him is an English contra dance corresponding somewhat to the Virginia reel.

THE SIZE OF FAIRIES.

Creatures Who Live In the Poetry of the Elizabethan Age.

Readers of Elizabethan poetry are familiar with fairies who fashion coats from a bat's wing, fans from those of butterflies, coverlets from the skins of snakes, wage war with spiders and make expeditions on the backs of flies. Writers have commonly assumed that such minuteness was the product of poetic fancy, which reduced these spirits to a size much below that admitted by popular belief, but this is an error. Folklore supplies us with abundant examples of fairies who can carry no more than a single straw, who emerge from a molehill and make a thread bridge in order to traverse a keyhole. Concordant is the testimony of language, as when the foxglove passes for being a fairy cap.

If a size so reduced cannot allow historical interpretation, still less does ethnology explain the qualities of these fays, who in power do not differ from their larger cousins. Queen Mab, no larger than the jewel of a ring, is yet charged with the functions of a birth goddess. The least fairy can steal a bride or a baby; tenuity is of less consequence, since any tiny sprite can at will assume gigantic proportions. The fairies who in one canton are represented as dwarfish in the next may be described as gigantic.

The contrast, which cannot be accounted for as arising from historical memories, may be easily explained by the early modes of conceiving nature. In prehistoric conception a mountain might pass for a large man, a river for a tall one, while the inmates of petty hillocks would naturally be imagined as possessing a form corresponding to the narrow limits of their habitants.

A Familiar Name.

In the homes of Canada and the United States, there are few names more familiar and none more reverently spoken of than that of Dr. A. W. Chase, the great physician and receipt book author. He is blessed for the suffering he has relieved and the diseases he has cured; his remedies are used and endorsed by the best people in the land; they are popular because they cure when others fail.

Two Brushes.

Hoax—Yes, the train was going at the rate of a mile a minute, and I was brushed off by a porter.

Joax—Weren't you injured?

Hoax—Only to the extent of a ten cent tip.

The Philosophic Loser.

The horseman sighed: "That little jolt
Was only fair, you see.
Some years ago I broke the colt,
And now the colt breaks me!"

Short Lived.

"His musical compositions achieve some little popularity, but not for long."

"That's so; just thirty day notes, as it were."

Similes.

A man is like the honeybee
Who toils the livelong day;
The trust is like the man who takes
The honey all away.

Mightier Than the Appendix.

Church—I see Dr. Cuttum has got an automobile.

Gotham—Couldn't kill 'em quick enough, eh?

Just Little Shoes.

Just a little pair of shoes,
Yet a mother's heart aches, for
See that little pair of shoes
Tracking mud on mother's floor.

But Not Their First.

Hewitt—Gruet is very popular with the widows.

Jewett—Yes; he doesn't seem to be anybody's first choice

Second Thought.

He laughed at vegetarians,
Their claims and views disdaining;
At present, though, he wishes he
Had also gone in training.

Policy.

"The baby looks like its mother."

"Tsh! We want to make out that she takes after a rich aunt of mine."

NOT SO VERY GREEN.

The Florida Man Rather Evened Matters Up With the New Yorker.

When the young man from Florida came to live in New York, he woke up one morning last winter, and, going to the window, he looked out on what was to him a novel scene. It was a snowstorm, the first he had ever seen.

Jumping into his clothes, he ran into the street. He stooped and gathered handfuls of snow and threw them in the air. He jumped into a drift and sent it flying with his feet. He finally lay down and rolled in it, all the time shouting and laughing at the top of his voice.

One of the crowd which had gathered to watch his antics went up to him and told him how his mother used to cure fits and volunteered to try it on him.

"I haven't any fit," the young man said.

"What's the matter with you, then?"

"Why, don't you see the snow?"

"Yes, I see it. What of it? I have seen it before."

"Well, I haven't," said the Florida young man.

"What! You never saw snow before?" asked the astonished questioner.

"Never. Seems strange to you, don't it?"

"It beats any sample of verdancy I ever run across."

"Oh, I don't know," mused the Florida cracker. "Did you ever see an alligator eating a nigger? No? Well, you are not so many after all. I have seen it many times." And, throwing a handful of snow down his shirt collar, he pursued his joyous gambols.

The Girl and the Pimple.

Newspapers contained last year the account of a girl who committed suicide because she had a pimple on her face. Merrill's System Tonic from its blood purifying and blood strengthening qualities cures not only pimples but blotches of all kinds, also scrofula, eczema, and salt rheum. Three weeks treatment only 50 cents.

Quotation Marks.

Speaking of the use of quotation marks, the London Chronicle says:

But why all these inverted commas, "the silly trick of peppering pages with these uncouth bacilli?" You will find none of these bacilli in the Bible. Take this passage, chosen at random:

Now Jesus knew that they were desirous to ask him, and said unto them, Do ye inquire among yourselves of that I said, A little while, and ye shall not see me; and again, a little while, and ye shall see me?

The modern compositor would set that passage between two brackets of inverted commas, for it is a quote within a quote. But it is beautifully clear as it stands, and among all Biblical misunderstandings no one, we think, has been misled by the absence of an inverted comma.

A Story of Browning.

Browning himself couldn't always explain his meaning at first reading. Dr. Furnivall, founder of the English Browning society, frequently consulted the poet as to the meaning of some passage in his works. "Bless me," Browning would say, "I really have forgotten what I did mean, and as I haven't got a copy of my works by me I really can't enlighten you. Just lend me the book, there's a good fellow. I'll look it over at my leisure and try to find out what was in my mind at the time."

A Wonderful Tonic and Strengthener.

Said a druggist to-day. "No doubt about it, the tonic that gives best results is the biggest seller, and that is Ferrozone. It enriches and purifies the blood, restores strength and energy to the feeble, and is a scientific reconstructor that was always popular. In Chlorosis, Anaemia, Tiredness, Langour, Brain Fag, Indigestion and Dyspepsia its action is prompt, and satisfactory cures always follow. Yes, I recommend Ferrozone to my customers because I believe it is the best tonic and strengthening medicine that money can buy." Large bottles 50 cents. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

A Bad Beginning.

"I have known better days, lady," began Faded James.

"Yes, it's a wretched morning," replied the farmer's wife, "but I've got no time to discuss the weather with you, bad as it is." And she shut the door and left him.

Didn't Give It.

"Willie, did you give Johnny Smith a black eye?"

"No, ma'am."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes, ma'am. He already had the eye, an' I jest blacked it for him."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

a mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possible derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure, be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Realization.

"We never realize the full value of a thing until we lose it," remarked the moralist.

"That's right," remarked the practical man, "especially if the thing lost was insured."

LADIES' GOLF.

The following is the draw in the second round of the president's tournament;

Miss Archer vs. Mrs. Sanderson.
Miss L. Davidson vs. Miss Clementi.
Miss D. Hall vs. Miss Edwards.
Mrs. Stratton vs. Miss A. Dennistoun.
Mrs. Richard Hall vs. Miss G. Hall.

This round must be played off by Thursday, June 19th.

The next club tea will be held on Thursday, June 19th. A 'bus will go out for those wishing to drive.

GOLF.

The Golf Club Colts are laying plans for plenty of games this summer. On Wednesday next they visit Orillia, and on Coronation Day a match will be played in Belleville. Sturgeon Point and Bobcaygeon are anxious to have their return matches arranged.

LACROSSE.

The results of the principal lacrosse games on Saturday were as follows; Torontos won from the Nationals, by 10 to 3, and the Caps defeated Montreal, 10 to 1. Cornwall and Shamrock played a tie, but the game was awarded to the champions, Cornwall leaving the field. In the C.L.A. series, Tecumsehs won at Orangeville, 3 to 2, Brantford beat St. Kitts, 10 to 6, and London downed Paris 10 to 3. Young Torontos lost at Port Hope by 13 to 1.

Port Hope, June 14. — The Ontarios won their first league game of the intermediate series in this district here to-day by defeating the Young Torontos by 13 games to 1. The game was one of the cleanest seen here for some time. The visitors were simply outclassed and were at no stage of the game in it with the Ontarios. They had a little combination, and at times would check hard but they were not able to follow up and stop the telling combination of the Ontarios, which was far superior to their opponents.

Two weeks from to-day the first Minto Cup match between New Westminster and the Shamrocks will be played in Montreal. The Westerners leave for Montreal Tuesday and as they should make the trip across the continent in four days they will have a full week in Montreal before the first whistle blows. This will allow them to get into first-class condition and they will have none of the railway shakes in their various systems when they clash with the present cup holders. Their team will be practically the same as the Westminsters of two years ago, and they were too good for the Shamrocks then. The question is are the Irishmen any better than they were then or do they merely look that way by comparison with the other Eastern League teams.

BASEBALL.

The South Central School defeated the St. Andrew's Guild on Saturday afternoon in an interesting game of baseball. Reid caught a good game for the Guild, while Morphet, Weller, Macfarlane and Crossman put up an excellent game for the S.C.S.

Four Ts Make Good Singers.

Many people when singing get husky and this spoils the voice. DAIRY NOTES.

Good butter should be solid from the time it is put upon the table.

Any excitement in the dairy cow tends to lessen the flow of milk.

Failing to get all the buttermilk out causes butter to become rancid soon.

To obtain the best results in churning the cream should be only slightly sour.

In winter the cream should be warmed up to about 66 degrees before putting in the churn.

One advantage in brine salting is that it almost entirely avoids streaked or mottled butter.

The milk should always be skimmed while sweet and the cream then allowed to turn slightly sour.

Sometimes butter has white specks distributed through it. This is caused by oversourness in the cream.

In butter making next to cont. ling the temperature is to churn often while the cream is in good condition.

With temperature under control and churning done at the right time the butter will become solid and be easily handled.

On the farm to make the most out of the milk and butter some of the cows should be bred to come fresh in the spring and some in the fall.

When Life is not Life.

"Without health life is not life; it is only a state of languor and suffering—an image of death." The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food gives the weak, languid and discouraged a new hold on life. It makes the blood pure and rich, creates new nerve force and instils new energy and vitality into the whole being. It makes sick and weakly persons strong and well by building up the system.

TRAMPS' GATEPOST SIGNS

Explanations Which Will Help You to Understand Them.

The rude drawings hardly need a key. When on some white gatepost I found the sketch of a gun, I stole farther down the road. I had a strong objection so early in my career to being riddled full of holes by some intrepid farmer. The outline of a dog of warlike proportions, with wild eyes and ferocious teeth, was wont to make me go breakfastless. My summer wardrobe was not in condition to allow of further mutilation. If I felt brave enough to kick a yelping cur, I sauntered in recklessly at the gate which bore a portrait of a toy dog. Once past him one could usually get a bite.

A big round "O" did not make one wild to approach the premises it adorned. It generally portrayed a hostess with a nature of adamant. A single "X" stood for a cross saw, which with small manipulation might earn a meal. Two X's made a tramp of none too vigorous a makeup go farther down the road. It suggested considerable wood cutting in exchange for a meal.

The sign every tramp looks for anxiously is a crudely drawn table, with a lopsided coffee cup and a plate upon it. Beyond that gatepost dwells a sweet, simple, motherly soul who will welcome the most dilapidated hobo into her spotless kitchen and set before him a good square meal. She may sit beside him, inquiring as to the safety of his soul, and she may give him a mother's gentle advice or she may have a story to tell tearfully of a wayward boy lost somewhere in the great world, and all the fee she asks for her gracious hospitality is a simple request that in the wanderings of her guest he may look about for her absent boy and give him a loving message of a mother's longing and watching.

Existing Facts as to Corn.

New York, June 14th, 1902.—The first trustworthy and disinterested facts relative to the growing corn crop were received yesterday by R. G. Dunn & Co. from the principal corn states. They show the crop to be making excellent progress. There has been abundant rain, and the plant is vigorous. Warm, dry weather is now reported throughout the corn belt. In Ohio the crop looks well, with acreage up to the standard of preceding years. In the north western part of the state an increase of 25 per cent. is reported. In Indiana corn is making unusual progress. Here the acreage is far in excess of last year. In Ill. the corn crop is doing splendidly, and in the pink of condition, with enormous increase in acreage. In Iowa reports show the best condition at this season ever known. In Miss. there is some complaint as to excessive moisture but the acreage is much larger than usual, and the plant is unusually hardy. Kansas reports a very large acreage, as the abandoned wheat fields, aggregating 1,041,000 acres have been replanted in corn in addition to the previously very heavy corn acreage.

These States produce over two-thirds of the entire crop of the country, so there is every reason at present for taking a most optimistic view of the summer stock market. Stocks can recede but very little, if any, barring the unexpected, while there is every reason to anticipate an advance of considerable proportions. Seldom do times occur in Wall street when it seems so certain that purchases of railway stocks appear to be so sure to be productive of profit in the near future. Mop. and Paul continued to lead the market, the former selling up to 165 1-2 while the latter crossed at 173. The buying continued excellent. Wab. issues were decidedly active and strong. Coalers were all firm, but quiet. There was an easing up of traders committments for the week. The market absorbed offerings without any recessions. The industrials were generally unchanged. The bank statement was good. The market should be higher the coming week. Nothing doing in money. Total sales were 147,700.—Haight & Freese Company.

Toronto Street Car Employes Grant Further Time.

A DELAY OF A DAY FOR PARLEY

Decision Reached at an Early Hour After a Protracted Meeting—Toronto Board of Trade Seeks to Prevent Breach Between the Company and Its Men—A Day's Proceedings.

Toronto, 4.30 a.m., June 17.—The union meeting of the Toronto Street Railway Company's employes has just adjourned. The committee of the Board of Trade secured the delay of a day in issuing the strike order on the condition that the Committee of the Board of Trade calls a general meeting of all the company's employes, whether union men or not, for to-morrow morning, immediately after this midnight, to discuss the situation and appoint a committee to meet with the company's officials to settle the various matters in dispute between the interested parties.

This is virtually a win for the company, as the delay will be incalculable service to it, and a corresponding disadvantage to the men.

THE DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Toronto, June 17.—A sub-committee of the Street Railway Employes' Union waited on Manager Keating yesterday morning, in response to his expressed willingness to talk over the situation with them.

Though properly provided with credentials, the members of the sub-committee were unable to convince Mr. Keating that they in reality represented the employes of the company. He, therefore, refused to deal with them.

The sub-committee then left and Mr. Keating sent a letter to their secretary, Mr. McDonald, in which he delivered what the men consider an ultimatum.

Two Mass Meetings.

Although the union had sent out a circular calling their meeting in the Star theatre for this morning immediately after Monday midnight, Mr. Keating called a mass meeting of the company's employes for the same hour in Victoria hall. At this meeting at about 11.45 last night there were about thirty persons in the hall, but Roadmasters McCarron and Wheeler came along and looked them over, with the result that only eight or ten were recognized as employes of the company. Nearly a score more arrived later and were allowed entrance to the hall. At the door a couple of men tried to identify all who went in, but many secured admittance only to stop the proceedings and were put out again before business was resumed.

After some speeches by conductors and motormen, Chairman T. Hogg said that the company would agree to a scale of 18c an hour from the first to the third year, 20c from the 3rd to 5th year, and after that 22c. Mr. Desmond asked who offered that scale, and some one in the audience said Mr. Keith, but no direct answer was made to the question.

The Union's Meeting.

Five hundred employes of the company and as many spectators surrounded the Star theatre when the doors were thrown open shortly after midnight to admit members of the union to discuss the strike. When the door was opened James McDonald, business manager and organizer, of the union, had charge of admissions. Admission was by card, each man pulling his credentials from his pocket and exhibiting same to the door-keeper as he passed in. Fully an hour was required to admit the members and it was estimated that over 900 persons passed through the door, before all the uniformed men had disappeared from the crowd outside the building.

Board of Trade Deputation.

A deputation from the Board of Trade was first heard and counselled delay for a day to have one final effort made in favor of arbitration.

A surprise was sprung on the meeting in the form of a vigorous speech in favor of the company by Assistant Roadmaster F. McKeene, one of the best known men in the service. Mr. McKeene was promoted to his present position from a motorman's work, and has been a member of the union from the first week of its organization. He pointed out where it would be to the men's advantage, in his estimation, to avoid a strike, and, after much cheering, Mr. McKeene suddenly ceased his remarks and handed in a sheet of paper to the chairman which, he said, he presented with much regret. It was his resignation as a member of the union. Then he left the hall.

There was considerable speech-making of a brief character, the Board of Trade committee urging the men to delay declaring a strike for at least a day, and by that time they were sure it would be possible to secure a conference by which they thought a strike would be unnecessary. The men were determined, however, to take summary action. The Board of Trade committee then requested that no strike be declared until they called on the street car officials and ascertain what could be done. At 2 o'clock the committee left the theatre hurriedly and went to the company headquarters, where General Manager Keating and other officials were awaiting news of the men's action.

The Union's Ultimatum.

The union meeting informed the committee that the only condition upon which they would delay declaring a strike even for an hour was the assurance from the company of an undisputed character that every man that is being trained on the cars at present will be taken off, and all men brought into the city within the next few days to take the places of the men be be sent away to the places from which they came this morning. If the committee could bring the meeting this assurance no strike would be called for to-night, but the men would wait for a conference during the day with the officials of the company. They made it plain, however, that it must be unequivocal, and that no delay would be tolerated.

The Board of Trade Committee hurried to the headquarters with this ultimatum, while the meeting of the union awaited the result of the committee's efforts.

At 2.45 a.m. the Board of Trade representatives left Mr. Keating's office and went to the Star Theatre. Mr. Ames said that so far he could not say anything for publication. Mr. Allan was equally reticent, and Mr. Gage said the most important announcement he had to make was that it was getting pretty near breakfast time.

Company Has 1,800 Men.

The street railway officials are confident that they will win the strike. They have been preparing for months. Within two days they can place their hands on 1,800 men, competent, they declare, to act as conductors and motormen.

Recruits have been enlisted in every town and city in Eastern Canada where trolleys prevail. Among other places are: Yarmouth, N.S., Halifax, N.S., St. John, N.B., Sherbrooke, Que., Montreal, Que., Ottawa, Brockville, Cornwall, Belleville, Kingston, Oshawa, Galt, Woodstock, Hamilton, Sarnia and Windsor.

Representatives of the company have been at all these places. The wages offered are $2 a day, with board, all necessary expenses and a steady position assured.

The officials say that all the men who strike are out of the company's employ forever.

Buffalo and other American cities befriended by the company in times past will send their quota.

The company estimates that the strike will cost $3,000 a week in receipts alone, but with its 1,000 shareholders, and its vast reserve fund, it does not let this worry it.

Twenty-two men who came to the city yesterday from London to take the place of probable strikers went back last night.

Strikers to Run Buses.

The street railway employes propose to enter actively into competition with the company in the business of transporting passengers, provided they find it necessary. All preparations are practically completed by which it will not be necessary for people to walk even if the cars are not being operated. The men will hire carriages, wagons, busses, and other kinds of vehicles, run them up and down the main streets of the city and charge a fare of five cents for each passenger. It is estimated that three hundred vehicles of various descriptions can be utilized for this service and if more are required they will probably be brought from outside towns. These vehicles will work on the endless chain plan, and keep moving all the time.

Demands of the Men.

"1. That the Toronto Railway Company shall recognize the union.

"2. That Bro. James McDonald shall be reinstated by the company.

"3. That the working days shall consist of nine hours as nearly as the runs shall permit.

"4. That each conductor and motorman shall receive 25 cents an hour and time and a quarter for Sunday.

"5. That in the event of the suspension of a conductor or motorman an investigation shall be held, and if the employe is found blameless, he shall be paid for lost time.

"6. That the cars be cleaned and put in order for the conductor and motorman in the morning, and the conductor and motorman shall keep the inside and platforms of the car clean while on duty.

"7. Whenever the union shall require the temporary service of any of its members, such member shall get leave of absence from the company until such services are performed.

GEORGE STREET LEAGUE.

Ice Cream Social Given by the Young People.

A most delightful evening was spent by the members and friends of the George street League at the ice cream social given in the school room last night. The society is generally fortunate in securing the best talent of the town for its programmes, and last night was by no means an exception. The presence of Hodgson's orchestra added much to the pleasure of the evening, and their execution was a pleasant surprise to many. The first number was a two step, "Message from Mars." In the second number the orchestra played the accompaniment for Miss Clara Belleghem's solo, "Beyond the Gates of Paradise." Miss Belleghem's splendid voice was heard to excellent advantage, and she was obliged to respond to an encore. The remaining numbers by the orchestra were "Creole Belle," and "The Bonnie Briar Bush." Little Miss Mabel Pringle, who is rapidly becoming a favourite, received hearty applause for her excellent recitation, and had to respond to an encore. Master Herbert Mowat, another general favourite, was heard in the solo, "Rallying around the Flag," which also demanded an encore. The Misses Gray were heard in a duet, nicely sung, as was also the quartette, "Good Night," by Messrs. Miller, Maguire, Turner and Doidge. Mrs. W. W. Daly and Miss Alberta White, both of whom it is always a pleasure to listen to, contributed a vocal solo and a reading, for which they received well merited applause.

At the conclusion of the programme refreshments—ice cream and cake—were served, and a pleasant half-hour of social intercourse was spent.

THE NORTH GREY RECOUNT MATTER

Sensational Charges of Wrong Doing Greatly Exaggerated.

THE FOUR SPOILED BALLOTS

Did not Deprive Conservative of His Seat—The Liberal Elected Without Them—Judge Morrison Contradicts Mail's Misstatement.

(Special Despatch to the Globe.)

Owen Sound, June 14.—The announcement in the Globe to-day that the Government had despatched Mr. Aemilius Irving, K.C., as a special commissioner to institute an inquiry into the alleged irregularities at polling sub-division No. 9 of St. Vincent, in the North Riding of Grey, was received here with much satisfaction. The late election is described as the hottest ever held in the constituency; feeling ran high, and even the women, young and old, were active partisans. The sensational charges of corruption made by the Conservative press of Toronto were based upon such meagre evidence that they simply re-opened the discussion along party lines. Since the facts as far as they could be gathered have been given in the Globe, the ripple of excitement has subsided and the prompt action on the part of the Government has given assurance that the suspicious circumstances will be investigated, and the truth, so far as discoverable, made known. As the public mind has become seized of the fact that the four ballots in question did not affect the result of the election, because Mr. McKay had a clear majority, even if they were counted for his opponent, a further cause for excitement was removed. A gentleman was in Meaford on the day following the flaring announcements in the Mail and World, and again yesterday, remarked to the Globe reporter that he was astonished at the change in the feeling of the people. yesterday the feeling was intense; today it had altogether subsided, owing, he said, to the statements of the facts in the Globe. Further gross misrepresentation characterizes the statements in the Conservative papers regarding the talked of second recount before Judge Creasor yesterday. In the published reports it is stated that returning officer McKnight refused to produce ballots for the recount. Judge Creasor stated to a Globe reporter to-day that he had told Mr. McKnight, the returning officer, that he did not expect him to produce the ballots and that there was no necessity for him being present. He said that he and Mr. McKnight had talked the matter over beforehand. Mr. McKnight had told him that he had been informed by the Attorney-General's Department that there could not be two re-counts. Judge Creasor said he had agreed with that and had told Mr. McKnight that he need not appear. Judge Creasor said the opening of the re-count on Friday was merely a formal matter, that it might be adjourned for three weeks to allow the solicitors for Mr. Boyd to make any motion they saw fit before the High Court. It is now known that Mr. Du Vernet's application to Judge Creasor for an appointment for a re-count was made at one o'clock in the morning.

THE RETURNING OFFICER.

Mr. Robert McKnight, registrar of North Grey and returning officer at the late election, is a man whose probity and integrity cannot be questioned. To a Globe reporter who interviewed him to-day regarding the fact that the ballots of polling subdivision No. 9, St. Vincent, were returned him loose in the ballot box, and when presented at the re-count were enclosed in a proper envelope, as usual, he said, "Mr. Carson, the deputy returning officer, when he made his return, told me I had not supplied him with packet A, and that therefore the ballots were without an envelope. I asked him why he did not wrap them up in a paper and seal them, and his answer was, "I did not think of that." Then I immediately went into the outer office, and in the hearing of everyone in the office, Mr. Carson included, told Miss Stevens, one of the two girls who had assisted me in putting up the packages of stationery, that packet A had not been supplied to Mr. Carson with the other material. Miss Stevens said that she did not think that any mistake had been made. The ballot box was not opened till the summing up of the 4th of June, and they were then opened by my election clerk, Captain Tait Robertson, who handed the poll book out of each ballot box for the inspection of the returning officer, the candidates and their agents. At that time no one noticed that the ballots were without an envelope because they were covered by the other packets and stationery. After that the ballots remained unsealed in my custody till immediately preceding the recount, where it was necessary for me to take out of them the material necessary for the re-count. That for each polling sub-division I did up in a separate parcel. When I came to No. 9, St. Vincent, I discovered that the ballots were as reported by Mr. Carson, without an envelope, in the box. These I gathered up and put in a proper envelope for safety and convenience. I neither saw nor attempted to see how any ballot was marked, nor for whom it was marked, and submitted these to the judge in common with others. At the close of the discussion by counsel upon the four questioned ballots from St. Vincent, I said to the judge and before those assembled at the recount that there was a statement I thought I ought to make in connection with the returns from that polling subdivision. The Judge replied that there was no necessity for any statement from me. As far as I know, no one present, except myself, knew the purport of the statement I wished to make. The statement I intended to make was that the ballots were returned to me without an envelope."

THE OFFICE STAFF'S STATEMENT.

So far as they could Mr. McKnight's statement was corroborated by the then members of his office staff. Miss Anne Stevens, who has been twelve years in the office, stated when asked, that she remembered perfectly well Mr. McKnight coming out of his private office on Tuesday morning, June 3rd, and stating that a packet or envelope had been omitted. She had said that she felt certain that all the bundles had been made up correctly. Miss Ella Creighton was out at the time, but she said that Miss Stevens told her about it when she came in. She, too, thought no mistake had been made. Both the young ladies however quite willingly admitted that a mistake was possible and that an envelope might have been overlooked. Mr. Carlett, the deputy registrar, also remembered Mr. McKnight's coming out while Mr. Carson was in the inner office, and stating that an envelope had been omitted. The 54 bundles of stationery and material for the deputy returning officers were put up by Mr. McKnight and the two young ladies in his office. Mr. McKnight laid out the envelopes, blank forms, printed bills containing instructions to others, sealing wax and other things supplied, on the tops of the two packing cases in which they had come. There were four rows of piles. Mr. McKnight looked after the poll-books and ballots, divided the rest between his two assistants, and instructed them to hand him one from each pile of material. He then made up a parcel for each deputy returning officer. The young woman could gather up the material much faster than he could parcel it, and they often had to wait, so they said themselves. Under these circumstances had they been ever so careful, it can be easily understood how the mistake of omitting one from any single pile of material could be made. Moreover, both the young ladies said they did not read what was printed on any of the material, so that lacking that means of distinguishing between the various piles they were all the more likely to make a mistake. Speaking of how the ballots were safeguarded while in his possession, Mr. McKnight said the boxes were kept in his private office, and that whenever he went out he closed the iron shutters, the windows of the registry office being grated, and locked the door. Before the seals were broken and the boxes opened for the summing up, he had left the key in a private locked drawer in the vault, and after the boxes had been opened he carried the key on his person.

THE CONSERVATIVE SCRUTINEER.

The Globe reporter had an interview to-day also with Mr. William Goudy, the Conservative scrutineer at No. 9, St. Vincent, who was most assiduous in his attention to every detail of the proceedings, and who watched the ballots as they were counted by the depty returning officer after the close of the poll. Mr. Goudy stated, and repeated the statement several times, that he would not swear that the four ballots in question did not bear both crosses when they were counted after the close of the poll on the night of the election. He was quite positive about that. Mr. Goudy is a farmer in early middle age, simple-minded, straight-forward, truth-loving and unassuming. That much is evident in a brief conversation. He is not, however, an educated man, and he made it evident that by men whom he looked up to his mind could be prejudiced, for he went to the polling booth on election morning fully possessed by the belief that grave irregularities were going to be attempted by Mr. Carson, the deputy returning officer. He said he had watched everything very closely all day and had detected no wrongdoing nor anything that created in his mind suspicion of wrongdoing. Regarding the proceeding after the close of the poll his story tallies in every essential detail with what has been told by Mr. Carson and Mr. Dyce. To the reporter he said: "Mr. Carson first counted the ballots from the ballot-box onto the table and counted 69. We knew by the record kept during the day that there should be 70. Mr. Carson then counted the ballots back into the box and made 70. In counting the ballots (i.e., calling the vote,) Mr. Carson stood up and took the ballots, one by one, from the ballot-box, and as he called the vote put the ballots on the table. I stood beside Mr. Carson, and as he took each ballot out of the box and called the vote he would hold it over in front of me for me to look at. If I did not see the ballot thoroughly before he took it away, I would say: 'Hold on, I did not see it,' and he would hold it back again until I was satisfied. All the tallies agreed on the first count. When it came to putting away the ballots he said: 'There is another place I want to sign my name. I have been signing a good deal and there's another thing yet. I want to sign my name across the seal of the envelope with the ballots in it.' Mr. Carson and Mr. Dyce searched for the envelope. I stood and watched them. They could not find it. Mr. Carson said: 'We can't find one; we have not got one.' He said: 'We will have to put them in the box.' I did not know what else to do with them, and offered no objection. At the end of the count Mr. Carson and Mr. Dyce took the oaths in the poll-book to each other, and each of the scrutineers also took an oath before Mr. Carson."

THE SPOILED BALLOTS.

Regarding the four much-talked-of ballots, Mr. Goudy said: — "If the marks were on them, I did not see them. I would not swear they were not, but I do not think they were." Mr. Goudy explained the positions of those in the room as the others had done. He and Mr. Carson, he said, were all who could see the faces of the ballots. Mr. Buchan, the Liberal scrutineer (from whom Mr. Boyd and Mr. Masson tried to get a signed statement that no ballots with two crosses were counted, and who signed a statement that to the best of his knowledge there were none such.) Mr. Goudy said, he was tallying, and was not near the table at all.

THE MAIL'S MIS-STATEMENT.

The Mail and Empire's article on Thursday, relating to the count in North Grey and the four spoiled ballots there, contains much that is exaggerated and sensational, but the following statement made in the introductory paragraph is absolutely untrue:—"In declaring Mr. McKay elected, the presiding Judge expressed the utmost reluctance to do so." This was drawn to the attention of his Honour Judge Morrison to-day by The Globe reporter, and his reply was: "You are authorized to state from me that I never made nor intended to make any such statement, nor anything from which such an inference could be drawn. I did not declare anyone elected. I had nothing at all to do with declaring anyone elected, but only to re-count the ballots."

The effect of The Mail's statement was to convey the impression that the result of the election was changed by the spoiled ballots or that there might be many more ballots in the same condition. As a matter of fact the counsel on both sides, Mr. Watson, Mr. Du Vernet, Mr. McPherson and Mr. Wright, frequently commented upon the fine condition of the ballots. They all agreed that they had never seen ballots in better shape. The four ballots in question were the only ones to which the slightest suspicion attached.

MAIZE REMAINS TAXED.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach Refuses to Listen to Plea to Omit It.

London, June 17.—In the course of the debate on the finance bill in the House of Commons yesterday, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, refused to accept an amendment to omit maize from the new duties on grain.

He said that he did not believe that the extra 2d per hundred-weight would increase the price, and, even if it did the effects would not be so terrible as predicted by the Irish members.

Thomas W. Russell, (Unionist) advanced the curious plea for an abatement of the tax that maize was not only used as food for animals in Ireland, but as human food by the poorest of the poor.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer agreed to reduce the duty on offal feedstuffs to 1½ pence, and said he would also consider a reduction in the duty on maize, in the interests of starch manufacturers.

RADCLIFFE IN WINNIPEG.

On His Way to Execute Gordon at Brandon—Latter Attempts Suicide.

Winnipeg, June 17.—Radcliffe, the hangman, is in the city. He came in on yesterday morning's train from the east, traveling in the colonist car, where he was an object of peculiar interest to his fellow passengers. The hangman, on reaching the city, did not waste any time hanging around the depot. He is on his way to Brandon, where he will officiate in the hanging of Walter Gordon. The latter has of late become more reconciled to his fate and has paid the closest attention to the ministrations of his spiritual advisor, but vigilance has not been relaxed. He has been watched with the greatest care since the death sentence was imposed, as he at one time showed some desire to make away with himself.

The watch kept upon his every movement in manner, was caused by a little incident which occurred just after sentence was passed. Gordon was pacing up and down the reading room of the jail, when he nonchalently walked to the window where were some plants. Before the guard could prevent him, Gordon had broken off and swallowed a piece of the crockery flower pot, also a rusty nail that was mixed in the earth. Since that time the prisoner's liberty has been considerably curtailed, and a watch kept on his every movement.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Has Proved a Blessing to all Ranks and Conditions of People in Summer.

A GOVERNMENT OFFICIAL SPEAKS.

The success of Paine's Celery Compound in banishing the ills and diseases that follow people into the summer time, has not been confined to any particular class of society. Men esteemed in business and professional life, mechanics, farmers, women leaders in society, and the wives and mothers of humble homes, have all by voice and pen, contributed strong testimony in favour of the medicine that restored them to health and strength.

When Paine's Celery Compound is used there is no more neuralgia, rheumatism, dyspepsia, stomach derangements, liver or kidney troubles. The blood once foul and stagnant, is made fresh and pure, and courses with a regularity that brings vigor and happiness. The use of one bottle is often sufficient to establish a health robust enough to combat the dangers and perils that are common in hot weather. Mr. C. W. Ross, Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, Ont., says:

"For a long period I suffered from the pains and tortures of neuralgia, and the effects to my general system were so serious and alarming that my doctor ordered an ocean trip. I went to England at considerable expense, but had to return to Canada almost as bad as when I left it. After getting home I determined to use Paine's Celery Compound. After using the medicine for a short time the results were most pleasing and gratifying. The attacks became less frequent and less severe, and soon the whole trouble was completely banished. I have not experienced a pain or ache for months."

THE KING AT WINDSOR

His Majesty Was Able to Attend a Dinner Party.

PHYSICAL CONDITION AT 61.

The Aldershot Review of Garrison Troops Was Performed by the Prince of Wales in the Stead of His Majesty the King—The Ceremony Dampened by Rain—The Colors Presented.

Windsor, June 17.—King Edward arrived here at 6 p.m. yesterday from Aldershot. He and the Queen came from Aldershot in a motor car.

The indisposition of King Edward and the incessant downpour of rain combined to effectually spoil the grand review of troops there yesterday. The King did not leave the Royal Pavilion and was represented by the Prince of Wales, who rode to the saluting point accompanied by the Duke of Cornwall, and a brilliant staff, comprising several Indian princes, the military attaches, Lord Roberts, the commander-in-chief and the headquarters staff. Queen Alexandra drove to the parade ground in a closed carriage with the Princess of Wales and Princess Victoria. In other carriages at the saluting point were the Duchess of Connaught and many of the nobilities who are now visiting England. Over 32,000 rain-soaked troops marched past the heir to the throne.

During the march past, which was headed by the cavalry brigade, headed by Lord Roberts, the massed bands played the National Anthem, and the sun made a fitful attempt to assert itself, which helped to enliven the macintoshed, but nevertheless drenched crowds.

Queen Alexandra performed the picturesque ceremony of presenting colors to the Highland Light Infantry.

In spite of the rain the troops went through the usual evolutions previous to the march past.

Will Not Go to Ascot.

King Edward bore yesterday's journey to Windsor well, but it has been decided that he will not go to Ascot to-day.

Queen Alexandra, however, accompanied by the Prince and Princess of Wales, and other members of the royal family, will attend the races in state.

The Prince of Wales, conversing with the Mayor of Windsor upon his arrival yesterday evening, said: "King Edward caught a chill in the stomach; he is much better, however, although he will have to be careful. His Majesty is still troubled with slight pain."

Sir Francis Laking, physician-in-ordinary to the King, and who has been in constant attendance upon His Majesty since he became indisposed at Aldershot, is pleased to get King Edward to Windsor Castle, where he can receive better attention than at Aldershot.

King Edward has lately undergone a regular course of massage for rheumatism, which has troubled him as a result of the bad weather.

After arriving at Windsor last evening, His Majesty was able to walk about the Castle and receive the guests whom he had invited to a dinner party.

His Majesty's Condition.

The King of England is 61 years old. Up to 1871 he enjoyed good health, but in that year he was stricken with a severe attack of typhoid fever. Following his recovery he grew to be robust, but of late years his condition has more than once alarmed his physicians.

The exigencies of his position have entailed great draughts on his constitution and vitality, and more than once he has been laid up with severe attacks of lumbago.

Thrived on Strychnine.

Ottawa, June 17.—Francis Renaud who claims to come from Montreal, swallowed eighteen half-grain strychnine pills in Aylmer Park. He took the poison in the full gaze of many spectators, observing as he did so, "Here goes for the whole bottle." Renaud was attacked by convulsions, but physicians worked with him all night and managed to save his life. Renaud refused to say anything about himself other than that he was driven to the deed by drink.

An Energetic Retort.

"My tastes," said the extravagant son, "are inherited."

"Yes," retorted the angry father; "everything you have is inherited. You haven't gumption enough to acquire eve taste by individual effort."

STRIKERS USING RIFLES.

At Bluefield, W. Va., Strikers With Winchesters Are Parading the Flat Top Coal Fields.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 17.—The sixth week of the miners' strike began yesterday without a ripple to disturb the calmness of the situation. Rain fell nearly all day, which helped to keep the more than 150,000 men and boys on strike indoors.

Several reports of assaults on workingmen and coal and iron policemen were received here from different sections of the region, but no one was seriously injured. Most of these attacks occurred under cover of darkness or at starting time in the morning.

Strikers With Winchesters.

Bluefields, W.Va., June 17.—Parties of strikers are parading the Flat Top coal fields armed with Winchesters. A great many shots have already been exchanged between them and the guards at the mines. At the Buckeye operation a party of a hundred miners, most of them armed, prevented the men from going to work. At the Tug River operation in the Tug River district last night thirty strikers tried to take possession of the mines. A number of shots were exchanged by the strikers and guards. The strikers finally were driven off. The mining companies are calling on the sheriffs of the different counties for protection.

Peace Now Restored.

Pawtucket, R.I., June 17.—When, in the opinion of ten prominent citizens, including Mayor Fitzgerald and Chief of Police Rice, tranquility has been restored in place of mob riot, the militia ordered here last Thursday by Governor Kimball in connection with the street car strike will be withdrawn. This conclusion was reached at a meeting last night.

A Strike at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Ont., June 17. — Yesterday morning the Cataract Power Company was served with a notice to the effect that unless the demands of the local Electrical Workers' Union are met the men will quit work at the end of 24 hours. The notice was signed by Messrs. F. J. Sheehan and H. J. Hurd, representatives of the International Union, who were here last week. The notice is dated June 11, and was not delivered till yesterday. It was worded so that it could be delivered at any time, and it was to take effect 24 hours after it was handed to the company.

Mr. Hawkins, general manager of the company, said the demands would not be granted. From 40 to 100 men will quit work.

Death Rate in Africa.

London, June 17.—The average death rate of the British troops in foreign service is 15 per 1,000, and in South Africa it was 18.1. In the last year of the American civil war the total death rate of officers and men, which had previously been much higher, was reduced to 40.49 per 1,000 and in the Franco-Prussian war the total death rate was 46 per 1,000. In South Africa during the closing months of the war the total mortality has been 30,03.

Woodstock Man Killed.

Woodstock, June 17.—Word was received in the city yesterday that Samuel Ronald was killed on Saturday in a railway wreck in Montana. He was born at Innerkip 24 years ago. He worked here for a long time. He was a fireman on the Great Northern.

G.T.R. Wages Go Up.

Toronto, June 17.—A circular was issued yesterday by Superintendent Jones of the G.T.R., advancing the wages of the yardmtn of the middle division 10 cents a day. The wages now are: foremen, $2.10 per day; yardmen, $1.60 and $1.70 per day.

British Barque Burned.

San Francisco, June 17.—News has been received from Honolulu that the British barque, Fannie Kern, laden with coal from Newcastle, Australia, to this port, caught fire at sea and was abandoned by the crew, who safely reached land.

Assassination Canard.

Vienna, June 17.—There is no truth in the statement published in the United States that an Anarchist plot to assassinate Emperor Francis Joseph was discovered here yesterday.

Spain Yields Gracefully.

Madrid, June 17.—It was announced here yesterday that the Government has decided to appoint a minister to the Cuban republic.

A Family Necessity.

"Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. Hosts of families would not think of being without them. One pill a dose, 25 cts. a box.

GATHERING OPIUM.

How the Petals and Juice of the Poppy Plant Are Prepared.

It is a sort of garden cultivation, the poppy plants being grown in little squares or beds intersected by tiny water channels for irrigation wherever this is possible. The growth of the plants is carefully tended, and at length the time comes when they burst out into flower, and the fields look like a sheet of silver as the white petals of the flowers glisten in the morning dew.

These beautiful petals are the first produce of the crop, for the women and children of the cultivators' families come forth and pick them off one by one and carefully dry them, so that they may serve afterward as the covering of the manufactured cakes of opium. Then the poppies, with their bare capsule heads, remain standing in the open field until it is considered that they are ripe for lancing. The cultivators then come forth in the evening, and, with an implement not unlike the knives of a cupping instrument, they scarify the capsule on its sides with deep incisions, so that the juice may exude.

In the early morning the cultivators reappear with a scraping knife and their earthenware pots, and they scrape off the exuded juice and collect it in their pots. And this is crude opium.

A Historian's Reward.

On April 5, 1605, John Stow, tailor and historian, died. His minute and painstaking survey can never be overlooked by any one who wishes to know London of the sixteenth century. It contains a wealth of fact and detail and has, moreover, been described as the most picturesque of narratives. At the age of eighty years he was given by James I, as a reward for his many and useful books and chronicles—a license to beg!

"We have been pleased to grant," runs the license, "our Letters Patent under our great Seal of England thereby authorising him to collect among our loving subjects their voluntary contributions and kind gratuities." When the license had been extended so as to avail for two years, it yielded from a single London parish the magnificent sum of seven and sixpence.

John Stow's monument is a pleasing work in terra cotta on the wall of St. Andrew's undershaft. The fire of London that destroyed so much spared the effigy of London's chronicler, so that the posterity for which he labored might photograph it.—London News.

A Galt Lady Saved $60.

Mrs. Nesbit of Galt was sure her daughter was dying of consumption. So were two physicians and all the neighbours. Three 25c bottles of Four T's put the girl on her feet. As a positive, safe and speedy cure for coughs, colds or congested lungs this Four T's can't be beaten. Large bottles 25c. at Ormond & Walsh's drug store.

Red Snow.

In the arctic regions early explorers were astounded to find large areas of red snow, but the phenomenon is now familiar to men of science, who know that red snow, like a green garden fence, is due to the presence of unicellular algæ, the only difference being in the coloring matter of the protoplasm. It is said that acres of snow are frequently covered in a single night by these tiny plants.

A Recognized Regulator.

To bring the digestive organs into symmetrical working order is the aim of physicians when they find a patient suffering from stomachic disorders, and for this purpose they can prescribe nothing better than Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which will be found a pleasant medicine of surprising virtue in bringing the refractory organs into subjection and restoring them to normal action, in which condition only can they perform their duties properly.

The Climate.

"Don't you think you have a very changeable climate?" said the stranger.

"No," said the native. "It changes fast enough when it's pleasant, but when it's disagreeable it hangs on like grim death."

SERVICES APPRECIATED.

Mr. Riley of the Lock Works Retires Owing to Ill Health.

Mr. M. Riley, who for the past 17 years has been connected with the Peterborough Lock Works, and who has, owing to ill-health, severed his connection with that company, has received the following letter from Hon. J. R. Stratton, President of the same:

M. Riley, Esq., Peterborough, Ont.,

Dear Sir,—On behalf of the Directors of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, permit me to express our extreme regret that the condition of your health has rendered necessary your retirement from business relations with the Company.

During the 17 years that you have been associated with the Company, the best of good feeling has marked the relations of yourself and the Board, and no doubt much of the success that has attended the operations of the Company, has been largely owing to your mechanical skill and knowledge of the manufacturing of locks.

As President of the Board since the demise of Mr. Brooks, I desire to personally express my appreciation of your fidelity to the best interest of the Company. I very deeply regret the cause which lead to the separation of yourself and the Company.

I sincerely trust that the rest and relaxation, which the next few months, will, I believe afford, will result in a very great improvement in, if not complete restoration of your health.

In any event the Company wish you a happy and prosperous future.

Yours faithfully,
J. R. STRATTON,
President.

POLICE COURT.

At the police court this morning, "Max" Giroux was the complainant in an assault case. "Max claims that Lorenzo Desautel met him in the south end of the town on Sunday and knocked off a silk tile which he was wearing. They also finished out the trouble later in the evening. The Magistrate held that an assault had been committed, and Desautel was fined $2 and costs.

ADJOURNED UNTIL MONDAY.

The Inquest as to the Headless Babe's Death.

Several Witnesses Were Examined Last Night—Nothing New Brought to Light.

The inquest to inquire into the cause of death to a headless infant that was found on a sawdust heap on the Dickson Company's premises one week ago, was resumed last night before Coroner Gray.

All the members of the jury were in attendance.

The first witness called was Matthew McMahon. Mr. McMahon said that he was a resident of Ashburnham, and had seen the box, containing the dead child, on Wednesday morning. It was in the sawdust pile on the west side of the river. There was a quilt around the box, which attracted his attention. He proceeded to investigate, and found that there was the body of a child in the box. He immediately notified the other men in the yard. The box may have been there the day before, or in fact for several days previously, and he might not have noticed it. The box was about two feet long, eight inches wide and six inches deep. Mr. Nimmo was with him when he saw box. It was about 10 feet from the path.

Mr. L. Nimmo gave evidence on much the same lines as that given by the previous witness. He claimed to have seen the box first on Wednesday morning and drew McMahon's attention to it. He had heard nothing as to where the box came from. The top of the box was broken. All the pieces of quilt were inside of the box.

George Beavis was then called. He worked for the Dickson Company. His work is that of driving the sawdust out to the pile, and on Monday at noon his horses became somewhat frightened at a small box that lay at the side of the path. He hit the box with a hook that he had in his hand. He could not say that this was the same box, or that there was anything in it whatever. To the best of his knowledge the box was lying on the sawdust and not covered. He did not hear anything further of the box until Tuesday evening when Mr. Lynch mentioned it to him and said that he did not like the look of it. Witness could not say how long the box was or what size it was at all. He next saw the box on Wednesday morning just before the Chief came to view it. He could not say whether it was the same box or not.

Samuel Stewart was sworn. He was coming through the sawdust yard on Sunday evening. When going along the path accompanied by his wife, he noticed a box partially covered with sawdust. It was about 7 or 8 inches deep and about the same in width. The box that he saw on Sunday night and the box the Chief got were in the same locality. He had not seen the box from Tuesday night until Wednesday when the Chief removed it. The box did not appear to have a complete cover on it, but there was a slat nailed on the box over the white material therein.

Mrs. Stewart, wife of the previous witness gave evidence much on the same line. The witness stated further that when she saw the box she gave it a poke with her umbrella and her husband said to come on and never mind it. The box appeared quite heavy.

Charles Mayette saw the box on Monday morning but paid no attention to it. The next occasion on which he saw it was on Wednesday morning after it had been opened.

An adjournment was then made until Monday night of next week.

COUNTY COUNCIL NOW IN SESSION.

Warden Eastland's Address to the Members.

REFERRED TO MANY MATTERS

Must Have Improved Railway Cattle-guards—The Settlement of the Back Townships.

The June Session of the County Council of the County of Peterborough opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The following members were in attendance: Mr. T. G. Eastland Warden; J. B. Pearce, Dr. Jeffs, E. A. Peck, Wm. Anderson, Robt. Shaw, Paul Costello, G. W. Fitzgerald, W. H. Casement, and Richard Crowe.

The minutes of the last meeting were read, and on motion, adopted.

WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

The Warden, Mr. T. G. Eastland, then presented the following address:

To the members of the County Council of the County of Peterborough;

Gentlemen, — It affords me great pleasure to again meet you in this assembly for the transaction of county business. This year is of special interest to us as the year in which our present sovereign, King Edward VII will be crowned. On such an occasion the members of the County Council of the County of Peterborough no doubt have been looking forward to this opportunity of expressing their united devotion on behalf of the ratepayers of this county to his person and his crown. It will be fitting therefore for us to adopt means to carry out our wish, and I would suggest that an address expressive of our sentiments be drawn up and forwarded to His Majesty.

This year is also of special interest to us as being the year in which peace has been declared in South Africa, where so many of Canada's sons have bled and died, in defence of the mother country, thus more closely binding together the interests of Canada and the Empire.

At the last regular meeting a grant of $25 was made to each of the bona fide residents of this county who had volunteered for service and had been accepted on the 3rd Canadian contingent in South Africa, but as the contingent had sailed before the grant was made we did not know know where to send the money, so I decided to wait until something definite was known of their proper addresses. A short time ago I received a letter signed by the representatives of the county on the third contingent, requesting me to have the money paid to their relatives at home. This letter has been placed in the finance box and will come before that committee.

With reference to the inefficient state of cattle guards on railway lines passing through the county, you will remember that you gave me power at the January session to appoint a delegation to accompany any general deputation that might go to Ottawa to take action in this matter, to compel the railway companies to place more suitable cattle guards on their railway lines, than those in use at the present time.

I may say that since that time this council has not received any communication on the subject.

With reference to such deputation I would therefore suggest that you forward a copy of your resolution, passed in January to other counties interested with a view of having such deputation as influencial as possible with the hope of having the injustice to the farmers regarding our railway lines removed.

The ice and spring freshets passed away without doing any serious damage to any of the county bridges, the expenditures on which are but of a slight nature and will be referred to fully in the County Engineer's report.

My attention has been drawn to the fact that there is likely to be some heavy traffic over the Burleigh Bridge. The floor of this bridge is not in a fit condition for such. I would suggest that you have it re-floored with cedar.

I would draw your attention to the fact that there is a large quantity of vacant Government lands suitable for settlement and cultivation in the northern townships of this county. I would therefore suggest that you co-operate with the municipal council in those townships to bring the matter before the public.

The auditor's report and the estimates for the year will be laid before you, and I feel assured that they will receive as careful consideration from you as their importance demands.

T. G. EASTLAND
Warden.

Upon motion of Councillor Pearce, seconded by Councillor Jeffs, the Warden's address was received and referred to a committee of the whole Council.

The County Council will receive a deputation from the local municipalities Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, in reference to the equalized assessement of the county.

Council then adjourned to go into committee and to meet again to-morrow morning.

NEW CHURCH FOR REV. MR. ARMITAGE

Congregation too Large for the Present Edifice.

THEY WILL BUILD AT ONCE.

A Most Enthusiastic Meeting of the Vestry and Congregation was Held Last Evening.

That the congregation of All Saints is to have a new church may now be considered a definite certainty, as at a meeting of the vestry and congregartion, last evening, it was unanimously decided that unless more accommodation could be provided the church would assume a retrogressive rather than a progressive character. A condition of things which would be much deplored.

The opinions of fully half a hundred of those present were volunteered and the unanimity of sentiment in regard to building, and building at once, must have been most encouraging to those of the congregation who have foreseen the necessity for more accommodation and have been most enthusiastic in pointing out the necessity of providing larger premises.

The present church premises will be extended east to the street line, and the lot to the south purchased and utilized for the purposes of a new building. The plans have not as yet been finally decided upon, but, in round figures it is estimated that about $8,000 will be expended in providing an edifice which will be adequate to accommodate the congregation.

Statements regarding the phenomenal growth of the Sunday School and church membership during the last five years were made, which bore out a prediction that within a very few years still larger premises would be required.

The matter of soliciting contributions and arranging further details was left in the hands of a committee composed of the members of the Advisory Board, with power to add to their number.

Rev. W. L. Armitage, the Rector, was elected to occupy the vacancy on the Nicholls Hospital Board caused by the resignation of Mr. Bamford.

DECORATION DAY

Arrangements now Made for Thursday's Big Event.

Arrangements are now complete for a successful observance of Decoration Day, by the local Oddfellows, if the weather be fine, on Thursday afternoon, June 19th.

The procession will leave the Central Park at 2 o'clock, headed by the band of the 57th Regt., and proceed to the cemetery, where, after the decoration of the graves, addresses will be delivered by the local clergymen.

Persons wishing to donate flowers may leave them at the store of Bro. Harry Long, on George street.

The general public are asked to join with the Oddfellows in making the occasion a very successful one. No doubt the attendance will be large as the date has now been definitely set for the third Thursday in June, in order that other events may not clash with Decoration Day.

CATHEDRAL WEDDING.

Nuptials of Mr. Patrick Doris and Miss Mary Conroy This Morning.

A wedding of much interest was solemnized in St. Peter's Cathedral this morning, when Miss Mary Conroy, daughter of Mr. David Conroy, sr., became the wife of Mr. Patrick Doris, foreman of the Dickson Company, Peterborough.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McColl, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral, in the presence of a great many townspeople, friends of the contracting parties, who filled the Cathedral.

The bride looked charming in a costume of white silk, trimmed with silk applique, and carried a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by Miss Lillian Primeau, of town, who wore a gown of muslin de soie and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The groom was supported by Mr. David Conroy, jr., brother of the bride.

At the conclusion of the wedding ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's father, corner of Elizabeth and Lake streets, Asburnham, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served.

The bride is one of Ashburnham's most prominent young ladies, and is popular amongst a wide circle of friends. She was the recipient of many costly presents and will have the best wishes of all for many years of happiness.

The groom is prominent amongst the business men of Peterborough, being one of the Dickson Company's most valued employees. He has an exceptionally large circle of warm friends, who will be pleased to learn of his marriage, and will join with the Examiner in wishing him a long and prosperous wedded life.

The employees of the Dickson Company presented Mr. Doris with a very handsome clock as a token of their esteem.

Mr. and Mrs. Doris will reside on Brown street, Ashburnham.

If the weather is fine on Thursday there will be a great crowd go from Peterborough to Rev. Father Keilty's Douro picnic. Quite a number will go by the noon train to Indian River station, and wheel the remaining 3 miles to the grounds. Hon. J. Israel Tarte is to speak on present day topics, and the address promises to be a most interesting one. 2d

ARREST OF MR. R. BOEZ

Robiin Government Invited Him to Winnipeg.

TO ESTABLISH A GERMAN PAPER

Editor of the Regina German Paper, The Rundschau, in a Peculiarly Unpleasant Position—Charged With Stealing the Mailing Lists of Der Nortwestern in Interests of Proposed Conservative Sheet.

Winnipeg, June 17.—Donald Eddy, aged thirteen, died in the General Hospital at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, as the result of injuries received from falling under a C. P. R. freight train near the Louise bridge Sunday. He was stealing a ride.

Rudolph Boez, editor of the Regina German paper, The Rundschau, appeared before the Magistrate yesterday morning to answer to a charge of theft. The case was remanded till Wednesday. Further developments in the case show that it has some very interesting features. Boez apparently came to Winnipeg some days ago from Regina, upon invitation of the local Government, to arrange for the publication here of a German Conservative newspaper. As a preliminary to its establishment, he determined to secure the mailing lists of Der Nordwestern the German weekly, to which he proposed to offer opposition, and with this purpose in view, opened up negotiations with an employe, who reported the facts to his employers, and Boez's arrest followed while he was in the act of pulling proofs of the subscription list. When Boez was searched at the police station, a memorandum of agreement was found in his pockets between Boez and his wife, of the first part and Hon. Robert Rogers, Manitoba Minister of Public Works, of the second part. In this agreement Boez binds himself to conduct a German newspaper in Winnipeg, in consideration of $5,000, which Mr. Rogers was to advance on condition that the conduct of the newspaper should be subject to the supervision, direction and approval of Mr. Rogers. The agreement was signed by Boez, but Mr. Rogers had not yet attached his name. The arrest of Boez and subsequent developments have caused a sensation in local politics.

FOR YOUNG WOMEN.

Honest Words of Advice From One Who Knows.

Algoma Young Lady Speaks Strong Plain Counsel to her Suffering Sisters—Tells Them her own Experience as Proof.

Blind River, Ont., June 15. —(Special.)—Anyone who might to-day see Miss Emily Liddell of this place for the first time would find it hard to believe that only a few months ago she was an invalid.

Miss Liddell suffered with Female Weakness and Backache, and for months was so ill as to be unable to attend to her household duties, the the slighest task being too much for her in her weakened condition.

She was terribly run down, and nothing seemed to do her any good or afford her the slightest relief till she tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. From the very beginning they seemed to help her, and although at first the improvement was slow she persevered and gradually grew stronger, till today she is in better health than she has ever known before.

Miss Liddell is very grateful for her remarkable deliverance, and strongly recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills to all her lady acquaintances who need help. She has given for publication a very strong letter of recommendation in which she says:

"I would most heartily and conscientiously advise all young women troubled with Female Weakness in any form, to try the remedy that cured me after everything else had failed, and that remedy is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For months at a time I was so low and weak that I found it impossible to attend to my household duties, my back used to ache something dreadful. Now I feel strong and better than I ever did, and Dodd's Kidney Pills did it all. They are worth their weight in gold to any young woman suffering as I used to suffer.

"They built me up wonderfully and I cannot speak too highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills as a medicine for sick women."

Heavy Load Went Over Boy.

Toronto, June 17.—Alfred, the 8-year-old son of John Harris of Danforth avenue, was, perhaps, fatally injured on Saturday evening by being run over by one of the wagons used about his father's glue factory. At a sudden turn in the road the boy was thrown off and the front wheel passed over his body before the team could be stopped.

This Blacksmith Had Backache

And Kidney Disease—His Life was Made Miserable by Ill-health, but he Found a Cure in

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The work of the blacksmith requires a body of brawn and muscle, as well as a strong constitution, for, besides the extreme muscular exertion, the blacksmith is exposed to sudden changes of temperature—being one moment amid the sparks at his forge and the next in a cold part of the shop or out of doors. Colds result and often kidney troubles set in, being aggravated by the strain of leaning and bending at work.

Mr. W. Ferguson, blacksmith, Trenton, Ont., states: "In my work I am bending over a great deal, and this, together with the constant strain on all parts of the body and the sudden change of temperature when going to and from the forge, brought on kidney disease and backache. At times I would suffer so that I would have to quit work to ease my back, and felt so miserable most of the time that I did not enjoy life very much.

"At last I decided that I would have to get relief in some way, and, having heard of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a successful cure for backache and kidney disease, I began using them. To my surprise and pleasure, they helped me at once, and a few boxes entirely removed my troubles. Thanks to Dr. Chase, I am perfectly cured, and hope that others may take my advice and use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills make friends wherever they are known. Their direct and combined action on kidneys, liver and bowels is not to be found in any other preparation. They cure biliousness and liver complaints, kidney disease and backache, bladder disorders, and bowel irregularities in remarkably short order. The test of time has proven them worthy of your confidence. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 8

CLASS DISTINCTIONS.

They Go Almost Down to the Very Bottom of Society.

Some sort of class feeling is, we believe, inherent in human nature. People often speak as though these demarcations existed only among the middle and upper classes, but such is not the fact. Indeed it is very far from the fact. No more misleading labels than "the classes" and "the masses" were ever invented. There are no masses, rightly speaking. Class distinctions go almost down to the bottom—not quite, of course, because there is always a residuum who through their fault or their misfortune have neither the pride nor the imagination to sort themselves.

Money is not an absolute criterion of social position. Character, in so far as it is reflected in propriety of behavior, counts for a great deal. A rowdy family sink directly, though they may have money to waste, and a respectable widow may retain her superiority in the face of grinding poverty. The acme of good manners, the very badge of gentility, is to be "quiet," never to let the sound of mirth, quarreling or lamentation proceed out of your dwelling.

This sign of social distinction is appreciated down to the very bottom. On the upper rungs of the social ladder we should say that these social distinctions which can be defined at all rest upon birth, money and brains. Among the poor they rest upon money and manners, and the latter, alas, are, below a certain wage, woefully dependent upon the former.

WHAT IS BEING WORN.

Black Evening Gowns—All Lace Frocks Jeweled.

Black is always useful and looks remarkably well in a ballroom, provided, of course, it suits the individual wearer.

It is a good idea when investing in a point d'esprit gown to have a plain, well fitting oriental silk or satin slip bodice and skirt to wear under it, and nowadays these fabrics of really good quality are to be bought at most moderate prices.

Floral garnitures are much in vogue and with dainty touches of lace and ribbon intermingled make charming trimmings on light net frocks. The all lace frock has by no means departed. In fact, there is a revival of it this spring. Some of them are very magnificent. The underskirt consists of endless flounces of accordion plaited chiffon, the overdrapery of lace being often mingled with embroidery. Sometimes, too, the lace is jeweled. The mixture of lace, chiffon and brilliants is a very chic one.

There is a new shade of gray which, mingled with parma violets, makes a dainty evening gown for the girl with red hair.

The three-quarter coat in the illustration is useful both for evening and summer wear. It is made of the palest gray cloth with wide cuffs, collar and revers of white silk and embroidery. The coat is lined throughout with flowered silk. JUDIC CHOLLET.

The Solemn Quaker.

At the funeral of a lawyer of state reputation who lived and practiced in a town not far from Philadelphia and who was known among his friends thereabout as an unbeliever an eminent gentleman from Philadelphia reached the house after the minister had begun the sermon. Not knowing how far the services had progressed, he accosted a well known Quaker of the town, who was a friend of the deceased and who was noted for his great sense of humor, and, leaning over his shoulder, asked in a whisper:

"What part of the services have they reached?"

To which the Quaker, without a smile, replied:

"Just opened for the defense."

Colorless Varnish.

Colorless varnish for use on fine labels or other prints, as well as for white wood and other spotless articles, is made as follows: Dissolve two and one-half ounces of bleached shellac in one pint of rectified alcohol; to this add five ounces of animal boneblack, which should first be heated, and then boil the mixture for about five minutes. Filter a small quantity of this through filtering paper and if not fully colorless add more boneblack and boil again. When this has been done, run the mixture through silk and through filtering paper. When cool, it is ready for use. It should be applied with care and uniformity.

An Unfortunate Theory.

"Yes, Biggins tackled a hard row with his theory that woman is naturally subordinate to man and, under proper circumstances, cheerfully submissive."

Safety In Numbers.

'Tis better in your haste to state
All men are liars than
To pick out one and designate
That fellow as the man.

The Seal and the Bear.

The seal does not stop his repast for food until he has completely satisfied his excellent appetite; then he takes a good nap, lying upon the very edge of the ice or as close as possible to his breathing hole. The slightest sound will awaken him and, without waiting to find out the source or direction, he rolls into the water. He can stay under for only thirty-five minutes, but where he will come up none can tell. This no one knows better than the bear, and if the bear realizes that it is impossible to steal up on the leeward side of the seal, having his black nose covered with his paw and his bloodshot eyes closed, when the seal has his open and on the watch, he looks about for a favorable point of departure, dives under the ice, and if he rightly judges the distance and direction he comes up at the very spot where the seal has expected to go down. The seal's fate is thus settled, and the bear's shrewdness earns its reward.

The One That Chose to Pay.

Three men had been out on a spree, and on the way home late at night they made a wager that the one who did not do as his wife told him should pay for a champagne supper the following night.

The first one returned home, and his wife greeted him thus:

"Hello, you beauty! That's right, knock all the ornaments off the mantelpiece!"

He knocked them all off.

The second returned and on going into his house fell against the piano, whereupon his wife said:

"Go on; get a chopper and smash it up!"

He did so.

The third returned, and on going up stairs his wife said:

"You miserable scamp, fall down stairs and break your neck!"

Needless to say, he paid for the supper.

Pleasant Cure for Weak Lungs.

The best remedy for sore, weak lungs, is the soothing vapor of Catarrhozone which traverses every air cell and passage of the breathing organs. It treats remote parts that cough mixtures and sprays can't approach, and kills thousands of germs at every breath. Catarrhozone drives away pain, congestion and inflammation; it makes breathing easy and regular, and exerts a marvelous influence on Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Deafness, and Lung Trouble. Catarrhozone cures at once, is delightful to inhale, and simple to use. Price $1.00; small size 25c. Druggists, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills cure constipation.

A Simple Remedy.

The readiness of some people to send for a man to do those little things about the house which the smallest amount of enterprise or ingenuity would enable them to do for themselves is illustrated by an incident reported in the Chicago Tribune of a family named Chuckster.

They had bought some new gas burners with mantles. For a week or two the light was satisfactory; then it grew dim and dimmer until Mrs. Chuckster sent for the gas fitter.

"It grows worse all the time," she explained.

"When was it put in?" asked the man.

"About a month ago."

"Ah, yes; I see."

Then he lifted the chimney off, took it out to the kitchen, washed it with soap and water, and the light burned as brightly as ever

"Fifty cents," said the man.

Scores of Uses.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is best known on account of its wonderful control over eczema, salt rheum and piles, it is found to be in almost daily daily demand in many homes as a cure for chilblains, chafing, pimples, sunburn, burns, scalds and each and every form of itching, irritated or inflamed skin. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application knows no equal.

Manx Humor.

Even narrow mindedness has its humorous side. "He's nice enough," said an old farmer, a staunch churchman of the Isle of Man, speaking of an acquaintance, "but he's a Methodist—not that he's on the 'plan' at all, but he's next door to it."

The degrees of comparison suggested here are delicious. The old fellow had no intention of being amusing, yet was not by any means destitute of humor, as the following advice, full of worldly wisdom, which he gave to a peddlar and local preacher, will testify.

"I was tellin' him," said he, with a twinkle in his gray eyes, "people would be thinkin' far more of him and his things if he joined the church, and maybe the bishop himself would buy something."—Saturday Review.

LACROSSE.

Last evening on the Seperate school grounds, the first team of St. Peter's T.A.S. Lacrosse Club, was pitted against sixteen members of the second team in a practice match, which proved to be one of the most successful practices held this season. Some really excellent lacrosse was played and the score at the end of time stood 6—3 in favour of the first team.

The team committee met after the practice and selected the players who will represent the T.A.S. at Orillia tomorrow in the game with the team of that town. The following will be the line up;

Mr. Bert Doris, spare man.

Quite a number of the members of the T.A.S. will accompany the boys, and a good game is expected at Orillia.

A meeting of the C.L.A. Judiciary Committee is called for Friday night at 8.30, at the Iroquois Hotel. The business included applications for reinstatement from Miles McDonough, C. S. Myers, and H. S. Sinclair, and disputed games between Thornbury and Clarksburg and Hespeler and Elora.

The Port Hope Guide says; A very large crowd was present at the park last Saturday afternoon to witness the game between the Young Torontos and the Ontarios. This was the first league game and the excitement was very high. The Ontarios were greatly strengthened by the addition of Glover, McCabe, Lipsett, Tuer and Wood. Of course everybody knows the kind of game that Glover, McCabe, Wood and Tuer put up last season, and this year they are greatly improved. In Lipsett they have a good man. He has been out of practice for a long time, but he is a beautiful stick handler and a splendid shot.

THE UMPIRE'S INNINGS.

—Opening—

Oh, hoi for the umpire, brave man and bold.
He's a joy to creation and cannot be sold;
The fans are his comrades, they whoop and they shout
When he makes the decisions that put the men out.
So, hoi for the umpire, who works as he ought—
The brave, honest umpire, who cannot be bought.

—Closing—

What, ho, there the umpire, the crazy galoot—
He's throwing the game, so shoot, brothers, shoot!
Maul him, and bang him, and hit him for me;
That sprint, to first base was as safe as could be!
He's sold out the game, there's no doubt of that;
So jump him, you fellows! Oh, give him the bat!
Strip him, and whip him, and pound him with glee!
Lynch him! the fiend is too base to let be.

A PRESENTATION

Of a Case of Silver Mounted Pipes to an Old Peterborough Boy.

Mr. John G. Hall, formerly of Peterborough, arrived in town yesterday from Montreal, to spend a day or two with relatives before leaving for Chicago. In connection with his departure from Montreal, the Gazette says; "Mr. John G. Hall, who has just resigned his position with the Grant-Hamilton Oil Co., as cashier, to go to Chicago, where he has accepted a position with a big oil concern, was presented last night at the Oxford cafe with a case of silver-mounted pipes by the travellers and members of the Montreal branch of the company. Mr. J. D. Johnston, manager of the Montreal branch, made the presentation. Mr. Hall will leave this evening for Chicago."

Mr. W. T. Junkin, of Fenelon Falls, was in town last night on his way to Belleville.

Mr. R. J. D'Arcy, of the Kingston post office, is the guest of his cousin, Mrs. C. B. Routley.

Mr. E. R. Anderson and Mr. Wm. Foster, ex-mayor of Uxbridge, were in town to-day with the excursionists.

Mr. Will Spence, formerly of town, but now of the staff of the Wesleyan College, Winnipeg, is renewing old acquaintances here.

Miss Clara Butler, daughter of Mrs. (Dr.) Butler, arrived home from Rochester St. Mary's Hospital Training School for Nurses.

Mr. Fred H. Wood, of New York, an old Peterborough boy, was in town to-day on his way to Buckhorn to enjoy an outing. His wife accompanied him.

The name of Miss Nettie LeHane, formerly of this town, is on the list of graduates of the Rochester Homeopathic Hospital Training School for Nurses. Lightning Remedy for Cramps.

Some people have cramps pretty often, others only now and again. But when you do have them its a mighty quick relief you want. Polson's Nerviline is as sure as death to relieve cramps in five seconds — it's instantaneous, just a few drops in sweetened water and the pain is gone. Buy a bottle of Nerviline to-day and keep it handy. Nerviline is a common household necessity and only costs 25 cents.

Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake Pills cure Constipation.

BINDER TWINE.

The Indications are That the Price Will be Raised Considerably.

An American trade journal says; An advance of one-half cent, the second of the season, occurred on Tuesday of this week, when practically all of the manufacturers seeking business issued new instructions to their salesmen, and withdrew former quotations. Some of the houses put up their prices as early as Saturday last, but it was not until Tuesday that the advance became general. At some of the jobbing centres only 1-4 cent was added, but it is expected that the new schedule will be unanimously adopted before the end of the week. The change affects all grades but as the sales of manila and pure manila are practically nil, the new prices of these grades, like the old, are merely nominal.

The cause of the advance is to be found in the continued strength of fibre, and the growing conviction that all of the twine available for the harvest will be called into use. Three weeks ago it was anticipated that the crop requirements would be enough lighter than last year to insure a surplus of twine, but the situation has taken on a new complexion. When asked this week for an estimate of the proportion of the harvest's needs that has been sold a leading manufacturer replied; "I hope it is 85 per cent., for if any less I do not see where the remainder is coming from." He added that in his opinion 85 per cent had been sold, but his estimate is higher than that of other manufacturers.

Prices are as follows; Sisal, 12; Standard, 12; Manila, (500 foot), 13 1-4; Manila, (600 foot), 14 1-2; pure Manila, 16. Car load lots, 1-4 cent less; five ton lots, 1-2 cent less. Fall terms.

The manufacturers of Canada have not yet advanced their 1-2 cent, but indications point to an increase in price at an early date.

STOCK MARKETS.

Getting Ready for a Rise.

New York, June, 16th, 1902.—For the first time in some considerable time indications are strong that Manh. stock is again drifting into the hands of right people to cause it to soar. We anticipate seeing it very shortly sell as high as it did late last winter, when it crossed 146. The running of the open car service has greatly stimulated travel—people riding for pleasure upon warm and pleasant nights, as they heretofore have done upon the Metropolitan open cars. Fifty new open cars will be added to the service on the 3rd Ave. line by June 17th, and more as speedily as they can be turned out. The extension of the line way up to Bronx Park greatly increases travel.

It is also estimated that nearly fifteen per cent. can be saved in the cost of operation by the installation of electricity as the motive power. The last quarterly statement of the Company was an excellent exhibit. The ones to come will be even better. The future of Manh. is absolutely assured and its earnings, both gross and net, are bound, in the natural order of events to steadily increase. In the days of Cyrus Field the stock sold as high as $175 per share. We confidently believe that shortly after the commencement of operation of the new underground road that Manh. will sell as high as it ever sold. It is, in our opinion, only a question of time when the Manh., Met., and the Underground will all be operated in unison by one interest. The saving would be something enormous. In the market the stock has all the ear marks of preparing for a rise, and we confidently commend the shares at present quotations not only to marginal speculators, but to investors as well.

were received and dealt with as follows;

From Walter Parnell, asking for two weeks holidays, either this month or in July.—Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee, with power to act.

From the Great North Western Telegraph Co., complaining that their line on Bethune and Edinburgh streets, connecting on Chemong Road with line to Omemee, is in an unsatisfactory condition on account of numerous trees on the streets in question, and asking permission to transfer this line to run as follows; From Bethuen street to follow the G.T.R. track to Donegal street, from Donegal street north to Smith street, from Smith street east to Reid street, from Reid street north east to Chemong road. The old line on Bethune and Edinburgh street will be removed in consideration of permission to build the new one as above specified. — Referred to the Town Engineer with power to act.

From W. Madill, complaining of the condition of the street at the southwest corner of George and Hunter streets, where there is no outlet by which surface water can escape. — Referred to the Town Engineer with power to act.

From Mr. W. H. Moore as follows; "I understand that application has been made by the Otonabee Power Co. to place a line of poles and wires on Stewart street, between Hunter and Simcoe streets, for carrying their power to various points in the town. Mr. Alex. Hamilton, whom I represent, owns a terrace of five houses on the east side of Stewart street, between Hunter and Simcoe streets, and I am authorized on his behalf to enter a protest against the location of such poles and wires at the point named, because of the high voltage that will be carried over the wires, and the increased damage by reason of large shade trees on the road which we object to being interefered with, and which would conduct the electricity from the wires and endanger life to those in the vicinity. I would point out that when the Canadian General Electric Co. wished to obtain the privilege of placing a line of poles, etc., from Nassau to their works a short time ago the town refused to permit them to pass through the streets because of the danger they would be, but not greater than from the wires of the Otonabee Power Co. The placing of such poles and wires in front of or near Mr. Hamilton's property would be a distinct damage to him, and I am sure the council will appreciate and will not permit it to occur simply to save the company from putting in extra poles by taking a more circuitous route."

From the Department of Railways and Canals, as follows:—

Sir,—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 29th ultimo, by which you ask that the Town Council of Peterborough be granted an extension of time of three months to give an answer on behalf of that Town in respect of their application for the grant of a lease of surplus water at Dam No. 4, on the Peterborough-Lakefield Division of the Trent Canal. In reply, I am directed to say that several other parties, a substantial Cereal Company amongst them, are applying for the grant of a lease of water power at the dam in question, and that the Department cannot very well therefore allow the matter to be in abeyance for the period desired by your Council.

COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS

reported as subjoined, through the chairman, Ald. Corkery:

1. That Thos. B. McGrath and John Kincaid be appointed assessors for Wards No. One and Three, and Wm. Aldridge and Thos. McKee, assessors for Wards No. Two and Four, and that they be paid a salary of $175.00 each.

The report was adopted.

THE FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT COMMITTEE

through its chairman, Ald. Clinkscale, reported as appended:

1. That, as it is in the interests of the town that the Water Commissioners should be in a position to make necessary extensions of the water mains, when sufficiently petitioned for, we recommend that a by-law be passed authorizing the Commissioners to expend in extensions this year an amount not exceeding $2,000.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ROBT. CLINKSCALE, Chairman.

The report was adopted.

THE LEGAL COMMITTEE

reported as appended, through its chairman, Ald. Edgcumbe:

1. We recommend that the Treasurer be authorized to pay the accounts for the registration of voters under the Manhood Franchise Act, and to pay for the polling places used at the Ontario Elections in accordance with the advice of the Town Solicitor, and that as Warren Hall, Market Clerk, was put to inconvenience and wood belonging to him was burned as the Market Hall, he be paid the same as the others included in the Returning Officer's certificate.

2. That, with regard to the application of W. Moher, who occupies a house on the end of Victoria avenue, as the Town is liable to be called upon to open the street at any time the Council cannot give any assurance as to his occupancy of the house. Your Committee, however, has received from Mr. Moher an acklowledgement that he is occupying a portion of the street, and an agreement to become a tenant at will of the corporation at the yearly rental of one dollar a year, and to give up possession on six months notice.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JAS. EDGCUMBE, Chairman.

The report was adopted.

Ald. Clinkscale and Morrison introduced a bylaw to authorise the expenditure of $2,800 to extend the water works system. The bylaw received its several readings, and was passed.

Ald. Corkery and Edgcumbe fathered the bylaw appointing Messrs. T. McKee, Wm. Aldridge, John Kincaid and Thos. McGrath as assessors for 1902.

A bylaw was also passed approving of the agreement with the Otonabee Power Co.

The council then adjourned until this evening when an effort will be made to arrive at a satisfactory settlement with the Cereal Co., regarding the deepening of the river.

COAL WILL BE DEARER.

Strike in the Anthracite Regions Will Affect Canada.

(Toronto Globe.)

According to prominent local coal dealers, an anthracite famine is imminent in Toronto. Even if it should be avoided by an immediate collapse of the strike, it is altogether likely that the price of coal in the city this winter will be the highest on record. Mr. Noel Marshall of the Standard Fuel Co., who has just returned from a week's visit to the Pennsylvania coal regions, says the outlook is decidedly unpleasant. Both sides are determined, and there is a possibility of the strike continuing another month, some of the mines are becoming flooded and the railway companies are removing their cars to other cities, where they can be better employed, so that even should the strike end suddenly it would take some time to get things into proper running order again. Mr. Marshall said that at the present time not a ton of anthracite coal was being brought into Toronto, and that in some cases outside gas companies were depending on dealers here to supply them, from stocks on hand, with anthracite. The strike of soft coal miners in West Virginia, he said, was half-hearted, but the price of that class of coal had gone up just the same. It was just possible that this increase and the continuation of the strike in the anthracite regions might result in the use of Cape Breton coal in Ontario. The Elias Rogers & Company said they had not been receiving anthracite coal for some time, and they expected a rise in price. Soft coal was also dearer. When the strike ended it would be at least two weeks before shipping from the mines commenced, and as the demand would be great freight charges would also undoubtedly go up, and Lake Ontario vesselmen would likely take advantage of the opportunity to raise prices accordingly. They did not regard the bringing of Cape Breton coal to Toronto as a possibility, as they could secure all the soft coal they desired at prices below those of Cape Breton. The P. Burns & Company said they had plenty of anthracite coal on hand, but none was arriving. They did not regard Cape Breton coal as a possibility for Toronto.

AT ST. MARK'S.

The Annual Tea and Entertainment in Stewart's Hall.

The members of the W. A. held their tea and entertainment on Tuesday in Stewart's hall. A large number of people patronized the event, about 200 people partaking of the tea. The ladies upheld their good reputation of providing always the best, and the whole event proved to have been highly successful.

After the tea and entertainment was given, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt was in the chair. During the intermissions Messrs. R. and A. Wilson and Mrs. C. C. Munro gave instrumental selections which were much appreciated. The programme consisted of the following numbers:

Dumb-bell exercises ... ...By three girls
Vocal duet ... ...The Misses Hambidge
Recitation ... ...Miss Emily Doyell
Song ... ...Mr. Harold Kindred
Song .... Miss Smithson
Song ... ...Mr. Bert. Doyell

After this programme Rev. E. A. Langfeldt gave a lecture on "China," illustrated by lime-light views, which Mr. R. B. Rogers kindly exhibited. The singing of the National Anthem brought this successful entertainment to a close.

SUBJECT OF AN APPEAL.

In the Prince Edward Island recount, Dr. Currie lost seven votes. "Of the ballots counted," says the report, "107 had the numbers on the left hand side torn off and these may form the basis of an appeal. If they should be disallowed, the majority will be reduced to nine."

Here is an instance, remarks the Kingston Whig, in which a deputy returning officer, by mistake or misunderstanding, mutilates some of the ballots, and because of his action there is a danger of 107 electors having their votes rejected. It is not charged by any person that the alleged machine did the spoiling in the interest of the Government, because it happens that the votes are those of Liberals, but it is quite as reasonable to say that an evil hand has been at work in this as in other cases.

What will be the effect of the appeal? Dr. Currie, will, with the 107 votes removed, still have a majority of nine and will still hold the seat, the manifest and popular choice of the majority. If the appeal does anything it will be to emphasize the fact that the irregularities of the elections are the result of blunders or accidents, and not of any villainous scheme to thwart the will of the electors.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Hamilton Times says:—Sometimes the Times' plan of dealing with the coal strikes will be tried and the Government will make short work of the monopolies of the bounties of nature. No set of men should have the right to say that the coal mines should be closed against the population needing fuel. The demand for coal exists, the men are ready to mine it, and there should be no dog-in-the-manger business allowed. The great natural storehouses of fuel should be for all mankind, not merely for a coterie of speculators. Try taxing them into activity.

The Ottawa Journal (Independent) says: "Taking election after election, and considering the number of returning officers and other officials engaged, and the comparatively few cases in which fraud has been shown and the comparatively few ballots that have been changed as the result of a recount, it is but fair in the interests of the Province as a Province to say that such wholesale accusations as the Toronto News makes are not only unfair and unwarranted, but are calculated to disgust independent voters who like fairplay. No paper has been more severe in condemnation of election frauds than the Journal, but the Journal feels impelled to protest against the manner in which Conservative papers are crying wholesale fraud, instead of merely stigmatizing the known cases."

Failures in the United States and Canada, continue well down to a minimum, the aggregate reported to Bradstreet's for May, being the smallest for any month so far this year, and also fewer than in May a year ago. With the exception of May 1899 and 1900, in fact, failures in the month just closed were the lightest reported in May for ten years. Liabilities show some expansion, it is true, over those of April, due mainly to the inclusion of a few, private bankers, large contractors, and of builders and manufacturers. The total number of failures for last month in Canada and Newfoundland, was 91 against 102 last year, with total assets, and liabilities for May, 1902, of $172,002, and $551,474, against, $392,914, and $873,250 respectively, for the same month last year.

Mr. Jury, who has had every opportunity to learn the feeling in Great Britain, declares that "Canada's preferential tariff has made a deep impression upon the commercial leaders of the Empire." This is a natural result of approaching the people of Great Britain on the side on which they are most susceptible. If you go to make a bargain with them, they want to know what the advantage is going to be, but a voluntary concession sets them thinking and the British people while hard bargainers are not ungrateful. One of the best features of the present preferential tariff is that Canada can increase it, diminish it, or abolish it, at her pleasure. There is much to be said in favour of the mutual preferential tariff principle, but it has this disadvantage, and it is not a small one, that under it we could no longer control our own tariff. It would be subject to mutual arrangement by Canada, Britain, and such of the other colonies as might enter into it. — St. Thomas Journal.

BETTER ROADS.

The principles laid down by the Deputy Minister of Public Works for Ontario, Mr. A. W. Campbell, for the improvement of highways are few and simple, but they are none the less important. One of them is the construction of permanent roadways. Any one who has given attention to the matter will be convinced that Mr. Campbell is right on this point. The repairing of roads until they are permanently improved is almost if not entirely a waste of money. Such roads become a mere sinkhole for the money spent upon them, and in a few years the expenditure equals that which would be made in permanent construction, after which the annual outlay for repairs is very light. It was with a view to encourage construction of permanent roads that the Government of Ontario passed the act appropriating a million dollars for highway improvement, and it gives $1 for every $2 expended by a county, or the townships when the counties do not avail themselves of the advantages of the act. This means that one-half more can be accomplished than if the county council had to make all the expenditure. In having the work done by the county councils rather than the township councils, one advantage is that a uniform system can be carried out throughout a county.

As to statute labour, Mr. Campbell thinks it has outlived its usefulness, and there are a large number who will agree with him, although the opinion does not seem to have taken such hold of the people of this country as it has in some other places. The number of townships, according to Mr. Campbell's last report as commissioner of highways, turning from the ordinary method of performing statute labour to systems of commutation, or even the entire abolition of statute labour, is steadily increasing. From his address here it would appear that Mr. Campbell's chief desire is that a good return shall be made for the expenditure on the roads whether by statute labour or otherwise.

Another point for which he contends is the proper draining of the roads and the adjacent lands, and the force of this is almost self-evident, although a drive through some sections of Ontario in the spring or fall would show that this essential is very much neglected. It is to be hoped that the visit of Mr. Campbell to this county will stimulate the improvement of the highways whether it is undertaken by the county or the townships, and that Elgin county may continue to lead in the matter of good roads.—St. Thomas Journal.

THE PREUX CHEVALIER.

Canada's New Commander-in-Chief a Most Popular Hero.

One of Great Britain's most popular heroes will be lost to the Mother Country when the Earl of Dundonald sails away to Canada to assume command of the Canadian militia, says a London correspondent.

He is in every sense the preux chevalier. Tall and handsome, with curling hair and soft hazel eyes, this ultra-fashionable was the darling of the drawing room before the South African campaign crowned his splendid soldierly abilities with the meed of marked distinction.

His career in the Second Life Guards which he commanded until 1899, was by no means uneventful. He and his regiment figured in Egypt in 1884-85 with credit, and later the Earl won the attention of military experts by his inventions for equipments, of which the chief was the Dundonald gun carriage.

With Buller in the Boer war, however, he brought himself before the world. His dash into Ladysmith at the head of the Imperial Light Horse and Carbineers, the first of the relieving force to reach the unfortunate town, was the crowning achievement of a long list. His promotion to Major General followed.

Lord Dundonald, who is 50 years old, has a personal hold upon his men which, perhaps even more than his conceded qualities as a leader, has contributed to his success.

His wife who was a Welsh heiress, inherited beauty as well as broad acres from her family, the Heskeths, with the addition of a pretty will of her own. When the District Council of Abergele, near her estate Gwyery Castle, tried to popularize the place as a seaside resort and set on foot compulsory parliamentary measures to force desired improvements, she cut down a beautiful avenue of trees that had stood for centuries, thereby destroying its principal beauty.

Canada will welcome the Earl, who succeeds Major-General O'Grady Haly. He will have the satisfaction of commanding some of the finest men the British lion boasts. The Minister of Militia and staff will await his arrival at Halifax, where he is expected the latter part of May, though it is reported in London that he will not sail until July.

Lord Dundonald will make his headquarters in Ottawa.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Rev. Mr. Kilgour, of Peterborough, occupied the pulpit in the Methodist church on the 15th inst. We were glad to hear our worthy friend again as of yore. His text was taken from the 116th Psalm, "I Believed, Therefore have I Spoken, I was Greatly Afflicted; I said in my Haste All Men are Liars." From his long experience in the ministry he dealt with the subject in a masterly manner, which very few of our clergy choose as a test. Our town was glad to have a visit from him and to listen to his counsel.

Rev. W. Kannawin being absent his pulpit was filled at the three stations by Rev. Mr. Edmison, who delivered a very earnest and eloquent address from the words spoken by the Apostle Paul to the Philippian church, "Rejoice in the Lord Always, and again I Say Rejoice," and from Thessalonians, where he repeats the same in stronger language, "Rejoice Evermore."

Mr. John Handley attended the meeting of the High Court of Canadian Order of Foresters at Owen Sound last week.

Farmers are rejoicing at the prospects of a very bountiful harvest, the promise has been fulfilled, which was expressed by God, Who said: "I will send you the early and the latter rain." Refreshing showers have fallen upon this part of the world in abundance.

The garden party held last Friday night at the residence of Mr. Wm. Laugh, of Ida, was a great success. The night was very favourable for it; all that could be desired.

FOR YOUNG WOMEN.

Honest Words of Advice From One Who Knows.

Algoma Young Lady Speaks Strong Plain Counsel to her Suffering Sisters—Tells Them her own Experience as Proof.

Blind River, Ont., June 15. — (Special.)—Anyone who might to-day see Miss Emily Liddell of this place for the first time would find it hard to believe that only a few months ago she was an invalid.

Miss Liddell suffered with Female Weakness and Backache, and for months was so ill as to be unable to attend to her household duties, the the slightest task being too much for her in her weakened condition.

She was terribly run down, and nothing seemed to do her any good or afford her the slightest relief till she tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. From the very beginning they seemed to help her, and although at first the improvement was slow she persevered and gradually grew stronger, till today she is in better health than she has ever known before.

Miss Liddell is very grateful for her remarkable deliverance, and strongly recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills to all her lady acquaintances who need help. She has given for publication a very strong letter of recommendation in which she says:

"I would most heartily and conscientiously advise all young women troubled with Female Weakness in any form, to try the remedy that cured me after everything else had failed, and that remedy is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"For months at a time I was so low and weak that I found it impossible to attend to my household duties, my back used to ache something dreadful. Now I feel strong and better than I ever did, and Dodd's Kidney Pills did it all. They are worth their weight in gold to any young woman suffering as I used to suffer.

"They built me up wonderfully and I cannot speak too highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills as a medicine for sick women."

KAWARTHA LAKES.

The region in this locality is replete with natural beauty and loveliness, and comprises some of the most beautiful water stretches and picturesque landscapes, for which that vast portion of Northern Ontario is becoming so famous with the ever-increasing and fastidious army of tourists, who each year are looking for fresh fields to explore.

One of the most reassuring things is the fact that although more and more people are visiting Kawartha the primitive conditions are as much as possible maintained with all their freedom and intimacy with Dame Nature. Cottage life has not yet reached the "evening dress" epoch and it is to be hoped that such a frenzy may be postponed indefinitely. The Kawartha community is made up of some of the foremost people of this continent, but they have learned a valuable lesson at some of the fashionable water places, where the eternal worry of evening dressing, and city life have followed them, to the destruction of the rest and relaxation which is the need, as well as the luxury of summer outing. Here one may come to fall into the arms of mother Nature, and in no place are her caresses more gentle, and rejuvenating than in Kawartha.

Washington, June 18.—The Cincinnati and the Topeka have been ordered to Venezuelan waters. A UNION COMMITTEE Appointed by Toronto Street Car Men at a Joint Meeting.

BOARD OF TRADE WAS THANKED

At the Request of This Organization the Men Will Hold a Conference and Again Open Negotiations With the Management — The Chances of an Amicable Settlement Now More Favorable.

Toronto, June 18.—This morning at the Star Theatre over one thousand employes of the Toronto Railway Company met shortly after 12 midnight. Only about 50 of the conductors and motormen present were not members of the Union. Frederick Marshall, president of the local union and chairman of the meeting of May 21, was appointed chairman, and then this committee to wait upon Toronto Street Railway officials was passed with a rush:

Messrs. J. H. Pickles, P. Langley, James Barbour, D. Jack, W. Thomas.

Mr. Thomas is chairman and Mr. Barbour secretary of the committee. Mr. Barbour is the regular secretary of Local Union 983.

The men named in the committee above compose the regular Grievance Committee of the union. They were appointed a special committee by the mass meeting of Street Railway Employes to meet the company officials to-day and confer with reference to settling the differences existing.

Resolutions Adopted.

The meeting adopted the following resolutions, as a guide for the committee in the negotiations:

"Resolved, that the committee appointed by this meeting shall have general power to treat with the officers of the Toronto Railway Company, regarding the differences between the company and the men, with the view of securing the consent of the company to a basis of adjustment which the committee can recommend the employes to accept.

"Be it further resolved, that the committee keep the delegation from the Board of Trade advised of the progress of negotiations, and that the delegation be requested to call a meeting by public advertisement to receive the report of the committee at the earliest possible time."

Union Buttons Everywhere.

The meeting was an enthusiastic affair, and the union buttons were everywhere in evidence.

The union committee had charge of the lower door of the theatre, and the representatives of the company was in charge of the second door. Thus each element had to be satisfied with the standing of every candidate.

A resolution of thanks was tendered the Board of Trade delegation, and a union man in the rear of the hall sprang up and, swinging his hat in the air, cried "Three cheers for the King," and they were given with unbounded enthusiasm, and the meeting adjourned.

The whole business could not have consumed thirty minutes.

President Ames of the Board of Trade said to the press after the meeting: "Everything now points to an early settlement of the difficulty, and there is little prospect of a strike in the judgment of the Board of Trade delegation. The men manifested a fine spirit of fairness."

Received at Eleven.

The committee of employes will be received at 11 o'clock this morning by General Manager Keating at the headquarters of the company. Mr. Keating declares that as far as he is concerned the discussion on its merits may begin immediately after the committee present their credentials. These credentials will be signed by the chairman and secretary of the mass meeting, and will merely state that the bearers are authorized to discuss the differences between the men and the company. Then the real trouble will commence.

TORONTO PLUMBERS STRIKE.

All the Big Shops in the Queen City Are Tied Up.

Toronto, June 18. — About 250 plumbers, gas and steam-fitters employed by city firms went out on strike yesterday morning, and practically all the shops in Toronto are tied up as a result. The men are asking for higher wages and the employers decline to grant any increase holding that the men are bound by a three-year agreement which went into force in January, 1901. This agreement fixed the wages at 27½ to 32½ cents per hour for an eight-hour day.

About three months ago the plumbers union sent word to the Master Plumbers, demanding that a new wage scale be arranged, with a flat rate of 37½ cents per hour, an advance of 5 to 10 cents. The employers were prepared to stand by the agreement, and they took no action. Three months' notice was given by the men and this expired last week. A conference of the Grievance Committees of the Association and the union was held, and at a meeting of the Master Plumbers on Friday night, the demand for higher wages was definitely refused. The union met last night, and by an almost unanimous vote decided to strike.

The order of the union is being universally obeyed and the only work being done in the city is by one or two small shops where union men are not employed.

A committee of the men has been appointed to wait on the employers to-day with a view of coming to a settlement.

M.C.R. Machinists May Strike.

St. Catharines, June 18.—A strike may be inaugurated this week by the machinists employed by the Michigan Central Railway. The trouble is the outcome of steps taken to introduce the piecework system and the discharge of 47 men opposed to the system.

If the machinists here strike, the machinists all over the M.C.R. will go out. That the company expects a strike is shown by the fact that special constables are being sworn in.

Electric Linemen's Strike.

Hamilton, June 18.—At nine o'clock yesterday morning the local Electrical Workers' Union called out its members who are employed by the Cataract Power Company. About forty men, including linemen, patrolmen, trimmers and inspectors, quit work at the hour stated,

THE PHOTO DETECTIVE.

Operators in Coal Miners' Trouble Will Have Photographs Taken of Attackers of Colliery.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 18.—Of late clashes between the coal and iron police have become common, and are likely to increase in seriousness as the week advances. The deputies have grown arrogant and insolent in many collieries, and parade the grounds with rifles upon their shoulders ready to open fire at the first sign of disorder. Their evident desire to begin trouble has irritated the strikers to measures of reprisal.

Huge photographic cameras and heavy loads of flashlight powders are to be installed as part of the defences of Fort Susquehanna and Nanticoke.

It is the intention to have several professional photographers in readiness at the colliery to take a number of photographs of any crowd that attempts to make an attack of any sort upon the coal fort.

Strikers With Winchesters.

Roanoke, Va., June 18.—A special from Vivian, W. Va., says the army of strikers will reach Pocahontas, Va., where they will camp for the night. They left West Vivian several hundred strong. At Bottom Creek a dozen miners, who were standing at the commissary ready to enter the mines, joined the strikers. At mines all along the line of march a few joined the marchers, and they will likely reach their destination with about 800 men. A detective is riding at their head, with five officers, and is holding them in control.

UNKNOWN MEN DROWNED.

Two Plunge From the Pier on Quebec Side of Ottawa.

Ottawa, June 18.—The Canadian Pacific Railway crosses the Ottawa River some distance above the Chaudiere Falls. There is a small island about the centre of the river at this point. Yesterday afternoon two men were seen crossing from the Ottawa end over the bridge. They stood for a short time on the centre of that part of the bridge which rests on the Ottawa shore and the island, and then moved towards the Quebec side. When they reached the third pier of the bridge on the Quebec side, where the water runs swift and deep, they stepped from the bridge on to the pier and made a fatal plunge into the stream. Workmen engaged among the logs near the shore saw them float down stream and over the Chaudiere Falls. The two men were evidently strangers. The bodies have not been found.

Although the medicine business should, above all, be carried on with the utmost conscientiousness and sense of responsibility, the unfortunate fact is that in no other is there so much humbug and deception. The anxieties of the sick and their relatives are traded upon in the most shameful manner; impossible cures are promised; many preparations are absolutely worthless, and some are positively dangerous to health.

As a consequence, all proprietary remedies are regarded with suspicion by many people, and the good suffer for the bad.

KITCHENER TO THE BOERS.

Thanks Colonels For Their Good Work and Loyal Spirit.

Pretoria, June 17.—Lord Kitchener has sent the following identical telegram to Generals Botha, Delarey and Dewet:

"Now that the surrender of the Burghers is completed, I desire to place on record my high appreciation of the unflagging energy and unfailing tact with which you have facilitated the work of my commissioners. I recognize how much is due to your exertions that the burghers have everywhere displayed such a loyal spirit in accepting the change of government, and I can inform you that the manner in which the burghers surrendered has greatly pleased His Majesty the King, and deeply impressed the British people, who are heartily anxious to welcome them as fellow citizens.

"I feel confident that a new era of complete reconciliation between all races has now dawned in South Africa."

Botha Going to Dresden.

Berlin, June 18.—The Boer General Louis Botha is coming to Dresden, where his family had taken refuge, for the purpose of taking them back to South Africa.

London, June 18.—In a despatch from Brussels, the correspondent of The Daily Express says that Mr. Reitz, former State Secretary of the Transvaal, and Gen. Lucas Meyer, purpose making a tour of the United States to collect money for poor Boer families.

Total Transvaal Surrenders.

London, June 18.—Under date of Pretoria, June 17, Lord Kitchener announced that 700 Boers surrendered at Bloemfontein, and all the surrenders in the Transvaal are now complete. In the Transvaal 11,225 men surrendered, and 10,813 rifles were given up, while in the Orange River Colony 5,395 men surrendered and 5,280 rifles were turned in. The figures for Cape Colony have not been fully received.

Canadian Casualties.

Ottawa, June 18.—The weekly report of the Casualty Department, Cape Town, was received yesterday morning: 205, Trooper William Bell, C.M.R., who enlisted at Hamilton, is still ill with enteric fever at Elandsfontein, where 720, Farrier W. Hunter, formerly of Winnipeg, lies suffering from a gunshot wound. At Klerksdorp 719, W. Hales, is still ill with enteric fever; he came from Winnipeg.

Required by Britain.

Montreal, June 18.—Messrs. H. and A. Allan have received a cablegram, informing them that their steamship, Ionian, has been requisitioned by the Imperial Government, and for some three months or more will be in service, transporting troops from South Africa or Boers to it. The Ionian has been employed this season on the Montreal-Liverpool route.

A Family Necessity.

"Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. Heads of families would not think of being without them. One pill a dose, 25 cts. a box.

Big Apple Crop.

Toronto, June 18. — A prominent fruit man who has just been through the Niagara District, said that there would be lots of strawberries and apples this season, but not too much of other fruits. Crawford peaches were a little on the light side, while cherries would also be a little scarce. The canning factories were sold out of everything excepting beans and corn and were consequently buying up everything at their own figure of course. The big canning companies had recently bought out the majority of the smaller ones throughout the Niagara district.

Mr. "Sandy" Doherty was one of the prominent, wide-awake excursionists from Scarboro that visited Peterborough yesterday. He is a typical Scotch farmer and can size up the good points of a horse or a cow the moment he claps his eye on them. He paid his "best respects" to Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Tooley, of the Queen's Hotel, during the day, and having formed a guid impression of our city, told them that "the toon was ane of the smairtest he had seen on the continent."

ANNIVERSARY ENTERTAINMENT

A Pleasant Evening Spent at the Y. M. C. A. Last Night.

The fifth anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association in their new building, was held last evening, and viewed from every standpoint was a success such as should crown the efforts of such an amiable body as the Ladies' Auxiliary. The proceedings took the form of a high class concert and at home, and the fact that everything passed off without a hitch, showed that the management of details had been left in careful hands.

The Assembly Hall, where the first part of the programme was run off, was very prettily decorated with red, white and blue bunting, and the platform bore evidence of the florists' art. There were upwards of three hundred people present, and the attention given the different numbers was in keeping with the excellence of the programme, which was divided into three parts, refreshments intervening. The instrumental numbers by Mr. C. Stanley on the Apollo were listened to with the greatest attention and appreciation, and were among the best things on the programme. Mr. H. Mowat, who is becoming a great favourite with Peterborough audiences, received a hearty encore. The solo by Miss C. Belleghem, "The Barque of Dreams," was especially well rendered, as was also the solo by Mr. Gillogly, who well merited the encore he received. Miss Davies, who never fails to delight her hearers, rendered a high-class solo, and was warmly applauded. The recitation by Miss Alberta White, "The Deathbed of Benedict Arnold," was given in the talented style which Miss White possesses, and was much appreciated by the audience. Miss Gertrude Kendry and Master V. Morphet followed with well rendered solos, and Miss White again recited a poem entitled "The Battle of Little Harts' River," which stirred the feeling of patriotism throughout the audience. "God Save the King," closed this most successful part of the entertainment.

The ice cream and cake, which the audience enjoyed at intervals, was served in two adjacent rooms by the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, in their usual creditable manner.

The thanks of the Auxiliary are tendered to Mrs. R. J. Frost, who had charge of the decorations.

The proceeds amounted to a substantial sum, which will be devoted to the piano fund.

Mr. F. H. Dobbin acted as chairman and, as usual, made everybody feel at home by his characteristic good nature.

Hon. J. Isreal Tarte,

Minister of Public Works spends the afternoon of Thursday, June 19th, on the pic-nic grounds in Douro, where he will deliver a most interesting address on "Trade within the Empire" and other live subjects.

"PRETTY MISS SPRING"

Enjoyed Delighted Attention at St. John's School House Last Night.

"Pretty Miss Spring" was the title of the fantastic motive portion of a very pleasing programme of elocutionary entertainment, provided by a recital given by the elocution pupils of that talented member of our local literati, Miss Alma Frances McCollum, who is noted not only for her rare elocutionary ability but for a liberal share of the poetic afflatus, which too infrequently finds expression in publication.

"Pretty Miss Spring" selected rather a chilly evening for her floral debut, but in spite of that there was a fair attendance of the public in St. John's School House. As was to be expected, ladies largely predominated. The subject of the entertainment in its pretty gracefulness would be naturally expected to attract a corresponding element. A few men were present to add more rugged features to the gathering, as an otherwise unsightly rock or gnarled tree gives variety to a lovely landscape.

The first part of the programme, which consisted principally of elocutionary selections, was varied by a performance on the violin by Miss Kathleen Wallis of that ever sweet Schumann musical gem, Traumerei, dreams that haunt our musical dreamland with charming persistency. Miss Wallis' pleasing execution of her selection, was rewarded by a recall and she performed in response in a spirited style a contrasting selection.

Miss Marion Rush sang, in a voice of great sonority and strength, a vocal selection. The rest of the first part was given over to recitations by Misses Vera White, Gladys Pentland, Mabel Pringle, Gertrude McClelland, Alice Clegg and Hazel Pentland. The work of the elocutionists was very creditable and was received with marked favour, all being liberally applauded, and some recalled, Miss Gertrude McClelland receiving the additional recognition of a handsome bouquet. They gave evidence of careful training, but it must be admitted that the solemn, spiritual beauty of "Lead Kindly Light," does not readily lend itself to physical expression.

"Pretty Miss Spring," a poetical fantasy of fairy-like fibre, and sparkling with pretty poetic conceits, was the composition of Miss McCollum, and she deserves the highest credit, not only for its conception, but for the skill shown in working out its charming ideas, and in the excellent training of her beautiful band of little flower fairies. There were eleven of these, representing a corresponding number of flowers — Pretty Miss Spring was very prettily personified in Miss Lola Ostrom, while the flower fairies were Misses Gertrude McClelland, Sweet Pea Blossoms; Kathleen Wallis, Crimson Rose; Hazel Pentland, Nasturtium; Vera White, Dandelion; Lilian Dean, Violet; Helen Stone, Forget-Me-Not; Robina Cumming, Hyacinth; Alice Clegg, Tulip; Gladys Pentland, Daisy; Mabel Pringle, Lily of the Valley. The curtain rose on a vacant platform, but in a moment, to sprightly music, the flower fairies came tripping on the stage, one after another, as beautiful and sweet as the flowers they represented, and with which they were emblematically crowned. Each one bore a gay rope of flowers, and the little sprites in the series of dances which marked the scene, managed them with a graceful and decidedly pretty effect. Pretty Miss Spring was gleefully welcomed, and during the scene the fairies danced about her, netting her in the fragrant meshes of their garlands, and at one time revolving about her in the flowing movements of the valse, with a charming effect, very like a May pole dance. At a word from the flower queen, one after another of the floral fays broke trippingly from the elfin ranks, arrayed on each side of her, and gracefully advanced to the front where she recited a pretty and pertinent poetical conceit, in illustration of the character she represented. This part of the programme was excellently done by all, but it will be only a little poetic justice to give especial prominence to the splendid manner in which little Gladys Pentland and Mabel Pringle acquitted themselves. In clearness of enunciation and spirited recitation of their lines, these little tots set an example that might well be followed by maturer elocutionists. They were rapturously applauded. At the conclusion of these little speeches came a joyous chorus and a beautiful dance by the little elves, and the curtain fell upon a delightful fantasy, creditable alike to the composer, and the little stars that twinkled their brief but beautiful span in the mimic play. The audience seemed by their hearty approval, to thoroughly enjoy this charmingly conceived and wrought-out fancy.

The evening's programme concluded with a quiet little comedietta by Matthews, "Six Cups of Chocolate," in which the characters who contributed to the fitting punishment of male perfidy on a wholesale scale were taken by Miss Marion Rush, Miss Frances Burritt, Miss Hazel Dean, Miss Eva Bradd, Miss Daisy Mills and Miss Madelon Wilson.

The successful and pleasing entertainment was concluded by the singing by the full strength of the "company" of "God Save the King," and if such a prayer from such pure hearts will, as we have reason to hope, be heard, His Majesty's lumbago will have disappeared by the time of his Coronation, one week from to-day.

Miss McCollum wishes to thank Messrs. Richard Hall & Son, for the kind loan of draperies used on the occasion, and the Stanley Piano Co., for kindly placing a pianoforte at her disposal, and Mrs. Wallis for her satisfactorily supplied accompaniments.

A DOUBLE PRESENTATION

To Mrs. (Rev.) D. O. Crossley at Charlotte Street Church

By the Woman's Mission Auxiliary and the Ladies' Aid Society—Two Kindly Worded Addresses.

A union gathering of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary and the Ladies' Aid Society of Charlotte street Methodist church was held yesterday afternoon in the Sunday School Room. The attendance of both societies was very large, and it was evident that something unusual was on hand. This proved to be the case for each society had a kindly worded address and presentation to make to Mrs. Crossley, the retiring pastor's wife, who for five years has been a member of both societies.

From the Missionary Society the following address accompanied by a beautiful tea set of French China was presented:

Dear Mrs. Crossley,—During the years that have gone by since your coming amongst us, we have become so accustomed to depend on the help you have so cheerfully rendered us, not only by your presence but by your example and Christian spirit, that we find it hard to realize that these pleasant relations must so soon come to a close.

As the time is now drawing near when our connection must sever, we, as members of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary desire to express our sincere appreciation of your loyalty and fidelity to the special branch of church work so very dear to the heart of our Blessed Lord. We fully realize what a willing worker you have been in other departments of church work, ever giving a cheerful, though unobstrusive, service, but in no place has your presence and influence been more highly prized than in the Auxiliary.

We know you have acted from the highest motive and desire for the success of the missionary cause and the extension of Christ's Kingdom.

In parting with you we all feel that your removal from us is a real loss. We shall miss your counsels and your prayers that have often been an inspiration to us. We trust you may be very useful and happy in your new home. Our best wishes and prayers will go with you. We ask you to accept this gift as a memento of our intercourse, hoping it may sometimes remind you of the pleasant hours we have spent together.

Signed on behalf of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary,

PHOEBE C. KILGOUR, Pres.
MARY B. LYLE, Secy.
MRS. J. ALLUM, Treas.

From the Ladies' Aid Society the following address was then presented accompanied by a magnifisent jardiniere on pedestal, and vase:

Dear Mrs. Crossley,—It is with mingled feelings of regret and sadness that we are so soon to bid you good-bye and see you go out to make new friends, and labour in a new field. But while you go you leave behind pleasant thoughts and memories of our associations together.

We cannot let you leave us without expressing our gratitude for the assistance you have rendered, and the unselfish devotion you have displayed in the various branches of church work, but especially in the Ladies' Aid Society. We have found your counsels to be wise and farseeing, and your modest Christian life and example have been an inspiration to us all.

On behalf of the Ladies' Aid we beg you to accept this jardiniere and vase as a slight token of our esteem and love, and with it our prayers that God may spare you and your husband and family many years to labour and love.

Signed on behalf of the Ladies' Aid Society,

MRS. S. CLEGG, Pres.
MRS. J. WHARTON, Secy.
MRS. M. B. LYLE, Treas.

Mrs. Crossley was taken completely by surprise, but replied expressing her very great appreciation of the kindness shown her during the years of her stay in Peterborough, and thanking the the ladies of both Societies for their very kind words and tokens of regard just presented.

An hour or more was then spent in pleasant social intercourse, during which a splendid tea was partaken of, two large tables erected in the School Room being filled with the company.

PRECOCIOUS POTATOES

The First of the Season Were Eaten To-day.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cooney are not only rarely enthusiastic and successful floriculturists, but they achieve equal success in the more prosaic and material realms of vegetable development. To-day, June 18th, the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo, fought and won eighty-one years ago to-day, they enjoyed at their meal new potatoes grown in the open air in their own garden on Stewart street. They were not "small potatoes," either in the achievement sense or in their proportions. This is a record which can't, it is claimed, be beaten.

WOOD FAMINE AT AN END

The wood famine which has prevailed in town recently, came to an end on the receipt of two scows of hardwood, both green and dry, by J. E. A. Fitzgerald.

THE ONTARIO BANK.

The reports presented at the annual meeting of the Ontario Bank, held yesterday, a fuller account of which will be found in another column, were of a most satisfactory character. The statement of the year's transactions showed a profit and loss balance brought forward from May 31, 1901, of $16,996.04; premium on new stock, $5,539.75; net profits after deducting charges of management, interest accruing upon deposits, and making provision for all bad and doubtful debts, $168,500.75, a grand total of $191,035.56. This was appropriated as follows; Dividend of 2 1-2 per cent. on December 31st last, $34,670.89; one of 2 per cent. on June 1st, $41,963.25; added to Rest Account, $75,000, reserved for officers' pension fund, $5,000, a total of $156,624.14, leaving a balance of profits carried forward of $34,411.44. The rest account was increased to a total of $425,000. Hon. J. C. Aikins, Messrs. G. R. R. Cockburn, Donald Mackay, A. S. Irving, R. D. Perry, Hon. R. Harcourt and R. Grass were elected directors for the ensuing year, and Messrs. Cockburn and Mackay were subsequently elected President and Vice-President respectively.

CHEMONG PARK NEWS.

The following party of American tourists arrived at the Chemong Park Hotel Monday night: Messrs. J. Miller Kelly, President of the Rochester Common Council, Mrs. Kelly and daughter Mabel, Mathias Kondolf, real estate broker and capitalist, Mrs. Kondolf and son Mather. This is the eighth season the members of this party have visited Chemong, and usually twice during each season.

Fishing was good on Monday, several parties having caught the full limit.

The Chemong Park Hotel grounds are looking extra well this season. The interior of the hotel premises have been retouched and beautified, and the exterior is being all repainted, the work being in charge of Mr. Fred Cook, which is a guarantee that it will be well done.

Applications for rooms at the hotel are larger than ever this season. Mr. Brown thinks that by the 1st of July he will have more than he can accommodate, and his chief regret is that that the house is so small.

Visitors from town are always made welcome.

OBITUARY.

A Saginaw paper to hand gives an account of the death of Miss Sarah McConnon, at one time a resident of Otonabee. The Saginaw paper says;

"Miss McConnon was born in Peterborough, Ont., in 1853. Five years ago, after the death of her mother, she came to this city to make her home with her sister. She was a quiet, retiring woman, but those who knew her esteemed her for her many lovable traits of character. She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Doherty, Mrs. Bessie Osborne, of Oscoda, and Mrs. Josephine Osborne, of Dunnaton, Ont., and three brothers, David McConnon, of West Branch; George McConnon, of Rat Portage, and John McConnon, of Montana."

Miss McConnon died at the home of her sister, Mrs. Daniel Doherty, 625 North Fifth street, Saginaw, Mich. Friends in Peterborough and vicinity will regret to learn of her demise.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Delegates to the Pan-Presbyterian Alliance Chosen.

THE MISSION SUPERINTENDENTS

Details of the Working Staffs of the Northwest Missions—A Chinese Deputation—Motion to Recoup Rev. Dr Wilkie—The Question of Individual Communion Cups Debated—In Toronto Again.

Toronto, June 18.—The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at yesterday's session confirmed the appointment of three superintendents of mission work in the West, as recommended by the committee. Rev. Dr. E. D. McLaren of Vancouver, B. C., was appointed general field secretary; Rev. J. A. Carmichael, Regina, superintendent of the Synod of Manitoba and the Northwest; and Rev. J. C. Herdman, Calgary, superintendent of the Synod of British Columbia. Dr. McLaren will have his headquarters in Toronto and will receive $2,400 a year; and each of the superintendents will draw $2,000 a year and traveling expenses.

The reports on ministers' widows' and orphans' funds were presented, as was the report of the fund in connection with the Church of Scotland. The receipts of the latter fund were $21,521, the disbursements falling short of this by $3,598. The assets amounted to $111,551. The Assembly appointed a committee to consider the question of amalgamation of the funds and report to next Assembly.

The report of the committee on the reception of ministers, recommending the admittance of the following clergymen, was adopted:

Rev. M. R. Gordon, Dutch Reformed Church, London; Rev. J. J. Wanthorpe, Baptist, Stratford, leave not granted, but permission given for him to labor in home mission field; Rev. T. R. Forbes, Stratford; Rev. David Smith, Baptist, Superior; Rev. Arch. McLean, Winnipeg; Rev. N. P. Gross, Baptist, Winnipeg, postponed, but will be employed as home missionary; Rev. John McMillan, Minnedosa; Rev. John A. Mann, Congregationalist, Edmonton, to complete one session in Manitoba College; Rev. G. M. Gibson, Kamloops; Rev. W. H. Madill, Congregationalist, Westminster, owing to absence of certain papers, leave be granted; Rev. D. Coburn, M.A., Halifax; Rev. E. E. Annand, Truro; Rev. J. W. McPhail, Wallace; Rev. S. B. Hillard, St. John, Anglican; Rev. S. Delagoneau, Montreal, to be employed on probation for a year; Rev. Chas. A. Wookey, Toronto; Rev. A. Ewing, Toronto; Rev. J. R. Mann, Guelph; Rev. Robert McDermid, Hamilton.

The Assembly was waited upon by a deputation of Chinamen, representing the Chinese Presbyterians of Canada. They were introduced by Rev. R. P. Mackay. The meeting was addressed by Hong Wu and Mr. Yen presented a letter of thanks to the Moderator, which was written in Chinese. The Moderator expressed pleasure at meeting them, and assured them that the Assembly was greatly interested in Chinese work.

A considerable portion of the afternoon session was devoted to a discussion of a motion against the introduction of an individual communion cup. The discussion was still on when the afternoon session adjourned.

J. K. Macdonald handed in a notice of motion, that the western section of the Foreign Mission Committee be instructed to investigate the books of the Calcutta University, with a view of ascertaining if Rev. Dr. Wilkie invested in the institution any of his private funds, and, if so, to recoup him his funds so invested.

The following were elected representatives to the Presbyterian Alliance, to be held in Liverpool, Eng., in 1904: Rev. Dr. Warden, Rev. Principal Caven, Rev. Dr. Bryce, Hon. John Charlton, Hon. Judge Forbes, Rev. Dr. D. M. Gorden, Rev. Dr. Patrick, Rev. J. A. Macdonald, Rev. Dr. McVicar, Rev. Dr. Milligan, Rev. Prof. James Ross, Rev. Alfred Gaudier, Rev. Dr. R. P. McKay, Rev. Dr. J. Scrunger, Rev. Dr. Herridge, Rev. D. G. McQueen, Rev. Dr. E. D. McLaren, Rev. Dr. Fletcher and Messrs. David Morrice, J. K. Macdonald, Walter Paul, W. M. Clark, George Hay, Robert Kilgour, George Rutherford, George Mitchell, Sheriff Archibald and George Keith.

At the evening meeting, reports were received from the Committee on Sabbath Schools and the Committee on Young People's Societies. The committee named Rev. John McEwen and A. W. Wright as representatives of the Committee on Sabbath School Publication. The number of Presbyterian schools was 2,740, an increase of 86 over the past year, and the union schools numbered 456, an increase of 61. In the total number of schools, 2,853, there were 21,717 officers and teachers a gain of 317 over the past year, and 182,-335 scholars, a gain of 1,626.

Rev. Mr. Gaudier presented the report of the Committee on Young People's Societies, which showed that the total membership was 26,-258, of whom 14,917 were members in full communion.

Rev. John Neil paid a tribute to the teachers in the Sunday schools but thought the ministers could do more for the work. The best preachers, he said, were not those who were the most eloquent, but those who devoted their time to the welfare of the children and the young people.

The committee appointed to consider a place for the next meeting, met last night. They will report to the Assembly this morning that the meeting next year will be held in Toronto.

A Galt Lady Saved $60.

Mrs. Nesbit of Galt was sure her daughter was dying of consumption. So were two physicians and all the neighbours. Three 25c bottles of Four T's put the girl on her feet. As a positive, safe and speedy cure for coughs, colds or congested lungs this Four T's can't be beaten. Large bottles 25c. at Ormond & Walsh's drug store.

MR. SMYTH DISQUALIFIED.

Conservative Member For Algoma May Lose His Seat.

Toronto, June 18.—From information which has been received at the Parliament buildings, it seems that Mr. W. R. Smyth, the Conservative candidate who was declared elected for Algoma, will be disqualified and cannot take his seat in the Legislature. Mr. Smyth is a postmaster at Rydal Bank, a hamlet a few miles north of Bruce Mines, where he keeps a general store, and investigation at Ottawa shows that he has not resigned that office. The election law provides that any person who holds an office of emolument from either the Provincial or Dominion Government, is disqualified from holding a seat in the Legislature. The form of settling the point would be, it is stated by officials of the Attorney-General's department to petition against the return of the member whose seat was questioned.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possible derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure, be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

Toronto, June 17.—Capt. Bernier returned to the city from Hamilton yesterday, delighted with the interest the people of that place took in his scheme for the discovery of the North Pole. The Hamilton Astronomical Society not only presented the captain with a document commending his project to the Dominion and Provincial Government and the public, but promised him to equip his ship with a splendid telescope.

Two Men Killed.

Parry Sound, June 17.—By an explosion of one of the large boilers of the Ontario Lumber Company's mill at French River, on Saturday afternoon, two men, George Webster, sawyer, and Hugh Campbell, fireman, were instantly killed. No cause is assigned for the accident. Both men were married, their families living at French River.

BLEEDING PILES.

Two Letters From Mr. Walker Explaining the Severity of His Case and the Permanency of His Cure by Using

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Some people seem to think that it is too much to claim that Dr. Chase's Ointment will cure every form of piles, but facts go to prove the truth of this claim. These are interesting letters from one who has suffered much and been cured.

In November, 1901, Mr. Sherwood Walker, a fireman on the Canada Atlantic Railway, living at Madawaska, Ont., writes: "I'm a great sufferer from bleeding piles. Sometimes the protruding piles come down, causing much misery and uneasiness, and at other times I am subject to bleeding piles, and they bleed to such an extent as to make me quite weak. If Dr. Chase's Ointment will cure this awful ailment you will have my everlasting gratitude."

On March 1, 1902, we received the following letter from Mr. Walker, which speaks volumes for Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for piles of the most distressing form. He writes:—"According to my promise, I now take pleasure in writing to you. If you remember, you sent me a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment for bleeding piles some three months ago. I used it faithfully, and can say that it proved a Godsend, for it has entirely cured me of bleeding piles.

"I would have written sooner, but I wanted to be able to tell you that it was a permanent cure. This you can use for the benefit of other suffering people. There are several people here who have been cured of very severe cases of protruding piles by using this great ointment."

So far as we know there is no other preparation extant which is so successful in curing piles of the most aggravated kind as Dr. Chase's Ointment. Its soothing, healing powers are marvellous, and its cures thorough and permanent. Sixty cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 9

BASKET BALL.

Expert Notes on Playing the Game by J. Howard Crocker.

The main point to be noted in learning basket ball, with a view of becoming an expert player, is that a straight, clean game must be played. One must learn to catch the ball surely, to pass very quickly, and to stop when running at full speed immediately upon receiving the ball. The best way to receive a ball is by jumping for it and landing squarely on both feet. This will require a great deal of practice and good judgment so as not to strike an opponent and thus be penalized for charging. The game of basket ball is a poor game indeed if there is much individual playing, but the game is improved from a spectator's standpoint, and is faster and better in every way if there is much quick passing. Therefore, you should endeavor to receive the ball and pass it to one of your own men as quickly as possible. The most effectual passing is successful when it is passed from the third or fourth man, who, of course, must be in the forward line, and should be close in under the basket, if possible, where he will be free from his check to get a clear shot at the basket. To pass the ball to a second player does not usually give him a clear shot at the basket, but by the time the third or fourth man receives it invariably that man is unchecked and nothing is to hinder him from scoring, if he is a good shot. Dribbling the ball is a feature of the game which has been largely cut out, because of the rough play, but sometimes when a person gets the ball everyone of his team is checked and he cannot pass, then a dribble is necessary in order to give the men a chance to get uncovered. The man who is going to dribble very much in the game should always try to stop the ball with one hand, then if you dribble you are at liberty to catch it with both hands and pass, so as not to violate rule 11, section 18.

The next good point in the game is that of quick passing in from out of touch. When time is lost by the players it slows the game down, and makes it uninteresting. Another thing, if you are quick in getting the ball in, and your men are quick to receive the ball from you, you very often can get in a position unchecked, and thus have a clear try for a goal. If the ball is batted out of touch by you, do not struggle for the ball when you know it should not be yours, drop it at once, and leave it for your opponent and get into your own position. Be clean and manly, and help your officials in carrying out the spirit of the game.

My next suggestion would be that you do not practice shooting while standing still, but practice moving about the floor and shooting the breast shot, that is, both hands holding the ball about level with the breast, jumping squarely from both feet, throwing the ball high and dropping it clearly into the basket. Do not depend on the carrom or rebound shot from the wall or screen, for when you play on your opponent's territory you will not be acquainted with these, and thus you will be unable to shoot, but practice throwing the ball high, and getting it into the basket independent of the surrounding walls or posts.

Now, in closing, there are just two things that I would strongly urge upon all who play the game and intend to play for some time and are anxious to be good players. First, always remember that it is the man who sees defeat staring him in the face who becomes rough and ungentlemanly, and begins to play "dirty" ball. Do not ever relinquish the game until time is up, no matter what the score is, and always play the same clean game whether you win or lose. If you lose people will praise you for your manner of playing, and in your own self you will feel that your game was clean. If you win you will realize that you have won honestly.

The last point is that of assisting the officials. Do not try to do anything but what is right. Be straight. If you bat the ball out of touch do not try to get it, leave it for your opponent. If you run with the ball do not protest the officers' decision, but pass the ball immediately to the captain of the opposing team, so that he may take his free throw. Do not ever address an official unless you are the captain of the team. The old adage which says, "Say nothing but saw wood," is strictly true with basket ball. Say nothing, but play the game.—J. Howard Crocker.

Big Change in Ideas Since Then.

It is proposed to construct a substantial new Suspension bridge at the Falls for the use of the Great Western and other railway companies whose lines will meet at that point on both sides of the river. It is not intended that trains of passenger carriages shall pass over it, but only baggage and freight cars, slowly propelled by horses or stationary engines. It is supposed that travelers would prefer to walk over, and with a great deal of reason, too.

The business on the Ottawa may be looked upon now as having fairly commenced. On Monday last fourteen cribs of white pine passed through the North Chaudiere slide. Apropos, speaking of timber, we understand that several parcels of white pine have changed hands among the merchants in Quebec at 8d per foot.

JONAH AND THE WHALE.

There is nothing in the original texts of the Bible to show that the creature which we are told swallowed Jonah was really the same animal we call a "whale" in this day and age of the world. The word translated into both the Septuagint and the New Testament was the Greek word "Katos," which means simply a sea monster, and this word was the one used by our Lord in his reference to the account of Jonah's exploit. So far, therefore, as the Hebrew or Greek words are concerned, the monster may have been a shark, a sea serpent or some other uncanny denizen of the deep.

Hence there is nothing incredible in the statement that Jonah, upon being thrown into the sea, was quickly overtaken by some water monster and swallowed without suffering mutilation. To Biblical students it is a well known fact that a vessel sailing from Joppa to any Spanish port must pass through a section swarming with a species of shark called a "sea dog." The sea dog has a throat large enough to swallow fair sized men.

She Pricked Her Finger.

A maid employed by a prominent New York family came to her mistress with tears in her eyes not many days after she had been in the household and said that she had pricked her finger with a table fork.

"I am terribly worried, ma'am," she said, "for fear the fork may have had some brass in it and have poisoned my hand."

"Oh, nonsense, Mary!" replied the lady of the house. "How could the fork poison you when it is made of pure silver? I never allow anything else on my table."

The next day Mary and the fork which had pricked her, and all the other forks and, in fact, the whole table service, guaranteed by the mistress to be solid silver, had disappeared for parts unknown.

The Day of Miracles not Past.

A Toronto Star reporter investigated the case of Mr. George Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhozone.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be cured. Catarrhozone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from impaired hearing, deafness, head noises and ringing in the ears, are advised to inhale Catarrhozone, and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. Olden Time "Raiment."

In early Bible days richly embroidered raiment was enumerated with the gold, silver and other valuable property of a rich man. In that primitive age Dame Fashion was not the fickle goddess she is at present, and the "raiment" so frequently mentioned in the Holy Scriptures descended from father to son as a valuable part of the inheritance. Raiment was often sent, with gold and gems, as a present to dignitaries.

It took not months, but years, to ornament some of these garments, and the gold thread so lavishly used in embroidering them was real gold. Moses describes the process of making the gold thread that was used in ornamenting the tabernacle. The habit of making presents of rare needlework is still common among eastern nations who changed their customs so slowly.

On Proper Vaccination.

It should be made clear that proper vaccination is the only known method of specific value in conferring immunity from smallpox. The comparatively short duration of this immunity should be insisted upon, and a simple, intelligible description of the ordinary course of a proper vaccination should be added. It would be extremely useful, in view of the wide diffusion of antivaccination literature, to make the frank admission that in the days of arm to arm vaccination accidental inoculation with other diseases, although extremely unlikely, was theoretically possible, but that the modern method of glycerinated calf lymph has now destroyed even the remote possibility of such intrinsic danger.

WATCHING FOR THE SIGNAL.

But low in the distance the clouds break away!
The Gate's glowing portals I see;
And I hear from the outgoing ships in the bay
The song of the sailors in glee;
So I think of the luminous footprints that bore
The comfort o'er dark Galilee,
And wait for the signal to go to the shore,
To the ship that is waiting for me!

A Business Man's Nerve.

The successful merchant nowadays knows how to turn even misfortune into advertising. A team of coach horses dashed into an immense plate glass window in front of a big furniture store in New York city and made a general smashup of everything in sight. The proprietor, instead of shutting up shop even temporarily, sat down and with a paint brush elaborated the following on a big white board and installed it in the window where the plate glass was: "A coach team smashed this window. You see, even the horses know where to find good furniture. This is a pointer for you."

How the Natives Treat Gorillas.

Natives in the countries inhabited by great apes regard them always as human beings of inferior types, and it is for this reason that for a long time it was found impossible to get hold of an entire gorilla skin because the savages considered it religiously necessary to cut off the hands and feet of the animals when they killed them, just as they do with their enemies, possibly for the purpose of rendering them harmless in case they should by any chance come to life again.

Scores of Uses.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is best known on account of its wonderful control over eczema, salt rheum and piles, it is found to be in almost daily daily demand in many homes as a cure for chilblains, chafing, pimples, sunburn, burns, scalds and each and every form of itching, irritated or inflamed skin. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application knows no equal.

Salad Plants.

The salad plants contain no appreciable amount of nutrient and are not esteemed for this reason by those who recognise their value and deem their crispness and cooling properties an indispensable part of the ideal dinner. The nature of their component parts, along with the oil, acids and condiments used to dress them, makes them most useful aids to the digestion.

The First Glass Window.

The first glass window in England was put up in an abbey about the year 680. Glass windows, however, did not become general for many hundred years, and as late as 1579 the glass casements at Alnwick castle, the Duke of Northumberland's seat, were regularly taken down when the family was away from home.

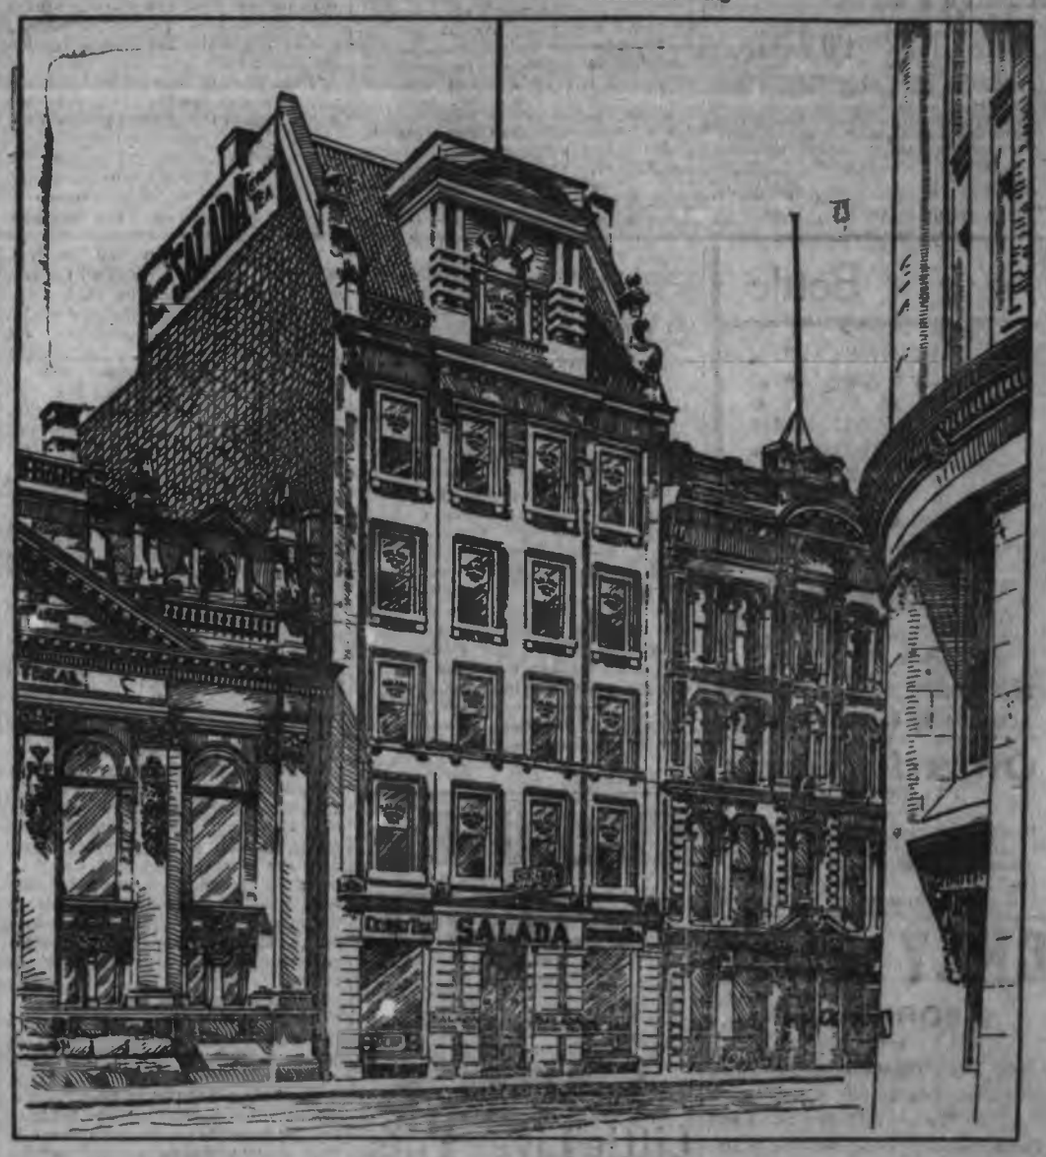
THE SALADA TEA COMPANY.

Great business enterprises of our day and generation have some regard for the beautiful. Keen, up-to-date business men have an eye for the attraction which an artistic, tasty warehouse and appointments have for the buying public. In the matter of advertising, as well as in the architecture and external and internal fittings of successful business houses today, this aesthetic note is very apparent. During the last five years many fine business establishments have been opened in Toronto with all the conveniences in warehousing and appointments that money and taste could command. These splendid model buildings are still being erected, and to-day we present our readers with a picture of the latest prominent business house which has attracted the attention of the thousands of people who pass up and down Yonge street every day. This large, new six-storey and basement sandstone building is occupied by the Salada Tea Company, near the corner of Yonge and Front streets, opposite the Board of Trade, Toronto. The building is very attractive in appearance and is in truth the largest, most modern and most complete tea warehouse on the continent. The Toronto home of Salada has a frontage of 40 feet and a depth of 213 feet, and is a magnificent building in every respect, an adornment to the business section.

The history of the Salada tea business is a striking example of up-to-date, alert enterprise. The business originated in 1892 in a very small way on Wellington street, and was commenced to introduce the teas produced in the Island of Ceylon. At that time the tea wants of Canada were entirely supplied from China and Japan. The head of the Salada firm, Mr. P. C. Larkin, quickly recognised the healthful qualities of Ceylon teas and also believed that if Ceylon tea was presented to tea drinkers in a manner that would ensure perfect cleanliness and a retention of the tea's flavor, that it would soon drive the adulterated teas of China from the market. The old-fashioned houses, satisfied to jog along in the old-fashioned way, sneered at the innovation, but after a year or two commenced to recognize the merits of the Salada tea, and the favor that it received at the hands of the public. The business grew, until the Salada Tea Company had to take larger premises at 25 Front street east. A year or two passed and their lack of space obliged them to absorb part of the adjoining warehouse. Time passed, the business grew and the firm purchased the warehouse, at 32 Yonge street, which then consisted of a five-storey building. In three years this edifice became too small and necessitated the erection of the present fine warehouse, which is a credit to the firm and to the city.



In the meantime, the extension of the business in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces necessitated the opening of branch warehouses. The first branch office was opened in Montreal, under the management of Mr. George Mann. Salada met with so much favor in the Lower Province that the branch there soon needed the commodious premises which it now occupies, at the corner of St. Sulpice and St. Paul streets. A branch was also opened in Buffalo, and later a branch was established in Pittsburg, then one in Detroit, under the supervision of Mr. Charles Sutherland of Hamilton. Subsequently, Mr. James McGuane, of Toronto, who has been one of the backbones of Salada since it was established, left this city to found a branch in Boston. He has since extended the business throughout the New England States and it can now be said that Salada is as well known in every town in New England as it is in Canadian cities. Agencies have also recently been opened in New York, Rochester, Cleveland, Baltimore, Washington, and other American cities.

Up to the year 1898 Ceylon produced nothing but its delicious black teas, but since then it has been growing the most excellent green teas that the world has hitherto enjoyed. Such wonderful progress has been made with these that the Salada Company believe they will entirely displace Japanese greens, just as their black tea has displaced all China black tea in Canada. The drinker of Japan tea has only to taste these teas once in order to be convinced of their superior merit. Unlike Japan teas, the Ceylon teas are entirely without artificial coloring.

The enterprise shown by the Salada Tea Company is not only beneficial to themselves and to Canada generally, but by bringing the merits of the product of one colony to the attention of the consumer in another colony is doing much to weld the Empire together, for the Ceylon tea planter is flesh, blood and bone, one of ourselves and the merchant or manufacturer who brings about a close connection between different parts of the Empire is perhaps more useful than the average politician.

It is also worthy of comment that the Salada Tea Company is making Canada the distributing centre for the vast quantity of tea imported from Ceylon every year. Canada is the only country in the world to which tea is admitted free of duty, and the Canadian public are able to buy their tea cheaper and better on that account.

So William Hawkshaw, Esq., wears a smile that is sweet to see, and Chip Reid chirps like unto the little birds after a shower of rain. And London didn't have to import seven players either. They had three new ones, though, Bond and Ledrew, who were out to practice with the Tecumsehs this spring but did not take out certificates with them, and Perrett, a brand new importanion from the east, who Hawkshaw says is a corracracekr. Manager McClellan said:—"The Coal Heavers seem to be striking their gait, and are anxiously looking forward to their next game. The men of the team are practising hard and if they do not over train they will be eligible to play off with Toronto Eastern League team for the Dominion Championship. "Danny" McCabe is shooting them over like peas and the umpire will have his troubles in calling balls or strikes, if any of the latter occur, more excitement in the shape of an inquest will result. The boys to a man feel elated over their victory over the Bloomer girls and suggest that more girls play the game.

PRACTICAL LESSONS.

Useful Information Imparted—Merchants of This Town Directly Interested and Profited.

One of the most practical lessons taught by the great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers great consolidation of shows to every community visited by them: Suppose they were to come into this town and attempt to do business without advertising. How much business would they do as compared with what they will do when they come after their heavy advertising? That is a conundrum that may be answered as well by the ignorant in ordinary things as well as the wise in all things.

Now the principle of advertising is always the same. The circus people have their exhibition to sell. They tell what it is in the most attractive manner possible. They do not stint themselves in the manner of advertising. The result is known to all. The same proportionate measure of success would attend the same kind of advertising of any kind of business.

It has been long since it was necessary to use any argument with any sort of a successful merchant to induce him to advertise. The only question now is how to advertise the best. How can it be done? Let this be the answer. Go into any city and look up the biggest business building and the busiest merchants. It is not necessary for the merchant to have his name on the door for you to know, even if you are a stranger in the city. Turn to the local newspapers and see who occupies the most adertising space in them. Then go back to the biggest business building and read the sign and you will see the same firm name. There are scarcely any exceptions to prove this rule, it is so general throughout the country.

LAST NIGHT'S GATHERING.

A Social Time in Labour Hall.

SOME SHORT SPEECHES.

The Young People Danced and the Older People Looked on—Musical Programme.

The social evening which was held in the Labour Hall last night under the auspices of the local Federation of Labour was a great success. The affair was very largely attended by the members of the Union and their friends and the members of the Committee were warmly congratulated upon the excellent manner in which the arrangements were carried out.

Supper was laid in the dining room, to the rear, from 7 till 8 o'clock, and between 400 and 500 people were served. The tables were very neatly arranged and under the supervision of Mr. Wm. Taylor. Those who visited the dining room were well looked after.

The general room to the front was neatly decorated and at 8 o'clock the musical programme opened.

The chairman, Mr. John McCann, in his address to the members expressed the pleasure he felt in seeing so many in attendance. He referred to the prosperous condition of the various manufacturing institutions and the many financial corporations in Canada during the last year or so, but during that wave of prosperity the labourers of the country had not been correspondingly benefitted. The Union had been organized for the purpose of advancing their interests and in this they had been very successful. He was particularly pleased to see so many ladies present and he paid a warm tribute to that class of women of the town, whom, as he said, get up every morning and put in an honest day's work in the factory or shop. He welcomes them most heartily to the rooms of the Union and he hoped that they would visit the local Union's home again at an early date.

MR. D. O'CONNELL.

Mr. O'Connell, after expressing the great pleasure he felt in being present, referred to the important element in the country that the labouring class were now recognized as, and he asked them to look through the history of nations and they would find that all great reforms had been obtained by the labouring classes. The speaker referred to the great improvements that had been made during the last fifty years or more in the condition of the labour classes. He contended that the ruling power of the country is gradually falling out of the hands of the so-called aristocratic class and reverting to its rightful owners, the labour and working classes. Mr. O'Connell then went on to speak of the vast resources of Canada, the pride we should feel in our British citizenship and the obligation that we owe to our country in living honest, sober and industrious lives. As to the great conflict that is now going on between capital and labour, he referred to the great assistance the labour unions had been in settling strikes and obtaining for the members of the union the rights and the privileges they now enjoy. He paid a great compliment to the local union for the manner in which they had fought for their rights and had gained those concessions to which they were justly entitled. He was satisfied that the labourers of the town had gained more of the wealth produced by their hands, than they otherwise would have, had there not been a labour union in the town. The conditions locally had been greatly improved, and it was only an instance of the state of labour throughout the entire Dominion as a result of the organization of labour unions. If workingmen are as true to their own interests in this land as in the land from which a great many of them come they will find that their will shortly be on this continent one of the greatest surprises of the future. In conclusion he expressed the extreme pleasure he felt in being asked to address the meeting, and the pleasure he felt in mingling socially among them.

Mr. O'Connell's address was followed by a vocal selection by Mr. A. Kingscote, entitled "The Little Patch of Red."

REV. J. C. DAVIDSON.

Rev. Mr. Davidson made a humorous speech, in which he referred to the pleasure he felt in seeing the women present. He was also delighted with the general feeling of friendliness that characterized the meeting. He made a very stirring speech, setting forth the grounds on which the members of the union were working, and wherein they derived their greatest benefit.

Messrs. Greenslade and Kingscote then rendered a vocal duet entitled "Larboard Watch."

Mr. McNamara, who followed, spoke for only a few minutes. He thought that every member of the union should be highly pleased at seeing such a large turn out of prominent citizens as were present this evening.

MR. J. H. McCLELLAN.

Mr. J. Harris McClellan was next introduced. He congratulated the committee on the excellent manner in which the affair had passed off. He had seen the wonderful growth of the labour unions in the town of Peterborough, and there had been great benefit derived from the organization of such institutions. He asked the young ladies to urge their brothers to join the union, and he asked the wives of the members to not prevent their husbands from attending. He warned them of the obligation that they took when they became members of the union, viz., that they should leave politics and religion out of the lodge room. If there had been any dissension in the past, let them now stand united for the common object in view; that of getting better livings for their wives and families.

This concluded the programme. The chairman then read a letter from Mr. R. R. Hall, who was to have been present, and deliver an address but was unavoidably detained away. He also announced that Hon. J. R. Stratton, though absent, had not forgotten the entertainment of the smoking portion of the company.

The National Anthem was then sung, after which the younger people enjoyed an informal dance until midnight.

PETERBOROUGH COUNTY COUNCIL.

Yesterday's Session was Very Short.

THE COMMITTEES REPORTED.

The Kinmount Bridge Matter Again Came up for Consideration—Other Matters.

The County Council went into session at 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, the Warden in the chair and all the members present.

His Worship Mayor Denne, of town, addressed the council inviting them to attend a reception to Hon. J. I. Tarte to-morrow night in the Oriental Hotel.

Warden Austin, of the County of Victoria, addressed the council in reference to the old matter of the Kinmount bridge. The bridge in question is over the Burnt River near the boundary line between Victoria and Peterborough.

Mr. McNeillie the County Clerk of Victoria, addressed the Council on the the same lines.

The Victoria Council was willing to contribute 2-5 of the total cost, and the Ontario Government had promised to give $1,000. The bridge would likely cost $2,500, and of this amount he thought the Peterborough Council could give $500. When the bridge was constructed they would give it over to the Township of Sommerville for maintenance.

The matter was, upon motion of Mr. Fitzgerald, seconded by Mr. Crowe, referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

HOUSE OF REFUGE.

Mr. E. A. Peck introduced the subject of the establishment of a house of refuge, and moved that the matter be referred to the Committee of the Whole Council for consideration.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

The Special Committee to take into consideration the address of the Warden, reported through its chairman, Mr. Pearce, as follows:

The Special Committee on the Warden's Address, beg leave to report as follows:

1. Your Committee congratulate His Majesty King Edward VII. on his approaching Coronation, and pray that his life will long be spared to reign over in peace and happiness his most loyal and contented subjects in all parts of the world. Your Committee desire to place on record the loyalty and devotion of all classes of his people in the Dominion of Canada to the throne and person of the King, and to express their pride and confidence in that freedom, liberty and happiness of life which all His Majesty's subjects are privileged to enjoy.

2. Your Committee recommend that the mode of payment of the special grants to members of the 3rd Contingent to South Africa, and also the matter of the special grant to the members for this county of the 4th Contingent to South Africa be referred to the Finance Committee.

3. Your Committee recommend that a memorial be drawn urging the Dominion Government to pass such legislation as will remedy the many losses which occur owing to defective cattle guards on railways.

4. Your Committee recommend that the matter of re-flooring Burleigh Bridge be referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

5. Your Committee recommend that the matter of advertising the back country as a place of settlement be referred to the Finance Committee.

J. B. PEARCE,
Chairman.

County Council Chambers,
June 18th, 1902.

The report was adopted.

COMMITTEE ON SCHOOLS.

The Committee on Schools reported through its chairman, Mr. Fitzgerald, as follows:

Your Committee on Schools beg leave to report as follows:

Your Committee recommend that the report of the County School Inspector be received, and that the Clerk be instructed to print same in the minutes of the proceedings of the Council.

G. W. FITZGERALD,
Chairman.

County Council Chambers,
June 18th, 1902.

The report was adopted.

PETITIONS.

The Committee on Petitions reported through its chairman, Mr. P. Costello, as follows:

Your Committee on Petitions beg leave to report recommending as follows:

That a memorial of this Council be forwarded to His Excellency the Governor General in Council recommending that the British Government be urged at the approaching conference in London to remove the present restrictions in the admission of Canadian cattle to Great Britain, and also to give to the natural products of the Colonies a preference in the Mother Country.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

P. COSTELLO,
Chairman.

County Council Chambers,
June 18th, 1902.

The report was on motion adopted.

Messrs. F. H. Dobbin and T. M. Hunter representing the West Peterborough Agricultural Society, appeared before the Council to ask the co-operation of that body in the efforts of the Society to secure in Peterborough the annual sale of live stock that is held by the Ontario Government. They explained the advantages to be derived from the holding of such a sale in Peterborough and with the hearty co-operation of the County Council, Town Council, Farmers' Institutes and Agricultural Society they thought that such could be secured.

Mr. Anderson moved, seconded by Mr. Shaw, that the County Council petition the Ontario Government to hold the sale in Peterborough as memoralized by the Town Council, the Farmers' Institutes and the Agricultural Society.

Council then adjourned.

NO EVIDENCE OF WRONG·

There is really no substantial ground for asserting, or insinuating, as some Conservative lawyers and papers have done, that there has been any criminal work in the elections, either during the polling or counting of the ballots.

It seems to be absurd to charge wrong-doing against any deputy returning officer when, before the election and during it, special directions were given to watch the proceedings, and there was no opportunity and no desire to do the switching and spoiling of ballots.

In Lennox and in North Grey, where there was much discussion over the marks on certain ballots, the evidence is wanting of any interference of election agents and any offensive service on their part. In both constituencies the majorities were small, and the recounts made them smaller. The suspicions of the Tories followed the failure of their lawyers to get the members-elect, who are Liberals, counted out.

In East Middlesex Judge Elliott counted in certain ballots which were rejcted by the deputy returning officer and which had on their backs the elector's number corresponding with the number upon the counterfoil. The Conservatives are hot about this. They would have all these ballots, spoiled by the deputy returning officer, if spoiled at all, cast out, and an appeal is being heard from the decision of Judge Elliott against them.

In East Hastings Judge Lazier, who counted the vote and gave the Liberal a Majority of 36, complimented the election officers upon the manner in which they had performed their work.

Generally it will be found that there is no occasion for the loud talk of political miamanagement at the polls. There was so much said about the machine by Mr. Whitney and his friends, and about the desperadoes that were supposed to be running over the country and contemplating an attack on the ballot boxes, that there is disappointment because they did not act.

So far, there is no proof that the election was not conducted fairly by the men who were appointed to register the vote.—Kingston Whig.

A CHANGE OF FRONT.

All newspaper readers will remember how telegraphic despatches in the days of the South African war describing disaster to British arms, with far more frequency than they occurred, came chiefly through the New York Journal. This is one of the papers, the other being the Chicago American and the San Francisco Examiner, owned by Hearst of New York, all extremely hostile to Great Britain during the war, and in favour of the Boers.

To show how self-interest can influance changes of opinion, and colour facts in reference to records before Hearst found it to his interest as a newspaper publisher to take an anti-British and pro-Boer attitude, here is a New York Journal editorial article in part, written and published when there was no special prejudice to pander to, nor any special interest to serve. The article, which is on the line of truth, says;

"The editor of the Journal has been requested to sign a petition to President McKinley, urging him to interefere between England and the Boers, to use the influence of the United States to prevent England from interfering in Boer arrangements. The editor of the Journal declines. He believes that interference by England is legitimate, that civilization and progress demand it. This belief is based on the following facts;

"The constitution and laws of the Transvaal, which really reflect the personal wishes and religious prejudices of Paul Kruger and a few other Dutchman, forbid any Catholic to share in the law making for the country. England demands that this discrimination against Catholics cease.

"The Transvaal laws forbid any Jew to share the law-making power. England demands that this this discrimination against the Jews cease.

"There are 200,000 whites in the so-called Boer Republic, but only 60,000 are Boers. The Boers declare that they are only asking the right to live. What they really ask is the right of six men to tyrannize over twenty—of 60,000 to rule 200,000—and rule them unjustly. The Boer attitude is not a demand for freedom. It is strictly an attitude of denying freedom to others. The Boer bosses controlled by Kruger maintain a government by aristocracy, an aristocracy based on birth — Dutch birth."

Yet, after printing such an expression of opinion and fact as this, the Journal finding it to its interest to do so, takes a sharp curve and espouses the cause of the Boers, whose way of treating certain classes of their citizens had made the pro-Boer sympathisers of people of those classes a matter of constant surprise.

EDITORIAL NOTES

London brokers are wearing a badge bearing the words: "Permit bearer to walk about the earth. Pierpont." The Ottawa Journal thinks that the New York brokers and the rest of this continent might wear a badge like that without it being so much of a joke.

With 16,000 to 18,000 Boers now surrendered, 26,000 Boers previously prisoners of war, 20,000 in the concentration camps or on parole, 6,000 serving as National Scouts with the British forces, the foreigners, the exiles, the dead and wounded, evidently at least 80,000 were in the Boer forces, and possibly 100,000. No wonder the republics were confident at the outset.

"Bystander"—Prof. Goldwin Smith —seems to require little excuse in formulating a "dig" at accepted theories of religious belief. In the last number of the Farmers' Sun, he says respecting simultaneous earthquake activity at Martinique, Portugal and Alaska, widely separated points, that "the most disturbing feature in these convulsions is the suggestion they seem to convey of a universal domination of blind force rather than order.' The tumultuous tumbling about of boiling water in the tea kettle is not suggestive of the domination of blind force, as of the domination of the cook's order and system which regards it as the necessary accompaniment of conditions contributing to "Bystander's" cup of tea.

There is considerable lament naturally made over the loss of life, and destruction of property resulting from the South African war. Yet many of the persons who make these complaints, and denounce the persistency of the British, are responsible for very much of the things they deplore. The war was practically over when Cronje surrendered over two years ago — February 17, 1900 — the backbone was broken, but the Boers, encouraged by Little Englanders, some few Canadianettes, and the expected enemies of the Empire in Europe and elsewhere, carried on a guerilla warfare since that time, and nearly all the bloodshed, and other calamities that followed up to the close of the strife, these pro-Boer sympathisers and encouragers, are largely responsible for. The Boers would have seen the folly of continuing the strife if they had not been mislead by the blatant sympathy of a few traitorous persons within the Empire and by the false hopes held out of the possibility of European intervention.

HALL'S GLEN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. Wm. Batten has been very busy during the past week with work preparatory to the bricking of his house, and he expects the masons to commnce their work at once, which when completed will add considerably to the appearance of his domestic surroundings.

The thunder storm which passed through here on Tuesday last caused no little excitement and consternation in this village. Mr. W. J. Little's barn was struck by lightning and finally rescued from extinction by the utmost effort that could be extended by the gang of men who had assembled with all possible speed and much alacrity to its relief.

A very friendly and interesting foot ball match was played in this place on Friday evening the 8th inst., between the North Dummer and Warsaw teams. Crowds of people both young and old gathered to witness the evening's amusement, which they enjoyed to their expressed satisfaction. The match resulted one goal in favour of Warsaw.

The Zion and Bethel Sabbath Schools expect to run their union excursion on Friday the 27th inst., from McCracken's Landing up through the lakes to Buckhorn and elsewhere. A very pleasant and profitable sail is anticipated.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.

The following resolution of condolence has been received by Mrs. David D. Henderson from the Session and Deacons' Court of the Keene Presbyterian church:

To Mrs. David D. Henderson and family:

The Session and Deacons' Court of the Keene Presbyterian Church assembled this day, have instructed us to convey to you their heartfelt sympathy and condolence in your sad bereavement in the loss of a kind and loving husband and father, and trust that the loving and sympathetic Saviour, the unfailing Friend and Support of those in sorrow, may be your comfort and consolation in this the time of your great affliction.

It has been their pleasure to meet your late lamented husband from time to time in transacting the business of the church, and during his long illness they have very much missed his presence and counsel in their Court.

It is with feelings of sadness that we realize that we will no more in this world, have his sympathy and wise counsel in our deliberations, but we trust that what has been our loss has been his gain. Words fail to express our sorrow, but we can only submit to the will of our Heavenly Father who is too wise to err and too good to be unkind.

Signed on behalf of the Session and Deacons' Court,

JAMES McNEIL,
ANDREW SHEARER.

OMEMEE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Farmers are well satisfied with the crop outlook.

Large quantities of live stock are being marketted.

Election matters here are quieted down. People generally are content to go on as before, and continue to prosper.

Rev. Mr. Edmison, formerly of Peterborough, occupied the Presbyterian pulpit here very acceptably on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. McDonald, of Keene, will occupy the Presbyterian pulpit here on Sunday.

There will be a large crowd take in the excursion on Saturday, via Peterborough and Lakefield to Lindsay.

Samuel English's summer resort at Idyl Wild will attract many from here.

Mr. J. J. Nicholls had his leg amputated at the knee Tuesday by Dr. Greer, of Peterborough, assisted by Drs. Cameron and Keith of this place. The patient stood the operation well considering his long suffering from the leg.

The Canadian Order of the Woodmen of the World are flourishing, and intend holding a garden party and picnic on Coronation Day.

THE LIVE STOCK MARKET.

The Price of Export Cattle Advances to 7 Cents Live Weight.

There is no break in the good fortune that is falling to the lot of cattle raisers and drovers during the present season. Yesterday, in spite of heavy arrivals, on the Toronto market, the upward movement of the past week culminated in a record of $7 per cwt. for choice export cattle, the highest price in Toronto since the spring of 1897. The receipts at the market were 102 loads, which included 1,730 head of cattle. The strongest demand was for exporters, and in this class the marked advance took place. There was also a brisk market for butchers' cattle, which sold at from $5.25 to $5.50 for picked lots, with the best previous quotations sustained in other grades. The British demand is strengthened by the opening of the tourist season and by the prospective coronation festivities, which will largely increase the consumption of meat.

A material element of the British public are guided by their circumstances rather than their tastes in the matter of beef consumption, and, while the coronation preparations will put many temporarily in a position to indulge more liberally in beef, there will also be some tendency to ignore other needs and relax in the direction of general good living. The arrivals also included 1,056 sheep and lambs, 446 hogs and 103 calves. There was a slight decline in the price of sheep and lambs, but all othlines of stock sustained recent advances. This exceptionally good tone in the cattle market comes when fodder and pasture crops are abundant and all conditions are favourable for cattle raising. The weather during the spring has been especially favourable for the pasturing of stock, and cattle raisers have the rare good fortune of a favourable season with advancing prices.—Globe.

THE DIGGERS' BIG STEAL.

Over $500 a Day Taken From the Toronto Fare Boxes.

Toronto, June 19. — The startling evidence against the accused street car conductors by John Butler Caulfield, Pinkerton detective, on previous hearings of the cases was completely eclipsed by the story told by him in the witness box yesterday morning, when the case against the alleged leader in the thefts, James Whittington, was heard. The detective told how "Jack" Caulfield, the jovial young "extra man" in the street railway service, had secured the confidence of Whittington, was admitted to his house, where he remained as lodger for six weeks, and through this means obtained the friendship of a large number of other employes of the company. He swore that Whittington admitted to him that his house was the manufactory for the "diggers" used in robbing the fare-boxes; that Whittington, in fact, boasted of being the inventor of the scheme, and that he himself had obtained considerable money from the fare boxes. The most important evidence, however, was an alleged statement by Whittington that the "extra" and "relief" men were generally using the diggers, and that "$500 was being stolen from the company daily by their aid.

Whittington pleaded "not guilty" to the charge of theft, and his counsel, Mr. T. C. Robinette, K.C., elected to have the case tried by the jury. After the evidence of Caulfield was heard the prisoner was committed for trial. Two other conductors, Gilbert Nelson and and George W. Lorrie, were also committed for trial.

A Scientific Prescription That Guarantees True Summer Health.

Paine's Celery Compound

Recommended and Prescribed by the Ablest Medical Men.

If you are weak, run-down, pale, nerveless and sleepless in June, your body is filled with the seeds of disease that must soon develop into death-dealing maladies.

If you have suffered through the springtime from rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, blood diseases, kidney and liver complaints, the coming hot weather will not help to lessen or ease your sufferings. The poisonous seeds of disease cannot be banished by the ordinary medicines of the day. It requires the powers and virtues of Paine's Celery Compound to accomplish the good work. No other medicine can effectually reach the root of your troubles. The purifying of the blood, the cleansing of the system, bracing of the nerves, the regulation of digestion — all this renovating work should be done in June, if health, vigour, activity and happiness are earnestly sought for. Thousands of permanent cures and the happy experience of physicians point to Paine's Celery Compound as the great disease banisher and lifesaver.

Drowned at Port Dalhousie.

Port Dalhousie, June 19.—Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock, as Ferryman Howe and a passenger named William Karte of Jersey City, N.J., were crossing from the Grand Trunk side of the harbor, they discovered a body floating in the water. They brought it to the ferry landing when it was discovered to be John Donnelly of Toronto, late fireman of the steamer Cambria. When found nothing but a copy of Saturday's Globe and a red pocket handkerchief were found on his body. He had been working in the village last week.

Until two months ago Donnelly lived in Toronto, when he left for Port Dalhousie, where he recently worked on a dredge. His wife and family of five children survive him, living in Toronto over the Don.

A FUTILE CONFERENCE

Toronto Street Railway Company and Men Fail to Agree.

A CAR STRIKE YET PROBABLE.

Board of Trade Committee Gives Out a Statement, Has Threshed the Company's Answer to the Men Out With the Latter, and Will Again Attempt to Turn the Railway Company.

Toronto, June 19.—Fifteen hours of almost continuous negotiations have failed to afford a solution of the Street Railway Employes' trouble. The situation is a very uncertain one, and out of it any kind of developments might grow, without occasioning any surprise. While the Board of Trade delegates continue to "hope" for the best, there is apparently little reason for anticipating a settlement, in a peaceful way, nor even to-morrow, and, in their present status, the negotiations might continue indefinitely if the men did not terminate them suddenly with a strike.

In the light of everything that occurred Wednesday afternoon and night the most sanguine sympathizers of the men are hardly ready to assert that they may not yet be forced to resort to severe measures to effect a settlement.

At the conclusion of a conference with the Street Railway Men's Committee, lasting until 2 o'clock this morning, the Board of Trade delegates handed out the following statement:

"The committee representing the Railway Company Employes and the Board of Trade, held a lengthy session and thoroughly considered the report of the men of their meeting with the officers of the Toronto Railway Company. The Board of Trade committee are to have a conference this morning with the officers of the Toronto Railway Company, with the hope of reaching a basis to which the men can feel justified in recommending to the meeting of conductors and motormen. The Board of Trade Committee hope this settlement will be arrived at to-day.

It was a busy day for the committee of the men representing the employes and they were engaged in argument and debate with the street car people and the Board of Trade Committee from 11 o'clock Wednesday morning until this morning at 2 o'clock. They were almost exhausted, but still determined to hold out for the men whom they represent. All those participating in the negotiations agreed to keep secret all details as to the progress made, and give out nothing further than the address issued by the Board of Trade.

The street car officials refused to make a statement, or even deny or affirm any proposition presented to them. Mr. Moore, for the company, merely said: "I am not at liberty to open my mouth on the subject. The men have the company's statement. If they care to give it out they have our consent to do so. I will not even say whether the negotiations were unpleasant or otherwise. You will notice however, that we still appear to feel good, so I guess there is nothing disastrous for the company in the outlook," and with this doubtful explanation, the astute representative of Mr. Mackenzie turned to his desk.

International Delegate Dilworth was equally reticent. "I am in a delicate position, and I appreciate it. I can't say anything about the progress of the negotiations, and with due courtesy to the company and the Board of Trade, I can't advise the committee of the men to say a word as to the situation. I hope the press will not press us for anything further."

The negotiations were finally terminated by the company presenting to the committee a typewritten statement, setting forth exactly what the company would be willing to accept as a compromise. The men were given this statement, which they were expected to show to the Board of Trade delegates. That this statement from the company is a long ways from being in accord with the demands of the men there is no doubt. In fact, without an intermediary, further negotiations would have been practically impossible. The view presented by the company was clearly impossible for the committee from the men to accept.

So far as can be gathered the situation stands thus:

The Company agreed to give the motormen and conductors a maximum wage of 20c an hour and relieve them of car-cleaning. They declined to recognize the union. The employes went away dissatisfied.

At eight till two this morning the committee of the Board of Trade was in session with the Employes' committee. The former will see the company officials to-day and try to heal the breach that shows no sign of narrowing.

None can say there will be no strike.

TO EXTEND COAL STRIKE.

President Mitchell Wants to Call Out All the Coal Miners—National Convention Called to Consider.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa, June 19. — The long expected call for a special national convention of United Mine Workers' of America was issued yesterday by National President Mitchell, at strike headquarters, to be held at Indianapolis on July 17.

The convention will be held to discuss the advisability of involving all the soft coal miners in the United States in the present anthracite coal strike.

There are approximately about 450,000 coal miners in the United States. Of these, about 350,000, Mr. Mitchell says, are affiliated with the union, and an additional 50,000 comply with the constitution of the miners' organization.

The anthracite fields' delegates will go into the convention backed for a general strike. The West Virginia delegates and those from Michigan, will be instructed likewise. Central Pennsylvania will send some delegates who will want a general strike as will also Kentucky. But Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana will offset this, as it is officially understood that the miners in those sections are not very enthusiastic over a general strike.

The great barrier to a national suspension is the yearly wage scale agreement, which many of the soft coal miners have with the companies. These agreements are looked upon as contracts, and a large percentage of miners in the West are averse to breaking them.

There will be about 1,000 delegates in the convention. National Secretary Wilson has already started to send out the call for the convention. The call is sent direct to every local union.

If a general strike takes place one million men will go out.

A bare majority can order a strike. A few more than 900 can declare a strike.

MOB OF STRIKERS.

Two People Shot and One of Them a Reporter.

Paterson, N.J., June 19.—This city was in the hands of a mob yesterday, and, as a result of the riots, a number of persons were shot, and two, at least, will die. One of the latter is a reporter. The police did their work well, but they were so few in number that they could make little headway against the mob.

A general strike of all branches of the silk trade was inaugurated, and the mob was made up of foreigners, who ran riot.

In the afternoon, the Anarchists, who seemed to be in command, were openly threatening that a policeman's life would pay for each wounded rioter. The police last night were tired, sore and angry, and individually, they say that a resumption of the rioting this morning will find them prepared to shoot to kill. The mill-owners say they will resume work this morning, and will hold the city and county responsible for all resulting damages.

Big Lace Mill Tied Up.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 19.—The big lace mill which was tied up Tuesday because the management would not discharge several girls whose relatives are still at work in the mines did not resume operations yesterday. General Manager Doran said the firm was going to make an issue of the matter and fight it out. The girls whose dismissal is demanded by the Lace Makers' Union will not be discharged.

Admit They Broke Agreement.

Toronto, June 19.—The striking plumbers, steam and gas fitters admit that they broke their agreement, but declare they were forced to do so for their own protection. They say that when the agreement was drawn up the employers demanded that they attach their signatures to it. The only course open then was to strike, which the men say would have been a foolish act, as times were hard and they would have little or no show of winning. Had they not been pinched so hard by the firms the men say there would have been no strike to-day.

Squandered a Fortune.

How often we hear the expression, notwithstanding the fact that those who use it are perhaps spending their money foolishly in medicines which only give relief without removing the cause. Merrill's System Tonic cures heart, stomach, kidney, nerve, and liver troubles—because by purifying the blood, regulating the bowels and toning each of these organs the cause of disease is removed. Price 50 cents per bottle at Ormond & Walsh's drug store.

APPEALS FROM RECOUNTS.

Postponements in the East Middlesex and Halton Cases.

Toronto, June 19.—The appeals from the East Middlesex and Halton recounts, which were fixed for hearing at Osgoode Hall yesterday morning, were postponed by arrangement of counsel until Tuesday and Wednesday next respectively. It is, however, understood Mr. Justice Osler will be unable to hear them on those dates, and desires that they be taken on Saturday. The appeal for South Bruce has been fixed for Friday, and that of Lennox for Saturday, both before Mr. Justice Maclennan. Notice of appeal from the recount in Prince Edward has been entered.

Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

THE KING MUST REST.

This Is in View of Strain of the Approaching Coronation.

London, June 19.—It was officially announced yesterday that in view of the strain of the approaching coronation, King Edward's physicians have recommended that His Majesty forego all public engagements for the next few days.

Canada Coronation Contingent.

London, June 19.—The Canadian contingent is now quartered with the Australians and New Zealanders at the left front of Alexandra Palace.

The Duke of Connaught inspected the Canadian coronation contingent yesterday and complimented the corps.

Canada's arch at Whitehall is a highly popular attraction. Thousands inspect it daily.

Colonials For London.

London, June 19.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's arrival is awaited with the keenest interest. Meanwhile, Premier Seddon of New Zealand holds the field, with vigorous appeals for preferential tariffs within the Empire. Liberal journals chaff his ignorance of the doctrines of Adam Smith and Ricardo, but his views are being widely circulated.

Hon. Dr. Borden, when interviewed yesterday, said that Canada will not establish any Imperial Defence Fund over the expenditure of which she has no control. The colonies should be prepared to defend themselves and do so quickly. On that principle, the Canadian Parliament acted in increasing the militia from 38,000 to 100,000 men.

Will Be Decorated on June 26.

Ottawa, June 19.—The leading Dominion public buildings, all over Canada will be appropriately decorated on Coronation Day. The flags and other material for the display were sent out by the Public Works Department yesterday.

U.S. Cruiser Arrives.

Southampton, June 19.—The United States battleship Illinois (flagship of Rear Admiral Arent S. Crowinshields, commanding the European squadron), which is to represent the American navy in the naval review in the Solent in honor of the coronation of King Edward, arrived here yesterday.

A FATHER'S ADVICE.

Young Toronto Lady's Health is Saved by her Parent's Experience and Good Advice—He Knew Because he had Tried and Proven.

How many times have a parent's earnest words spoken in tenderness and backed by the wisdom of years of experience, served to benefit the son or daughter.

Jas. Beatty of Kilworthy, Ont., is well known to many people from Toronto right through to Parry Sound.

Some years ago Mr. Beatty suffered a great deal with acute stomach trouble. He could find scarcely anything as food that did not give him much distress and pain after eating. He was very careful in his diet, but notwithstanding all his care he endured a great deal of pain. He tried many medicines but could not get any relief. Someone suggested Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, but at first Mr. Beatty demurred, saying, "I suppose they are like all the rest."

At last, however, he consented to try them, and he soon found the difference. He was completely cured. He says, "Now, thank goodness, I can eat what I choose, and the doctor is in my pocket through Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"My daughter, Miss Minnie Beatty, was up from Toronto about seven months ago, and I thought she looked very thin, so I induced her to try the medicine that had done so much for me.

"She used three bottles, and from the beginning of the treatment she grew better.

"Six months later she came home again on a short visit and we were all surprised and delighted in the change in her.

"They have made me feel like a different man, and they have done so much for my daughter that I am sure that I cannot express my gratitude.

"I always recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets for Dyspepsia and all Stomach Troubles."

HON. MR. TARTE VISITS THE TOWN.

Astonished and Greatly Delighted With our Industries.

RIVER TO BE DEEPENING.

The Minister saw the Necessity of Undertaking the Work—Visited the Lift Lock.

Hon. Mr. Tarte came, saw, and was conquered, this morning.

The Minister of Public Works arrived on his private car on the 5.10 morning train on the C.P.R., accompanied by Monsieur Julien, Governor of St. Pierre and Miquelon, and Madame Julien. The Belgian Consul also formed one of the party. At about 9 o'clock Mr. Tarte was waited upon by Hon. J. R. Stratton, His Worship Mayor Denne, and Aldermen Corkery, Clinkscale, Roger, Rush and Shortly, with the object of taking the Minister to view the river, and to point out the portion which it is proposed to deepen for navigation purposes, in order to enlist his sympathy and secure his co-operation in having the Government undertake this work, which will be of so much benefit to Peterborough.

The members of the party walked from the C.P.R. bridge along the spur line, to the Cereal Company's premises, where they were met by Mr. Richardson, General Traffic Manager of the Company, and Messrs. Macdonald, Kirn and Dobbins of the local staff. The inspection of the big buildings was a thorough one and Mr. Tarte's astonishment was unbounded when assured by Mr. Richards that it was intended that the capacity of the works would be one hundred thousand bushels a day, or 30,000,000 bushels per year, seventy five cars being needed to handle the grain every day. The Minister expressed himself as being sorry that he had not been made acquainted with the magnitude of the works six months ago, when he would have seen that an appropriation was placed in the estimates to cover the expense of the necessary dredging. There would be no trouble, he was sure, in securing an appropriation for a work which would be of national importance.

The carriages afterwards proceeded to the lift lock, where Messrs. Rogers, Hummel, Francis and Giroux looked after the party. The lock works, Electric Works, and Cordage Works, were then visited, and Mr. Tarte's presence will be of material advantage to each of these companies, as he gave the assurance that orders which heretofore were sent to the United States would find their way to Peterborough as the result of what he was shown.

Mr. Tarte and his guests, together with Mayor Denne, took luncheon at Mr. Stratton's residence, and were afterwards driven out to the Douro picnic.

During the morning Madame Julien was the guest of Mrs. Stratton.

This evening the visitors will dine with the members of the council at the Oriental Hotel.

CADETS INSPECTED

Yesterday Afternoon by Lieut.-Col. E. B. Edwards.

The annual inspection of the Cadet Corps of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, took place yesterday afternoon, commencing at 4 o'clock. The inspecting was done by Lt.-Col. E. B. Edwards, Commanding Officer of the 57th Regt., at the request of Lt.-Col. Montizambert, D.O.C., Kingston.

The Cadet Corps was in command of Capt. Sweeney, and the parade slate showed a total of 25 officers and men. The boys were put through numerous movements of company drill, ceremonial and extended order movements, and manual and firing exercises. The corps is composed of young men of uniform height, tall and well built, and showed evidence of careful training. The rifles and accoutrements were found in a very clean and well kept condition. In the movement of occupying a position for an attack the Cadets showed marked aptitude and readiness, and the movement was smartly and accurately performed.

At the conclusion of the inspection Lt.-Col. Edwards addressed the Cadets on their appearance and the creditable manner in which they went through their inspection. He referred to the fact that the principles of drill were best learned in their youth at school, and if all the young men at school would participate in the drill the youth of our land would be ready at any time to shoulder their muskets in defence of their country.

GRAVES WERE DECORATED

By the Oddfellows of Peterborough.

A VERY PRETTY CEREMONY.

The Procession Down George Street Headed by the Band of the 57th Regiment.

This afternoon the Oddfellows of the two local lodges, accompanied by some visiting brethren, observed their beautiful memorial service, and decorated the graves of their deceased brethren whose remains have been laid to rest beneath the sod of the Little Lake cemetery.

There was a slight departure from the usual custom as the event was not honoured by a public half holiday and business was in no way suspended.

Many hundreds besides the Oddfellows observe this annual decoration day, and as a result the cemetery was bright and beautiful with flowers, all the plots and almost every grave having received some special attention from the loving hands of those who cherished memories of those who have pierced the veil and gone to the great beyond.

The Oddfellows in large numbers assembled in Central Park at three o'clock, and shortly after this hour formed in procession, headed by the 57th Regimental Band, proceeded to the cemetery. The procession with its lines of Oddfellows carrying their floral tributes was an exceedingly pretty spectacle.

Arrived at the cemetery, the opening ceremony was proceeded with. A short invocation was offered, and the brethren united in singing an appropriate hymn. The brethren then divided into sections and proceeded with the decoration of the graves, each floral tribute being deposited with the usual ceremony.

The graves decorated were those of the following;

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possible derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. THE FIREMEN IN ORILLIA.

A Grand Excursion to the Northern Town.

EXCITING LACROSSE MATCH.

T. A. S. Played a Good Game, but Lost to the Home Twelve—Notes on the Trip.

The excursion to Orillia yesterday under the auspices of the Firemen and 57th Regiment Band, attracted seven or eight coaches of townspeople. The double header left the G.T.R. station about 7.40, and arrived in Orillia about 11 o'clock. The Orillia Fire Brigade and Band, together with their gaily decorated fire wagons, welcomed the excursionists at the station, and a procession was formed, which included the Orillia Citizens' Band, Orillia Fire Brigade, St. Peter's T.A.S. Lacrosse Club, the 57th Regiment Band, and the Peterborough Fire Brigade. The parade passed through the principal streets to the fire hall, where the band and firemen were taken in hand by the Orillians.

The day was an ideal one for an excursion, and after dinner the excursionists proceeded to take in the sights, and the pretty northern town.

Of course the centre of attraction was the oval, where St. Peter's T.A.S. Lacrosse Club and the Orillians were to battle for supremacy. This event attracted a large crowd, who witnessed a really excellent exposition of Canada's national game. Mr. Boulton Kane, who was at one time the energetic manager of the Orillians when they turned down the best of them, acted in the capacity of referee, but he had no occasion during the game to exercise his authority. Not a man was ruled off, and his decisions were satisfactory in every particulars. When the Orillias lined up "Bobby" Watson, of hair-dye fame, who knows a pile about the game still, trotted merrily up to his position, as did Barney Quinn, the hero of one hundred contests, and "Mickey" O'Connor, the lightning shot ,and one of the best stick handlers in the province. With such a trio on an already swift aggregation the outlook for the T.A.S. boys was of a decidedly bluish hue. But they were out for pointers and experience, and not victory, and got their money's worth. Orillia, it might be stated, possesses a team that is travelling in intermediate company this season, and the boys have already defeated Bracebridge, the winners of last year's intermediate championship. They play an excellent quality of lacrosse and they expect to make things interesting in the intermediate contest. The score yesterday was 8—6 in favour of Orillia, and a pretty fair idea can be obtained of the game from this tally. There was almost an entire absence of close checking and the goals were scored in one and two minutes time. Geo. Lynch, of the T.A.S. was the only man that met with misfortune. He received several bad cuts over the right optic, but the blow was an accidental one, and, besides, George kept on playing. The last half of the game was a red hot one. Both teams went in to do or die,and when the whistle blew neither team scored. F. McCoy had the honour of scoring five goals, and Eugene McNichol one. Everyone of the T. A. S. team played the game of his life, and the best of good feeling existed on the field. The boys are pleased with the treatment they received at the hands of the Orillia 12, and will certainly reciprocate when Orillia visits Peterborough for the return game in a couple of weeks.

The following was the line up;

St. Peter's T.A.S.		Orillia.

The 57th Regiment Band concert in the evening in Orillia's pretty little opera house, attracted a good audience, who were thoroughly delighted with the programme presented. Every number was encored and received with great enthusiasm, and Messrs. Harry Clark, trombonist, Cronk, euphonium soloist, and Halpany, humourist, were obliged to give several repeat numbers during the evening. The citizens of Orillia were loud in their praises of Mr. Gliddon's crack musical organization.

NOTES.

Alderman Clinkscale accompanied the Fire Brigade to Orillia, and was conspicuous in the parade.

The Orillia firemen treated the local fire-fighters in right royal style during their stay in the northern town.

The 57th Regt. Band made a hit yesterday.

St. Peter's T.A.S. Lacrosse Club were registered at the Daly House. Quite a few of the Orillia team gave them a send-off at the station.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien, of the Cathedral, and Rev. Father O'Sullivan, of Lindsay, accompanied the T.A.S. team to Orillia. They were the guests of Rev. Father Moyna.

The excursion train left Orillia for Peterborough shortly after 11 p.m., and there was an immense crowd at the station to give the excursionists a send-off.

A NEW YACHT.

Mr. Hickey has Built one for a Hastings Gentleman.

The Hastings Star says; "Mr. H. G. Buck's new yacht which has been under construction at this place during the past three months will, it is expected, be launched to-day. Mr. Hickey, of Peterborough, the builder, informs us that it is the best boat for its size on these waters, nothing but the very best material being put in it, and we would judge from the appearance of her that nothing on these waters can compare with her in any way. The boat is 48 feet over all in length, and 9 1-2 feet beam. She is calculated to travel 12 miles an hour. Mr. Buck has spared nothing in having a first class boat, and as a result has got one. The cost is placed at $3,000.

THE PRESBYTERIANS.

The General Assembly Considers Many Matters of Moment.

MOTION APPROVES PROHIBITION.

Individual Communion Cups Again Discussed—Question Left to a Committee For Report—Reports on Church Life and Work—Total Abstinence Urged as a Christian Privilege—To Meet in Vancouver, B.C.

Toronto, June 19.—At the opening of the morning sederunt of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Principal Caven presented the report of the committee appointed to confer with the trustees of Queen's University with reference to the proposed change in constitution. The report, which gave suggestions to the University at great length, was adopted.

After the report of the Century Fund Committee had been adopted, and the committee reappointed, the matter of the place of meeting came up next, the committee appointed to consider the question reporting. It suggested Westminster Church, Toronto. Rev. R. G. MacBeth, Vancouver, renewed his suggestion that Vancouver be the place, arguing strongly that the work in the west would be greatly benefited by the visit. Mr. John Charlton seconded the amendment strongly, and, on a vote being taken, Vancouver was chosen, the figures standing about two to one. The announcement was received with much enthusiasm. The day of meeting will be Tuesday, instead of Wednesday, for the convenience of the commissioners coming from the east.

Discussion was continued by the Presbyterian Assembly yesterday afternoon on the resolution introduced protesting against the adoption of the individual communion cup in the Church. Arguments were adduced pro and con on the question, and it was finally decided to leave the whole matter with a committee to be reported upon.

Rev. William Frizzel then moved, "That the Assembly records satisfaction with the sentiments, so generally expressed in the presbyterial returns in favor of prohibition and would urge members and adherents throughout the bounds of the church to embrace the opportunity afforded in connection with the forthcoming referendum to aid so far as possible the curtailment of the liquor traffic. After some discussion, Rev. Mr. Frizzell struck out that part of his motion after the word "prohibition" and with this elimination the motion was carried by a good majority.

Rev. D. R. Drummond, convener, presented the report of Sabbath Observance and Legislation. The report was adopted.

At the opening of the evening sederunt, which was attended by a large number of ladies, Rev. W. J. Clark of London, presented the report of the Committee on Church Life and Work. Among the recommendations embodied in the report was one "that total abstinence be urged upon our people as a Christian privilege."

To this recommendation an amendment was offered to insert the words "and duty" after the word "privilege."

The amendemnt was opposed in strong terms by the Rev. Mr, Clark, who stigmatized the insertion of the word duty was an aspersion on the assembly and on the name of Christ. It was well known that Christ was called a wine-bibber, and He never denied it. There was nothing in His teachings to warrant any body to lay upon its people an injunction that did not commend itself to the Christian conscience.

A delegate at the rear arose and said it was an unbecoming thing for any minister to stand up and make any such a comparison, as that just made, in view of the difference between the wine of the time of Christ and the liquors of to-day.

Rev. Mr. Clark explained that his contention was that if they advocated total abstinence, it would shut them out from partaking of even the wine that Christ took,

Cries of "No, no!" and "Yes!"

"Well," remarked the moderator, "I am going to settle that question just now." (Laughter.)

The amendment was then voted upon and defeated by 71 to 54.

A Family Necessity.

"Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. Heads of families would not think of being without them. One pill a dose, 25 cts. a box.

NO BRITISH TARIFF.

Definite Declaration by the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

NO HOPE FOR A PREFERENCE.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach Says Great Britain Will Not Endeavor to Encourage Trade With the Colonies by Initiating a Tariff War With Other Countries—The Maize Duty Cut in Two.

London, June 19.—In the House of Commons yesterday, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, replying to John Redmond, the Irish leader, announced that the tax on maize would be reduced by one-half.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer explained that the cutting of the duty on maize involved a loss of £300,000 ($1,500,000), in revenue. The effect of the duty on Ireland, however, and other considerations, justified the acceptance of the amendment, moved from the Irish benches. The duty on maize is now 1½ (3 cts.) per hundred weight.

When the House of Commons took up the consideration of the Finance Bill yesterday afternoon, John Morley (Liberal) precipitated a long debate by moving to omit the clause imposing a duty on grain.

Sir Charles Dilke (Advanced Radical) and others of the Opposition, demanded a specific statement from the Chancellor of the Exchequer in regard to the Government's attitude at the coming conference of the colonial Premiers. It was obvious, it was asserted, that the conference would discuss the whole fiscal policy of the country, and by committing itself the Government ought to give the public an opportunity for full discussion of the matter.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer emphatically repudiated the suggestion that the Government was contemplating a revolution in its financial policy, and said, in behalf of himself and his colleagues, that he wholly disagreed with such an idea. It was not the policy of the Government to endeavor to encourage trade with the colonies by initiating tariff war with other countries.

The motion to omit the clause imposing duty on grain was defeated by 251 to 178 votes.

How Canada Profits.

London, June 19.—A question submitted to the Chancellor of the Exchequer yesterday brought a response which threw some light on the coinage of gold and silver for the colonies. The Chancellor was asked why the British Government appropriates the entire profit of the coinage of silver for Australia, while Canada receives the coinage profit itself. The reply was that the Exchequer receives all the profit on silver coinage for sterling-using colonies like Australia and bears the loss on gold coined there. Canada is not a sterling-using colony, having her own local tokens, and therefore takes all the profits.

Women Not Admitted.

Women are still excluded from the baptistry of the Church of St. John Lateran, on the excellent ground that St. John the Baptist owed his death to the caprice of one of their sex.

Ancient Fashions.

During the reign of Henry III. of France the doublets of men and bodices of the women were so extravagant that a contemporary declared the former looked like bees and the latter like wasps.

MORE HOME TESTIMONY.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is easy to make great claims for a medicine, but we prefer to submit to your judgment the statements of your friends and neighbours here in Peterborough. Look into these cases and prove for yourself the exceptional virtue of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. R. Wareham, 267 Sherbrooke Street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—

"One of my children has suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, and, in fact, was all run down, pale and languid. These troubles we attributed to over-study and confinement at school. She began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I can say that we have found this treatment exceedingly helpful. It has relieved her of headache, steadied her nerves and built up her system wonderfully. We can see a great change in her, as the colour is returning to her face, and she is gaining in flesh and weight."

Mrs. F. Turner, 286 Aylmer Street, Peterborough, Ont. and Whose Husband is Employed at the Hamilton Foundry, states:—

"For some months past I found myself growing very nervous and gradually becoming a victim of sleeplessness and subject to frequent attacks of nervous headaches. About six weeks ago I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and cannot speak too highly of this medicine. I can sleep well now, the headaches have entirely disappeared, and I believe that my system generally has been very much improved by the use of this treatment."

GIFFEN TO DENISON.

Criticises Toronto Man's Preferential Trade Propositions.

London, June 18.—Sir Robert Giffen, a prominent statistician and financial writer and a prominent authority on subjects of trade and commerce, writes to The Times yesterday claiming that Col. George T. Denison's proposed preference tax of five to ten per cent. would at a ten per cent. basis make Britain pay forty-one million pounds taxation in addition to eleven million pounds in increased price for colonial goods, whereas the colonies would only pay three and a half million pounds, and get the enhanced price of the eleven million pounds for their goods. Sir Robert adds that preferential arrangements of this kind, while popular in the colonies, would bring disaster to the trade of Great Britain.

Ten New Townships Opened.

Toronto, June 18. — The Government have opened 10 new townships in the Temiskaming District in addition to the 25 recently opened up at the head of the lake. This is owing to the big demand for property by intending settlers.

According to advices received at the Crown Lands Department, a serious forest fire is raging in the district adjacent to Woman's River, Algoma.

New Ottawa Commissioners.

Ottawa, June 18.—At a meeting of the Cabinet yesterday the four additional commissioners for the Ottawa Improvement Commission were appointed. The new commissioners are: Hon. Sir William Hingston, Senator, of Montreal; Hon. J. P. B. Casgrain, Senator, Montreal; Mr. Frank T. Frost, Smith's Falls, Ont.; and Mr. George O'Keefe, Police Magistrate, Ottawa.

CANADA AT THE HEAD.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier High Position At the Coronation.

FIRST IN 2ND DAY'S PROCESSION

The Canadian and Indian Contingents For the Coronation Processions Already Number Nearly 2,000 Horse and Foot—The King Improving—Progress Toward Complete Convalescence Maintained.

London, June 18. — The colonial and Indian contingents for the coronation processions now in London already number nearly 2,000 foot and horse. The Canadian force was brought to London from the Parisian in excellent form, and Lieut.-Col. J. Lyons Biggar, as chief staff officer, has made excellent arrangements for entertaining the troops at Alexandra Palace. This Canadian officer will have the same duties as Sir Edward Ward at the Jubilee in directing the arrangements for the colonial forces, about 1,000 of whom will be mounted in the second day's coronation procession. Lord Minto has returned to England from Canada in excellent health.

Sir Wilfrid Leads the Procession.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Barton, with their wives, will be in the first carriage in the second day's procession, and will be escorted by Canadian and Australian guards of honor. Mr. Whitlaw Reid, United States Special Ambassador, will be in a carriage with Admiral Gervais and the Turkish and Netherlands' special Ambassadors. The official details of both street pageants, as published, confirm the previous forecasts. The coronation procession will be shorter and the succeeding day's parade longer and more elaborate than had been anticipated.

The King Improving.

The King was well enough to go out for a drive in Windsor Castle grounds yesterday afternoon, and there is every reason to hope that his restoration will be so complete as to permit him to go to Ascot tomorrow. Though no official bulletin was issued last evening, it was stated that his progress towards complete convalescence was well maintained.

Story Not Confirmed.

London, June 18. — A sensational story was current in London last night of the discovery of a plot to assassinate King Edward. It has created considerable discussion in newspaper and other circles, but is lacking in anything like official confirmation.

King Edward's Oak.

London, June 18.—The suggestion is made that every town in Canada plant an oak tree on Coronation day, the tree to be called King Edward's oak.

The contingent arrived in London yesterday at 3 p.m., and proceeded to Alexandra Palace, arriving there at 3.30 p.m. The men are quartered in nine large marquees with board floorings, sixty men in each. Everybody is well.

HURONIAN TURNED TURTLE.

Message in a Bottle, Received Near Halifax, Tells the Tale.

Montreal, June 18.—What may be a message from the ill-fated Allan Line steamer Huronian has been received in this city from Owlshead, 45 miles from Halifax on the Atlantic coast. The words are written on a scrap of soiled and browned paper, and were evidently written under difficulties. They are as follows: "The S.S. Huronian turned over in the Atlantic Sunday night. In small boat, 14 of us."

The message is said to have been picked up on June 2, and was enclosed in a bottle, and forwarded to a local newspaper.

BARCLAY TO SUCCEED GRANT.

It Is Believed in Montreal That He Will Go to Queen's.

Montreal, June 18.—"I have not considered the offer, which is not yet officially made. I am going to England to-morrow, and am sorry the matter got out before I had gone," was the statement made yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Barclay of St. Paul's Church when asked if he would accept the principalship of Queen's. It is believed, however, that the doctor will accept.

Narrowly Escaped Defeat.

London, June 18.—In the House of Commons yesterday the Government narrowly escaped defeat in the course of the discussion of the license bill.

Henry Broadhurst (advanced Liberal) proposed a new clause to the bill. The Government opposed the clause, but several Unionist members supported it, with the result that it was rejected by a vote of 173 to 154, the Government majority falling to 19.

Howland Goes For Trial.

Toronto, June 18. — Magistrate Kingsford yesterday afternoon committed Conductor George Howland, 37 Fuller street, for trial, on a charge of theft from the Toronto Railway Company. His bail was renewed.

Scores of Uses.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is best known on account of its wonderful control over eczema, salt rheum and piles, it is found to be in almost daily daily demand in many homes as a cure for chilblains, chafing, pimples, sunburn, burns, scalds and each and every form of itching, irritated or inflamed skin. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application knows no equal.

Color and Disease.

Every one would agree that color has an extraordinary effect on one's spirits, and scarlet or reds of any kind are distinctly exhilarating. But what is the power of color over disease? The idea that the power exists is not a new one—indeed nobody knows how old it is—but when Edward II. (then Prince Edward) was smitten with smallpox his doctor (Gaddesden) treated him in a way that would baffle even the Christian Scientists.

To quote his own words, from a note of Miss Strickland's in her Marguerite of France memoir, "I ordered the prince to be enveloped in scarlet cloth and that his bed and all the furniture of his chamber should be of bright red color, which practice not alone cured him, but prevented his being marked." The old chronicle goes on to say that he "treated the sons of the noblest houses in England on the red system and made good cures in all."

"In this childish state," Miss Strickland quaintly remarks, "was the noble art of healing at the court of Marguerite." What would her comments be if she lived in this twentieth century?

Coronation Blunders.

There were all sorts of blunders made at Queen Victoria's coronation, and the queen never knew what she was to do next. They made her leave her chair and enter St. Edward's chapel before the prayer was concluded, much to the discomfiture of the archbishop.

The ruby coronation ring, according to the rubric, should go on the fourth finger. In this case the ring had been made for the little finger, which the queen accordingly held out when the proper time came. The archbishop refused to put it on that finger and said it must go on the fourth. The queen remonstrated, declaring that she could not get it on, but the archbishop insisted that it had to go. Accordingly the other rings were taken off, and the new one was forced on with such pain that as soon as the ceremony was over the queen had to bathe her finger in ice water to get it off.

Three Planets.

The diameter of Jupiter, according to Professor T. J. J. See's determination, is 88,208 miles, that of Mars 4,155 miles and that of Mercury 2,657 miles.

Beefsteak.

COATS AND BLOUSES.

The Spring Jackets Are of the Abbreviated Type.

The spring coats are mostly of the abbreviated type, if we except the cutaway model with long basque reaching half way to the front. Parisians term this "the swallow," but the title is misleading, as the basque is far too wide to deserve the name. For weddings and afternoon affairs the Louis XV. and Louis XVI. coats are quite the thing and are extremely elaborate whether of silk or cloth.

Many of the short sack coats and boleros show the Du Barry hood, and this also appears on the long evening wrap. It is not always purely ornamental, but can be worn over the head. The French models intended for wear have some additional trimming over the shoulders, as the effect is otherwise utterly spoiled when the hood is in wear.

The newest models in coats and blouses all tend to give width to the shoulders. With the straight front corset and the enlarged hips, narrow shoulders are impossible, and now the great aim is to widen them with wide collars and large revers. Most of the spring coats have wide or bell sleeves to accommodate the fancy sleeve of the bodice or blouse.

A rather elaborate evening dress is shown in the illustration. It is made of black chantilly lace and pink silk. The floral garniture is of roses and the rosettes and ends are of black velvet ribbon. JUDIC CHOLLET.

is the usual dyspeptic bill of fare. There are no sausages, no banquets, no little suppers, and no fun. Take Merrill's System Tonic and get a healthy stomach, lots of vigour, and then eat mince pies and cabbage with th erest of us. System Tonic is par excellence the most perfecr tonic cathartic known. 50 pleasant-to-take doses 50 cents. Sold by Ormond and Walsh.

The Suitor.

Once upon a time a young man fell desperately in love with a girl who consumed many sweets as also many after theater suppers at his expense. He gave her numerous presents and spent a large proportion of his salary for her pleasure.

Finally they were married, and trouble began, for the man could not spend as much on his wife as he had on his fiancee. Then she treated him cruelly and in an unwifely manner, and he brought suit for a divorce from her. The court granted his petition, but decreed that he should pay costs and alimony.

Moral.—He who goes to court must pay the costs.

The Day of Miracles not Past.

A Toronto Star reporter investigated the case of Mr. George Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhozone.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be cured. Catarrhozone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from impaired hearing, deafness, head noises and ringing in the ears, are advised to inhale Catarrhozone, and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. Inherent Dread of Cats For Dogs.

The instinctive fear which cats have of dogs is illustrated very amusingly by stroking a dog and then caressing a blind and newborn kitten with the same hand that has touched the dog. At once the kitten will spit and fluff itself up in the most absurd way, distinguishing the smell of the beast which experience for thousands of generations has taught it most to dread.

The Leading Specialists of America. 28 Years in Detroit. Bank Security.

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never excuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant he may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only escape from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects.

The DRAINS, either by nightly losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped—the NERVES must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active; the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. The various organs become natural and manly. We invite all the afflicted to call and consult us confidentially and free of charge. Cures Guaranteed or no Pay. We treat and cure: Varicocele, Blood Diseases, Stricture, Gleet, Emissions, Urinary Drains, Spermatorrhoea, Unnatural Discharges, Kidney and Bladder Diseases.

moderalse their road by an expenditure of 20 million upon the property. It will place it in a position to handle the business offering at a cost equalling that of the Penns. and N. Y. C. roads. The day is not so far distant when Erie will be able to make returns over its common shares. It is a good stock to buy and cling to. The Gould party are outspokenly bullish upon the market. All signs point that way. Geo. Gould is quoted as anticipating a fine bull market this summer and fall. We are strongly of the opinion that this is the proper course to pursue, and consequently urge our clientele and friends to do so. Decided stimulus was given the day's market by the agressive rise in Ill. Cen. We have been specially bullish upon these shares, and positively urge their purchase. Bear in mind this company was paying its present rate of dividend when Atch. was in the hands of a receiver. What ought it to be able to pay now? The stock rose over seven points for the day. M. O. P. advanced nearly two points, St. Paul gained a point, as did Pa. N. Y. C. gained a point and a half. Readings were strong. The common touched 68. The market was far more active, and issues were more heavily dealt in at closing prices. The steels and ice were heavy spots in the market. Stocks are going higher. Money closed at two and three-quarters per cent. Total sales, were 733,600.—Haight & Freese Co.

Belleville's Old Maids.

The Belleville and Kingston papers are "scrapping" over the matter of old maids in their respective towns. Here is what they say;

"There will be no less than four young ladies out of one church in this city married within the next week. You never see items of this kind in the Kingston papers. The ladies of that ancient burg still sing the old ditty—

Why don't the men propose, mamma?
Why don't the men propose?

STOCK MARKETS.

New York, June 17.—Look where you may outside of the coal strike situation, every tangible and visable factor points in the direction of a higher market. J. W. Gates, on his way to Chicago, in a conversation gave out a most optimistic opinion for the future. He called attention to the new line of rich financiers from Chicago their wondrous wealth, and their entrance into the financial world as a powerful factor. A few years time, he said, would see the railway shares in America the most valuable securities in the world. Outside of New York, he said opinions were most bright. New York had yet to learn that it did not govern the markets exclusively. A settlement of the strike through a victory of the coal companies will, no matter how costly, be an ultrabullish card, as it will settle for a long time to come the differences between workman and employer. It will also deter strike troubles in other branches of industry. The strike has clearly demonstrated the fact that the companies are right; the suggestion of Mitchell to advance the price of coal to pay 20 per cent. increase in wages was not favourably received. The fact coming to the surface that the men themselves turned down the sliding scale at fixed rates per ton some time ago and now ask for it again, despite the fact that at different points of coal production the men on this basis could not earn evenly, is also calculated to militate against them. The past week has witnessed material and excellence advancement in condition of the growing corn and wheat crops. Conditions, apparently, are ideal. The sluggish market now will relieve the tugging at the purse strings over July 1st for interest and dividend disbursements. Money will consequently probably not get the sharp twist it did one year ago at that period, causing quite a recession in values at that time. All things seem to be working for the best, trade activity keeps up its pace and tonnage offerings to the railways is immense and shows every indication of remaining so. An insatiable and voracious demand for bond issues is in evidence, showing the desire of capital to seek investment. We believe there is every reason for bullishness and those who will purchase stocks will reap handsome profits during the summer months.

A Good Speculative or Investment Purchase.

New York, June 18th, 1902.—Early last week we called your attention to the fact that M. O. P. was getting ready for an immediate rise, and advised purchasing. The rise in the share followed immediately, and it is not yet finished. To-day we call your attention to the shares of another company, which is a Gould stock and an A1 ally of M. O. P. They are a great purchase at current prices, so we advise investing. They will very shortly sell very much higher. We allude to the K. T. shares, both preferred and common. There is about $13,000,000.00 preferred, which is entitled to four per cent. and $56,000,000 which is common stock and entitled to about five per cent., after the preferred has received its four per cent. In April the gross earnings increased $106,000, while the net improved $63,000. The earnings of the road increased between July last and April 30th, 1901,183. After interest and rentals were paid, the company had a surplus amounting to $1,025,462. These facts show the company to be earning something upon the common stock, in addition to the full four per cent. upon the preferred. It will consequently very shortly commence dividend paying upon the preferred. This stock is ludicrously cheap, and when dividends are commenced should sell near 90 as an investment. The common ought to sell in the fifties and will do so in the course of time. The Gould and Rockefellers control both classes of the stock. Indications are plentiful that the upward movement will shortly commence in these issues. They will follow M. O. P. The Erie people have about decided to

DOURO'S GREAT ANNUAL PICNIC.

Another Great Success in Every Particular.

THE DISTINGUISHED VISITORS

Hon. Mr. Tarte, Minister of Public Works, Speaks — Addresses by Hon. J. R. Stratton, Hon. Senator McHugh and Others—Very Large Attendance and all Round Success.

Rev. Father Keilty, the popular parish priest of St. Joseph's, Douro, evidently got on the right side of the clerk of the weather yesterday. The elements were on their best behaviour and a finer day could not have dawned for his annual pic-nic, held in the beautiful grove near the beautiful stone church of St. Joseph's. As a consequence, there was an immense attendance of the people of the rolling oasis of Douro, and the surrounding townships, Otonabee and Douro and Peterborough and Ashburnham were very liberally represented in the attendance. The attraction, apart from the beautiful day and the enjoyment, was no doubt the presence of distinguished visitors, including Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Dominion Minister of Public Works; Hon. Mons. Julien, Governor of the little French fishing Colony of St. Pierre and Miquelon, down on the gulf, and Mons. Dubois, the French Consul and party; Senator McHugh and Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary. The clergy was represented by Rev. Father D. O'Connell, St. Joseph's Hospital; Rev. Father Keilty, parish priest; Rev. Father McGuire, Hastings; Rev. Father McColl, of the Cathedral; Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, Ennismore.

The amusements for the people were in part represented by a spacious dancing platform, which was kept in active requisition and the bountifully laid tables were burdened with a varied abundance of edibles which testified at once to the fertility of Douro's undulating acres, the generosity of the people and the culinary skill of the ladies of Douro.

THE INTELLECTUAL TREAT.

The pic-nic was distinguished for the brilliant speech making that marked it. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick was appointed chairman and without any preliminary he introduced as the first speaker,

HON. MR. STRATTON.

Mr. Stratton was very cordially received and assured his audience of the pleasure it gave him to be present. He was glad to see so large a number present to assist in promoting the good cause the picnic was intended to advance. He congratulated Rev. Father Keilty, who had always been successful in attracting to his picnics some of the most prominent men of the country, among them one of the foremost statesmen of the Dominion, in the person of Hon. Mr. Tarte, who was always to the front in advancing a good cause, whether it pertained to church or state. (Applause.) Mr. Stratton said he was not able to visit Douro as often as he would wish—his duties kept him largely to the west of the Otonabee. But we were all citizens of one grand country and he felt he would be falling short of his duty as a Minister if he did not thank the people of Douro for the splendid support they had given Mr. Anderson, who, he was sure, would give as satisfactory services in the Legislature as he had rendered in the township and county councils. (Applause.) Mr. Stratton said he had travelled a great deal throughout the province and he had failed to find a better or more thriving town than Peterborough or a finer county than Peterborough. (Applause.) Referring to Douro he remarked that it might not be generally known what was the origin of the name. Sir Peregrine Maitland, a former Governor of Canada, who had served under the Duke of Wellington, named the township, Douro, in compliment to the Iron Duke, one of the greatest Irishmen of history, who in the Peninsular War, had won a great victory at the Douro river in Portugal. The Iron Duke was great in war, and his namesake, Douro, was great in peace. The people had conquered the wilderness, and converted it into fruitful farms, one of the best townships in the province. The present was an occasion, when owing to so many politicians being present Father Keilty might kill the "fatted calf" for the return of the prodigals, for no doubt the reverend gentleman had a "fatted calf" somewhere. He was a noted stock raiser. It is said that by the help of the farmers of Douro there are hundred of cattle built into the walls of St. Joseph's church. This was the growing time of the year and the growing time of Canada, and the people of Douro were present in multitudes to help on a cause, that of religion, which was the basis of all true national progress. We had a great country, where all classes and creeds should unite to increase its greatness. While, as representing various nationalities, we could respect the land of our birth and at the same time present a solid front to the world as Canadians, (applause) and, while we were loyal to, and interested in, all parts of the Empire, we should show the world that we were doing business for Canada. Mr. Stratton went on to speak of the great extent of the country and its resources, which gave great opportunities for development. He referred to Ontario as the best province of the Dominion, and in every respect Ontario set a good example to Quebec, though that province had beaten Ontario in its support of the Laurier Government. He did not intend to make a speech, he only wanted to thank Father Keilty, and the good people of Douro for the pleasure of being present that day. They had not come to hear him, but to hear one of the biggest men in public life today — Mr. Tarte. (Applause.) He was the right man in the right place. He was also one of the best abused men in Canada, and if we believed all that was said of him we should expect to see him wearing horns. But he was broad in his ideas, and energetic in their application. Mr. Tarte set an example to his colleagues by travelling about the country to inform himself by personal observation of its needs, instead of listening to second hand information from subordinates. While he came to Peterborough to attend the picnic, he had his eyes open to anything that bore upon his departmental duties. He was indeed the right man in the right place. (Applause.) After a tribute to the ladies and their good influence, and an expression of hope that the financial results of the picnic would equal its features of enjoyment, Mr. Stratton concluded amidst much applause.

HON. MR. TARTE.

When Mr. Tarte arose to address the gathering he was received with loud cheers. He began by saying that while he didn't mind abuse, he disliked compliments. He was a plain man, a son of a farmer, who died when he was three years old; as his mother had not abundant means, he had reason to know what the struggles of farm life were like, and he could understand the position of the farmers he was addressing. He was not there as Minister of Public Works, but as a plain citizen of Canada, and he had brought with him two of his distinguished compatriots to see how we peoples of differing races lived in harmony and prosperity on British lines. (Applause). They were composed of peoples of English, Irish, Scotch and French origin, but they were all Canadians engaged in building up a nation. He had read recently, Mr. Tarte said, a report of a religious meeting in Toronto, where the speakers urged the need of French evangelization, but the evangelization we needed is national evangelization. We must have this to build up a nation as great as Canada could be made. He had been referred to by Mr. Stratton as the "prodigal," for whose return the fatted calf should be killed, but if this were done some of his Liberal friends would eat as much of it as himself. (Laughter.) He had followed Sir John Macdonald, a great man, but prominent French leaders had thought Sir Wilfred Laurier was not a bad man, and we had made an arrangement, which was working out well. In Quebec the French people were in a large majority, and they gave the English, Irish and Scotch fair play. Did they always do the same in Ontario? Ontario had been quoted as an example to Quebec. He would ask Ontario not to forget another example, how fast the people of Quebec multiplied. Mr. Tarte said he had tried to do his duty as well as he could, and his first duty was to his native country, Canada. He paid an eloquent tribute to its greatness — its unequalled resources, its splendid population, and its free institutions—we governed ourselves, we could vote as we liked. He could not understand the changeable public opinion of Ontario. He had been a newspaper man since 1872, and had tried to understand Ontario, but had failed. It was, however, a great, a fine, an educated, wealthy province. Referring to the recent elections, Mr. Tarte said that they had a strong Government and—a mighty strong Opposition, too. (Laughter.) In Ottawa they had a strong Government, too. He did a great deal of travelling, and Mr. Foster had criticised him for travelling in a private car. But he told Mr. Foster that his private car was his office, on which he did a great deal of work. He had thought that after 25 years of public life that he knew the country, but he had no idea of it till he had travelled through it. Canada was a country of vast resources. We were spending money necessarily, for this was a young country. He had come here to say that Quebec heartily sympathises with Ontario. He rejoiced that the good King Edward would be crowned in peace. (Applause.) After a regrettable war peace was assured, and we will see that the Boers will be as happy under British rule as we are in this free and well-governed Canada. (Applause.) He had assured some Boer leaders that he had met in Paris, and he had told them that they would yet be loyal Britishers, because under British rule they would enjoy liberty and freedom such as we enjoyed in Canada, where we lived in peace and harmony under the one flag. Some person in Ontario say Quebec is disloyal. This was not true. We are in this country to stay. We all belong to the same Canadian family—worship the same God, who will not ask us to what church he belong, but if we love each other as Christians. (Loud applause.)

SENATOR McHUGH.

heartily endorsed the sentiments of Mr. Tarte, which was a stirring appeal to harmony. If there were a larger and more frequent intercourse among the different sections of our people, animosities would disappear. We were a mixed people, combining the best elements of the Saxon and Celtic races. We were a people of nation builders, and we should not see any section of Canadians stampeded by cries of any kind. We had two great parties, loyal to the country, and to the Government, and with united action we should build up here the greatest nation in the British Empire. (Applause.)

MR. J. H. McCLELLAN

after offering his congratulations, paid an eloquent tribute to the energy and public spirit of Mr. Tarte, who had done more, and was aiming to do more, to improve our transportation facilities, than any minister of the country had done. It had sometimes charged that too much money was being spent in the eastern part of the Dominion, but it was spent on transportation, and in the interest of the West, by furnishing needed facilities to get products to the markets of the world.

REV. FATHER McGUIRE,

In the course of a pleasant little speech referred to the remarks of Hon. Mr. Tarte in reference to the conditions that peace would bring to South Africa, and he regretted that it had not come about that Ireland's claim to the self-government such as we were blessed with in Canada had not received recognition. After all these years that country should have as much liberty as South Africa.

MONS. JULIEN,

Governor of St. Pierre and Miquelon, was called upon for a speech amidst very hearty applause. Speaking in French he said that he was happy to see such a happy gathering. He had read a good deal about the prosperity and happiness of the people here, and after travelling through the country he had found that what he had read was true. He thanked them for the hearty reception given him which made him feel at home.

This concluded the speaking programme and an epidemic of cheers broke out. There were three cheers, and hearty ones too, given for each, the King, for Madam Julien, wife of the governor, for Mr. Tarte, for Mr. Stratton, for Quebec, and Mr. Tarte proposed thre cheers for Father Keilty, for the ladies and for Father Fitzpatrick the chairman. Before the gathering separated Rev. Father Keilty made a brief speech of acknowledgment, thanking the public for their attendance and the speakers for their services. He was proud to have Mr. Tarte present—he was above all national distinctions, he was a true cosmopolitan. Sir Wilfred Laurier might have been present, too, but he happened to be on the ocean, and Sir Richard Cartwright, the acting-Premier, would have been present, had not his devotion to duty prevented. After an eloquent eulogy of the doughty knight, Father Keilty said he was also glad to have Mr. Stratton present—"he is ours, we are proud of him; he leads them all and don't you forget it." (Applause.) Speaking of Canada's relations to the Empire, Father Keilty said: "we are in it," and he made a plea for giving Ireland the same privileges and freedom we enjoyed in Canada, and the outlook was more hopeful now. The present King was broad and liberal and had, no doubt, got this from his great and good mother, the departed Queen, who was a good friend of Ireland. As one of the Fathers of Confederation, Sir George Cartier was far-seeing. With Ireland before his eyes, Cartier was determined that there should never be an Ireland in Canada—that the union would have to be federal, not legislative.

The speaking over everybody, in relays, made for the dinner tables where a bountiful repast was enjoyed.

During the progress of the picnic an exhibition game of lacrosse was played between two teams — the Y. M. C. A. II., and the Athletics II. The game was rather of an agricultural character, having been played in a pasture — and Douro's fat soil grows long grass. Fine work by either team was difficult, as much skill being sometimes required to find the ball in the deep grass as to make a neat pass. The Y.M.C.A. team won by a score of 2 to 1.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Chancellor Boyd, has as arbitrator, settled the wages dispute between the C. P. R. Company and its trackmen, and settled it to the satisfaction of both parties concerned. Score one for the chancellor and for the principle of arbitration.

Sir Wilfred Laurier's discharge of his great public duties must be of a high order when his political enemies in order to discredit him resort to lying, and lying of a very petty kind. His loyalty is impugned by certain Conservative journals because as these journals falsely assert, he went to the Coronation by an American ship. Falsely assert, because as a matter of fact, Sir Wilfred, though he sailed from New York, sailed in a British ship of the Cunard Line, flying the British flag.

"There have been few finer instances of heroism in the whole course of the campaign." This is the way, remarks the Montreal Star, in which Lord Kitchener's official despatches refer to the action of a handful of Canadians in an isolated position. This, too, in despatches describing the disaster which was brought about by the behaviour of the bulk of the mounted troops under command of Methuen, "who offered a feeble and inefficient resistance and then left the infantry and guns to struggle against superior numbers." Looking back over the three years' conflict, we have been fortunate indeed in the men we sent to the front. Honour has come to them and to Canada, but not a single one of the instances of humiliating surrender, or failure to fight where there was fighting to be done, was recorded against our boys.

The Stratford Beacon says;

"The much abused secular press has filled its columns for a fortnight with reports of the various church courts such as no religious paper would think of giving. The publicity given the discussion was of great value to the different denominations, yet when the newspaper is again under discussion, we doubt if the services it has dered will be kept in mind by the clergymen who are so fond of inveighing against it."

The London News adds:

The clergyman who considered it a religious duty to take a shy at the secular press at stated intervals is fast disappearing. The average ministar appreciates the services of the secular press almost as fully as the average editor does, and sometimes more clearly. Old habits die hard, and the newspaper press still comes in for an occasional rap from the pulpit; but the attitude of the pulpit generally is very fair and very favourable. Besides it must be admitted that some newspapers need a rap occasionally.

And the Examiner wishes to remark:

The occupant of the pulpit, who turns aside from his duty to berate the newspapers, smelling one of the most potent of practical modern aids to moral work. There are ministers —not of the Gospel, but sensationmongers — who, failing to command attention by simple and forceful presentation of Gospel truth, desire to get talked about, and make some sensational onslaught on something, and very often it happens to be the newspapers. There are also newspapers which sometimes throw in their influence against moral movements, but they are few; almost as few as the sensational ministers who attack the press as a body over the short-comings of some journalistic free-lance.

BOERS AS BRITISH SUBJECTS.

Over a thousand Boers and Cape Colony rebels have surrendered and given up arms since peace was declared in South Africa, and it is said that some two thousand have not yet come in. The conduct of the burghers who have surrendered up to date seems to indicate a willingness to the inevitable that was scarcely expected. Instead of being silent and taciturn over defeat, they admit it cheerfully and are apparently sincere in their expressions of loyalty.

A significant feature is the wholesome contempt of the burghers for the French and German officers who fought with them, and their anger against these officers for advising them to continue fighting in the hope of European intervention. Some even go so far as express willingness to fight with Great Britain against either France or Germany.

It certainly looks as though firm and kindly treatment now is all that is needed to make the South African burghers good British subjects.

PHILIPPINES COERCION.

The President has sent a letter to the American Unitarian Association in reply to a protest against the policy of coercion in the Philippines. He says in part: "There is now almost no policy of coercion in the islands, because the insurrection has been so entirely overcome that, save in a few places, peace, and with peace the 'policy of conciliation and good will,' obtains throughout the Philippines. There has never been any coercion save such as was absolutely inevitable in putting a stop to an armed attack upon the sovereignty of the United States, which in its last phases became mere brigandage."

In contrast with this is a dispatch recently given out by the War Department relating that the American Chamber of Commerce in Manila had passed resolutions asking for the suspension of the wholesale condemnation and trial of the army officers of the islands. It is claimed that the effect has been:

First—To demoralize and take the heart out of the army on the eve of victory and when serious trouble is threatened with the Malay Moros in Mindanao.

Second—To threaten the business interests in the islands, and if persisted in will permanently injure, if not destroy those interests which urgently demand the protection of the army.

Third—It will cause the rehabilitation of the insurrection, which can only be kept in hand by an alert, vigilant and well supported army. And, finally, will result in the abandonment of the American cause in the islands.

The sovereignty of the United States was established by coercion and has been maintained by coercion ever since. It appears to be the opinion of the Americans composing the Chamber of Commerce in Manila that the continuance of American sovereignty depends on coercion applied by the most tyrannical and barbarous methods, of which the water cure is an example. The President has manifestly been much deceived as to the extent of water-cure practices, and it i feared he is deceiving himself as to the effects of the American policy and its future prospects. — Buffalo Express.

A QUEER LAW.

In England there is, it appears, in a certain instance, "one law for the rich and another for the poor," and it is all on the side of the poor. This fact was brought into some prominence a few days ago in a case in which a lady appeared before a London Police Court to ask for redress or advice. She stated that she had taken a house on a year agreement and, on taking possession theorof, found it so swarming with vermin that it was practically uninhabitable. The magistrate confessed that it was a "shocking state of affairs" and inquired the rent, which turned out to be £45 per annum. "Then," said the magistrate, "you have no redress in a court of law. A landlord is not held responsible for the condition of a house let unfurnished when the rent exceeds £20.' This seems a strange condition of affairs but then the ways of the law which, as Mr. Sam Weller remarked, "is a Hass,"— at least sometimes—are mysterious and past finding out. But, as stated, the law as it exists in this connection is decidedly "class legislation" and on the side of the "poor man." The cottager who enters as tenant upon premises which he finds to be uninhabitable from any cause may quit without notice, and is liable for no rent; the well-to-do person who finds himself similarly situated has no remedy but to give notice in the ordinary course, or to quit and pay rent till the tenancy can be determined by notice or otherwise. The hardship of the law is undoubted, and on grounds of public policy its iniquity and mischievousness are no less patent. The law should be amended, as it is clearly an encouragement to bad landlords, and, strange though it may appear, that "fool class" is not so rare as it would naturally be thought. The good landlord may be known by his willingness to meet his tenant half way in little matters and do him justice. The result is that he rarely has to put up "to let" notices and the compliments he receives from his tenants makes others anxious to get "upon the list." The exposure in the case under notice has caused a rush to the papers and letters of protest are numerous. The result will be no doubt, a change, and the wealthier to put on the same footing as the poorer classes.

STOCK MARKETS.

The Market Awakening.

New York, June 19th, 9162.—We have persistently and for some time past, urged our readers to purchase stocks immediately, pointing out the bull probabilities most accurately for L.N., S.R., M.O.P., Ills. Cen., U.P., the Gould shares and Reading. These stocks have been steadily creeping upwards and they are going higher. We would like to get our friends and clientele to make purchases while stocks are going up, and not after they have gotten near the top figures. Hence our persistency and the ultra-bullish tone of these letters. We now advise immediate purchases and trust that you will come in while prices are advantageous. We have repeatedly stated that a renewal of activity would be accompanied by an advancing of the prices. In our opinion we are going to have as fine a trading market this summer as we have had in years, and the opportunities for money-making will be manifold. Seats in the stock exchange are now quoted at $75,000 each in an anticipation of a falling or dull market. Their value is based upon their earning powers in the commission line. This week's dealings certainly show the market to be awakening and broadening. We now call your attention to the Union Pacific stock. Buy it immediately. When M.O.P. was 99 1-2, Union P. was 104. Now M. O. P. is about 108, while U. P. is below 106. U.P. is in our opinion as good if not better stock than M.O.P., and it should take an extensive rise. Union Pacific sold last year at 133, and ruled most of the time about top market price. It will do so again. The holdings of S. P. that U. P. has will ultimately make the the U.P. Co. independently rich. U. P. is earning about nine per cent. upon its stock. With a good crop it will earn fully 12 per cent. The next dividend period is in August. There is an excellent probability that something more than the usual two per cent. semi-annually will be declared. Whether it is so or not, the stock is good. We recommend it as confidently as we did L.N. below 110, M.O.P. below par, and Reading to buy after the strike was declared on.—Haight & Freese Co)

New York, June 19th.—The early part of the day witnessed quite a reaction in prices. The news from the coal region and the continued weakness in the steel issues are responsible, and profit-taking also aided the reaction. In the afternoon the market turned upon good buying and a cessation of the selling movement. The early decline carried steel to 36 3-4, Reading 35 1-2, while the general list receded from 1-2 to 3 points. Manh. was not ably firm all day, showing cumulative buying. We are ultra-bullish, and advise taking advantage of every reaction to buy stocks. Ill. Cen. showed eight per cent. earning on its stock, showing the new capitalization to be shortly issues at par to shareholders. We look for the market to continue active, with prices advancing. Money closed at last loans 2 3-4, total sales 580,300.—Haight & Freese Company.

BIG INCREASE IN TRADE.

It Amounted to Nearly $16,000,000 in the Last Ten Months.

Ottawa, June 20.—Details are now obtainable of Canada's foreign trade for the ten months ending April 30th. First of all it is worth while pointing out the increase which has taken place in the aggregate trade. For the ten months of the present fiscal year the total was $383,522,149 an increase of $25,917,932 as compated with the same period of 1901, and of $144,556,389 as compared with 1896. The duty collected amounted to $26,245,191, or $2,420,806 in excess of the collections for the same period of last year and $9,205,981 more than in 1896. Taking the imports entered for consumption, the value of dutiable goods was $95,372,429, being $8,964,300 in excess of the same ten months of the year preceding. The value of free goods was $67,135,739, an increase of $7,203,539 compared with 1901.

Montreal, June 20.—On the Allan Line steamer Numidian, which will shortly arrive in Montreal, are 230 Welsh settlers from the Chubut Valley, in Patagonia. Driven from their settlement in that place by want of acres for natural expansion, and by the tyrannies of the Argentine Government, they are about to take up homestead grants reserved for them near Salt Coats, Assiniboia, by the Canadian Government.

KING OF SAXONY DEAD.

Veteran of the Franco-Prussian War Passes Away.

Dresden, June 20.—King Albert, of Saxony, died at 8.05 p.m. yesterday.

King Albert of Saxony was the last of the generals who commanded the German army of 1870.

As His Majesty grew older he shared in the idealization which influenced the group of great statesmen which surrounded William I. His sober life produced few incidents, and his unobtrusive support of his own church, the Roman Catholic, never caused a conflict with popular opinion. The vast majority of the inhabitants of Saxony are Protestants.

Emperor William always referred to King Albert as a fatherly friend.

An Irishman says he always shuts his eyes when he looks at a lady's fault.

STEAMSHIP SUBSIDIES.

Lord Brassey's Opinion Given Before Imperial Commons Committee.

London, June 20.—Testifying before the House of Commons' Committee on steamship subsidies yesterday, Lord Brassey (a former civil Lord of the Admiralty, and at one time Secretary of the Admiralty), said he favored the policy of subsidizing ocean liners for use as armed cruisers. Undoubtedly it would be to the public advantage to have a number of auxiliary war vessels; but it could not be accomplished without subsidies.

The owners of the Cunard Line now remained as the only British champions in the Atlantic traffic, and it would be a national disaster if the line was transferred to a foreign flag. If the Cunard Line could not hold its own unassisted, the Government ought, from patriotic motives, to render the assistance necessary to retain the company under the British flag.

In return for increased subsidies, the Government should have the power of nominating directors of the subsidized companies. He was in favor of Government assistance of the Canadian liners, and the establishment of a new English-Canadian route, and if the American Ship Subsidy bill passed, it would, in Lord Brassey's opinion, be politic for the Government to give assistance in case the Cunard Line needed further capital in order to enable it to compete with the new combine.

The authoritative statement is made that nothing shall be done towards a fast line until the conference of the colonial Premiers. There is a strong feeling in the British Cabinet that a subsidy should be granted to a responsible company. The line, it is argued, must have new steamers for passengers and freight. At present the Canadian liners are too slow and they are not up-to-date.

RELATIVES SEE FRED. RICE.

Uncle and Brother-in-Law of Condemned Murderer Visit Him.

Toronto, June 20.—Relatives of Fred Lee Rice, the condemned murderer of County Constable William Boyd, saw him yesterday for the first time since he was brought to Toronto from Chicago to answer the charge of robbing the private bank at Aurora. David Rice and A. A. Armstrong, uncle and brother-in-law respectively of the prisoner, came to the city yesterday morning on the Chicago express from Champagne, Ill., and spent considerable time in consultation with T. C. Robinette, K.C. The lawyer procured permission from the jail authorities and Sheriff Mowat to allow Rice's uncle and his brother-in-law an interview, and in the afternoon they saw the prisoner in his cell in No. 4 corridor. By their visit to Toronto, the relatives do not hope to accomplish anything for the prisoner, but came here solely for the purpose of assuring him that his friends had not forgotten him in his time of trouble. Messrs. Rice and Armstrong will return to-day to Champagne, where they will await the outcome of Mr. Robinette's application for executive clemency. The Department of Justice at Ottawa is deep in the perusal of the papers on the case.

LOYALIST CLAIMS.

Cape Colony and Natal to Be Provided For Out of Transvaal Fund.

London, June 20.—Joseph Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, announced in the House of Commons yesterday that the Loyalist claims for compensation in Cape Colony and Natal would be provided for out of the Transvaal fund and out of the first loan raised.

The total amount of the compensation to be paid to the two colonies will exceed, according to estimates, £2,000,000 ($10,000,000). The grant of £3,000,000 $15,000,000) mentioned in the terms of surrender is not applicable to Cape Colony and Natal.

Gen. Dewet to Burghers.

Bellefontaine, Orange River Colony, June 19.—Gen. Dewet has addressed a circular to his adjutants, in which he says:

"Let me tell you that you and I and every burgher can win the heart of the new Government by our future conduct, and of this conduct I am not in the least doubtful."

Squandered a Fortune.

How often we hear the expression, notwithstanding the fact that those who use it are perhaps spending their money foolishly in medicines which only give relief without removing the cause. Merrill's System Tonic cures heart, stomach, kidney, nerve, and liver troubles—because by purifying the blood, regulating the bowels and toning each of these organs the cause of disease is removed. WILL NOT ARBITRATE

Ultimatum Issued by Toronto Street Railway Company.

WHAT THEY WILL GIVE THE MEN

To Avoid a Strike They Will Increase Wages Two and Three Cents an Hour More—No Recognition of the Union—Men Will Meet To-Night and Decide About Striking.

Toronto, June 20.—All negotiations between the company and the committee of the employs have been declared off, and the company has delivered its ultimatum.

A mass meeting will be held at midnight at the Star Theatre, at which the committee appointed by the mass meeting of Tuesday night will make its report to the men. The committee will make no recommendations.

The indications are that a strike will be declared some time early Saturday morning. The representatives of the company believe that the men will accept the scale of wages the company has indicated its disposition to pay, but the company is making active preparations to keep their lines open in the event of a strike.

The committee of the men are silent as to how they feel, but their manner is that of men who are thoroughly disappointed and disposed to handle the proposition without gloves.

The meeting to-night will be called by the Board of Trade, and the delegation representing this body will be present. All conductors and motormen of the company will be admitted. It will not be a union meeting in the strictest sense of the word, but in view of the fact that 963 members of the union will be present the union will dominate the meeting wholly. If the men desire to strike the presence of the 50 odd employes of the company present, who are not members of the union, will not likely interfere with the arrangements. The probabilities are that all but union men will be asked to leave the hall, after the Board of Trade Committee have met the men, and all have heard the ultimatum of the company. Then, if the men are disposed to strike, and a majority vote for this purpose can be secured, a strike will be declared and the cars tied up as far as possible Saturday morning.

It is now known that before President Mackenzie left the city he said to his personal representative at the company headquarters: "Don't recognize the union under any circumstances."

General Manager Keating says: "I don't think there will be a strike. I honestly belitve the men will accept our compromise, since it secures to the majority of the men everything substantially that they ask. The details we can not agree on after all do not mean so much to the employes as the face of the proposition might indicate. I don't believe there will be a strike."

In spite of this positive statement the company officials are preparing for trouble.

The only hope of a peaceful settlement at present is the Board of Trade delegation. This is an element that enters largely into the situation, but all President Ames and the committee can hope to accomplish at tonight's meeting will be to make a plain statement to the men by which they will demonstrate that it is better to secure a part of their demands for the present without a strike, than to go into a tie up and get all their demands satisfied after a long struggle in which the bitterness will be everlasting. Speeches along this line will be made by this delegation, and then they will retire and permit the men to vote on the question.

International Delegate Dilworth, asked as to how the situation stood, remarked: "The talking time is past I can say nothing. I have laid the situation before International President Malone as far as I am concerned. Let the other side do the talking now."

The company closed the interview by producing the ultimatum and handing it to the Board of Trade delegation. In turn they transmitted it to the committee.

What the Company Offers.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the company made the following offer to the committee:

1. Wages to be increased as follows:

First year, increased from 15c to 17c.

Second year increased from 16 2-3 to 18c.

Third, fourth and fifth year, increased from 17c to 19c.

After fifth year to tenth year, increased from 18 to 20c.

After tenth year, 18c to 21c.

2. On Sunday work an increase in wages shall be made so as to make the wages earned on that day equal to those earned on other days of the week.

3. The company undertakes to have the cars cleaned for the motormen and conductors in the morning, but the men shall report ahead of time, as at present without additional pay, and keep the inside and platforms of their cars clean, as formerly, while on duty.

4. The company undertakes to prevent, as far as possible, any injustice for men having to suffer by reason of being suspended without just cause, and that all shall have the right of appeal, without prejudice to their positions, to the general manager at any time.

The superintendent of the company was instructed at the conference to make an enquiry as to the possibility of arranging the time schedule so as to secure a more equal division of time among the men, so far as this can be done without impairing the service.

The schedule of wages, it will at once be seen, means a substantial increase in the remuneration of the men. It means, on the basis of the wages paid last year, an increase in the conductors' and motormen's wages account of the company of $68,695 per annum, to which must be added a further sum of $7,500, representing increase in wages of other employes in shops and power house, making the total increase amount to no less than a sum of $76,195. The company felt that it could not in justice to itself and its employes accede to the request for a flat rate of wage to all employes. It has been the principle of the company to regard length of service, and it feels that in this way it has been able to retain men who have contributed materially to the efficiency of the service. As an illustration of the importance of recognition of this principle, it is significant that out of nearly 1,000 employes, 208 will be entitled to the 20c. per hour wage, and 244 to the 21c. per hour wage. It has been felt that these men, by reason of their length of service, are of special value to the company, while, with maturity of age, they assume greater domestic responsibilities, involving an increase in the cost of living.

The management has pursued the policy of stating to the Committee, immediately upon the presentation of its requests, the maximum wage schedule which it was prepared to put into force, and, having met all the other requests, with the exception of one—that a standing committee of employs should be appointed to review suspensions and dismissal, it has nothing to arbitrate. A committee such as has been asked for must necessarily be destructive of discipline and seriously affect the service now rendered by the Company to the public.

While the Toronto Railway Company feels that the Board of Trade, in calling a meeting of all the conductors and motormen of the Company's system, has rendered valuable services to the public, the men, and the Company, it has firmly but courteously declined to allow the Board to arbitrate as to the relations between the Company and its employes.

In conclusion, to review the position concisely, the Company has always been willing to meet its employes individually, or by their properly-elected representatives. The motormen and conductors elected their representatives; the Company received them, and went as far as it can, having in view the interests of its shareholders and the public. And if the employes now decide to go upon a strike, there remains nothing for the management to do but meet the situation as best it can. The public may feel assured that in this event everything possible will be done to give an uninterrupted service.

Board of Trade Statement.

The Board of Trade delegation issued a statement, in which they said of the above ultimatum of the company:

"The officers of the company stated that this must be considered as absolutely final."

A FATHER'S ADVICE.

Young Toronto Lady's Health is Saved by her Parent's Experience and Good Advice—He Knew Because he had Tried and Proven.

How many times have a parent's earnest words spoken in tenderness and backed by the wisdom of years of experience, served to benefit the son or daughter.

Jas. Beatty of Kilworthy, Ont., is well known to many people from Toronto right through to Parry Sound.

Some years ago Mr. Beatty suffered a great deal with acute stomach trouble. He could find scarcely anything as food that did not give him much distress and pain after eating. He was very careful in his diet, but notwithstanding all his care he endured a great deal of pain. He tried many medicines but could not get any relief. Someone suggested Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, but at first Mr. Beatty demurred, saying, "I suppose they are like all the rest."

At last, however, he consented to try them, and he soon found the difference. He was completely cured. He says, "Now, thank goodness, I can eat what I choose, and the doctor is in my pocket through Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"My daughter, Miss Minnie Beatty, was up from Toronto about seven months ago, and I thought she looked very thin, so I induced her to try the medicine that had done so much for me.

"She used three bottles, and from the beginning of the treatment she grew better.

"Six months later she come home again on a short visit and we were all surprised and delighted in the change in her.

"They have made me feel like a different man, and they have done so much for my daughter that I am sure that I cannot express my gratitude.

"I always recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets for Dyspepsia and all Stomach Troubles."

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have cured thousands of just such cases as that of Mr. Beatty and his daughter, and reports of other victories are coming in every day.

Governor-General's medals, for the highest aggregate of marks during the entire course: D. K. Edgar, gold medal; A. A. Blanchard, silver medal; A. H. Gwynn, bronze medal.

Sir Richard's Address.

When Sir Richard Cartwright arose to address the audience, he was received with applause. Sir Richard said it gave him pleasure to know that after some years of depression the college has regained its former good standing, and he hoped that its gain in efficiency will be as rapid as has been its gain in numbers. Our military college is perhaps the youngest in the British Empire, and it is satisfactory to know that it has maintained a splendid record in all parts of the empire, a record which fully justifies the experiment made over twenty-five years ago, when the institution was founded. For a period of two or three years past many lessons have been taught to us, and to the whole empire, lessons which we will not forget. Among these is the lesson that a small people, if determined, may stand against the strongest and greatest empire of the earth. It was a source of great satisfaction to the speaker that while the empire had been put to a severe strain, great assistance was given by the colonies, and Canada had not been last and least in the South African war. None had shown more distinguished bravery on the field than the graduates of this college. (Applause.) Sir Richard said he had no intention of claiming Canada to be superior to the arms of the other colonies or to those of Britain, but in the annals of history, he declared it would be hard to find a case of a soldier who had shown greater bravery that that of his friend, Lieut. Bruce Carruthers, at Harts River. (Applause.) The traditions of the Royal Military College have been nobly upheld in the war and the speaker said he looked to the present graduates and their successors to uphold the reputation of Canada. Nothing has done more to cement the links between Great Britain and Canada than had the establishment of the Royal Military College and the work of its graduates. Of the latter there were 120 in the service of the British army, and the Imperial authorities were only sorry there were not more.

ANNUAL OUTING OF ST. PAUL'S CHOIR.

A Day's Delight Down the River and at Rice Lake.

Bating and Other Enjoyments at Idyl Wyld—Happy and Harmonious in Every Sense.

The fifth annual excursion and picnic of St. Paul's Presbyterian church choir took place on Thursday. The steamer "North Star," (Capt. Wilfred Harris) was engaged for the occasion to take the members and a number of intimate friends for a sail to Idyl Wild summer resort, Rice Lake. The party numbered about 50 ladies and gentlemen, who, from start to finish, vied with each other in creating a genuine spirit of sociability.

The day was an ideal one for such an outing, and when at the convenient hour of 9.30 in the morning the steamer cast off her lines, the assurance of an enjoyable day, under favourable weather conditions, imparted an exhilarating disposition to the pleasure seekers. The sail down the winding Otonabee was thoroughly enjoyed. Nature was at her best and loveliest—the delightful stretches of scenery along the river sides, alternating in expansive lawns, green-growing crops, and massive shade trees and shrubbery growing down to the river's edge, enhanced the pleasure of the sail. Idyl Wild was reached at one o'clock. Mine Host English had everything in readiness for his guests, and the fine large and airy dining room was soon filled with half a hundred good appetites. After a substantial meal the party enjoyed themselves in various amusements on the dry and high lands of the islands, where there is an almost perpetual brand of sunshine and breeze.

A combination baseball match, composed of picked sides of ladies and gentlemen was one of the interesting events of the afternoon. The pitching and catching of the ladies, while not quite as dexterous as that of the picturesque team that visited town a short time ago, was equally as entertaining to the grand stand. Rival teams of quoiters also struggled for "ringers" or a spot near the "spud," which seemed to be either too far off or too near for the guage of the pitchers.

At 4.30 the party re-embarked for home, and, on arriving at Campbelltown in about an hour after, a picnic spot was selected on the green where the ladies spread their white table cloths and decorated them with the toothsome contents of many well filled baskets. Then after a reverend and hearty singing of the doxology, "Praise God from whom all Blessings Flow," the party grouped round on the grass and partook of a recherche bill of fare.

The Peterborough wharf was reached safely at 9.30 with a gay and happy crowd investing the popular airs with a sweetness of melody such as the members of St. Paul's choir know so well how to do.

Mr. Crane, the suave and popular organist and choir master, was on board and made his presence a pleasure by his solicitude for the comfort and entertainment of all. One notable and familiar admirer of the choir ladies, "done up in brown," was the life of the party. No one could escape the contagion of his mirth-provoking good humour and witty sallies. The fact that a bunch of green onions and a rhubard pie was found sticking out of his coat pockets as he left the table at Idyl Wyld was attributed to his absent mindedness rather than any violation of the Presbyterian commandments.

WAS A SUCCESS.

The Garden Party at Mr. D. J Lundy's.

The strawberry festival which was given last night on the beautiful lawns of Mr. D. J. Lundy, corner of Aylmer and Dalhousie streets, passed off quite successfully. The handsome lawns were very prettily decorated with Chinese lanterns and other designs, and the tables, presided over by the various young ladies, attractively decorated. The evening turned out to be a trifle cold for ice cream although considerable business was done in that line.

A section of the band of the 57th Regiment occupied a prominent place on the lawn and discoursed an entertaining programme throughout the evening. A handsome sum was realized towards the funds as a result of the festival.

HON. MR. TARTE WAS FAVOURABLY IMPRESSED

With the Needs of Peterborough in Connection With Work on River and Completion of the Canal.

HE WAS BANQUETTED LAST NIGHT

And in the Course of His Remarks Stated That in all Likelihood the C. P. R. Would Have Running Powers Over the Grand Trunk to Midland, and Peterborough be Made a Distributing Point for Both Roads.

Hon. J. Israel Tarte was dined at the Oriental last evening by the Town Council, who also had as guests Mons. Julien, Governor of St. Pierre and Miquelon; Mons. Du Vos, the Belgian Consul; Hon. Senator McHugh, Hon. J. R. Stratton, the members of the County Council, and Messrs. Richards, Macdonald and Kirn, of the Cereal Company.

The affair was of a most informal nature, being arranged at very short notice, but the end desired was served capitally, as an opportunity was given of entertaining the Minister of Public Works, and of learning the opinion which he had formed concerning the matter of dredging the river and completing the Trent Valley Canal System.

The chair was occupied by Mayor Denne, with Hon. Mr. Tarte to his

The toast list was introduced by the Mayor proposing the health of His Majesty the King. After the toast was honoured in the customary manner, Ald. G. M. Roger proposed the health of

"OUR GUEST."

He stated that all present understood the occasion of the gathering. The Council had been informed that the Minister of Public Works was going to visit the town, and the opportunity was seized of calling his attention to a few things in Peterborough, one of which was the importance of the matter of deepening the river channel, and the necessity of the completion of the Trent Valley Canal system. Mr. Tarte had been given an opportunity of seeing what a great manufacturing centre Peterborough was becoming, and would therefore realize what it meant to the town to have this work carried on to completion. He must be convinced of the importance of an industry like the Cereal Works, which, it was hoped, would stop all the grain from the great North West on the road to the sea, and after manufacturing it, send it abroad.

HON. MR. TARTE

met with a very cordial reception at the hands of those present. After expressing his appreciation of the hospitality which had been extended to him, he said it was a great pleasure to him to meet gatherings of business men throughout Canada in this manner in connection with his duties. He thought he was not far from right in saying that our public men did not travel enough. (Hear, hear.) His greatest trouble in getting appropriations placed in the estimates was that so few of the members of Parliament knew the country as they should know it. Peterborough was a fine town. There was no doubt of that. He hoped and believed that it would yet become one of the great centres of trade. (Applause.) He could observe that wonderful progress had taken place since he had visited the town two or three years ago. He was sure the population had greatly increased and the industries were stringing out. He would not be surprised to see the Grand Trunk start to double track its line from Midland to Peterborough in the near future, and the C. P. R. make the town one of its terminal points. (Cheers.) This, in fact was one of the points which he was discussing at present with the management of both roads. The C. P.R. would have equal running powers with the G.T.R. from Midland to Peterborough, and Peterborough would then be made a distributing point for both roads. (Applause.) Going on to speak of national affairs, Mr. Tarte said that he was "a great believer in my country, in your country, and in our country." He was beginning to know the country. He was also a great believer, as all knew, in the development of trade in the Great West, and in the transportation question, in which the people of Peterborough were also so much interested in connection with the Trent Valley Canal. (Hear, hear) In regard to the Canal, the Government was now face to face with the question of whether to spend or not to spend. The canal was nearly completed but it would

to finish it. Many other works, however, needed money also. The country was full of undeveloped resources. His friend Governor Julien, one of the prominent men of France, agreed with him in saying that Canada was one of the finest and richest countries under the sun. Canada had resources of all kinds and it was only reasonable that enough money should be spent now that was necessary to equip the the country. (Applause.) This did not mean that he would advocate any foolish expenditure of money, but he was confident that the feeling of the country at large was to go ahead with the development. The United States was making great efforts to control the trade of the continent, and in fact of the world, but Canada was better situated, geographically, to control the trans-continential trade. There was only one St. Lawrence and it was Canadian property. (Cheers.) Canada had untold undeveloped wealth and a great future was in store for the country. There was a magnificent canal system in the Dominion and the railways were becoming better and better, so that not only our own trade, but an immense volume of American trade as well could be handled, if Canadians were only true to themselves and confident in their future. Under these circumstances, Mr. Tarte stated that he stood for a liberal expenditure of money—in Peterborough as well as other places where it was needed. (Applause.) He had no right to make any direct promise concerning Peterborough, but the town had many new industries, American as well as Canadian capital was invested, and the town was worthy of all the Government's interest. (Cheers.) When he had been interviewed on the matter of the river, the session was over, and it was out of the question to place an appropriation in the estimates for the dredging and wharfage that he felt would

HAVE TO BE DONE.

(Applause.) After having witnessed the need, he had no hesitancy in saying that he would recommend to his colleagues the immediate carrying out of the work. (Prolonged cheers.) He hoped the Cereal Company would handle as much trade as they expected to handle and trusted and wished that two million bushels of Canadian grain would be brought into Peterborough this fall. He was pleased to be able to speak in front of the American friends who were present. They had a great country and great wealth, but were no happier than the Canadians inasmuch as Canada had not to face such strikes as were common in the United States, nor had Canada to deal with a negro population of ten millions. The Minister went on to say that he was strongly in favour of a tariff which would suit the Canadian people. This was not a party question. Canada could not stand for free trade. Revenue was needed and so were industries. It wasn't a revenue of 30, 40 or 50 per cent. that was needed but a revenue which would ensure our own prosperity. Concluding Mr. Tarte stated that he would leave Peterborough convinced that it was a progressive and aggressive town. (Applause.) He liked men who showed push and energy, and Peterborough men were showing that they had vitality and energy.

When the prolonged applause had subsided, the Mayor proposed the toast of the health of Governor Julien and Consul Du Vos. The former responded briefly in French, referring in glowing terms to the possibilities in store for Canada.

Mons. Du Vos' remarks were most interesting as coming from a foreigner, who recognized the many advantages that Canada had to offer to immigrants from the older countries. The immensity of the area of Canada struck him particularly, in view of the circumstance that in Belgium with a population of seven millions, the land, if portioned out, would be only sufficient to give an acre per capita. The land would average about $300 per acre in price, while in Canada 160 acres were given free as a homestead. In concluding the speaker neatly complimented the town on the evidences of prosperity which were apparent on every hand. (Applause.)

SENATE AND GOVERNMENT.

The next toast proposed by the chairman was that of "The Senate and Government," in which connection he mentioned the names of Hon. Senator McHugh and Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Hon. Senator McHugh, after thanking his hosts for affording him an opportunity of being present, stated that he thought that it was the duty of the Senate and the Government to work together in the best interests of the people, and as these bodies represented the people it was a proof that the people were working in the interests of Canada, as it could not be denied that Canada had been well governed. At no time had the development being going on as rapidly as at present, and a good deal of the development was due to Mr. Tarte's energy. (Cheers.) When he saw an advantage to the interest of Canada Mr. Tarte was not afraid to ask for money. He realized that, as in business, it paid to expend money at certain times, even to the extent of having to borrow it. A certain rivalry existed between Peterborough and Lindsay, but it was a friendly rivalry, and Lindsay was glad to see Peterborough prosper. If Lindsay could not secure an industry, the town would rather see it go to Peterborough than any other place. (Applause.) He hoped the Government would undertake the work on the river, and he would do anything in his power to assist in having it done, (applause) knowing that Peterborough would reciprocate at any time when needed.

HON. J. R. STRATTON stated that as a citizen he was particularly pleased with the interest which Mr. Tarte had manifested in the work which the Government was being asked to undertake in the river. Although Peterborough was indirectly interested in the work, it should be classed as undertaking of national importance and therefore one which had a special claim on the Government's attention. After the assurances which Mr. Tarte had given it appeared safe to assume that the work would be completed inside of eighteen months. (Applause.) Its necessity in connection with the Trent Canal System was imperative and if Mr. Tarte was out on a campaign he could not do better than complete this work. The people in this district were as broadminded, liberal and generous in promoting the best interests of Canada as any Canadians. They were not jealous of expenditures in other parts of the Dominion, but they did expect that the important works in which they were interested in this section would receive their proper amount of attention. (Hear! hear!) Mr. Stratton stated his belief in a great future for Peterborough in which the Trent Valley Canal would be a conspicuous factor. He was sure that within the next five years the grain output in Manitoba would be increased five times over. The transportaion facilities of the railroads would be taxed to their utmost extremity in delivering the grain at Fort William and Port Arthur. It was then that the usefulness and need of the Trent Valley Canal would be apparent in transporting the grain to the seaboard. It was not desirable that the completion of the work should be left over until the present generation was dead. The sections to the south should be placed under immediate contract as well as those to the north so that when the grain came down from Midland, it could be sent on by water to the seaboard from Peterborough after passing through the hands of the Cereal Company. If other Ministers were brought to the town he had no doubt but that they could be satisfied as to the feasibility of completing the work. The Canal was and not intended to be for the benefit of this district alone but would be to the advantage of all Canada. He was pleased to know that Mr. Tarte's co-operation was assured and hoped that he would be able to impress on his colleges the favourable opinions which he had formed and also his impression of what the people expected in the matter of what the Government should do. He assured Mr. Tarte that although he had seen some of Peterborough's industries still he could not form an estimate of the whole, as these were only a third of what the town possessed. He then enumerated the other important manufactories of the town.

The toast of the County Council, was then proposed, and duly acknowledged.

Mr. T. G. Eastland, warden, and Mr. E. A. Peck responded briefly, urging on Mr. Tarte the great need of the early completion of the canal.

Hon. Mr. Tarte then asked those assembled to join him in drinking the health of the Mayor and council.

Mayor Denne, in responding, thanked Mr. Tarte, on behalf of the citizens for the manner in which he had received the invitation to visit the town, and for the prompt manner in which he had expressed his views as regards the necessity of having the river channel deepened. As an evidence of the interest which the Minister had taken in the deputation which had interviewed him on this question in Ottawa, he instanced the fact that within 24 hours two engineers had been sent to Peterborough from the Department of Public Works to report on the scheme. (Applause.) He was sure from the manner in which the Minister had sized up the situation that it would be only a short time before the work would be completed. (Applause.)

The very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

THE ASSEMBLY ENDED

Constructive Work Done in the Sederunts of Thursday.

A NEW MISSION DEPARTURE.

Report of Committee on the Training of Them For Home Mission Work Passed —Its Recommendations—State Functions in Canada—A Strong Protest Against Present Order of Precedence.

Toronto, June 20.—The General Assembly yesterday morning approved the proposed changes in the constitution of Queen's and reappointed the committee to confer with the trustees in reference thereto. An amendment by Prof. James Ross setting forth that the Assembly would cordially welcome a retention of the present relations was lost on a show of hands. The proposed changes in the regulations of the aged and infirm ministers' fund were considered and many of them adopted.

The Foreign Mission Committee was reported to refund Dr. Wilkie, recently relieved of his charge in the Central India Mission, to the extent of his personal outlay on the college with which he was associated.

The report of the Committee on the Training of Men for Home Mission Work was passed after a discussion.

The report recommended, "that a school be instituted for the purpose of training catechists for the work of the church; that the school be held in the city of Winnipeg, and that the course of study embrace three sessions of three months each, July, August and September in each year.

"They are further of opinion that it is undesirable at present to make any change in the curriculum for the ordinary ministry.

"They suggest that the General Assembly declare this scheme to be a temporary expedient to meet the present deficiency of laborers, and to be operative for seven years only, by which time it is hoped a sufficient number of regularly-ordained men will be available for the home mission work."

On motion of Rev. Dr. Murray, the congratulations of the Assembly were passed to the Presbyterian churches of Australia upon their union.

A discussion then ensued on a motion by Rev. Dr. Scrimger, authorizing the Presbyterian College in Montreal to continue the preparatory course under the same regulations as heretofore. The motion was carried.

At the opening of the evening session the committee appointed to consider the question of the order of procedure for the clergy in State functions in Canada, reported: "That we have given the subject careful consideration, and unanimously recommend the General Assembly to represent to the proper authorities, the desirability of abolishing the present rules of procedure as wanting in courtesy and foreign to the genius of the country, and of taking steps towards a fair and adequate recognition of all the Churches of Canada."

This recommendation is in accord with the action taken by the Assembly in 1890, which expressed disapproval of the offensive clauses in the order of procedure which recognizes certain ecclesiastics and utterly ignores the great Protestant Churches which represent the majority of the people of Canada, and resolved to memorialize the proper authorities for their abrogation.

The recommendation has been communicated to the representatives of the Anglican, Methodist, Baptist and Congregational churches for their information.

Rev. Dr. Campbell, who presented the report, said he had received a reply from Bishop Bond, Metropolitan for Eastern Canada of the Anglican Church, that the matter would be brought before the Synod in September; the Methodists and Congregationalists promised like consideration, and the Baptists acknowledged receipt of the resolution.

A number of odds and ends of reports were finished up.

The report of the Young People's Societies was adopted with only one amendment, to the effect that the name of the proposed new organization, the Westminster Guild, was changed to Presbyterian Guild.

This concluded the business, and after the usual votes of thanks a few encouraging words by the Moderator and prayers by Rev. Dr. Parsons the Assembly was brought to a close with the singing of an appropriate hymn.

A Family Necessity.

"Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. Hosts of families would not think of being without them. One pill a dose, 25 cts. a box.

Burned to Death.

Hamilton, June 20.— A fire broke out at 102 North McNab-street, this morning at 1.30 o'clock, and burned to death a colored servant by the name of Mrs. Dewart. She was in the employ of Mrs. Gallagher, who owned the house. She was preparing to retire, when the lamp in her room exploded with fatal result. The deceased was 40 years of age.

30 Men Asphyxiated.

Sarnia, June 20.—About 20 men employed on the track in the St. Clair tunnel here were asphyxiated by gas from an engine Wednesday evening shortly after 7 o'clock. The men were from Sarnia, Watford, Manaumin and Hamilton, also some Italians. Several of the men were in pretty bad shape when found, but all have recovered.

Lost a Hand.

Cornwall, June 20.—John Glascoe, an employe of the Toronto Paper Mfg. Co., had his right hand cut off above the wrist and half of the fingers on his left hand also taken off while working the paper cutter yesterday afternoon.

Miss Minnie Dundas Killed by an Excursion Train at Toronto.

Toronto, June 20. — Miss Minnie Dundas, aged 18, living with her brother, George, at 241 Bain avenue, was killed by a special G.T.R. excursion train at the Pape-avenue crossing about 8.20 o'clock last night. The gates were down for a freight train, which was going east. Miss Dundas had been on her bicycle and when the freight train passed, the gates were raised slightly before the gate-man noticed the approach of the passenger train. Miss Dundas passed under the gates and stepped in front of the engine and was knocked about 20 feet. Her head was crushed by the contact, and her left arm broken. Miss Dundas had been in the country only a short time, having come here from Ireland. Her parents were about to come to Toronto from Ireland.

Previous to that he was editor of The Montreal Editor and The Presbyterian. He was president of the Press Gallery of the House of Commons in 1870. He was made an L.D. by Queen's in 1892 and a F.R. S.C. in 1895. He leaves four sons and a daughter. The body will be brought to Ottawa for interment.

This Blacksmith Had Backache

And Kidney Disease—His Life was Made Miserable by Ill-health, but he Found a Cure in

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The work of the blacksmith requires a body of brawn and muscle, as well as a strong constitution, for, besides the extreme muscular exertion, the blacksmith is subject to sudden changes of temperature—being one moment amid the sparks at his forge and the next in a cold part of the shop or out of doors. Colds result and often kidney troubles set in, being aggravated by the strain of leaning and bending at work.

Mr. W. Ferguson, blacksmith, Trenton, Ont., states: "In my work I am bending over a great deal, and this, together with the constant strain on all parts of the body and the sudden change of temperature when going to and from the forge, brought on kidney disease and backache. At times I would suffer so that I would have to quit work to ease my back, and felt so miserable most of the time that I did not enjoy life very much.

"At last I decided that I would have to get relief in some way, and, having heard of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a successful cure for backache and kidney disease, I began using them. To my surprise and pleasure, they helped me at once, and a few boxes entirely removed my troubles. Thanks to Dr. Chase, I am perfectly cured, and hope that others may take my advice and use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills make friends wherever they are known. Their direct and combined action on kidneys, liver and bowels is not to be found in any other preparation. They cure biliousness and liver complaints, kidney disease and backache, bladder disorders, and bowel irregularities in remarkably short order. The test of time has proven them worthy of your confidence. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box; at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

AMERICAN LAW BREAKERS.

Killing Our Fish With Dynamite—More Stringent Regulations Necessary—Penitentiary Binder Twine on Hand.

Ottawa, June 19.—Notwithstanding the passage by the Dominion Government of an order in Council prohibiting the use of dynamite in the killing of fish in Canadian waters and the possession of explosives, several American visitors have apparently been carrying on this pernicious practice. The officers of the Canadian fishery protection cruisers are finding great difficulty in establishing the guilt of the offenders, and more stringent regulations may be required if the destruction of fish is to stop. It already appears to be essential to obtain international regulations and the co-operation of the United States authorities.

KEMP ON THE WAR.

Says That at the Outset the Boers Numbered only 50,000.

Kimberley, June 18.—Commandant Kemp, General Delarey's lieutenant, who surrendered at Mafeking June 11, has arrived here. In an interview to-day he gave some interesting figures regarding the war. He said that about 50,000 Boers were in the field at the outset, and that only 1,500 out of 5,000 men available fought at Colenso, where the Boer losses were not heavy.

At Spion Kop where the British suffered so much the Boers had only 53 men killed. In one of the fights outside Ladysmith the Boers had 56 men killed and over 100 wounded. Their losses were heavier at Brankspruit and Vlakenfontein. The Boers were often worried by British shrapnel and lyddite fire, but when entrenched they did not fear the shells.

Members of the Boer forces often managed to get into Johannesburg, Krugersdorp and Pretoria, securing valuable information, and frequently crossed the blockhouse lines at night. Commandant Kemp did not allow the Boers of his command to wear khaki, the British uniform.

GAVE HIM HIS OWN WAY.

And Then the Customer Brought the Shoe Clerk to Time.

"Now, there," said the shoe salesman, "is just what you want."

"Is it?" asked the prospective customer. "I thought I said"—

"Just let me put it on," interrupted the salesman.

"But it is my recollection"—

"Couldn't have a better fit," broke in the salesman. "Everybody is wearing them, and they're a bargain."

"Oh!"

"Let me put on the other." Then, after a moment: "There you are, sir. Couldn't be better. Three-fifty, please."

"For what?"

"For the shoes."

"But I don't want the shoes. 'You asked me to let you put them on, and I was courteous enough to let you do it. I always try to be obliging. You said they were just what I wanted, but that was your judgment, and I'm accustomed to back my own. Now, if you've had all the divertisement in this matter that you desire, will you please trot me out a pair of shoes according to the plans and specifications I gave you when I came in, and perhaps we can do business? I have found by experience that the only way to get what one wants from a shoe clerk is to let him have his own way for the first fifteen or twenty minutes, and then he may become tractable."

The Real Drummer.

"The term 'drummer,'" said a traveling salesman for a Market street wholesale house, "has come to be regarded as synonymous with cheek, flashiness and dissipation. Just why this should be I don't know, unless people get the idea from stage jokes and comic papers. Perhaps years ago there was some justification for it, but there is no room for that sort of man today. Competition is too keen. The traveling salesman who stands well with his trade and with his own firm must attend strictly to business. It may sound strange and contrary to general belief, but most men in my line of work are of a religious turn. Some get into the churchgoing habit while stopping over Sunday in small towns, where there is nothing else to do. They get interested in religion and wind up by joining the church. Then, too, the country merchant is usually a man of affairs in his town and is generally a pillar of the church, and the churchgoing drummer is apt to make a greater impression on him than does one who is more worldly."

The Java Mangosteen.

"The most delicious of all the fruits of Java," writes a correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch, "is the mangosteen. For years an enormous reward awaited the man who would bring a basket to the court of Holland, but unfortunately the fruit is too perishable, and to taste it you must go to the country where it grows.

Incased in a hard purple shell, lined with an exquisite pink gauze, are a number of snow white sections something like those of an orange, only each one growing smaller as they round the core. Each section contains one seed incased in a substance like the pulp of the grape. To describe the flavor would be impossible, but if you can imagine a perfect blending of the flavor of the grape, orange, pineapple and banana you may have a notion of the delicious flavor of the mangosteen."

James Settled It.

Two boys in a rural Scotch district were one day discussing what sign it was when the cuckoo is heard for the first time in the year. One of them said it was a sign of getting married, while the other said it was a sign that you were going to be rich. A farmer, overhearing them, said, "That cannot be true, because I have heard it many times, and I am not married yet, and I am certainly not rich."

Just then a local worthy, known as "Daft Jamie," was passing by, and the farmer said, "Jamie, can you tell us what sign it is when you hear the cuckoo for the first time?" "Yes," said Jamie as he took his pipe from his mouth, "it's a sign you're not deaf."

The Day of Miracles not Past.

A Toronto Star reporter investigated the case of Mr. George Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhozone.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be cured. Catarrhozone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from impaired hearing, deafness, head noises and ringing in the ears, are advised to inhale Catarrhozone, and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. French Deficit.

London, June 19.—The French deficit for the year, says the Paris correspondent of The Times, amounts to 173,000,000 francs, but Rouvier, the Minister of Finance, hopes, by annulling certain credits, to reduce it to 150,000,000 francs.

Warning of a Famine.

Scores of Uses.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is best known on account of its wonderful control over eczema, salt rheum and piles, it is found to be in almost daily daily demand in many homes as a cure for chilblains, chafing, pimples, sunburn, burns, scalds and each and every form of itching, irritated or inflamed skin. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application knows no equal.

Sleeping In Japan.

The Japanese never sleep with the head to the north. This is because the dead in Japan are always buried with the head in that position. In sleeping rooms of many of the private houses and of hotels a diagram of the points of the compass is posted upon the ceiling for the convenience of guests.

In Order of Importance.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possible derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure, be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

A King's Economy.

An example of George III.'s economies is so curious as almost to suggest that it must have betokened approaching insanity. He actually let out the cream colored horses used for his state coach to a jobmaster, who "thinks from the great receipt of custom that they will draw him into an easy fortune."

"Hundreds speak their praise."

AT THE CITY OF THE DEAD.

Concluding Ceremonies of Decoration Day.

SPEECHES THAT WERE MADE.

Four Pastors Delivered Addresses—Many People at the Cemetery—A Grand Success.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies attending the decorating of the graves of the departed brethern at Little Lake Cemetery yesterday afternoon, the Oddfellows held their programme of speech-making. A temporary platform had been arranged, and around it gathered hundreds of townspeople, including many members of the Order.

The chair was occupied by Mr. W.M. Matchett, D.D.G.M. He expressed the pleasure it gave him in welcoming the people of Peterborough to the decoration ceremonies. Decoration Day was not a new idea in Peterborough, as it had been observed for years but he thought that the new plan that had been adopted of fixing the date a year in advance was a wise move. It would hereafter be held on the 3rd Thursday in June. He was glad that the general public had joined with them in the event. The action of the Oddfellows in decorating the graves of departed brethern was only another instance that the members of the Order are not forgotten when they pass from this earthly scene. Proceeding with his remarks he went on to say that from the time that Order was founded in 1819 until to-day, it has grown to such proportions that it has been established in 39 different countries. To-day the local lodge had decorated the graves of 67 brethern. Since the year 1819 300 thousand members had died, and 240 thousand widows and orphans had since that time received benefits. The great problem the Oddfellows of Ontario were pushing forward was the erection of an Oddfellow's Home for the Province of Ontario. There was already raised for that purpose the sum of $1,600, and when the Home is completed the Oddfellows of Ontario may rest assured that their children will be cared for after they have passed away. The Order was founded on the principle of Christianity, and he hoped that the members would always live up to that principle.

REV. MR. KILGOUR.

Rev. Jos. Kilgour was then introduced. He referred to the fact that there appeared to be an abundance of prosperity throughout the country at the present time. He complimented them on the sobriety of the people of Peterborough, and their manliness of character. Their presence there to-day was to acknowledge that though the departed brethern had gone before they had not been forgotten. The Reverend gentleman spoke of the solemnity of the occasion and said that there was a Countenance resting on them that forbids them from countenancing anything like frivolity. He appealed to them to make preparation for the future. Our lives are given us to make by our own efforts. God has done His part, and now we should do our utmost for our fellow men.

REV. MR. POTTER.

Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's church, and a member of the Order, was next introduced. He referred, in his opening remarks, to the fact that Decoration day this year was observed under favourable circumstances. This year, while we are decorating the graves of departed ones and keeping in memory those who have gone before, we do so now during the time that peace has been declared in South Africa, where a year ago many of their brethern were fighting. Whilst we may think that all the virtues of true men are manifested on the field of battle, we must not forget that God has given us all opportunity of displaying true manliness in all our walks of life. Peace and war should develop in us all that is noble in character that God wants us to develop. The speaker thought that there never was a time when there was demanded an independance in character than at the present time. In order to realize the position we are placed in we must keep in mind the fact that God has placed around us great opportunities. He has given us words of cheer and let us have faith in His promises, let us trust in Him, and do our duty by our fellow beings. Let us remember, too, that God calls upon us, as men and women, to consecrate in us the best that we possess for best of the world at large. When we have this confidence in the future there is no need for despair.

At the conclusion of Brother Potter's remarks, the chairman, Mr. Matchett, said that the previous speaker had made reference to the South African war. He desired to say that the local Oddfellows had one member at least who gave his life for his country in that far off land. Dan Sponce had fallen in the midst of the fight, but his grave had been marked by a memorial which had been erected by the brother Oddfellows of his company.

REV. MR. THOMPSON.

Rev. C. L. Thompson, of Ashburnham, spoke next. No place, he said, was as sacred as the resting place of the dead, and of all the voices that speak to us, none reach further down than the grave. Rev. Mr. Thompson made an able address, reciting the rise and fall of ancient empires, and showing what our duty should be to the dead past, to the present, and to the future, not only individually, but as a nation. He contended that the foundation of Great Britain was laid in the blessed reign of good Queen Elizabeth. What are those foundations? Justice and Truth, which stand side by side with the sacred word. When he thought of the 50 or more of those whose memories are being perpetuated by their brotherhood, he realized more than ever that Christianity was not dead. Rev. Mr. Thompson, who, as it is well known, has had the hand of death visit his home during the past year, said that the cemetery was sacred to her to-day. He shall never forget the treasure which is there laid away; whose spirit has gone upwards, but whose dust sleeps in Little Lake Cemetery. It was a pleasure, however, to know that through time all go to meet and greet those who have gone before.

REV. MR. WILSON.

Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of George street Methodist chuch, was the last speaker. He reminded his hearers of the great amount of brotherhood that seemed to exist throughout the Empire at the present time. This had been brought about by the South African war, the termination of that war, and peace. The coming coronation festivities, too, was driving together people from all parts of the Empire. He was glad that peace had been declared. Some may think that Britain was too lenient towards the Boers, but the speaker did not think so. He thought that he should say a word in commendation of the work which the Oddfellows were doing. It meant a good deal for them to place flowers upon the graves of departed ones. It meant that those who had gone before were not forgotten. We, when on earth, like to be remembered by our fellow beings. We like to know that we will be remembered by our friends after we are dead. Rev. Mr. Wilson, continuing, spoke of the good work the Oddfellows were doing in the community, and he hoped that they might long be spared to continue in their noble efforts.

This concluded the speech-making, and the gathering dispersed about 5.30 o'clock.

It was an ideal afternoon for Decoration day, and many thousand people visited the cemetery. The City of Peterborough plied between Wolfe street wharf and the cemetery point, and carried over many people.

The band rendered a number of sacred selections.

Several members of the County Council were prominent figures in the procession yesterday.

WOOD FAMINE AT AN END

The wood famine which has prevailed in town recently, came to an end on the receipt of two scows of hardwood, both green and dry, by J. E. A. Fitzgerald.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

LACROSSE.

The Y.M.C.A. and the Athletics come together in a City League match on the Nicholls oval to-night. The game promises to be a good one, and should draw a large crowd. The Athletics team will be composed as follows; Goal, Galley; point, Dillon; c. point, Morgan; 1st defence, T. Glover; 2nd defence, Main; 3rd defence, O. Dusty; centre, Dunford; 3rd home, C. Graham; 2nd, W. Parnell; 1st, home, Dobbin; outside Wasson; inside, N. Dusty; field capt. A. W. McPherson.

In the lacrosse match at the Dougo picnic yesterday, both teams won, figuratively speaking. The Athletics 1 1 game, and the Y.M.C.A. 1 2.

CRICKET.

The Lindsay Collegiate Institute eleven passed through here yesterday on their way to Port Hope, where they play the Trinty College School I eleven to-day. They will be back here to-morrow to play the Colts. The game will start at two o'clock sharp. The Lindsay team in a number of games with outside clubs this season have yet to meet defeat. The following eleven will be put in the field by the Colts; H. Welkey, A. Boucher, capt., F. L. Bradburn, C. Keele, Hal. Burnham, C. A. Stapleton, J. D. Lundy, R. Cameron, H. S. Wood, G. Hall and A. Moore.

A FISHING PARTY.

A Peterborough fishing party, which has been spending the last few days most enjoyably at Burleigh Falls, was composed of Messrs. Alex. Elliott, E. B. Stone, R. B. McKee, Dr. Bradd, and H. LeBrun. The party was also accompanied by Mr. Donald McNaughton, of Montreal.

Mr. LeBrun enjoyed the best luck in the party, catching his limit of 'lunge each day. There are a large number of Americans at Burleigh, and yesterday morning they brought in 22 'lunge as the result of their operations before dinner.

"CHILDREN'S CORNER."

One of the Most Interesting Places in Westminster Abbey.

If the Earl Marshal carries out his present intention, one of the most interesting places in Westminster Abbey on the day of the coronation will be the "children's corner," a space which it is proposed to set aside for the youthful little peers and peeresses in their own right, who, though still boys and girls, have a legal right of which they intend to avail themselves—of being present when Edward VII. is enthroned on the "stone of destiny." There are several boys in the peerage, who, owing to the death of their father, or some other relative, became hereditary legislators before they gave up the nursing bottle, or soon after, and several little peeresses who succeeded to their titles at an immature age. These little peers and peeresses, in their coronation robes and coronets, it is proposed to corral in one group, which would make a pretty picture, but think of the possibilities should the noble little folks get to squabbling among themselves! The Earl Marshal would better provide a "lord high wielder of the birch rod" to keep the children's corner in order during the long ceremonies. As the ages of the boy peers range from 9 to 19, the older ones may be set as monitors over them, the way they used to do at school. A vast amount of property will be represented by these children. There is the Viscount Combermere, 15 years old, and possessed of 14,000 acres with three great country houses, one of them being the celebrated Combermere Abbey; the Baron Carbery, 10 years old, with an estate of value in Ireland, and Lord Holmpatrick, with about 7,000 acres in his estate. Among the big boys is the Earl of Caledon, 17 years old, an immensely rich youth, with 30,000 acres to his fortune. Lord Camoys, a year older, has an estate of 6,800 acres.

DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH.

A Royal Beau.

Without doubt the coronation of King Edward VII., will be the most costly and elaborate "full dress" affair that has occurred in modern times. But King Edward will not be permitted to look upon such a wonderful display of costumes as greeted the eye of his distinguished predecessor, Edward III. This beau of the fourteenth century was a spectacle that must have added greatly to the gayety of nations. He wore long pointed shoes, fastened to his knee by gold or silver chains. hose of one color on one leg and another color on the other; a coat the one half white and the other half black or blue; a long silk hood, buttoned under his chin, embroidered with grotesque figures of animals and dancing men.

Toronto Street Railway Men Reject Company's Proposal.

BY BALLOT VOTE OF 545 TO 275

A Thousand Men Discussed the Whole Situation From 1.30 a.m. To-Day Until Daylight—After Full Discussion They Rejected the Company's Proposal of a Grade Scale of Wages—The Meeting.

Toronto, June 21, 5 a. m. — The street railway conductors and motormen have just concluded voting by ballot, and they have rejected the company's proposition in toto by a vote of 545 to 275.

THE MEETING'S DECISION.

At 3 a.m. the Street Railway Employes Declared Overwhelming Against the Company's Proposition.

Toronto, June 21.—There were fully 1,000 men in the Star Theatre this morning when President Ames called the mass meeting to order. He was greeted with cheers. His remarks were brief. He referred to the efforts made to secure a peaceful settlement. International Delegate Dilworth and Organizer McDonald were said by the speaker to be at the door, and he asked the pleasure of the men as to admitting them. They were admitted, amid cheers. At the opening, only conductors and motormen had been admitted. With these formal remarks, President Ames retired, amid cheers.

Then the committee representing the men made their report to the mass meeting, being introduced by J. H. Pickles, who was made chairman by acclamation. George Coney was made secretary. Chairman Marshall spoke briefly, but favored immediate settlement one way or the other.

The committee followed with the report of the various phases of the negotiations. The report was a complete detail of all that had been accomplished.

Company's Scale Presented.

The chairman then announced that the report was in the hands of the mass meeting. A member moved that the report be accepted.

A member who had been 14 years in the service, and had five small children, spoke vigorously in favor of rejecting the offer of the company. His remarks were vociferously applauded.

A member attempted to favor the new scale. He was instantly howled down. The man insisted that he wanted the motion put to adopt the report. There was trouble in finding a seconder. The speaker declared that the scale was fair, and many men had homes partially paid for. A seconder was still not to be found.

As the discussion progressed, appeals were made by members in favor of hearing what those who favored the scale had to say. Then, several men favored accepting the company's compromise. Apparently, 50 or 100 men desired to have the new scale adopted.

Internation Delegate Dilworth suggested that the men vote on the wage scale first.

Rejected the Company's Scale.

The motion was made, that the company's wage scale be rejected. The vote was so overwhelmingly against the scale that it was declared rejected, with a roar.

Delegate Dilworth appealed for all sides to have a fair hearing.

A general motion was then made that the whole proposition received from the company be rejected absolutely. This was passed with a roar, and all further chance to prevent a strike seemed lost, and trouble appeared certain. It was 2.35 this Saturday morning when this vote was taken by a rising vote.

President Ames of the Board of Trade made a short speech to the men at this point, before the vote was formally recorded, apparently, with a hope of stemming the tide which was clearly drifting inevitably toward a strike. Mr. Ames urged them to consider seriously the situation before a strike was declared.

To Get the Ten Year Men.

A speaker charged that the company had placed the 21 cent part of the scale in sight in order to cause the ten year service men, to whom the maximum scale alone applies, to quit the union and take out their cars. This charge provoked the wildest commotion.

The burden of the remarks, however, touched the sliding scale. This the men declared unfair. They would never accept such a proposition. The graded scale kept the men divided, and it was the general expression that this feature could never be accepted.

In conclusion, Mr. Ames begged the men to make their decision known by ballot, so that those who might favor further delay might be sure their votes would be recorded.

Be Careful, Says Dilworth.

Delegate Dilworth followed President Ames. He delivered a very moderate address. He refused to even advise the men how to vote except to refer significantly to "My position, you know," but what that was seemed to be a union secret. In conclusion he said: 'Be careful of your decision. If you live 50 years you will never be called upon to render a decision upon a more important subject."

Organizer McDonald was called upon but said he would say nothing for the present.

A member insisted on asking where "Brother" McDonald would be if no strike was declared. This question started a discussion. A great deal of feeling was manifested over this question.

$10,000 For a Pension Fund.

During the further discussion, Mr. Ames declared that he was prepared to place with the National Trust Co. a cheque for $10,000, to be handed over at the end of one year, to the men, to create a Pension Fund for the benefit of all the employes of the company.

This proposition was received with scant courtesy by the men.

Friday's Developement.

The three important developments yesterday in the street car strike matter:

1. The posting of the following notice in the various car barns increasing the wages of the motormen and conductors:

"On and after this date the wages of the motormen and conductots employed by the Toronto Railway Company are as follows:—

"First year ..... 17c per hour
"Second year ..... 18c per hour
"Third, fourth and fifth years ..... 19c per hour
"After fifth year to tenth year .....20c per hour
"After tenth year .....21c per hour

"E. H. KEATING
"General Manager."

2. The modification of the men's demands to eighteen cents an hour for the first year and twenty cents an hour for the first year and twenty cents an hour subsequently.

3. The Employes' Committee waited on the City Board of Control and assured the Controllers that in the event of a strike there would be no violence, also that the only thing now between a strike and settlement was arbitration.

ONE INDIAN ARRESTED.

Redmen Assembled at a Quebec Town For the Trial.

Montreal, June 21.—A special from Ste. Scholastique announces the arrest of Louis Beauvais, one of the Oka Indians concerned with Chief Kennatosse in the cutting of wood on a French-Canadian's neighbor's property, and the right to which the Indians dispute. A large number of Indians have gathered in Ste. Scholastique for the trial. Chief Kennatosse has so far evaded the serving of a warrant on him.

Caught a 16 1-2 lb. Lunge.

Dunnville, Junt 21.—While fishing off the west swing bridge on Monday evening, Prof. F. Borel, piscatorial artist, hooked a 16½ pound muscallonge. His tackle consisted of a section pole, an ordinary line, a double snood and a small white-bass hook. The hook had caught securely in the grisly portion of the side of the mouth, and the monster's teeth were of no use. He "sizzed" around the piles several times, but, when he had the slack about used up, Fritz would unreel more, and unwind it from the pile. He gave the fish his head until J. A. Scholfield got a boat and gaffhook and landed him.

Dr. Meyer Shot Dead.

Buffalo, June 21.—Dr. Jacob F. Meyer, one of the next known surgeons of this city, was shot last night and almost instantly killed. His wife, who was the first person to inform the police of the shooting of her husband, is at an East Side police station. No charge has been made against Mrs. Meyer. Mrs. Meyer has made several disconnected statements. Mrs. Meyer is a Toronto woman.

SCATHING CRITICISM.

Beresford Roasts the Navy in Imperial House of Commons.

DEPARTMENT LACKS INITIATIVE.

Whole System Is Rotten—Treasury Control Is Fatal to the Efficiency of the Fleet—Officers Compelled to Threaten Resignation to Get Anything Done—The Navy Short of Men.

London, June 21.—During the course of the discussion of the navy estimates in the House of Commons yesterday, Rear Admiral Lord Charles Beresford (Conservative) scathingly criticized the deficiencies of the navy. He declared the whole Admiralty system was rotten and led to the great extravagance and the general want of efficiency of the navy, on which depended the existence of the Empire.

This was the judgment of all the commissions of inquiry and had been proven to be a fact. Every increase in the number of ships and every improvement in them had been the result of outside agitation. As the result of such agitation the British Mediterranean fleet was now a fourth stronger than it was a year ago.

It was remarkable, Lord Beresford added, that both army and navy officers were compelled to threaten to resign in order to get things righted. Great Britain had only 20,000 naval reserves instead of the requisite 80,000, and the engine-room departments were thousands of men short. As to armament, both the United States and France possessed superior guns.

Blunders would continue until a separate business board was appointed at the Admiralty and was made responsible for the efficiency of the fleet. Treasury control was fatal to efficiency. As an instance, the speaker pointed out the case of Sir William Vernon Harcourt (Liberal), who, when he was Chancellor of the Exchequer, put his pen through the ammunition supplies after the guns had been ordered.

The Secretary of the Admiralty, Mr. Arnold-Forster, in a general reply to the criticisms of the navy, denied that the Admiralty had been influenced by Lord Beresford's threats to resign. The navy, he added, had been steadily improving, but there was still room for the reinforcement and intellectual equipment of the system, which directs or ought to direct the forces of the Empire.

BOUNDARY QUESTIONS.

Subject of a Lecture by Hon. Clifford Sifton at Lindsay.

Lindsay, June 21.— Hon. Clifford Sifton was in Lindsay yesterday, the occasion being the last lecture of the Collegiate Institute lecture course for the year. The Collegiate Cadet Corps turned out in force to welcome Hon. Mr. Sifton at the station and escort him to the residence of Dr. Burrows, with whom he is staying. The assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute was filled last evening to hear the Minister of the Interior discuss "Boundary Questions" between Canada and the United States. The timeliness of the subject; the speaker's well-known ability in the discussion of public questions and his intimate relation to this subject, made his address a memorable one. Dr. Vrooman, M.P., occupied the chair. A complimentary banquet was tendered Mr. Sifton in the Benson House at the close of the lecture.

REGIMENTAL STANDARDS.

A Uniform Establishment of 367 of All Ranks.

Ottawa, June 21. — Important changes have been sanctioned in the regimental establishment for the active militia. Several regiments of infantry and rifles have been formed into eight-company regiments, with a uniform establisment of 367 of all ranks. In some instances this involved increasing the present establishment, while in others a reduction had to be made. The Queen's Own of Toronto instead of one regiment of ten companies will now comprise two battalions of eight companies under one commanding officer. Each of these will consist of 31 officers, 30 staff sergeants and sergeants, and 306 of other ranks. The present establishment of the Queen's Own is 37 officers, 6 staff sergeants, 30 sergeants and 384 of all other ranks.

Russian Officers on Trial.

St. Petersburg, June 21.—A military court at Poltava, South Russia, has begun the hearing of the charges against Captain Kriwetsky and 36 other military and Chancellery officials, and 27 recruits. The officers are charged with accepting bribes from the recruits, who were thereby freed from military service. Similar bribery is alleged to have been going on for many years.

Winnipeg Man's Sudden Death.

Winnipeg, June 21.—James Alexander Campbell died yesterday on the steamer Premier on Lake Winnipeg, while en route to Selkirk. The cause of death is reported to be heart failure. The intelligence of Mr. Campbell's death will be received with sorrow in all parts of the province and the west. The deceased was very popular and widely known.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

A Successful Convention in the Murray Street Church.

Officers Elected for the Ensuing Term —Short Addresses Last Night.

The annual convention of the Peterborough County Sunday School Association was held in the Murray street Baptist church yesterday afternoon and evening, and was very well attended.

The afternoon session opened at 2 p.m., with devotional exercises, after which reports were read from the president and sec.-treasurer of the Association. The reports were all of a most encouraging character, and showed the association to be in a healthy condition.

Rev. J. C. Tibb, M.A., of Toronto, then delivered a very interesting address on the subject of organization of Sunday school work.

The evening session opened at 7.45 o'clock, with devotional exercises. The meeting was presided over by Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's.

Miss Williamson, directress of the Ashburnham Kindergarten, read a most interesting paper, showing the relation of Kindergarten work to the Primary work of the Sunday school. Her ideas were along the lines of showing how the young mind was educated by material objects. The founder of the Kindergarten work recognised the Divine system of using material things to demonstrate spiritual idea.

Rev. Mr. Potter made a strong appeal on behalf of the financial aspect of the association. The financial requirements were very heavy, and the work should also be extended into districts now untouched. The work is at present undertaken by men who received nothing more than their expenses for their services. The town association could do more than it is doing in this regard at present. He pointed out where there was plenty of work for the town association to do.

Mr. Alfred Johnston, the Secretary-treasurer of the town association, presented the report of the Nominating Committee, which was as follows.

Pres. — J. A. Kidd, Charlotte street Sunday school.

1st Vice-President—E. A. Peck, St. Luke's.

2nd Vice-President — Miss Mann, Park street Baptist.

Executive Committee — The superintendents of all the Sunday schools and Mr. G. H. Williamson.

Mr. Kidd, the newly elected president acknowledged the honour conferred upon him, in a few brief remarks in which he assured the convention that he would do what he could to forward the association.

Rev. J. C. Tibb, M.A., spoke on the progress of Sabbath School Work. He spoke on what the qualifications of a Sunday school teacher should be. The inward qualifications should be,

1st. Love for Christ.
2nd. Love for the pupil.

The outward qualifications should be through knowledge of the Bible to know how to teach, so as to obtain the best results, union with God in prayer, bring the pupil into relation with Christ. He made a strong appeal for increased effort on the part of all Sunday school teachers.

Mr. E. B. Edwards asked Mr. Johnston how much the town association gave towards County and Provincial work.

In reply Mr. Johnston informed the meeting that the sum was $58. There was no reason why this sum should not be increased to $150.

Before closing Rev. Mr. Potter spoke regarding the importance of the work, and urged that all would join in their efforts to help it along.

Rev. J. P. Wilson and Rev. Dr. McDonald, pastor-elect of Keene, who were to have been present, were unavoidably absent.

GREAT DEMAND FOR LAND.

Ten More Temiskaming Townships Will be Surveyed.

So great is the demand for land in the Temiskaming region that the Government have ordered the survey of ten more townships, in addition to the 25 townships already open for settlement in the alluvial plain at the head of Lake Temiskaming. Work will be begun at once, as it is expected that many of the veterans will chose that section for settlement.

THE TONNAGE TRIPLED.

Great Increase in Traffic Through the Soo Canal.

The returns of traffic through the Canadian and American Soo Canals show a great increase this year over previous years. The total tonnage of freight carried through the American canal in April and May was 0,764,893, as against 2,248,045 for same period last year. Through the Canadian canal the tonnage was 532,188 as compared with 151,879 last year.

DRESS MAKERS

And All Women Who Work, either for their Living or for Society, are Subject to the Same Organic Troubles. How Many Are Cured.

A gorgeous costume flashed beneath the brilliant lights of a ball room. The queen of society is radiant to-night.

The nervous hands of a weak woman have toiled day and night, the weary form and aching head have known no rest, for the dress had to be finished in time.

To that queen of society and her dressmaker we would say a word. One through hothouse culture, luxury and social excitement, and the other through the toil of necessity, may some day find their ailments a common cause.

Nervous prostration, excitability, fainting spells, dizziness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and strength, all indicate serious trouble, which has been promoted by an over-taxed system.

For the society queen and the dressmaker alike, there is nothing so reliable as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore strength, vigor, and happiness.

Six Years' Suffering Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for six years, sometimes being unable to get about at all. It seemed to me as though I could not live, and I did not care to. I had womb trouble, kidney trouble, leucorrhœa, backache, was nervous and had no ambition to do anything or go anywhere. Was obliged to give up my trade of sewing. I tried three doctors but they did me no good. Seeing your advertisement I thought I would try your medicine. I felt better after the first bottle, and by the time I had taken six I was able to resume my work again. I shall always praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS. MARY A. RUSSELL, Chincoteague Island, Va. (Dec. 14, 1900.)

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. No man will see your letter. She can surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. She has helped hundreds of thousands of women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

Mrs. Lizzie Anderson, 49 Union St., Salem, N.J.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and tell you how grateful I am to you for what your medicine has done for me. At one time I suffered everything a woman could. I had inflammation of the ovaries, falling of the womb, and leucorrhœa. At times could not hold a needle to sew. The first dose of your Vegetable Compound helped me so much that I kept on using it. I have now taken six bottles and am well and able to do my work. I also ride a wheel and feel no bad effects from it. I am thankful to the Giver of all good for giving you the wisdom of curing suffering women. I recommend your medicine to every woman troubled with any of these diseases."

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $5000, which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special permission. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

SATURDAY, JUNE 21, 1902.

CANADA AND THE EMPIRE.

1. Canada will rejoice to receive a preference for her products in the British markets, if without manifest coercion from the colonies that becomes the accepted policy of Great Britain.

2. But with all our great natural wealth and potential industrial development, we cannot afford to clamour for doles from the mother country, and we doubt if true Imperial unity can be promoted by any policy which threatens to make the masses of Britain hostile to the outlying British kingdoms.

3. We cannot afford to enter into an alliance with any British political party, nor demand favours at Westminster which many leading British statesmen are certain to denounce as undue concessions to the colonies.

4. An Imperial preferential tariff can be safely approached only upon the lines of remissions of taxation by Great Britain in favour of the colonies and remissions of taxation by the colonies in favour of Great Britain.

5. Canada sympathizes with Mr. Chamberlain's vision of absolute free trade within the empire, but recognises that for the present many of her industries cannot be exposed to the unobstructed sweep of British competition, and that we cannot conveniently raise by any system of direct taxation the millions of revenue that must be lost by the free admission of British goods.

6. The natural desire of Great Britain is to manufacture for the colonies. The natural desire of the colonies is to develop home industries and to support a large industrial population. In this view the new Australian Commonwealth has adopted a protectionist tariff. In this view protectionists in Canada contend that the reduction of 33 1-3 per cent. in favour of British goods has greatly prejudiced important Canadian industries.

7. Mr. Chamberlain told Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1897 that except upon the basis of free trade within the empire he would not touch preferential trade with a pair of tongs. This is still, so far as we know, the position of the Colonial Secretary, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, the Duke of Devonshire, and Lord Salisbury. The Liberal leaders at home are unanimously opposed to a tax on food. Colonial protectionists and Imperialists make a tax on grain and food products the essential feature of their demand. We thus have, as Mr. Chamberlain has said, a proposition from the colonies which Great Britain cannot accept, and a proposition from Great Britain which the colonies cannot accept.

8. Canadian Conservatives and many Imperialists persistently ignore the British demand for the complete abolition of taxes on British goods as the first and prime condition of a preferential tariff. If Canada accepted Imperial free trade, many of the men who now demand a preference in Britain would unite to punish the Government which accepted the essential conditions of the compact. In the meantime, so far as Canada is concerned, the existing preference in the Canadian tariff in favour of British goods is a fair equivalent for the remission in our favour of the new British revenue duties on corn.

9. The British free trader and the Canadian protectionist approach the question of preferential tariff from wholly different standpoints. The British free trader argues that free trade would be good for Canada. The Canadian protectionist argues that protection would be good for Great Britain. The industries of Canada have been established upon a protectionist basis. The industries of Great Britain have been established upon a free trade basis. Free trade within the empire and protection against the rest of the world would involve a grave disturbance of industrial conditions in both countries, and greatly imperil many important industries.

10. Since the Liberal Government took office at Ottawa six years ago we have introduced Imperial penny postage, contributed heavily to the Pacific cable, maintained a Canadian garrison in place of the British garrison at Halifax, contributed generously in men and money to the cause of the empire in South Africa, greatly increased our expenditures for defence at home and reduced by one-third the the tariff on imports from Great Britain, and in return we have failed even to secure relief from the British restrictions upon the importation of Canadian cattle, or in any way to obtain better treatment in the British market than our competitors in the United States receive.

11. It must always be difficult to strike a balance between trade and defence, but at least the heavily-burdened British tax-payer should not be taxed for the defence of Canada. We are a young, rich, and prosperous country, and should frankly meet all legitimate obligations on this account. We should relieve Great Britain of all expenditure of a military character in Canada. But as the British tax-payer is not requited to bear the enormous cost of developing the great area of virgin territory which Canada possesses, so Canada should not be required to bear in the same ratio as the European taxpayer the cost of militarism in the old world. Each country has its advantages and disadvantages of location. We must develop trade. The old world protects trade. In this protection the Canadian producer has no advantage or privilege which is not equally extended to the producer of the United States.

12. The old world spends its millions on militarism. The new world spends its millions on settlement and development. Canada should not be required to bear the double burden and meet alike the cost of militarism in Europe and the cost of development in America. Each, we repeat, is entitled to its advantages as each must accept the disadvantages of its natural position and surroundings. It is unfair that Canada should be taxed for the support of the military armaments of Europe, and just as unfair that the heavily burdened British Islands should be taxed for the defence of Canada. This should be the permanent condition, as each should exhaust its resources for the other in case its integrity was assailed by any hostile combination.

13. In transportation a basis of common action without friction or complications, exists. Great Britain needs the food products of Canada. Canada needs the British market. Every improvement in the means of transportation benefits alike the Canadian producer and the British consumer. In proportion as we cheapen the cost of transportation from the west to the seaboard, we guarantee better prices to the Canadian farmer, and in proportion as we cheapen the means of carriage across the ocean we lower the cost to the British population of their food supply, whether imported from the colonies or from foreign countries.

14. The most luminous chapter in the history of Canada is that which records the struggle for responsible government. The most lamentable chapter in the history of Britain is that which records the attempt of an arrogant King and obsequious Ministers to impose taxation without representation upon the American colonies. The extension of colonial self-government is synchronous with the growth of the Imperial spirit and the the consolidation of the British Kingdoms. We may not predict what shall be the final outcome of this orderly evolution, nor risk dissension and disunion by premature attempts at organic union, which may limit the freedom of the colonies and perhaps divide the people of Britain into colonial and anti-colonial factions.

15. The sovereignty alike of the Imperial and the colonial Parliaments must be preserved. In popular sovereignty is the supreme efficacy of British institutions. How can we bind the colonies in advance to participation in all British wars; how bind Great Britain to inevitable sanction of all the demands of her outlying kingdoms? These issues must be determined as they arise. Our aid will be none the less generous because it is voluntary. Our Imperial patriotism will be none the less intense and abounding because it is free of all taint of Imperial coercion. In the free action of all parts of the Empire lies the best guarantee of harmonious and effective co-operation, and the enduring stability of British institutions the world over.—Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There is a village called Stratton in the Port Arthur and Rainy River division of New Ontario. It is named after the Provincial Secretary, and this, the Globe suggests, may account for the aggressive character of its Liberalism, as shown in the tremendous majority given for Mr. Conmee at the polling booth held within its limits on May 29. This is the way the Fort Frances Times puts it in its correspondence from Stratton;—Result of vote here on May 29th—School house, No. 1, Morley, Conmee, 43, King, 0; S. W. Quarter Section 32, Morley, Conmee, 28, King, 2; school house, No. 1, Shenston, Conmee 15, King, 1; Pinewood, Conmee, 36, King, 6. On May 30th, at school house, No. 7, Morley, Conmee got 22, King 0, giving Conmee 135 out of 144 votes. Who says we don't know how to appreciate good government?

NOT TO BE FORGOTTEN.

In the way in which the English calmly handed Louisburg back to France after it had been captured by the colonists; the generous way in which the French were treated after Canada had passed into the possession of England; the almost humiliating concessions made to the Boers after the first war; the kindly way in which the people of India were treated, their freedom of worship, separate customs, etc., are all instances of many which might be cited to show that modern England has ever been generous in her treatment of those with whom she had been waging war.

It is gratifying to see that there is not likely to be so much forgetfulness of those who remained true to the flag in the face of adversity at the close of the war now finished as there was on some former occasions. There have been Boer farms burned, but so there were British. There have been Boer women and children who had to be maintained by public aid; but, if less was said about it, there were loyal subjects of the Crown who were reduced to absolute want.

Mr. Chamberlain probably recalls occasions when rebels were forgiven and became great leaders, while those who were killed in upholding the Crown were allowed to rest in forgotten graves. Speaking immediately before the announcement of peace, and with a full knowledge of the facts, and what the negotiations and terms were, he said: "There have been occasions upon which no Briton can look with pride, when mistakenly, under some desire to display magnanimity which did not concern ourselves alone, we have betrayed the interests of those who trusted us. We have placed them in a worse position than our enemies."

He no doubt had in mind the way in which we weakly abandoned to the mercy of the cruel Mahdi, a tribe who had remained loyal to us in the Soudan, in 1885; he thought, probably, too, of the way in which we left our loyal ones forgotten in the dark days following Majuba. This disloyalty to the loyal, Mr. Chamberlain fitly described as "a fatal mistake which has always brought its own punishment." Such words at such a time from one who has shown himself so truly stout-hearted a statesman, must carry good cheer to the loyal in South Africa, who have suffered in silence and fared worse than the families of the Boers.—Montreal Star.

KING'S COUNSEL.

The Ontario Government has given tangible evidence that it has survived the elections by creating some fifty odd King's Counsel. Happily, the Province is under no obligation to provide salaries or business for this small army. In fact, as each appointee will have to pay the Government for his patent, the Province stands to come out a little ahead financially.

The origin of the practice of appointing King's Counsel is not very clear, but it appears that in olden times a King's Counsel was a Crown officer and received a gratuity. He was not permitted to take cases against the Crown, and appointments were often made in order to assure the King of the services of the ablest advocates. A King's Counsel in England to-day is no longer a Crown officer, and there as well as here he can take cases against the Crown to his heart's content. He is entitled, however, to take the front seat in the courts, where motions are heard, and is thus given precedence over those barristers upon whom the title has not been bestowed.

Died Suddenly in Quebec.

Quebec, June 21.—Yesterday morning at 4 o'clock, Mrs. Williams of Hamilton, Ont., died suddenly at Mathurin's Hotel, at the Palais, in this city. She arrived there the day before from a visit to the Shrine at Ste. Anne de Beaupre, and intended remaining in Quebec for a few days before returning to Hamilton. She ate her supper at the hotel, and shortly afterward retired to her room. Congestion of the lungs brought on by indigestion, is believed to be the cause of death.

South Bruce Appeal Dropped.

Toronto, June 21.—The hearing of the South Bruce election appeal at Osgoode Hall yesterday was virtually disposed of and the formal disposition would have been signed had it not been for the absence of counsel for the Liberal candidate, Reuben Truax. Eric Armour, junior counsel for the Conservative candidate, said it had been decided to drop the appeal, and, accordingly, the riding remains Liberal.

"SUCH A PLACE."

Hyde Park Corner, London, Thus Contemptuously Spoken of.

That the Duke of York was justified in calling Hyde park corner "such a place," is not to be wondered at, for Lord Macaulay, describing the district at the close of the reign of Charles II., says: "He who then rambled to what is now the gayest and most crowded part of Regent street, found himself in a solitude, and was sometimes so fortunate as to have a shot at a woodcock." Horace Walpole, writing in 1791, says: "I have twice been going to stop my coach in Piccadilly, thinking there was a mob, and it was only nymphs and swains saunteering. Indeed the town is so extended that the breed of chairs (Sedan) is almost lost, for Hercules and Atlas could not carry anybody from one end of this enormous capital to the other." Walpole lived himself in Arlington street, which occupies the site of Goring house, said to have been built in Piccadilly. The ball of fashion once set rolling other mansions quickly sprang up, amongst them being Burlington house (now the Royal Academy), Clarendon house, Berkeley house, and Devonshire house, the latter still the residence of the Duke of Devonshire. It was in Piccadilly, at Devonshire house, that Dickens, Lord Lytton, Douglas Jerrold, John Leech, and Maclise appeared before Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort in Not so Bad as We Seem. Arthur, Duke of Wellington, lived at the western end of Piccadilly, and Lady Hamilton—beloved of England's hero, Nelson—starved at the other.

MR. BARTON'S OPINION

The Australian Premier Talks of A Customs Union.

IS NOT PRACTICAL POLITICS.

Intercolonial Free Trade Would Deprive the Colonies of Too Much Revenue—Mutual Tariff Concessions Within the Empire Stood on a More Practical Basis—What He Hopes For.

London, June 21.—In an interview yesterday, on the forthcoming colonial conference, Edmund Barton, Premier of Australia, said he considered that an imperial customs union was not within the bounds of practical politics, though it might be possible many years hence. But any empire free trade now would deprive the young communicants of their main source of revenue, namely, the customs, and render it impossible to carry on their internal Government successfully. Mutual tariff concessions within the empire stood on a more practical basis, and he hoped to see the difficulties in the way of such concessions, removed.

KAISER UPHOLDS CHURCH.

Says Empire Is Rooted in Simplicity an the Fear of God.

Aix-la-Chappelle, Prussia, June 21.—A striking speech on religion was delivered by Emperor William here last night, after his arrival at Aix-la-Chappelle, accompanied by the Empress and the Crown Prince Frederick William, on his way from Bonn where Their Majesties attended the celebration of the combined centennial of the raising of the Bonn Hussars and the establishment of the Borrusia corps of students, of which His Majesty and the Crown Prince are members.

The Emperor said: "It must not be forgotten that the empire was rooted in simplicity and fear of God. I look at all priests and laymen, to help me uphold religion among the people in order that the German name may preserve its health and strength. This applies equally to the two creeds, Catholic and Protestant.

"It is with pride and joy that I am able to tell you that the Pope said to my special ambassador who went to Rome on the occasion of the Holy Father's jubilee, that he had always kept a high opinion of the piety of the Germans, and especially of that of the German army. The Pope asked my ambassador to tell his sovereign that the country in Europe, where control, order and discipline still prevailed, with respect for authority and regard for the Church, and where the Church could live, was the German empire, and for that the Papal See was indebted to the German Emperor."

AFTER WELSH COAL.

American Dealers Compelled to Look Abroad For Relief.

New York, June 21.— The anthracite coal strike is compelling many large local dealers to look abroad for relief. Manager Herbert, of Herbert & Co., coal dealers, said yesterday that he had communicated with anthracite mine owners in Cardiff, Wales, for the importation of a supply of anthracite. He expects a reply to-day. He wants broken anthracite suitable for use in locomotives and furnaces. This class of coal previous to the strike sold for about $4.50 a ton. He expects if he makes a deal with the Welsh mine owners it will cost $8.00 a ton in New York.

Coal Famine in Three Months.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 21.—It is estimated by W. B. Wilson, secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers' of America, that the present supply of bituminous and anthracite coal above ground will be exhausted in less than three months if there should be a general suspension of work in the mines.

Junction Joe's Flight.

Toronto Junction, June 21.—Editor Joseph A. Clarke, of The Klondike Miner, and formerly of Brockville, is in jail for some time at Dawson City, for contempt of court in criticizing court officials, who, it was alleged, failed to suppress gambling. The farewell issue of the paper was dated May 31, but just at the time of going to press the editor was released on bonds furnished by Rev. Dr. Grant. In an article under the heading of "Not Dead Yet" is the following: "Just before going to press, we are assured by a party of five friends that the expense of running off next week's issue, to give an account of the prosecutions, would be met by their personal subscriptions, so that we will appear again, jail or no jail."

No Evidence Against Kane.

Toronto, June 21.—When the street railway cases were called in the Police Court yesterday, it was announced by Crown Attorney Curry that there was no evidence against John Kane, proprietor of the Ocean House, at the junction of King and Queen streets, charged with receiving stolen property, and he was, therefore, discharged. Theodore Murphy, who keeps a barber shop adjoining the Ocean House, who was also charged with receiving, was remanded for a week. Alfred Ferguson and Joseph Henry, conductors, were committed for trial. Albert Cooper, the last of the accused conductors to be tried, was remanded till next Friday.

His Last Chance.

Ottawa, June 21.—T. C. Robinette K.C., has been notified that he will be heard before the Minister of Justice to present his argument in favor of clemency for Fred Lee Rice, now under sentence of death for murder.

Sounded Like It.

"Miss Flyppe," said the hostess, "permit me to present Mr. Hogg, author of those clever lines on 'An Arctic Courtship' which appeared in The Gulf Stream Magazine last month."

"I am glad to meet you, Mr. Hogg," said the young woman. "Pardon the question, but is that your real name?"

"Certainly," he replied, bristling up. "Did you think it was my pen name?"

CATTLE FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

A Shipment Has Already Been Made From Texas—50,000 in All May Be Sent.

Fort William, Texas, June 21. — One of the most comprehensive deals in Texas cattle had its initiative in the shipment of 60 head of Texas cattle from Pensacola, Fla. The shipment is intended as the first of many thousands to be used in restocking the depleted veldts of South Africa.

Walter D. S. Maude was at one time a member of the 67th Highlanders, later the owner of Moon Ranch in the Texas handle, later a lieutenant in a British regiment in the Boer war, and at present holding a major's commission in the British army. Richard Carrow, the other member of the firm that made the shipment, is owner of the Windhorst Ranch in Clay County. It is understood that these two gentlemen have a contract to supply the British Government with young breeding cattle in South Africa.

The shipment from Pensacola consisted of bulls and heifers, high grades and pure bloods, none of which were over 3 years old.

Should this initial shipment turn out well it is the purpose of Messrs. Maude & Carrow to follow it with others, each aggregating 10,000 head, until 50,000 head have been sent to South Africa.

By virtue of the regulations established by the British Government, the whole of the shipment from Pensacola were inoculated for tuberculosis before embarkation.

When Kitchener Sails.

Cape Town, June 20.—Lord Kitchener will arrive here from Pretoria on June 28, and will sail hence for England the same day.

Lord Methuen's Wish.

London, June 21.—General Lord Methuen, who was severely wounded and captured by the Boers at Tweebosch, Transvaal, has written from South Africa to his family at Corsham Court, Wiltshire, England, asking them to induce his friends and neighbors to permit him to return home without any demonstrations of welcome, out of respect to the many comrades he has lost in the war.

Of Our Soldiers.

Ottawa, June 21.—The following members of the 2nd Regiment C.M.R. were invalided to England per SS. Manhatton, from Cape Town, on May 15: No. 985, Trooper T. Lake; No. 94, Trooper C. Davidson.

A cable was received yesterday announcing the dangerous illness with enteric fever, at Standerton, of Warren Craig, C.A. Division, S. A. C. His father lives at Newcastle.

Jumped to Death.

Stratford, June 21.— Mrs. Richard Skuce, an aged inmate of the House of Refuge, jumped from an upper window yesterday morning, and when found was dead. No bones were broken, but she was killed by the shock. Deceased had been in poor health for some time, and, being slightly deranged, has been under restraint, but in the temporary absence of her husband she went to her death as stated.

Murderer Gordon Hanged.

Brandon, Man., June 21.—The execution of Walter Gordon for the murder of Charles Daw and Jacob Smith was carried out without a hitch. The doomed man walked to the scaffold accompanied by his spiritual adviser and jail officials, without the faintest sign of fear.

Furness' Big Purchase.

London, June 21.—It is announced that Sir Christopher Furness, the well known ship owner, has bought the Gulf Line of Greenock. The line consists of six vessels, aggregating 19,502 tons.

Advertising in the Examiner brings the best results.

WITHOUT A BONUS.

Two B.C. Roads to Be Built Without Government Aid.

Vancouver, B.C., June 21.—President Hendry of the projected Vancouver, Victoria and Alaska announced yesterday that, weary of waiting for bonuses from the Dominion, his company would connect with the Great Northern at Westminster bringing the Great Northern Road direct to Vancouver, under the Vancouver, Victoria and Alaska charter, and also extend the line from Westminster, through the rich coal and precious mineral belts of Kootenay, connecting with the Great Northern, under the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern charter, at the boundary, in Kootenay. Both lines will be built without bonuses.

Gave $10,000 To Feed.

Toronto, June 21.—Mr. Elias Rogers, managing director of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company, has returned from a trip to Fernie, B.C. Seen yesterday, he said the company has done all it could to alleviate present distress among the survivors of the 126 miners who were lost in the recent disaster. It has paid all funeral expenses and provided for immediate necessities. Besides it has subscribed $10,000 to the permanent relief fund. It has borne the expense of recovering the bodies, at an average of nearly $300 a day, and the work has been going on since May 22.

A relief committee has been formed in Fernie, composed of two members of the Board of Trade, two ministers, the manager of the Bank of Commerce, accountant of the coal company, and a solicitor. When Mr. Rogers left over $30,000 had been subscribed to the permanent relief fund.

Mrs. Mighton Asphyxiated.

Toronto, June 21.—Mrs. S. J. Mighton, a middle-aged woman, was found dead in her bed at her home, 155 Denison avenue, yesterday morning. Death was due to asphyxiation. Mrs. Mighton was the wife of a commercial traveler now in Winnipeg. She had been living alone, and the neighbors had been missing her since Monday. Yesterday morning, George Mitchell of the City Waterworks Office, went along the balcony, which opens off the front room upstairs, and looked into Mrs. Mighton's room. He saw the woman lying dead. Policeman Young was called, and the officer forced the door. The gas jet was turned on full in the room. The constable had some difficulty getting into the room, as she had barricaded the door. This led at first to the theory that it was a case of suicide, but other circumstances disproved this theory. An investigation will be held.

BENT DOUBLE WITH BACKACHE

A Severe Case of Backache, Urinary Trouble, Dizziness and Headache Which Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets Cured Completely.

Another Lindsay Gentleman who has Reason to Thank Dr. Pitcher for His Splendid Remedy.

Not long ago we published in this paper an account of the remarkable recovery of Mr. Jas. Murdock, of Lindsay, Ont., who was cured of a very severe attack of kidney and bladder trouble by Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, after two prominent Lindsay doctors had failed to help him.

It was through hearing of Mr. Murdock's cure that Mr. George Duke, a well known and highly respectable Lindsay young man, in the employ of Mr. W. S. Braund of that town, to try Dr. Pitcher's remedy for the distressing backache and kidney complaints with which he was afflicted, and for which he could find no relief in ordinary treatment.

What Mr Duke Says:

"I feel it my duty to add my few words in praise of a remedy that has such merit as Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets.

"For some months I had been troubled with a severe pain in the back, so bad at times that I was bent nearly double and to stoop over or rise up caused me a great deal of suffering. My bladder was also affected, and at times it was irritable, and I had to go quite often both day and night. Then again the urine was scanty and of a high colour. In addition to this I was troubled with headache, dizziness and a general feeling of sickness.

"In the regions of the kidneys there was considerable tenderness, and I could not bear to be touched on account of the pain. I noticed in the papers the testimony of Mr. Jas. Murdock of this town, and made up my mind to try the Tablets. I am thankful I did. They worked wonders. They gave me relief and helped me after the first half box, and when I had used them for a time I was completely cured. I am feeling splendid now — not a pain or ache. Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets positively cured me, and I am glad to have this opportunity of telling you what the Tablets have done for me."

(Signed) GEO. DUKE."

Mr. Braund's Confirmation.

"I may say that Mr. Geo. Duke is a clerk in my employ, and was for a time in the condition above stated by himself.

"I know that he has been taking Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets and that he is now well and working every day. He says he was cured by these Tablets and I believe him."

(Signed) "W. S. BRAUND."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are entirely different from the common kidney pills you hear about. They are prepared by the eminent Kidney Specialist, Dr. Zina Pitcher, and are the newest and most up-to-date treatment for backache, lame or weak back, swelling of the legs and feet, bloating and dropsical conditions, pain or distress in urination, sediment in the urine, too frequent calls during the day or night, rheumatism, dragging pains in the loins, mist before the eyes, persistent headaches, dizzy spells, kidney troubles of women, kidney weaknesses of children and old people, and all forms of kidney, bladder and urinary difficulties.

What the Nobility Wear.

Rules and regulations governing what is to be worn by the nobility at the King's coronation have been issued by the Earl Marshal. The peers were notified that their robes must be of "crimson velvet, edged with miniver, the cape furred with miniver pure, and powdered, with bars or rows of ermine, according to their degree." Barons will wear two rows, viscounts two rows and a half, earls three rows, marquises three and a half and dukes four rows. These mantles will be worn over "full court dress, uniforms or regimentals."

Only the King and Queen and the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall will wear jeweled coronets. The Earl Marshal's order banishes counterfeit pearls and all jewels from other coronets, which are to be "silver gilt, the caps of crimson velvet, turned with ermine, with gold tassels on top. No jewels or precious stones are to be set or used in coronets, nor counterfeits of pearls instead of silver balls." The number of the latter permitted revives a nice sense of distinction. A baron's coronet bears six silver balls, a viscount's sixteen, an earl's eight, with gold strawberry leaves between; a marquis' four balls and four leaves alternately. A duke's coronet has no balls and has only eight strawberry leaves.

The robes, mantles and coronets to be worn by the peeresses are of the same material as the men's, with similar graduations in the number of bars of ermine and balls. The length of the trains marks the difference in rank. A baroness is only allowed a train of three feet, a viscount has one and a quarter yards, countesses have one and a half yards, a marchioness has one and three-quarters yards and a duchess two yards.

crowned, and his intention to wear a white coronation robe became known, the Earl of Pembroke strove strongly to dissuade him from his purpose, but to no effect.

What Intermittency Means.

Intermittency is that form of irregularity in which the pulse appears to drop a beat occasionally. In some instances it occurs regularly and two or three times per minute for several hours. Sometimes, also, it is very irregular and is noted a number of times within a few seconds and not again for a minute or more. This peculiarity generally causes much uneasiness. Yet, while it may be a very serious symptom and associated with grave and incurable disease of the heart, it often signifies merely a functional disturbance which is in nowise dangerous.

Plenty of Work For the Club.

"What does the society which you have just joined find to do?" asked Mrs. Rizzle's husband.

"A great deal," was the answer. "After we get an organization established the question of other people's eligibility to membership gives us all the work we can possibly attend to."

A Family Necessity.

"Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. Hosts of families would not think of being without them. One pill a dose, 25 cts. a box.

What is He Saying?

The young man is one of those up-to-date clerks. The lady has come to enquire about Alexander's Good Winter ALABASTINE.

He says, "these goods are superior to anything you can use. Alabastine has removed for ever, dirty, and dangerous, that permits of repapering your other year, doing away with the many annoyances of washing and repapering the walls as you have to do if Alabastine is used."

"Walls coated with Alabastine are sanitary, as the advice of the late passage of all, which contract conference have written in "walls coated to a healthy home." You may have observed the clean, pretty smell in a papered room. This is because the paper obstructs wall respiration; and then the muddy paste used to apply the paper stick mists an unhealthy odour. Especially is this so in damp weather.

He hands the lady a circular of data with directions, requesting her to write the Company for further particulars and suggestions how to decorate her home, and gives the names of painters who can rely upon to do first class work such as Alabastine is adapted to.

The accounts were ordered to be paid and a hearty vote of thanks tendered to the committee. A motion was passed changing the regular meeting to every second week instead of every week, and on the second and fourth Mondays of each month. The Finance Committee presented a report and passed a number of accounts.

A VISITOR FROM NEW ONTARIO.

Rev. Thos. Dodds, of Emo, Brings Cheering News of Progress.

Rev. Thomas Dodds, Presbyterian Minister at Emo, Rainy River District, is spending a couple of weeks at home, with his father, Mr. Thomas Dodds, of South Monaghan. Rev. Mr. Dodds was in town to-day. He brings cheering reports of progress in all departments of that new country. The advent of the railway has given a great impulse to settlement and lands are being eagerly sought. Early settlers have taken heart and are extending clearings, erecting better buildings and generally improving their holdings. They now feel like permanent residents. The building of the railway has brought them in touch with the outer world and broken the isolation which, especially in winter, shut them up in their primitive surroundings. The building of the railway has brought them many comforts and conveniences which they fully appreciate. It has also stimulated other industries than farming. Along the Rainy River, though the railway only began running late last autumn half a dozen new saw mills have sprung into operation, and including other sections, between a dozen and a score of new mills have come into being through the building of the railway. The Ontario Government was wise when it liberally helped the construction of this line, the Ontario and Rainy River, and one has only to look through the district benefitted and note the almost magic results, to be convinced of the wisdom of the policy of the Government in assisting and encouraging railway construction in a new country as one of the prime and, even indispensable, conditions of rapid settlement and development.

THE STRIKE IS ON.

Not a Street Car Wheel Turning in Toronto.

MR. A. E. AMES' OFFER.

Would Give $10,000 to Avoid the Strike but the Company's Offer was Rejected.

Toronto, June 21.—The street railway employees shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, decided to strike, and as a result not a car wheel is turning in the city this morning. The morning was wet, and tens of thousands of people had to walk to work through a drizzling rain. Before the vote was taken President A. E. Ames, of the Board of Trade, addressed the meeting and declared that if the men would accept the company's offer of a scale of wages beginning at 17c. and going up to 21c. an hour, according to length of service, he would be glad to-morrow to give to the National Trust Company his personal check for $10,000, to be placed to the credit of the pension fund of the employees of the Toronto Street Railway Co., to be held there for one year and if at the end of that time there had been no strike the President of that Company would hand over the money to the control of a committee appointed by the conductors and motormen. "I simply offer this," said Mr. Ames in conclusion, "as an evidence of the interest I take as a citizen of Toronto." The vote on the Company's offer was taken in open session, and resulted in the rejection of the offer by 545 votes 273. The men then went into executive session and voted to strike.

THE KING'S OAK.

A proposal comes from the Old Country that every municipality plant an oak to commemorate the crowning of the King. The idea is a good one for loyal, patriotic and practical reasons. There are in Ontario alone about 500 municipalities and the planting of 500 sturdy trees to be known as the "King's Oak" would be a lasting memorial of the great event of the reign of the present soverign of the Empire. But it it is too late now to do the planting except by an expensive process involving the bodily removal of the growing tree with roots undisturbed. It is impossible at this season of the year to successfully transplant a tree in the ordinary way. The processes of nature refuse to be coerced; even royalty must submit. Even to commemorate the crowning of the ruler of the greatest Empire, existent or historical, we can't transplant the growing time backward to permit of the successful transplanting of trees. The King's birthday has been set back five or six months to make it synchronous with the birthday of his predecessor, and it is only sentimental reasons that can be advanced in favour of planting a tree on June 26th. Let us agree, and to secure uniformity, let the Government issue a proclamation requesting every municipality to plant a tree some time this coming autumn or some time the coming spring in memory of the coronation of Edward VII. Again sentiment is the only plea for restricting the kind of tree to an oak. Why not let it be a tree of any permanent kind—oak where it can be conveniently procured, or an elm which will grow well in any soil, and thrive for generations. And why restrict the number of trees to the number of municipalities? Why not have every householder plant a tree, to be known as the "King's tree"? Or to extend the idea, why not plant a tree for every member of the family, assigning it by a subtitle to each member, who will thereby be apt to take a personal interest in its preservation, and be personally and more closely connected with the central authority of the Empire? The country is pining for trees. The parched lands and sun-smitten slopes of our hills, once "with verdure clad," are arid and forbidding in appearance. The natural reservoirs — the areas of dense forest — of the waters, that once in the form of rippling runnels, babbling brooks, and mill-driving streams, threaded the land with liquid silver, are now laid bare to the work of the sun-pump. The snows that melt precipitately in spring, or the rains that fall in summer, rush down to the sea in torrents that gutter our hill slopes, and leave arid areas behind them, instead of being held in Nature's reservoirs, the spongy mat of fallen leafage, and leisurely oozing out through the hot days of summer. These conditions, and even the physical absence of trees, have a bearing upon our weather conditions that injuriously affects the growth of our crops and the success of agricultural operations. If every year a tree is planted for every citizen of our two millions and a half of Ontario population, one can readily see what an important addition to our tree growth would result. And if this idea were elaborated and applied every year, it would not be long before the climatic conditions, which have been disastrously changed by the destruction of forest growth would be restored to their former genial shape. If some person of influence, if, say, the Forestry Bureau, backed by Government influence, would take up this idea and bring about an organized and systematic adoption of tree planting, with the commemoration feature as the central idea, sentimental considerations would be amply met, and practical considerations of a most important character would be deferred to. Plant this idea in the popular mind, and the planting of trees will follow. The idea is a good one. The matter of details is, where practical, common sense and practical application of the benefits of reforestration can be made to result in a great national gain.

PERSONALS.

Mr. George Matthews, Sr., and Mr. Jos. Matthews, of Lindsay, leave on Tuesday for England.

Miss Ruby Burnham and Miss Maud Perry intend leaving shortly on a three months trip to Europe.

The Globe; Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, has received an invitation to be present at a picnic in aid of St. John's church, at Arthur, Wellington County, on Thursday, June 26th.

To-morrow will be Rev. D. O. Crossley's last Sunday in Peterborough. He will preach at both services in the Charlotte street church. In the evening he will give a half-song sermon, singing twice himself, with guitar accompaniment.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Alice Roger, formerly of Peterborough, who is now residing in the Mauritius Islands, to Dr. McCormack, surgeon of the India Line of steamers. It was Dr. McCormack's father whose name was connected with the early stages of the trouble in South Africa.

Miss Mona O'Shea has returned to town to spend the holidays with her parents at the Commercial Hotel, after a successful term at St. Joseph's Academy, Toronto. Miss Mona received second class honours in theory of music, awarded by Dr. Ham, first class honours for instrumental music by Mr. Tripp, second class honours in vocal music by Mrs. J. W. Bradley, G.O.M.

Mr. J. M. Walker, formerly of the Perth Courier, spent a day or two in town on his way home, and favoured the Examiner with a call. Mr. Walker is an instance of virtue's reward. He is one of the few newspaper men who have "made their pile," and are able to lead a life of leisure on the proceeds of their industry. While in town Mr. Walker visited our leading industries, and is in general well pleased with the thrift of the town, which has, in his opinion, greatly improved, since his last visit.

WANTED JUSTICE.

What the Local Police Magistrate has to Contend With.

The following is an actual sample of what the Police Magistrate has to deal with every day:

(The Magistrate's office. 11 a.m. The Magistrate very busy. Enters an old lady.)

"So you are the Magistrate?"

"I am; what can I do for you?"

"Well, I sold a lot to Mr. and Mrs. ——, and they took possession, and Mrs. —— gathered up all the tins and dirt and put them on to my side, and says she, 'I didn't buy your old tins,' and I says, 'You bought the land with the tins,' and I gathered them all up and threw them over on her side, and she gathered them up again and put them on my side, and I won't stand that, so I put them back again on her side, and that night her husband came home, and what do you think he did? He dumped them in the garden! Who could stand that?"

The Magistrate — "And how much would it have cost you to gather them up, and cast them away?"

"Never mind; I am not going to stand the like of that. I want justice."

"Well, my good lady, it would cost you $3 to deal with the matter in court, when you could have had the tins carted away for 25 cents, and still been on good terms with your neighbour."

"Can't I get justice? I'll see about it!"

And out she goes in a terrible passion, evidently thinking that she had suffered a great injustice.

BABIES WITH WORMS.

A Grateful Mother Tells how Her Little Boy was Cured.

Mrs. A. Sauve, Rowanton, Que., is another happy mother who thanks Baby's Own Tablets for the health of her boy. The little fellow became the prey of worms — that curse of childhood. His rosy cheeks lost their colour; his little legs and arms became skinny; his eyes lost their sparkle, and he became sickly and peevish. His sleep was restless and feverish and his food seemed to do him no good. His anxious mother almost despaired of seeing him back again to good health. However, she heard of Baby's Own Tablets and gave them to her child and now she says; "The Tablets made a wonderful change in my little boy. All signs of worms have disappeared, and he is now in the best of health. I can honestly say that Baby's Own Tablets have no equal as a cure for worms.

Baby's Own Tablets are a certain cure for all the minor ailments of little ones, such as constipation colic, sour stomach, indigestion, diarrhoea, simple fever and the irritation accompanying the cutting of teeth. Guaranteed to contain none of the poisonous opiates found in the so-called "soothing" medicines. They are for children of all ages and dissolved in water can be given with absolute safety to a new born babe. Sold by druggists at 25 cents a box, or sent postpaid on receipt of price, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LACROSSE.

The Athletics and Y.M.C.A. came together last night on the Nicholls Oval in a city league match. The result was a victory for the Athletics by a score of 6 to 1. Of course the "Y's" were considerably weakened last night by the absence of Frost and Smith and had they been on the team the score might not have been so one-sided. There was not quite as large an attendance as on the occasion of the last match, but much enthusiasm was desplayed. During the game, Ernie Wasson, of the Athletics met with a slight accident that forced him to retire from the game. The game was refereed by Mr. Joe Begley. The teams were as follows:

Y. M. C. A.		Athletics.

Athletic field captain, A. W. MacPherson.

At a meeting of the C.L.A. Executive in Toronto yesterday Myles McDonough was reinstated, which action will enable him to figure on the Port Hope team on July 1st, when Oshawa plays in that town.

There is some talk of having the next city league game take place on Wednesday night next. This does not strike the majority of the people as a suitable night as the following day is a holiday and the stores of the town will be open until a late hour on Wednesday evening. There are of course, quite a number of the players who are employees of stores and their duties would conflict. Again the 57th Regiment goes away that evening to Belleville and quite a number of the lacrosse boys belong to the regiment. It is to be hoped therefore that the executive will not order the teams to play on Wednesday night.

BOWLING-ON-THE-GREEN.

Skips Robt. Kerr and Ed. Cox had a great game last night, standing a tie on the 14th and concluding round, when the score was 12 all. The extra end was won by Skip Kerr. The rinks were composed as follows;

C. Seymour	W. Talbot
A. W. Spence	C. F. Holmes
E. B. Stone	W. J. Green
R. Kerr, sk.....13	E W Cox, sk...12

The games scheduled for Monday evening next, are as appended:

H. Armstrong vs. W. Salisbury.
F. H. Dixon vs. H. Rush.
M. Green vs. J. M. Brooks.
Dr. McClelland vs. C. N. Brown.

Each skip is requested to have his men on hand by 7.15 o'clock sharp.

The schedule has been issued in book form and may be secured on application to the Secretary-Treasurer, to whom dues may also be paid.

GOLF.

The Golf Colts have been invited to Sturgeon Point to play the Lindsay Club on Coronation Day. About a dozen players are expected to go over. The return match will probably be played here on July 1st.

LETTER FROM MR. W. J. GAGE.

$30,000 Needed to Maintain the Free Hospital for Consumptives—An Urgent Call for Help—"No Needy Consumptive Debarred Admission"—A Great Work of Faith.

The following letter, above the signature of Mr. W. J. Gage, chairman of the National Sanitarium Association, is sent out to the public, and carries its own explanation and importance. Mr. Gage says;—

"On behalf of the Trustees of the National Sanitarium Association I wish to sincerely thank the many friends in all parts of the Dominion who have so generously responded to the appeal of the Association for funds to equip and maintain the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Muskoka—the amount so far received totalling nearly $8,000. An appeal for $10,000 was made for the purpose of equipment and maintenance of the Free Hospital, and although only about three-quarters of the amount, up to the present, has been secured, we began to receive patients in April, applications for admission becoming so urgent. It costs over $5.00 a week to maintain each patient. This includes board, medical attendance, nursing, etc. Accommodation will be provided for one hundred patients, which will mean an outlay for maintenance alone of more than $30,000 yearly. The building is the gift of two Toronto citizens. You have generously provided the money to furnish and equip. There is no endowment. The Trustees rest solely on the big-heartedness of the Canadian public to provide money for the maintenance of 100 patients yearly, and in this faith they are receiving patients, allowing no needy consumptive to be debarred admission, however poor his or her circumstances, who can meet the medical requirements of the institution. Applications for admission are not simply pressing, but absolutely distressing, showing the importance of the work and emphasizing, what we believe to be the case, that this is the greatest charity before the Canadian people to-day. It is the only Free Hospital for Consumptives in Canada—other hospitals, and even private homes, refusing accommodation for those suffering from this dread disease. The letters that we are receiving daily give evidence of the terrible need there is for just such an institution. The Trustees have faith that the people of this prosperous Dominion will furnish the Association with the required amount to meet every call upon it—that none may be turned away—and in this spirit the doors have been opened and the work is being carried on."

Subscriptions may be sent to Hon. Sir Wm. R. Meredith, Kt., Chief Justice, 4 Lamport Ave., Toronto; W. J. Gage, Esq., 54 Front St. West, Toronto, or to the National Trust Co., Limited, Treasurer, 22 King street East, Toronto.

Paris, June 21.— Anthony Shoendorf, of New York, 72 years old, threw himself in front of a locomotive on the Paris Belt Railway, at the Courcelles station, yesterday. Both legs were cut off below the knees, and he will die.

ATTEMPT TO STEAL THE CROWN.

Description of Col. Blood's Daring Attempt in 1671.

This story is apropos just now: Colonel Blood's attempt to carry off the Crown and Royal jewels from the Tower in 1671 was made with great deliberation. Three weeks before the event he appeared in the guise of a parson, and having ingratiated himself with Edwards, the keeper of the jewel house, proposed to find a wealthy suitor for his only daughter. Early on the morning of May 9 Edwards prepared to receive his guest, and the daughter was in her best dress to entertain her expected lover. When Parson Blood appeared he was accompanied by three men. They had no sooner entered the room and shut the door than a cloak was thrown over the keeper's head and a gag put in his mouth. Thus secured they told him that their resolution was to have the crown, orb and sceptre; and if he would quietly submit to it they would spare his life, otherwise he was to expect no mercy. He thereupon made all the noise he could, when he was knocked down and stabbed. He lay in so senseless a state that one of the villains pronounced him dead. The booty was next secured, Blood secreting the crown under his cloak and another the orb, while another was about to file the sceptre in two when a son of the keeper appeared. This spread confusion among the party, and they decamped with the crown and orb, leaving the sceptre behind. Blood fired at one of the warders, but was arrested, and had the impudence to struggle for his prey, and when the crown was finally wrested from him, he said, "it was a gallant attempt." Charles II. being informed of this extraordinary outrage ordered Blood and his companions to be brought to Whitehall to be examined in his presence. As the result they were not only pardoned but Blood was restored into favor, had £500 a year conferred on him, and was admitted to the private intimacy of that abandoned Court.

THE QUEEN CONSORT.

A FATHER'S ADVICE.

Young Toronto Lady's Health is Saved by her Parent's Experience and Good Advice—He Knew Because he had Tried and Proven.

How many times have a parent's earnest words spoken in tenderness and backed by the wisdom of years of experience, served to benefit the son or daughter.

Jas. Beatty of Kilworthy, Ont., is well known to many people from Toronto right through to Parry Sound.

Some years ago Mr. Beatty suffered a great deal with acute stomach trouble. He could find scarcely anything as food that did not give him much distress and pain after eating. He was very careful in his diet, but notwithstanding all his care he endured a great deal of pain. He tried many medicines but could not get any relief. Someone suggested Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, but at first Mr. Beatty demurred, saying, "I suppose they are like all the rest."

At last, however, he consented to try them, and he soon found the difference. He was completely cured. He says, "Now, thank goodness, I can eat what I choose, and the doctor is in my pocket through Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"My daughter, Miss Minnie Beatty, was up from Toronto about seven months ago, and I thought she looked very thin, so I induced her to try the medicine that had done so much for me.

"She used three bottles, and from the beginning of the treatment she grew better.

"Six months later she came home again on a short visit and we were all surprised and delighted in the change in her.

"They have made me feel like a different man, and they have done so much for my daughter that I am sure that I cannot express my gratitude.

"I always recommend Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets for Dyspepsia and all Stomach Troubles."

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have cured thousands of just such cases as that of Mr. Beatty and his daughter, and reports of other victories are coming in every day.

His Passion.

A negro man went into Mr. E.'s office for the purpose of instituting a divorce against his wife. Mr. E. proceeded to question him as to his grounds for complaint. Noticing that the man's voice failed him, Mr. E. looked up from his papers and saw that big tears were running down over the cheeks of the applicant for divorce.

"Why," said the lawyer, "you seem to care a great deal for your wife? Did you love her?"

"Love her, sir? I jest analysed her!"

This was more than professional dignity could withstand, and Mr. E. laughed until the negro, offended, carried his case elsewhere.

Squandered a Fortune.

How often we hear the expression, notwithstanding the fact that those who use it are perhaps spending their money foolishly in medicines which only give relief without removing the cause. Merrill's System Tonic cures heart, stomach, kidney, nerve, and liver troubles—because by purifying the blood, regulating the bowels and toning each of these organs the cause of disease is removed. Price 50 cents per bottle at Ormond & Walsh's drug store.

A REMARKABLE CASE

Told by Mr. Orlin Post, of Grumidge, Manitoba.

Suffered Greatly for Five Years From Rheumatism—Doctors and Many Medicines Failed to Help Him, but he got the Right Medicine at Last.

(From the Echo, Dominion City, Man.)

Recently while chatting with a reporter of the Echo, Mr. Orlin Post, a well known farmer of Grumidge, Man., gave the following story of five years of great suffering from that most painful of diseases—rheumatism. Mr. Post said: "There are few people, unless they have been similarly afflicted, can understand how much I suffered during those five years from the pains of rheumatism. There were times when I was wholly unable to do any work, and to merely attempt to move my limbs caused the greatest agony. I tried several doctors but they seemed quite unable to cure me. Then I tried several advertised medicines, that were highly recommended for this trouble, but they also failed to bring the longed for release from pain. As these medicines failed me one after the other, I began to look upon the trouble as incurable, and was almost in despair. At this time some friends asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to make at least one more effort to obtain a cure. I knew my case was not only a severe one, but from the failure of other medicines a stubborn one, and I determined that the pills should have a fair trial, so I bought a dozen boxes. I took them according to directions, and before they were gone there was a great improvement in my condition, but I was not fully cured. I then got another half dozen boxes, and by the time the third of them were emptied I had not an ache or a pain left, and was able to do a good hard day's work without feeling any of the torture that had for five years made my life miserable. You may say for me that I do not think there is any medicine in the world can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a cure for rheumatism. It is several years since my cure was effected, and as I have never since had the least sign of the trouble, I think I can speak with authority."

When such severe cases as this are entirely cured it is not surprising that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made such a great reputation throughout the world for the cure of other diseases due to poor or watery blood. Paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, anaemia, consumption, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart, nervous headache, female ailments and neuralgia are among the other troubles they have cured in thousands of cases. Only the genuine pill will cure—substitutes never cured anything—and to avoid substitutes you must see that the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" is on the wrapper around every box. These pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or will be sent post free at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

To Dissipate an Orange.

It is not generally known that an orange hit in the exact center by a rifle ball will vanish at once from sight. Such, however, is the fact. Shooting it through the center scatters it in such infinitesimal pieces that it is at once lost to sight.

A Substantial Dinner.

A suggestion for what may be designated as a substantial dinner: Cream of celery, boiled leg of mutton, caper sauce; boiled potatoes, young carrots boiled, lettuce salad, water biscuits toasted, and coffee.

Strength of Brick.

It has been discovered that the weight required to crush a square inch of brick varies from 1,200 to 4,500 pounds.

Hornets' Nests Baskets.

The nests of South American hornets are used by the natives as baskets, being light, strong and so tight as to be waterproof. They are cleared of the partitions and cells of the interior and, with handles affixed, make useful domestic utensils.

Invention of Printing.

The honor of the invention of printing has been claimed by Mainz, Strassburg, Haarlem, Venice, Rome, Florence, Pasel and Augsburg. The first three are entitled to consideration.

A Rest "Hour."

A rest "hour" of from fifteen to sixty minutes, taken in the middle of the day after eating, is of more value in preserving the equilibrium than all the known tonics.

The Garden.

In planning the garden every inch should be utilized, either for grass or flowers. No corner so dark or poor that ferns and myosotis will not thrive there, and even the "rubbish heap" may be transformed into a charming rockery with small cost or labor.

Served in Style.

At the table of Cambaceres a sturgeon of 187 pounds was served, brought on by four footmen, preceded by two flutists, four violinists and a Swiss guardsman, halberd in hand.

Newfoundland Dogs.

Newfoundland dogs were originally natives of that country and Labrador, from which circumstance they received their title. In the same manner the noblest Bernards are so called from the famous monastery of that name in the Alps.

Tardy Naming.

The children of the Ainos, a people living in northern Japan, do not receive their names until they are five years old. It is the father who then chooses the name by which the child is afterward called.

Tea in China.

Chinese annals as remote as 2000 B. C. spoke of the cultivation of tea and classified it almost as perfectly as is done today. Its virtues were discovered by accident.

The Nile of Yore.

The ancient historians say that over 1,000 miles of the lower Nile were protected by artificial embankments and other works of engineering skill.

HEADDRESSES.

Some Quaint Considerations on the Cap of Estate.

Mr. St. John Hope, in a note in a recent book upon English Coronation Records, contributes some interesting testimony upon the subject of headdresses—the cap of estate or the cap of maintenance, as the technical name is. The note explains the origin and use of such caps, not only by the Sovereign, but also by peers and peeresses. One English paper in commenting upon the matter remarks: "We are afraid, however, that the historic truths here put forth will not avail to upset the debased precedents of Hanoverian days. The cap of estate of a peer has in recent days degenerated into a mere lining for his coronet. The wearing of both cap and coronet by peeresses has been allowed by courtesy at coronations for at least four centuries. To judge from old pictures, portraits, and effigies, a true coronet encircling a lady's head adds comeliness to the wearer and possesses a certain artistic dignity. The modern notion, however, of stitching a tasseled velvet bag inside a coronet of toy dimensions, and perching the same on a wisp of hair drawn up from the centre of the crown (as shown on the Tussaud sort of model now at Norfolk House), is at once feeble in effect and a mere travesty of historic ornament. It would indeed, be an excellent thing if the peeresses and their advisers would digest the advice supplied by Mr. Hope during the time that will yet elapse before the coming coronation. 'The custom of the peeresses donning their coronets when the Queen is crowned, like the peers at the crowning of the King, is still observed; but it would certainly conduce to the more seemly carrying out of so interesting a ceremony if the coronets of the peeresses were all divested of the bag and tassel, and made large enough to encircle the head and adorn the wearer. The spectacle of some hundreds of ladies busily engaged, at an important point in a solemn religious ceremony, in securing on their heads with long pins or strings a coronet, sometimes of diminutive size, encircling an unbecoming crimson velvet bonnet, cannot, from any point of view, be described as edifying.'"

Away Down in Mexico.

There grows two plants known and used before Columbus discovered America. One is a specific for inflamed membranes and the other a certain cure for bronchitis. Combined with Tar, Tamarac, Tolu and other herbs they go to make up Four T's, the only positive cure known to-day for whooping cough and bronchitis. A 25c. bottle cures an ordinary cough in 24 hours. BLEEDING PILES.

Two Letters From Mr. Walker Explaining the Severity of His Case and the Permanency of His Cure by Using

Some people seem to think that it is too much to claim that Dr. Chase's Ointment will cure every form of piles, but facts go to prove the truth of this claim. These are interesting letters from one who has suffered much and been cured.

In November, 1901, Mr. Sherwood Walker, a fireman on the Canada Atlantic Railway, living at Maduwaska, Ont., writes: "I'm a great sufferer from bleeding piles. Sometimes the protruding piles come down, causing much misery and uneasiness, and at other times I am subject to bleeding piles, and they bleed to such an extent as to make me quite weak. If Dr. Chase's Ointment will cure this awful ailment you will have my everlasting gratitude."

On March 1, 1902, we received the following letter from Mr. Walker, which speaks volumes for Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for piles of the most distressing form. He writes:—"According to my promise, I now take pleasure in writing to you. If you remember, you sent me a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment for bleeding piles some three months ago. I used it faithfully, and can say that it proved a Godsend, for it has entirely cured me of bleeding piles.

"I would have written sooner, but I wanted to be able to tell you that it was a permanent cure. This you can use for the benefit of other suffering people. There are several people here who have been cured of very severe cases of protruding piles by using this great ointment."

So far as we know there is no other preparation extant which is so successful in curing piles of the most aggravated kind as Dr. Chase's Ointment. Its soothing, healing powers are marvellous, and its cures thorough and permanent. Sixty cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 9

EDWIN A. ABBEY, THE AMERICAN ARTIST WHO WILL PAINT THE CORONATION.

EDWIN A ABBEY.

The Artist Who Will Paint King Edward VII's Coronation—Great Compliment to the United States.

His friend and good newspaper man, Truman L. Elton, writes this of Edwin Austin Abbey, who has been selected by King Edward to paint the coronation, of course from the truly American point of view, but we can stand that in such an instance as this:

There is no denying the fact that in selecting Edwin Austin Abbey to paint the official picture of his coronation King Edward VII. of England did honor to the artist's native land. No one will have the temerity to combat this proposition, be he Anglophobe or Anglophile, for it is universally recognized that an honor to any citizen of a country reflects credit upon all other citizens of that country. No man can live for or by himself. His individuality and attainments become the heritage of the land which gave him birth; hence the interest manifested in the recent arrival of the artist in question from England, whence he has come to fulfill a contract entered into with the Boston Library association for the completion of a work upon which he has been engaged during the greater portion of the past ten years. Five years ago he came over on a similar errand—the delivery to the Boston library of the pictures which he had finished up to that time, consisting of a moiety only of the number he had agreed to paint. Now, after a decade has passed since the original conception of the great work, he returns with the fruits of his labor and wearing the laurels gained by his superlative proficiency in art.

It is only eleven years since Mr. Abbey exhibited his first picture in oils, "A Mayday Morning," which was hung on the walls of Burlington House. It obtained instant recognition of his talent. Until t en he had been known as an artist in black and white and water colors only, but eight years later, in 1898 he won the coveted distinction of being elected to the full honors of a Royal Academician. He made his domicile in England just twenty years ago, and from that time to the present he may be said to have made a triumphal advance, first upon the outworks of British prejudice, then into the very citadel of England's artistic coterie.

It does not fall to the lot of many men to succeed in such full measure as Mr. Abbey has succeeded, and it is well worth the while to inquire into the methods and forces that have carried him to the pinnacle of his profession in so short a time, for, as measured by the advance he has made, twenty years, even in the span of an ordinary lifetime, is not reckoned a long period of probation. "Ars longa, vita brevis," indeed, and no one knows better than the artist that art is long and life is short, for the higher the aspiration and the greater the attainment so much the more precious will this life appear.

Born on the 1st of April, 1852, Mr. Abbey will only have attained his fiftieth birthday shortly before the event which he is to perpetuate—the coronation—is to take place, as it is scheduled for June, 1902. Like his celebrated predecessor, Benjamin West, who was such a favorite of King George III. and who succeeded Sir Joshua Reynolds, first president of the Royal Academy, Abbey is a Pennsylvanian, and, like him also, he achieved his greatest and most distinct triumphs in England. More than this, he has received the ungrudging admiration and esteem of British artists and connoisseurs. In the interval between West and Abbey many American artists have been well received in England, but these two stand forth most conspicuously as royal favorites.

After a short sojourn in New York West went to England in 1763, where he married an American lady and settled down to painting, with George III. as patron for forty years. Abbey also tarried awhile in New York after leaving his native city of Philadelphia, then flitted to London and established himself so securely in the esteem of George III.'s great-grandson, Edward VII., as to receive the royal command to perpetuate on canvas the glories of his coming coronation. Whether or not the parallel may be further pursued and Abbey will have West's firmness to decline the honor of knighthood, which will probably be thrust upon him as a portion of his reward, remains to be seen. As, however, he lately announced himself as still an American citizen when "declaring" his paintings for entry at the port of New York he will have to "about face" rather sharply to qualify for that honor which, it is said, more than anything else, urged Sir Henry Stanley on.

For the past fifty y ars or more the British have been in the habit of asking "Who reads an American book?" They ask it no longer, for American literature, especially fiction has become very much the vogue in England. The same satirical question has often been asked with reference to American art, "Who patronizes it?" But, by the same token that our writers have raised this country in the esteem of the literary world, so also our painters, with Abbey and Sargent in the van, are about to correct a long lived misapprehension regarding American art. All of which shows that whatever one does to elevate himself in public esteem reflects luster upon his native land.

No long ago as 1875 Mr. Abbey was recognized as a master of technique and in the front rank as a black and white artist and water colorist. In exquisite pen drawings he had few rivals, as exemplified in his illustrations of Shakespeare's and Goldsmith's comedies and Herrick's poems His handling of old English subjects with pastoral settings was inimitable for he combined the result of faithful study with an idealism sufficient to invest his people and scenes with the artistic glamour which is as much the painter's prerogative as the poet's license.

Mr. Abbey has been a close student of history, is well versed in ancient traditions and also informed as to archaeology, ancient armor, etc., all of which, together with his inimitable skill at handling large subjects and the grouping of figures on broad canvases, caused him to be selected by the Boston library committee to paint the great mural panels which he has just brought to this country. The space allotted him covers 180 feet by 8, divided into five panels. These pictures he has patiently painted, one after the other, and at last they are ready to be placed on the library walls, where they will constitute, as a whole, one of the grandest artistic conceptions of modern times—some say of any age. The subject selected by Mr. Abbey was "The Quest of the Holy Grail," and, as elaborated, it comprises "Sir Galahad as an Infant," "The Knighting of Sir Galahad by Lancelot," "Sir Galahad Brought to the Court of King Arthur by Joseph of Arimathea," "The Benediction of the Knights Who Go Forth on the Sacred Quest" and "Sir Galahad at the Sleepbound Castle."

The two sets of panel pictures, that which was finished five years ago and the one just brought over, have been on exhibition in London, where they won the unqualified commendation of art critics. "They are on a large scale, and their breadth and power of treatment, fine colors and poetic sentiment show their painter to be a man of altogether exceptional powers," says one of the leading London papers. Mr. Abbey has exhibited at Burlington House, owned by the Royal Academy, his "Richard III. and the Lady Anne," an immense canvas depicting "The Trial of Queen Katherine" and "The Penance of Eleanor, Duchess of Gloucester."

In these paintings as well as in his treatment of the Holy Grail panels and his "Crusader Catching the First Glimpse of the Holy City" he showed such singular skill in massing and arranging on canvas large numbers of figures as to first attract attention, then to fix the opinion and ultimate conclusion that he of all others would be the right man to depict the coming coronation. In this scene will be introduced as central figures King Edward and Queen Alexandra, with their children, particularly prominent being the Prince and Princess of Wales. All the foreign royalties present will be shown, as well as ambassadors, lords and ladies in waiting, prime ministers, etc., probably swelling the number to above 200 in all. Each personage will be a portrait, of course, and the magnitude of such a scheme, to be carried out upon canvas probably 30 or 40 feet by 90 or 100, can only be imagined. It will probably take the artist five or six years to complete his work after all preliminary sketches and studies have been made.

Mr. Abbey's English home is at Morgan Hall, an old manor house in Fairfold, Gloucestershire, where he has resided since his marriage in 1890. The house itself is a perfect museum of arms, costumes, etc., of the middle ages, so useful in building up pictures of that period. At this country seat Mr. Abbey erected a spacious studio 75 by 42 feet especially for the Holy Grail canvases. There in all probability he will put on canvas the great coronation scene, upon which he is expected to begin work on his return to England after a much needed vacation.

At home and socially Mr. Abbey is noted for his geniality and his devotion to outdoor athletics, particularly cricket, at which he excels. He and his friend Sargent, another noted American artist also commissioned by the library committee, interchange visits and cycle in company about the beautiful country adjacent to their English homes.

The paintings which Mr. Abbey brought with him to this country will be on exhibition for a short time in New York before being taken to Boston to be set up as mural panels in the public library.

Potato Salad.

If cold potatoes are cut into slices and dressed with salt, pepper, oil and vinegar, also, if possible, with beet root and celery added to them, they make an excellent salad. Sprinkle a little chopped parsley over the dish as a garnish.

Why the Hair Grows Gray.

As to the hair growing gray, it results in the majority of cases from the partial closing of the hair cells and the reduction of the quantity of natural coloring matter which the closing produces.

Cat and Parrot.

Baltimore reports a case of close friendship between a cat and parrot. The two are often amicably together, the bird perching on the cat's shoulders. At first they had many fights, the cat getting the worst of it.

The Day of Miracles not Past.

A Toronto Star reporter investigated the case of Mr. George Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhozone.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be cured. Catarrhozone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from impaired hearing, deafness, head noises and ringing in the ears, are advised to inhale Catarrhozone, and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application knows no equal.

"Hundreds speak their praise."

ARE FEELING THE HURT.

The man who has his own toes trampled on is apt to acknowledge the corn. A certain number of the politicians of this country are very indignant that certain Canadian sealers, who carried on a profitable industry in the open waters of the North Pacific Ocean for years before Alaska became American Territory, should still persist in exercising their rights in the same pursuit. They say the seals are being exterminated, and, out of spite, as one Congressman said, threaten to slaughter the whole remaining herds of seals unless British subjects cease to exercise their rights of open sea hunting. Canadians have had occasion to make similar complaints against American methods of fishing, and while Canadian laws restrained Canadian fishermen in various ways and limited their season, the freedom exercised by the American fishermen in the capture of fish, led to the exhaustion of their grounds. Did Americans cease their practices because of Canadian complaint. They laughed at the idea. But they feel the painfulness of the corn in the matter of the sealing industry. The Michigan lumbermen have also felt that prohibitory tariffs can be framed elsewhere than in Washington, and since Canadian logs no longer come to their mills they, perforce, have taken their mills to Canadian logs. It will be the same with the paper mills and pulp wood, and with various other things that Canada possesses in rich abundance in her great north country. —Chicago British American.

The Examiner war correspondent at Kingston sends the following budget concerning the Cavalry Camp at that place;—

We left Peterborough at 8.48 a.m., and after picking up the other squadrons, arrived in Kingston at 3.30 p.m. and proceeded to camp, which is away out over the hill, where the infantry camped formerly. Many of the tents had to be pitched, but the quartermaster discharged his duties in an admirable manner, without a hitch. We had no Sergeant, but since then Sergt. Oscar Hutchison, of Millbrook, has been appointed to act as such for the camp. The total strength of the Dragoons is officers, 15; total of all ranks, 214; horses, 188. The Hussars have 21 officers; total of all ranks, 271; horses 243. Trooper R. J. Morten's horse, from Millbrook, met with a serious accident, manner unknown, supposed to have been kicked the first night. His scapula, or shoulder blade, was fractured, and after a meeting of a Board of Officers, he was condemned and shot. The Field Hospital has no inmates or patients as yet. The routine and drills are as usual. The Colonel of the Hussars is Lt.-Col. Clyde. The Sen. Vet. of the Brigade is Capt. Ming, of the 4th Hussars. The Dragoons, of course, have Lt.-Col. Sutton. The Brigade officers are as follows;—

Brigadier,—Lt.-Col. H.C. Rogers, R.L.
Brig. Major,—Major W.D. Johnston, 3rd Dragoons.
Dep. Ass't. Quart. Gen.—Major L. Shannon, R. O.
Paymaster,—Major F. Strange, S. of S.
Medical Officer,—Serg.-Maj. T.W.H. Young, 3rd Dragoons.
Orderly Officer,—Gentleman Cadet Waldron.

The weather was very threatening today, but the rain was not heavy enough to justify cancelling parades. This was in the morning. The afternoon was blazing hot, and our first night in camp freezing cold. Many complained of the severity of it. The uniforms and the saddlery of the Dragoons will arrive in camp to-day, so we were told yesterday by the D.O.C. They are on the way. We are to participate in the Coronation celebration here next Thursday.

The weather at the camp on Thursday was most suitable for drilling, and the men of the 4th Hussars and 3rd Dragoons, Peterborough, who are living under canvass fo a time, had nothing to complain of. The morning was spent in exercising in mounted military manoeuvres, which take in the day, and the soldiers were put through a series of movements on foot.

A pleasing event that occurred in the camp was the presentation to Captain Robert Aiken, of Kingston, and who is acting as quartermaster sergeant of the 4th Hussars, of a long service medal. On one side of it are the words "For Service in the Colonial Auxiliary Forces." Captain Aiken is naturally very proud of the token. He has been connected with the 4th Hussars for about twenty years. He is well liked by all, and is as careful and as conscientious a soldier as he is when on duty on the Kingston Police force.

A great many of the Peterborough soldiers have already paid a visit to the Armouries. Several of them last night took in the trip to Gananoque on the Steamer America.

A Board of Enquiry has been appointed to inspect nose bags, heel pegs, and other articles, used in connection with the horses.

Yesterday Lieut. Coates, of Prescott, met with an accident that will confine him to his tent for several days. He was thrown from his horse, but no bones were broken. He is popular in camp and the mishap is regretted by all.

Both regiments will parade on Sunday and attend divine service at St. George's Cathedral. The men do not altogether fancy the long march out.

Gentleman Cadet R. R. Carr-Harris, of the Royal Military College, and who recently won one of the Dominion Artillery Association prizes offered at that College, is acting as Adjutant of the 4th Hussars. Cadet Carr-Harris played hockey in Peterborough last winter with the R.M.C. team.

Some Khaki uniforms are seen in the camp. Several of the men saw service during the Boer-British war.

The W. C. T. U. refreshment tent is missed this year. It was not deemed advisable to have one put up and furnished when so comparatively few men were going to be in camp.

Sergeant Trumpeter Burns of the 4th Hussars, has christened the horse he is using in camp. He calls it "Ping-Pong."

Mr. Justice Langelier, in Montreal on Wednesday, condemned Lieut.-Col. F. Minden Cole to pay $100 damages and the costs of an action for $1,000 to Lieut.-Col. J. P. Cooke, whom he placed under arrest at the time of the Valleyfield riots, October 26th, 1900, for refusing to parade his regiment. After reviewing the circumstances of the case as revealed at the trial, the learned Judge held that Lieut.-Col. Cooke, or any other officer or man in the Militia, unlike regular soldiers, was amenable to military law and bound to obey the orders of his superior officer only when on active service at annual drills, provided for by law, at parades of the regiment to which he belongs, whether he is present in the ranks or as a spectator, on his way to or from parade; in a word, whenever he is in uniform according to section 82 of the Militia Act. At any other time, the court held, officers and militiamen have the same rights as other citizens and are not subject to the orders of their superior officer. On the occasion in question the plaintiff did not come under the sections above quoted and was the only person who could order a military parade of his regiment, and had decided that there should be no such parade. Lieut.-Col. Roy, D. O.C., could have ordered a parade, and in order to do so must have paid the men, but had decided not to do so. As the counsel for plaintiff declared at the hearing that his client did not wish for pecuniary satisfaction, but simply for a judgment which would serve as a reparation of his outraged feelings and his honour, the court considered that judgment for $100 as damages and the costs of the action as brought would be sufficient satisfaction. Mr. V. E. Mitchell, counsell for Lieut.-Col. Cole, stated to-day that the case would be carried to the Court of King's Bench on appeal without delay.

THE KING'S CORONATION.

O the glorious celebration
Of King Edward's Coronation,
And the crowning of his very lovely Queen!
With heart and soul and voice,
May the people all rejoice,
With a gladness that has never yet been seen.

May the merry bells all peal,
And the throbbing pulses feel
A thrill of loyal duty, and devotion to the King.
May a hallowed sunshine's beam,
Ever kiss his lovely Queen,
And the strength of loyal hearts around him cling!

May his ruling ever please,
All our friends beyond the seas,
And the glorious Federation be of love,
May the Empire's heart be one,
All disloyalty be gone,
And sweet peace descend upon him from above.

Let both King and Queen be crowned
And then crowning be renowned
By that grandeur which becometh such a scene.
Every city, every town,
Should join in such renown,
And the mirth of rustic gladness crowd each village green.

O then with sweet anthems rise,
And then chorus reach the skies,
And the peoples of the Empire chant,
Amen!
In this glorious celebration,
Of King Edward's Coronation,
Repeat the thrilling chorus again, and still again.

W. A. GREENSLADE,
Peterborough, June 16th, 1902.

The Coronation Chair.

The chair in which King Edward will be crowned is hundreds of years old and has been employed in the coronation of the kings and queens of England since the fourteenth century. It is made of oak, unpolished, and almost devoid of ornamentation. In fact, it looks like an ordinary old fashioned chimney corner armchair, and any one not acquainted with its history or the purpose for which it is employed would estimate its intrinsic value at about $5. The only thing remarkable about it is a piece of rough hewn stone inserted beneath the seat. That stone was brought from Scotland in 1296 by Edward I. of England. On it the kings of Scotland were formerly crowned. It was seized by the English as a trophy of war and taken to London, where it has since remained. It is known as the "stone of destiny."

When Queen Victoria Died—

We changed:
The National Anthem,
The Prayer Book,
The yearing of the statutes,
And all the oaths and documents affecting the administration of justice.

If you want your potatoes mealy, wrap a baked one, when it is done, in a towel and press until it bursts.

Monster Lobelias.

Every one knows the pretty blue lobelia, a garden annual that has many good points, but not every one is aware that in Abyssinia the lobelias grow fifteen and twenty feet high and in the distance look like palm trees.

Brilliant Mosquitoes.

The mosquitoes found in swamps and damp woods are generally more brilliantly colored than those varieties which frequent human habitations.

Gratitude.

Gratitude is the fairest blossom that springs from the soul, and the heart of man knoweth none so fragrant; while its opponent, ingratitude, is a deadly weed, not only poisonous in itself, but impregnating the very atmosphere in which it grows with fetid vapors.

STOCK MARKETS.

Two Remarkable Stock Letters.

New York, June 20th.—We cannot refrain from quoting our letters of May 21st, on Ill. C. and on June 12th, on M.O.P. May 21st Ill. C. sold at 151 5-8; M.O.P. sold at 101. The low figures for these two stocks since these periods were 150 and 100 3-8 respectively. The Ill. letter read as follows; "We are exceedingly bullish upon these shares, and advise their purchase. We would not care to state that Ill. might not temporarily sell off two or three points, but we are confident that it is booked for an extended rise. Ill. C. runs through the territory covered by the Monon, and the deal between L. & N. and S. R. must be satisfactory to Ill. C. else its share would not have been so strong during the past four weeks. Ill. C. is bound to be let into the deal in one way or another, and it is more than likely that arrangements as to how or in what manner are already settled upon by the parties interested, though at present the public are unenlightened, and when they are the stock will be higher, as was the case with L. N. and C.I.L. It will sell up 10 points before declining 5 points. We look to see it advance at least 20 points. The stock is intrinsically cheap, and upon its merits should command as high a price as does St. Paul. Those who will purchase the stock now will in our opinion have no cause to regret it.

Read the notes from the M.O.P. letter of June 12th. We believe it is pretty close to the time to purchase M.O.P. It shows an indication of an extended immediate advance. The road can lose all its surplus and have its earnings fall off 25 per cent., and still be able to pay its five per cent. dividend. Last year it sold above 120. It should do even better this year. Last year corn along the M.O.P. was almost a total failure, yet the road continued its marvellous display of increased earnings. This year, with conditions as they now promise, M.O.P. will be one of the banner expanders as far as earnings are concerned. Buy M.O.P. and hold it for a good rise. If followed, these two letters would have alone yielded handsome profits. We don't change our opinion on these two stocks, and look for them to record much higher prices. Note yesterday's U.P. letter. We believe it will be as accurate as the other two.

TROOPS FOR TORONTO

1,400 Militia Ordered for Duty to Keep the Peace.

SERIOUS RIOTING ON SUNDAY.

Street Railway Company Did Not Run Cars on Saturday and When They Attempted to Do So Sunday Much Lawlessness Was Displayed—Exciting Incidents of the Day—Attempt at Conciliation.

Toronto, June 23. — The militia has been called out to protect the property and servants of the Toronto Railway Compano.

To-day the cars and barns will be guarded by 1,400 armed soldiers, who will also provide a right of way over any line upon which the company desires to run its cars.

The force will include 700 cavalrymen now in camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake and a detail of 700 from the city infantry regiments.

Col. Buchan of Stanley Barracks will be in command of the whole force.

This drastic measure was decided upon yesterday after an all-day meeting of the Police Commissioners, who are: His Honor Judge McDougall, His Worship Mayor Howland and R. E. Kingsford, J.P.

They met yesterday morning at the Mayor's house, dined at the National Club together, and then resumed session at the City Hall.

The action was the result of the rioting which took place in Toronto yesterday morning, and it followed a formal demand of the company, that their property be given sufficient police protection.

Col. Buchan and Acting Chief Police Stewart consulted with the commissioners.

The infantrymen will be out early and the cavalrymen will arrive here by train from Niagara-on-the-Lake.

A J.P. With the Troops.

According to the Militia Act, a justice of the peace must accompany the troops on service in such a case as the present. Therefore, Magistrate Kingsford will act in that capacity on this occasion.

The Military Force.

The force called out is as follows:

CAVALRY.

1st Hussars, London	250
2nd Dragoons, St. Catharines	250

RUSTLE AT NIAGARA.

Militia For Toronto Served With Five Rounds of Ball Cartridges.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, June 23.—This historic camping ground last night witnessed quite a war-like scene. When orders arrived early in the evening that troops should be sent to Toronto, great excitement prevailed among the men, and the lucky battalions chosen to go were delighted. Saddling horses and preparations for entraining immediately began.

The forces ordered to Toronto include about 750 troops, all told.

The entraining of men and horses occupied most of the night. The first train left about midnight with the 1st Hussars and two other trains followed later. The first train will reach Toronto about daylight. Men and officers receive extra or full field pay during their stay in Toronto.

All men were served out five rounds of ammunition before they left. Col. Bruce, Capt. Gooderham, Capt. Stanley, Capt. Wyers and Surgeon-Major King of the Toronto Grenadiers left here in a hurry last night on the yacht Cleopatra to join the regiment.

RIOTING IN TORONTO.

Mob Defeats the Efforts of the Company to Establish Its Regular Service—Men Injured, Property Damaged.

Toronto, June 23.—The attempt of the Street Railway Company to run cars yesterday morning resulted in rioting in several portions of the city. Several men were injured and eight rioters were arrested. The cars with windows broken and the floors covered with bricks and stones, were run back to the barns, and no further attempts were made by the company to establish service.

The whole police force was on duty 17 hours out of the 24. The men snatched a few hours of sleep in the station houses by lying around the floors and benches. Twenty mounted men were on duty.

It was a complete tie-up of the system. The scab workmen and conductors were handled roughly in many cases. Two left a car over the Don and were pursued by a mob for a mile. They are supposed to be running yet.

About the King-street barn there were scenes of great disorder. An attempt to rush the barn, were a number of scabs were kept locked up, was contemplated, but a big posse of police succeeded in removing the men to the Yorkville barn in the police patrol. The patrol was followed by a howling mob of strike sympathizers.

Several times during the day union men intervened to save scab workmen from violence. They counselled order.

FIVE CARS WERE STALLED.

Centre of the Strike Trouble Around the King-street Barn.

The pivot of the strike trouble was in the East End. Long before 8 o'clock a large crowd collected in front of the King street barns at the corner of St. Lawrence street, and awaited the appearance of the first car.

It was just a little after 8 o'clock when the barn doors were opened and car No. 878, manned by Motorman Whitehead, the oldest motorman of the road, who was brought here from Cleveland, and ran the first car ever run by electricity in Toronto, was ready to come out. No sooner were the doors thrown back than a missile crashed through the vestibule window, striking Whitehead. The motorman turned on the power and the car started on its way. It had not reached the Don bridge before every window was broken. Whitehead continued to run his car, protected by six policemen, who were also on the front platform. The car got through to the Woodbine, and on reaching that point it was run on the Woodbine avenue switch and deserted. Whitehead and his conductor took to the woods, closely followed by a crowd, who showered stones and eggs at the fleeing men.

Fifteen minutes later, car No. 866 was met with similar treatment. This car was manned by Motorman James Quigley, who for many years has been on the Winchester street route. This car proceeded to the Woodbine, where it was also run on the switch and deserted.

Quigley, on the trip, opposite De Grassi street, was struck on the left side of the head and rendered unconscious. The police carried him into Dr. Rowan's surgery, where the wound was dressed, and afterwards he was sent to his home at 401 Sumach street. He was relieved on the exciting journey by his conductor who was kept busy dodging missiles.

Three Other Cars Demolished.

The men at the barns then attempted to run cars No. 842, 818 and 812 out together, and these only got as far as the G.T.R. crossing, where they were left by the strike-breakers, who manned them. Every window in these cars were smashed. The fleeing strike-breakers took refuge from the crowd in the G. T. R. station, and in private residences. By the time a crowd of 5,000 people had gathered, and, with them reinforcements of police, in charge of Acting Deputy Chief Archibald, Inspector Gregory and Sergeants McFarlane, Martin and Willis. The police kept guard over the cars until Assistant Superintendent Ewan Mackenzie ordered them returned to the barns. The electrical workers who came to man the cars, were jeered and hooted until they reached their destination.

The cars, which were stalled on Woodbine avenue, were badly damaged on their return trip, although they were escorted by mounted police, and Assistant Superintendent Mackenzie, who drove in an open carriage. Mr. Mackenzie was jeered at and hissed opposite De Grassi street, where several missiles were thrown at his carriage. He was attacked also at River street and there a serious encounter took place between the police and the crowd. Stones were thrown and Joseph Christopher of 114 Duke street was arrested by Mounted Constable Guthrie, after a hard chase. Mr. Mackenzie was then driven to the general offices of the company.

Crowds thronged around King street barns all day, expecting something to turn up, but nothing of any account transpired until the police moved the strike-breakers.

Does Not Blame Strikers.

Mr. Mackenzie, assistant superintendant and brother of William Mackenzie, president of the Toronto Railway Company, was looking after the somewhat troublesome task of getting cars of the East King street barns. He was escorted to and fro by two mounted policemen and Constables Reburn and Francis, who rode in the hack with him. His hack was stoned several times, but he escaped injury. Mr. Mackenzie was seen at 9.30 a.m. inside the barns. He appeared very much wrought up by the excitement of the morning, but said he did not think the strikers were responsible for the rioting. He blamed it all on the sympathizers among the general public.

The East End barn on King street was the storm centre all day, and it was noised abroad that when darkness came on a bold and determined effort would be made by the mob to force the shed and play tag with the

CITY SHADE TREES.

The following in the Ottawa Free Press has no little significance for Peterborough:

The Hamilton Times expresses satisfaction at the fact that the civic fund for "carrying on the war on shade trees" is exhausted, and that the victims will now have to work out their own fate. There is something forcible in the satire of the Times, and the propriety of removing the shade trees of a city from the custody of the municipal authorities is a question which is well worth debating, for it must be conceded that, taken as a rule, the cutting and slashing and trimming is done without due regard to horticultural science and often without regard to common judgment. Furthermore the overhead wires are another source of danger to the trees which go so far to make a "city beautiful," and due attention is not given to their depredations. The evils which exist in this respect in the Capital and other Canadian cities also exist, apparently, in the large cities across the lines. Brooklyn and New York have bodies outside the municipal administration which pay attention to the shade trees, but in Philadelphia the question has recently been under discussion. The Press of that city arrives at the conclusion that, after weighing the pros and cons, civic ownership and control of trees is the best if that control is enlightened and sympathetic. If the men exercising it know nothing and care nothing about trees their power over them may be used for their injury or total destruction. The contention is wholly governed by that "if" and unfortunately, civic control in the matter is necessarily neither enlightened or sympathetic. In Ottawa we have a happy means afforded us of reaching a via media in connection with the matter, and the Improvement Commissioners might with advantage to the city and without assuming any great addition to their labours, take charge of the street arbouriculture. We have no doubt they could without much trouble obtain the services of one or two experts who would give their advice and the results of their knowledge and experience.

It might not be safe to assert that the civic authorities in Peterborough do not know how to look properly after the town's public trees, but it is quite safe to say that they have not shown any particularly burning desire or even inclination to give such knowledge practical application. Our street trees are something like Whitechapel children, they are planted and if they live and grow up that is their own outlook. The parents in the one case, and the civic authorities in the other, don't worry their souls with an unnecessary solicitude. If a tree grows, let it grow. If a vandal ties his horse to a tree, and it becomes ruinously barked, with a hungry horse's teeth, let it become barked. If vandal boys break down the tree, let it break. If it is dying for want of water, let it die. If telephone, electric light, or telegraph linemen slash and ruin a tree, let them slash. That's about the degree of solicitude thatt has been shown in the past for our shade trees. Is it the proper spirit? Against such odds our enterprising citizens have improved our streets with trees till we have the most beautiful town in this respect in the Dominion. If we wish to rightly appreciate the value of our shade trees, cut them all down to-morrow, and the value of the property abutting on our residential streets would be depreciated fifty per cent. There is a money value, as well as ornamental and comfort value, in street shade trees. Therefore, it seems to be the duty of the authorities, who have the spending of the liberal share of the people's money, represented by taxes, to judiciously use a little to improve the property and promote the comfort of the citizens, by encouraging and assisting the people to plant trees, and by protecting them from every form of enemy after they are planted. Why couldn't the town employ some of its vacant lots to transplant a few hundred seedlings, and spend a little—very little would do it—on caring for them and cultivating them till they become large enough to plant on the streets? Then give them free to any citizen who wishes to plant trees on the street in front of his property.

A DARING LOOPER.

Some of the Many Great Features With Forepaugh-Sells Circus.

It is an indisputable fact that Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers combined circuses have more entirely new and thrilling features than any show ever travelling in this country.

Among these may be mentioned the wonderful feat by Diavolo, who loops the loop on a bicycle, at once the most death-defying and daring act ever presented before the public. Just as a child swings in a circle a bucket full of water without pilling, so does dare-devil Diavolo sweep the circle at a frightful speed without falling. This feature alone created a profound sensation in New York city and all other cities where seen.

Then there are the Aurora Zouaves, the official interstate drill champions of the United States, who have just returned from a triumphant conquest of all continental Europe, where they were pronounced by nobility and royalty to be the best drilled soldiers in the world; Minting, the Marvel, the only man on earth who can and does ride a unicycle or single wheel of a bicycle up and down a narrow spirit tower; the Four La Montes, the Five St. Leons and the Five De Luccas, the three troupes of all Europe's greatest acrobats; the Ten Peerless Potters, the Greatest Aerial Act on Earth; the Jackson Family Cycling Septette; Starr, the Shoot-Star, who dashes down a ladder on an ordinary bicycle; the quartette of cakewalking horses who made the biggest hit of anything ever seen in the horse line at Madison Square Garden; an army of all-star clowns who divide the time between laughter and applause. All kinds of races are run in the great double hippodromes, and throughout the programme there is superb music by Merrick's magnificent military band.

It is indeed a wonderful consolidation, and there will not be very many living in this community who will not want to see it when it exhibits here, on Tuesday, July 8th.

THE BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY.

Some Interesting Figures Based on the Results Achieved in Michigan.

The Sugar Beet, of Philadelphia, which is devoted to the interests of the beet sugar industry of the United States, notices that some of the leading journals of that country are making adverse comparisons between the cost of a plant for the manufacture of tin plates and one for the manufacture of beet sugar and fails to grasp the force of their arguments. It says:

It is interesting to ask what benefit to the country is derived from the tin plate industry other than the labour it employs; but on the other hand, with beets there follows an increased value of farming lands. A crop is contracted for in advance, permitting the tiller to make his money arrangements before his beets are harvested. The residum pulps from the factories when fed to cattle means cheaper meat, and the resulting manure prevents soil exhaustion. The excellent beneficial effects of the beet sugar industry always means general prosperity to all centres where it is established.

A Michigan correspondent of The Sugar Beet calls attention to some very important information regarding the industry, gathered by the Michigan Sugar Manufacturing Association. The information is valuable, but we cannot do more than give some of the facts and leading figures. He says:

The cost of labour for raising beets averages $33.25 per acre, to which should be added $5 per acre for rental of land, making $38.25 as the actual cost of raising an acre of beets. The average cost to the farmer is $3.70 per ton; there results a profit of $6.30, allowing for seed, etc. During the campaign of 1901 33,700 men found employment and 2,300 horses were used. All calculations made, there are 84,000 persons actually interested in the agricultural side of the beet sugar industry for Michigan. For the 13 factories there are needed 597,000 tons of beets demanding 125,496 tons of coal. The supplies for an average Michigan factory of a daily capacity of 506 tons; coal, 9,600 tons; limestone, 3,200 tons; coke, 354 tons; sulphur 21,000 pounds, etc. The cost is $48,000. All calculations made, this means about $1.06 per ton of beets sliced. The repairs for the campaign amount to about $3,000 per factory and the off months to $12,000. All facts considered, these repairs amount to 32 cents per ton. One must make allowance for depreciation, which is not less than 7 per cent. on first cost of the plant. So, all facts considered, this total becomes $50,000. The amount paid annually for interest, taxes and insurances in a 500-ton sugar house is $41,913. The average output of sugar per ton of beets is 210 pounds; the total sugar obtained is 75 per cent. of Michigan's yearly consumption. Cost of manufacture, $5.20 per ton of beets, $1.06 supplies per ton of beets; $1.51 cost of labour for entire year per ton of beets, $1.09 cost of repairs and depreciation per ton of beets, etc., giving a total cost of $9.83 per ton of beets sliced. The cost of manufacturing 100 pounds refined sugar is $4.

GIRLS GRADUATION DRESS.

Fagotting, a general term for open work stitching of whatever kind, fairly runs riot on the gowns for summer wear, and a very dainty finish it is, when properly executed with Corticelli EE twisted embroidery silk. A charming frock worn at a recent girl school graduation showed this pretty stitching wherever an inserting was to be let into the crepe de chine of which the frock was composed. The design is not very ornate, but of an elegant simplicity. The skirt has the prevalent panel effect, the latter bbbsing entirely untrimmed. The fullness is lightly gathered at the belt, and the edge bordered by three rows of Valenciennes inserting, mounted with briar stitching in pale blue Corticelli embroidery silk. The blouse shows a vest effect, the continuation of the skirt panel. The sailor collar was compposed of Valenciennes inserting, and bias folds of pale blue taffeta, joining by fagotting in blue silk. The hat which completed this costume, was of pale blue chiffon with ostrich tips of the same shade.

An Uncrowned King of England.

Writing of Prince Albert in an article in the Century on "The Royal Family of England," Professor Oscar Browning says:

From the first the prince identified himself with the queen in all her labors. They had one mind and one soul. Rising every morning with the dawn, the prince went into his workroom, where their two tables stood side by side, and read all their correspondence, arranging everything for the queen's convenience when she should arrive. He knew all her thoughts and assisted all her actions, yet so adroit and self sacrificing was his conduct that all the merit and popularity came to her. The people had no idea that he interfered with public affairs, yet had they reflected they must have known that it was inevitable. Once during the Crimean war, when the notion got abroad that the prince had intervened, there were tales of treason and of sending him to the tower. Yet on the day of the prince's death, on that cold, icebound Saturday, Charles Kingsley said to the present writer, "He was king of England for twenty years, and no one knew it."

Druggists' Colored Bottles.

Those huge glass bulbs of red and yellow and blue water which are called show bottles are gradually ceasing to be a feature of the decoration of druggists' windows. In the past they were as necessary to every drugstore as a red and white pole is to a barber shop, but they have not, as the pole has, a well defined history. All that druggists know of them is that they have been always used as window ornaments. The brilliant liquids that they contain are made cheaply and plainly of chemicals and water. Thus a solution of copper and ammonia makes blue. Bichromate of potash makes orange. Aniline dyes have of late been used in the chemicals' place, but the liquids fade in a strong sunlight and have frequently to be renewed. The liquids colored chemically, on the other hand, last well nigh forever.

Some people have cramps pretty often, others only now and again. But when you do have them its a mighty quick relief you want. Indian Killed at London.

London, June 23.—The Woodbine Hotel, kept by Hugh Sharkey, on the Pipe Line road, half way between this city and Springbank, was the scene of a tragedy last night in which Augustus Ninham, an Oneida Indian, was killed. Ninham had been to Springbank, and was on his way to the house of a man named Baker when he stopped at the hotel. There were a number of people on the hotel verandah, one of whom Ninham knew and spoke to. Shortly after Ninham, who had been drinking, appears to have got into a row with some of the party, in which he received blows that proved fatal. It is not known who was his assailant or what was the weapon used, but bruises on the face and chest are supposed to have been inflicted by a stone. So far no arrests have been made.

FRAUDS IN THE YUKON

Customs Inspector Davis Suspended for Irregularities.

ALEXANDER COOK ALSO RESIGNS

Criminal Proceedings May Be Taken Against the Officers of the Alaska Exploration Company, Who Are Mixed Up in the Affair—Inspector McMichael Discovered the Frauds—Who Davis Is.

Winnipeg, June 23.—A Dawson, Yukon, special to The Free Press, dated June 21, says:—D. W. Davis, collector of customs, has been suspended owing to grave irregularities in the Customs Department. After suspension Davis handed in his resignation. Alex. A. Cook of the same department has also resigned. It is understood that Davis received a large sum of money from the Alaska Exploration Company and in return the Government was defrauded of a large amount of revenue due from the company. It is possible that criminal proceedings will be taken against officers of the company. Inspector McMichael discovered the frauds shortly after his arrival. E. S. Busby, formerly of Skaguay, has been temporarily appointed to fill the vacancy. The claim against the company, with penalties, will reach $50,000 or more. The evidence secured by McMichael is said to be very clear and other charges may be made. Davis was formerly Conservative member of Parliament for Alberta.

Mysterious Suicide.

Cardinal, June 23.—A mysterious suicide occurred about 7.30 yesterday morning. A woman with a small child in her arms was seen walking up and down the canal bank. Without leaving anything to identify her, she deliberately jumped into the river, taking her baby with her, and both were drowned. What makes the whole matter so mysterious is that no person in the village or locality is missing.

KING GOES TO LONDON

Coronation Week Ushered in With Brilliant Sunshine.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER ARRIVES.

Canada's Premier Will Not Say Anything About the Coming Conference—An Idea of the Decorations—Distinguished Arrivals—Streets of London Already Crowded—The Kings Health Good.

London, June 23.— The reappearance yesterday of brilliant sunshine, after weeks of rain and murky weather, gave to the first day of coronation week an air of unusual gaiety and gladdened the hearts of thousands of British subjects from all parts of the Empire and the thousands of foreigners who are pouring into London eager to witness as much of this week's events as possible.

The announcement that King Edward, Queen Alexandra and the court would return to London from Windsor to-day at noon increased the universal anticipations for that day, and served to quit to some extent, the flood of extraordinary rumors concerning the King's physicial condition, varied in some quarters by wierd tales of plots to assassinate His Majesty and other fictions, all of which have been promptly denied by officials, intimately connected with the King.

Edward's health was authoritatively declared to be good at Windsor Castle yesterday and His Majesty attended church, accompanied by other members of the royal family. Last evening he enjoyed a drive through the royal gardens at Windsor Castle in a closed carriage. The court will arrive in Buckingham Palace today before luncheon time.

The congested condition of the streets of London throughout yesterday furnished an omen of the conditions of travel through these streets the latter days of this week. Yesterday it was impossible to proceed faster than a snail's pace through the thoroughfares between Hyde Park and the Mansion House. The crowds out were singularly good natured and accidents were few and of a minor character.

The throngs in the streets at night find much to engage the eye. The fronts of innumerable buildings are hung with lighted decorations and the Venetian masts are covered with garlands and connected by strands of roses. The streets are filled with mile after mile of many colored lights and the various stations of the royal coronation procession are marked with arches, representing Great Britain's colonies. American flags were in evidence at a great number of windows. Some hotels are flying both American and British flags from their staffs in honor of the American visitors domiciled there.

Count Von Waldersee, one of the German representatives to the coronation, the Duke and Duchess of Aosta from Italy and many other distinguished representatives of foreign royal personages arrived in London yesterday. Count Von Waldersee and the German officers with him were entertained at dinner last night by Field Marshal Lord Roberts.

Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier, accompanied by Lord Strathcona, arrived at Euston Station early yesterday morning and at once drove to the Hotel Cecil. The Canadian Premier had a very enthusiastic reception at Liverpool, and the Lord Mayor of that city vainly requested him to remain there for a day or two. So far Sir Wilfrid Laurier has succeeded in resisting all efforts of interviewers and has decided not to make any statement on the subject of the colonial conference.

BRITISH SHIPPING COMBINE.

Consummated and Goes Into Business With $100,000,000 Capital.

New York, June 23.—The Herald's London correspondent says: The British shipping combination, which intends to compete with the Morgan syndicate for the North Atlantic and Pacific freight and passenger business is now practically consummated. To-day I learn, on good authority, the following details:

Sir Christopher Furness is to be the head of the new combination. It is to be capitalized at £20,000,000 ($100,000,000). The Cunard Company is included in the deal.

The British Government has agreed largely to increase the present subsidies while Canada promised at least £20,000 ($1,000,000) yearly.

Six large passenger boats, capable of 25 knots an hour, are to be built, also a dozen 16-knot freighters at an aggregate cost of £8,500,000 ($42,500,000.)

The entire capital, I am told, has been underwritten. One well-known capitalist who offered to take up a big block of stock was told that the whole amount had been subscribed.

After the Coronation.

The late Lord Salisbury, the father of the present Prime Minister, acted as one of the train bearers at the coronation of George IV., and his reminiscences of the event are given in Notes and Queries. The weight of the robes gave each of the bearers "a Turkish bath of some hours' duration." The King suffered quite as much as the bearers. When the ceremony was over, his Majesty was discovered in his dressing room at the abbey "walking up and down in a state of nudity, but with the crown on his head."

Careless Conductor.

"Isn't this awful?" asked the common looking man on the crowded street car. "Isn't this awful? Why, there are already 165 people on this car."

"It is awful," agreed the person addressed, who was a street railway magnate. "It is awful. There ought to be at least twenty more in here. I'll take that conductor's number and have him on the carpet tomorrow."

A BABY STRANGLED.

Terrible Accident to a Playing Child in Hamilton—Large Fire in Galt—To Dine Minister of Justice.

Ninety American soldiers have died of cholera since the disease first broke out at Manila.

The dinner which the Montreal Irishmen are to offer Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick, Minister of Justice, will take place towards the end of September.

The British Columbia Legislature was prorogued at noon Saturday by Lieutenant-Governor Joly after the longest session in the history of the province.

John D. Edwards, the Toronto broker, who was sentenced to a year's imprisonment for fraudulent dealings in connection with the stock of the Ashnola Coal Co., has been pardoned by the Minister of Justice.

Johnston Brown, proprietor of the Tychborne Hotel, Parham, Ont., was instantly killed at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. He was overseeing work on a new drive-house, when it suddenly collapsed. He leaves a wife and six children.

The authorities at Windsor have been notified that the Lord's Day Act, prohibiting the pursuit of business on Sunday, must be enforced. Magistrate Bartlet said Saturday morning, that the cigar stores must not sell goods on Sunday hereafter.

This Monday is the seventh anniversary of the birth of Britain's most distinguished child, Edward, eldest son of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and grandson of His Majesty King Edward VII., born 23rd June, 1894. This child in time may be King Edward VIII.

At Hamilton Sunday a fifteen-months' old daugher of Wm. Kirk, porter for the Kuntz Brewing Co., was playing alone in the yard, and in some way got the rope of a swing around her neck. In trying to extricate herself she lost her footing and was strangled to death.

A rear-end collision occurred at the G.T.R. yards at Gravenhurst on Saturday. The tracks on the rear of the station were covered with wreckage. The front of one engine was telescoped in the tender of another. The wrecking auxiliary from Allandale cleared the tracks. No one was injured.

Lizzie Green, a domestic employed by the Empress Hotel at Gravenhurst, who has been afflicted with temporary insanity for some time, attempted to burn the hotel down by pouring several gallons of coal oil over the floor of the rear hall and ignited it. Fortunately the deed was discovered before any damage was done.

The largest fire in Galt for twenty years or more occurred Saturday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock. Shurly & Dietrich's saw factory was completely destroyed and nothing remains but the walls. The loss on burned building, machinery and other contents will be about $75,000 over and above the insurance which amounts to $26,000.

The Kai Chi sank in 30 seconds, and 150 officers and men on board were killed or drowned. Only two men on board the cruiser escaped death.

The cruiser Kai Chi was of 2,158 tons displacement. She was 260 feet long, constructed of steel, and had one screw. She was built in 1882.

BEWARE OF THEM!

Sleeplessness. Weakened and Irritated Nerves Lead to Insanity.

Paine's Celery Compound

Calms and Strengthens the Nervous System and Gives Sweet, Restful Sleep.

The "immortal Alfred" of England, divided the day into three portions, of eight hours each, assigning one for refreshment, and the health of the body by sleep, diet and exercise, another for business and the third for study and devotion. Sir Philip Sidney calls sleep the poor man's wealth, and he might have added, it is every man's wealth.

Are you sleepless and restless at night? Do you rise in the morning unrefreshed and weary, and unfitted for the day's work and duties? If you meet each opening day in this condition your vitality is low and disease is surely working in some form.

The experience of able physicians proved that Paine's Celery Compound permanently banishes insomnia, and gives strength to the weak, irritated and inflamed nerves, produces new nerve fibre and nerve force, and gives firm flesh and hard muscles. The use of Paine's Celery Compound is honestly and strongly urged, for every sleepless, tired, nervous and irritable man and woman who would be rugged and strong and fitted to withstand the dangers of a hot summer. The trial of one bottle will convince you that Paine's Celery Compound has no equal.

His Advice.

The story is told of the present Archbishop of Canterbury that, upon a candidate for ordination essaying to read a chapter of the Bible before him to test his elocutionary powers, he was stopped with the abrupt comment, "Ye're inaudible!" "But, my lord," said the discomfited youth, "I've read the lesson in a big church and been told that every word could be heard." "Who told ye—a lady? Are ye engaged to her?" The candidate owned the soft impeachment. "Then, don't believe a word she says—until ye're married to her," was the ungallant reply.

A Family Necessity.

"Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. VALEDICTORY OF REV. D. O. CROSSLEY

At the Close of His Pastorate in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church.

PRESENTED WITH A PURSE.

Words of Farewell Spoken—Official Recognition of the Late Pastor's Services—The Finances of the Church Greatly Improved—Remembered Also by the Choir.

At the conclusion of the morning service in the Charlotte street church on Sunday, Rev. Mr. Crossley, the retiring pastor, took occasion to refer to that day being the last of his official pastoral relations with the church and congregation. He remarked that since he came to Peterborough, he had had the cordial sympathy and loyal co-operation of the congregation. He had been received and treated in a most kindly and friendly manner, and he would look back with pleasure upon the happy years of his pastorate in Peterborough.

When he came to Peterborough, the church debt was $12,500. In reduction of this amount $8,500 had been subscribed, and $6,400 of this had been paid, of which $5,200 had been collected, and the balance saved from the pew rental fund, leaving a debt of about $4,000. There was an interest charge of $700 to meet when he (Mr. Crossley) came to the Charlotte street church, and now the decrease of the debt had reduced the charge for interest to $170, and there was a hopeful prospect for the future. He returned on behalf of the church officials hearty thanks to all who had contributed. It had been a pleasure to him to collect the money and to have it given willingly—none had, when asked to contribute, looked Crossley at him. While the members of the congregation and church had been generally true to him, he especially thanked Mr. Goard, the pew steward, for his excellent services. He (Mr. Crossley) had never known a man in his position more devoted to his duties. He felt this tribute was due to Mr. Goard. The church had been fortunate in the selection of its officials, who had been true and faithful. The ushers also deserved a warm word of praise. They had been punctual and had performed their duties well and cheerfully. In regard to the congregation he had found the pewholders ready to share their sittings with others who came to the church. He had often observed from the pulpit in some churches, pew holders who did not receive and accommodate strangers cheerfully. But this was not the case in the Charlotte street church. The pew holders had acted the part of liberal-minded Christians; they had been friendly and cordial and had not acted the part of selfishness, but had with a welcome received strangers to hear the word of God. He had promised the choir a new set of books—music and words. All that was needed was a collection of $20, which, it may be remarked, was secured later on in the evening. After a tribute to the fidelity and good work of the choir, Rev. Mr. Crossley added that when he was gone they would perhaps admit that he had been faithful in asking, and he would have the consoling reflection that they had been just as faithful in giving.

THE PRACTICAL PART.

After the collection a pleasing incident in the service took place. Mr. J. L. Hughes, Mr. Giles Webber, Dr. James Stevenson and Mr. Jos. Forster advanced to the pulpit platform. Mr. Hughes, speaking for the others, and for the congregation, said that this was the last Sunday of Rev. Mr. Crossley's five years of faithful pastoral service, and he wished on behalf of the church and congregation to give some tangible expression of the gratitude and thankfulness they all felt, and some recognition of the blessings which had followed his ministry, which was an important epoch in the history of the church, and its influence would be felt long after their late pastor had departed to labour in another vineyard. When Mr. Crossley came they felt some little doubt of his ability to meet the financial requirements of the church, but the result had been that both spiritually and financially he had done good work. We felt at many times that he was working beyond his strength, but his zeal was seen in all the relations of his pastorate, even in the midst of physical weakness. And his zeal had been transferred to the congregation and a zealous spirit of rivalry with the pastor and good works and of harmony had prevailed. His services were faithful and effective, whether in the pulpit or in giving consolation at the bedside of the dying, or speaking words of comfort at the open grave. He had undertaken to shift from their shoulders a heavy burden when he undertook to lighten the debt of $12,500, but his words of hopefulness when he said he would ask no man to do more than he would do himself, were a practical response in the hearts of his congregation. The result was seen in the healthy condition of the finances. There had been no need to discount notes to pay the salary of their pastor; the cash had been always on hand. As a token of respect and a pledge of the affection of the congregation he had so richly won, Rev. Mr. Crossley was asked to accept a purse of about $200; and with these words Mr. Stevenson tendered the purse to the pastor, who seemed deeply moved in accepting it. He said that if the purse had come down through the roof into his hands he would not have been more surprised. He returned his hearty thanks for their hearty gift which he accepted in the same spirit in which it was offered. He had received his salary regularly and had not expected or looked for anything additional. He was thankful, on retiring from the pastorate of the church that it was financially better than when he came. He hoped they would never have as heavy a burden again. He prayed that God's richest blessings would rest upon them and that prosperity would attend them. The purse he had received would afford him and his family many comforts which would not otherwise have been available. Again thanking them for their kindness, Mr. Crossley said he would take with him most pleasant memories of the five years he had passed in Peterborough.

Before the concluding services, Mr. Skitch, on behalf of the choir, presented Rev. Mr. Crossley with a gold headed cane, with the following inscription—"Rev. D. O. Crossley from Charlotte street choir, 1902." In returning his thanks for this gift, Mr. Crossley said he appreciated it as greatly as he appreciated the excellent services the choir had rendered. They had been a great comfort and support to him. The choir was a good one both musically and in the spirit of devotion they imparted to their work. He heard they had a good choir in the church to which he was going in Bowmanville, and if it were as good as the one in Charlotte street church, Peterborough, he would be well satisfied. Rev. Mr. Crossley concluded by bidding the choir and congregation good-bye, and praying that after their songs on earth were done they might all join in the anthemns of the Celestial choir above.

PETERBOROUGH DOOMED

To Become one of the Leading Manufacturing Centres of Canada.

The fact that "The Colonial Typewriter Co., Limited," had decided to locate their factory and head office in Peterborough, is further proof that the town is forging to the front, and will in a short time become a great city from a manufacturing standpoint. This company will begin at once to manufacture on a large scale typewriter ribbons and carbon paper, things which though largely used, has never been manufactured heretofore in Canada. This industry, having a protective tariff of 35 per cent. in its favour, and under the supervision of an expert chemist of 20 years experience, should command a large and profitable trade from its inception.

The large railway companies, Dominion and Provincial Governments, leading manufacturing concerns, the legal profession, and all users of typewriters, consume annually an enormous amount of these goods. Thousands of dollars worth of ribbons and carbons are used in Great Britain and other foreign countries every year and it is the object of the company as soon as the home trade is established, to do an immense export business.

Peterborough, from a manufacturer's point of view, offers exceptional advantages, that should enable this company to compete successfully for the foreign trade.

As their superintendent, the company has been fortunate in securing the services of an expert chemist, who has started in business the major portion of the American manufacturers of this line of goods. Further, the company controls the exclusive selling rights of the Hammond Typewriter for the entire Dominion of Canada, with branch offices in Toronto and Montreal, having purchased the established business, together with all trade marks, patent rights, etc., from the Colonial Typewriter Co. Judging from past results, the sale of the Hammond Typewriter should also prove a very profitable part of the business, as it has been well introduced and it is now taught exclusively in many of the leading educational institutions of the country.

It is the intention of the management, as soon as the ribbon and carbon plant is on a sound money-making basis, to take up the manufacture of a typewriter of their own. This will necessitate the erection of an extensive plant and the employment of a large number of hands.

Under the direction of Peterborough's leading business people, and with the management in the hands of practical typewriter men of long experience, the success of the company should be assured from the start.

The officers and directors for the ensuing year are as follows;

President—Chas. B. McAllister.
Vice-President—A. H. Stratton.
Sec.-Treas.—R. M. Waddell.
Managing Director — J. Francis O'Connor.
Assistant Managing Director—Wm. J. Derby.
Directors — Hugh Waddell, Peter Campbell, Hiram Kiteley, W. H. Hill, and John Crane.
Solicitors — Dennistoun, Peck & Stevenson.

It is understood that local capital will be largely employed, and several leading citizens have already interested themselves in the company.

A SETTLEMENT IS IN SIGHT.

Toronto Street Railway Employees May Resume Work.

INCREASED WAGES GIVEN

But the Company Will Not Recognise the Union, and This May Lead to More Trouble.

Toronto, Ont., June 23.—It was announced at noon to-day that an agreement between the strike committee and the directors of the Street Railway Company had been reached and only awaited the formal signing. The Company it was stated, had yielded to the men's demands for increased wages and recognition of Grievance Committee, but had declined to recognize the union. Subsequently a hitch developed in the negotiations. D. Dilworth, representing the International Union, opposing the settlement because it did not recognize the union. Dilworth is asking for instructions from the union head-quarters and meanwhile it is understood nothing will be done to precipitate a conflict between the troops and the mob by operating cars; no cars have run to-day so far.

Miss E. L. Beattie, St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, is spending her vacation with her parents, Concession street, Ashburnham.

Mrs. D. R. Murray and Miss Wilmah and Mrs. J. S. Swanton, of Lindsay, are in town the guests of Mrs. J. B. Larocque, of the Montreal House.

Mr. R. N. Bell, who for some time past has held the position of paying teller in the local branch of the Ontario Bank, to-day received notice of his transfer to the Ottawa branch of that institution. Mr Bell will leave on the midnight C.P.R. for the Canadian Capital to assume his new duties. His removal to Ottawa is, however, only temporary and his friends here hope that he may return in the course of a month or two to his old post. NOTES FROM THE CAMP.

The White-Tented Field at Barriefield.

What the Kingston Papers Have to say Concerning the 3rd Dragoons.

(Kingston Whig.)

The end of the week sees the military camp at Barriefield in splendid condition. Half the drilling period will be over to-night, and the men are showing the effects of hard work on the part of themselves and their capable officers. The lines are neatly kept and present an attractive picture to the visitor.

Yesterday the 3rd Dragoons were served with new uniforms all around, including new English riding boots. The regiment had been expecting this issue for some time. In their new equipment the troopers will present a splendid appearance.

A number of the officers of the 3rd Dragoons were much disappointed at the military ball of the R.M.C. being held on the night of their arrival in camp, which made it impossible for them to attend even had invitations been sent them.

The camp is laid out very prettily this year. Under the new order of things, the troops are arranged in half squadrons, and the whole camp can easily be viewed from the brigade office. The camp is better laid out than ever before, and the officers are delighted with the arrangement.

Trumpeter Saddler, of "D" squadron, 3rd Dragoons, has been appointed staff sergeant trumpeter. Lieut. Burlingham, of the same troop, is a new man, and is giving the best of satisfaction.

Lieut. Hayward, "B" squadron, 3rd Dragoons, went to Africa with the second contingent of Mounted Rifles, and is still there.

Major Brown, of the Dragoons, resigned his position to go to South Africa, with the second last Canadian regiment.

The Dragoons boast of another officer, who has won distinction on the veldt. This is Sergt. Percy Roberts Price, formerly of "C" Squadron, who is a distant relative of his namesake, Lord Roberts. He went out with the second contingent and was through many engagements. In one instance Sergt. Price, Sergt. Brown, Trooper Mulloy, afterwards the blind hero, and another trooper—four in all—held 40 Boers at bay for a long time. The Boers finally retreated, leaving fourteen of their number dead upon the field. Price has well upheld the honour of his regiment, in whose memory he will ever be cherished.

The officer commanding the Dragoons, Lieut.-Col. Sutton, of Millbrook, has worked his way up from the ranks. Two years ago he was given command, and since then has done efficient work.

The senior medical officer in camp Surgeon Major Young, Peterborough, who also belongs to the Dragoons, is a brother of Capt. Young, who distinguished himself at Klip Kop, where with a force of fifteen men, he captured two Boer guns and thirty prisoners.

Capt. Garvin, the quartermaster of the Dragoons, is one of the hardest working officers in camp, and he is everywhere popular. The Captain is a man of keen literary tastes, has written poetry, and even published a book. He is an educationist, and an ex-public school inspector. He is a polished orator and clever politician. Four years ago he was Hon. J. R. Stratton's opponent in West Peterborough, but was out-distanced. He takes a deep interest in things military and has laboured hard for the up-building of the regiment.

HAD TO BE LIFTED.

A Helpless Cripple is Restored to Health and Strength.

Lame Back had This Man a Prisoner for a Long Time, but at Last he Found a Cure Though Given up by the Doctors

Napanee, Ont., June 22.—Special.—The doctors told Simon Warner that they could do nothing for him. He had tried many medicines and treatments with no good result.

He was a helpless cripple with lame back, and for a long time his wife had to lift him in and out of bed, the pain in his back was so very severe.

In this extremity a friend's advice saved him. This man had suffered with backache himself, but had been completely cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills, thus when he heard that Mr. Warner was so bad he went to his home and recommemded this medicine to him.

Mr. Warner and his good wife were at first inclined to be somewhat doubtful, but here was the evidence that Dodd's Kidney Pills do cure Lame Back right before their very eyes in the person of the man who had been cured. Surely it must be true.

So after some deliberation they decided to try, and now they are very much pleased that they did so, for in a short time Mr. Warner's backache had vanished. He grew gradually stronger and better and at present enjoys the best all-round health he has had for many years.

There is not a trace of lame back remaining, not a single symptom, and the helpless man who used to be a burden to himself and his wife is now strong and a comfort to his faithful helpmate. He says:

"We have used in all about twenty-five boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and given some away to our neighbours. I find that when they use a box they themselves are about as strong in their recommendations as we are.

"I can certainly highly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a sure cure for Lame Back, for they cured me, and I never heard of a worse case."

THE PRINCE "A STRANGER."

Had to Withdraw From House of Commons on One Occasion.

It may be mentioned that the King as Prince of Wales was keenly alive to the interest and educative value of debates in Parliament. He frequently occupied the seat "over the clock" in the Peers' Gallery of the House of Commons, and heard some of the finest orations of Mr. Gladstone and other statesmen from this position. On one occasion Mr. Diggar, desiring to test the question, rather offensively and with malice prepense, called the Speaker's attention to the presence of "strangers" in the House, with the result that the Speaker had no option but to order the withdrawal of all persons in the Galleries save members of the House of Commons. The Prince submitted with good grace to this notice to quit.

In the House of Lord the Prince showed equal courtesy to members of both political parties, and in later years liked to chat with the Marquis of Salisbury, the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Rosebery or Earl Spencer, as to matters under debate. If confidences were revealed, they would prove that the Prince was a shrewd judge of political affairs, and guessed accurately the probable results which would follow a "move" on the chessboard of statecraft. He was always amused with those members of both Houses who displayed eccentricity, and no one who was present will forget the Prince's uncontrolled merriment when a certain Peer was peremptorily closured to his own excessive astonishment. Foreigners used to be amazed to learn that our future Sovereign was the silent gentleman who listened so courteously to debates, and never showed the slightest approval or disapproval of the sentiments expressed. They could not believe that one so exalted and powerful would not tyrannize over his subjects. Yet since the very ridiculous insult which was hurled at the late Prince Consort for attending a debate, there has never been the faintest murmur at the practice which Princes of the Blood Royal have of sitting in the House of Lords. On the contrary, the nation fully approves of so sensible a method of understanding the relative views of the people's representatives and hereditary legislators.

Edward I. or Edward VII.

If there is any cloud on the British political horizon, Henry Labouchere, editor of London Truth, may be depended upon to find it. Among his latest discoveries in this line is in Scotland, where it must be admitted something of a cloud has been visible.

The Scottish people are not pleased with the determination shown by King Edward to be recognized in Scotland as well as in England as the seventh of his name. The act of union which brought England and Scotland together is less than 200 years old. Previous to that time the two countries, though under one monarch, were still two kingdoms. Besides, even if one assumes that the two are to be considered as one from the time of the passage of the act of union it is still true that the present King is the first Edward ever regarded by Scotland as its lawful sovereign.

To say that Edward VII. of England is Edward VII. of Scotland is to imply that Edward I. of England was likewise Edward I. of Scotland. Few Scots, however loyal they may be to the present ruling house of Great Britain, are willing to make any such admission.

Besides, the name Edward is itself somewhat distasteful. The first three Edwards all attempted to break down the independence of their northern neighbors. It was against Edward II. that the battle of Bannockburn was fought. The most cherished traditions of the Scottish race insist that till Queen Anne's time Scotland was a separate and sovereign state, owing no allegiance south of the Tweed. The Edward of to-day is the first of the name recognized in Scotland since 1603. He is therefore Edward I. of Scotland, though Edward VII. of England. This principle has been acknowledged before. The author of the celebrated royal treatise against tobacco was in England James I., but in Scotland James VI. The Scotch see no reason why there should be a change in the principle now.

Unquestionably the coronation of King Edward VII. will take place according to the program, though the recognition as their liege lord of a monarch bearing the designation of a former enemy must be rather galling to the descendants of Bruce and Wallace and the men who fought at Bannockburn.

Colonial Knighthoods.

London, June 20.—It is confidently asserted here that knighthoods will be conferred on Hon. William Mulock the Postmaster-General of Canada; Hon. W. S. Fielding, the Minister of Finance; Hon. F. W. Borden, Minister of Militia and Defence.

When You Can't Sleep.

This is a sure cure for insomnia: Push away your pillow and lie flat upon your back with your muscles relaxed. Slowly draw in the deepest breath possible, hold it for four seconds, then slowly expel it until your chest and abdomen have collapsed. Repeat this until you fall asleep.

Offended to "Stuff."

The pride of James Gordon Bennett, the elder, in the great newspaper he had built up was proverbial, and he had a particular aversion to anything that savored of disrespect on the part of his employees when speaking of its contents.

One of his editorial writers ventured to compliment him one morning on the general character of that day's issue.

"There was a lot of good stuff in the paper this morning, Mr. Bennett," he said.

"Stuff?" exclaimed the editor. "Stuff? What do you mean?"

"I mean the—the matter on the editorial page," replied the other, somewhat taken aback.

"Then say so," rejoined his chief, with a frosty gleam in his eye. "If you value your job, young man, never call anything that goes into the New York Herald 'stuff' again as long as you live!"

Getting In Line.

"The station at Savannah," said a traveler through the south, "is surrounded in all directions with a lot of saloons and cheap restaurants. In great illuminated letters over one of these saloons was the sign:

"'Open All Night.'

"Next to it was a restaurant bearing with equal prominence the legend, 'We Never Close.'

"Third in order was a Chinese laundry in a little tumbledown hovel, and upon the front of this building was the sign in great, scrawling letters, 'Me Wakee Too.'"

Away Down in Mexico.

There grows two plants known and used before Columbus discovered America. One is a specific for inflamed membranes and the other a certain cure for bronchitis. Combined with Tar, Tamarac, Tolu and other herbs they go to make up Four T's, the only positive cure known to-day for whooping cough and bronchitis. A 25c. bottle cures an ordinary cough in 24 hours. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Business and Policy.

"And now, my son," said the father, "as you are about to go into business for yourself, it is well for you to remember that honesty is the best policy."

"Yes, father," said the noble young man.

"That honesty is the best policy, and," continued the old man, "if you will study up the laws you will be surprised to find how many things you can do in a business way and still be honest."

Not What He Meant.

Scones, having sent a stupid servant to do an errand, was greatly annoyed on finding that he had done exactly the opposite to what he had been ordered.

"Why, you haven't common sense," he remonstrated.

"But, sir"—

"Shut up! I should have remembered that you were an idiot. When I'm tempted to send a fool on an errand again, I'll not ask you. I'll go myself."

Rich Blood Strong Nerves

Are Necessary to Good Health—Both Result From the Use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Evidence From Your Neighbors

About one-fifth of all the blood used in the human body is sent direct to the brain, and out of this is created the nerve force, which controls and regulates the action of the various organs.

When the blood gets thin and watery, as it usually does at this time of year, the nerves are first to suffer; they are starved and exhausted. Headache, dizzy spells, indigestion, weak action of the heart, languid, depressing feelings, weakness and functional derangements of the bodily organs are the result.

You can feel Dr. Chase's Nerve Food doing you good day by day, as it strikes at the root of the trouble and creates new, rich, red blood. You can prove that it builds up new tissues and adds flesh if you weigh yourself each week while using it.

Mrs. Smeaton, No. 191 Rubridge st., Peterborough, Ont., and whose husband is employed with the Canadian General Electric Co., states;

"My little son was very much run down in health, had no colour in his face and was quite nervous. As his appetite was poor and he seemed tired and listless, we became anxious about him, and began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It was not long before I noticed a marked change in his appearance. His appetite improved, his colour became better, and his health generally was very much better than it had been for a long time. I have much pleasure in adding my testimony to the hosts of others who are praising this medicine."

Mrs. Crose, No. 148 Rubidge street, Peterborough, Ont., states;

"I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in my family and have found it to be a great nerve builder. One of my children had been troubled with nervousness for a number of years and suffered greatly from dizzy, nervous headaches. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has entirely freed her of these symptoms, and to-day she is real strong and healthy. We do not lose an opportunity of recommending this splendid medicine."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is for the blood as well as the nerves. It cures each and every ailment resulting from thin, weak, watery blood. Its cures are permanent, because it restores and re-vitalizes the wasted and depleted cells. 50 cents a box; 5 boxes for $2.50; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

ROYAL ORNAMENTS.

The Crown, the Sceptre, the Staff or Rod, the Ring, Called "The Wedding Ring of England."

The Royal Ornaments consist of the crown, the sceptre, the staff, or rod, the ring—called "The Wedding Ring of England"—and the long since abandoned "bracelets." The latter were a very ancient ornament for Kings, especially among the Teutonic races. They were known, however, among the Israelites, for Saul was wearing them at the time of his death, and they were brought to David by the Amalekite as the ensigns of the power which had devolved on David. Edward VI. appears to have worn them at his coronation. The fact is that in 1640 there were two sets of regalia. Each King had a set of regalia of his own, for his own use, but he was crowned actually with the relics of St. Edward, which consisted of a complete set of regalia. The crown of St. Edward is a circle, on which are placed four crosses, alternately, with four fleurde-lis. From the crosses rise two arches, which meet in the form of a cross in the centre of the crown. The junction of the arches is surmounted by a cross on an orb. The whole crown was of gold, ornamented with jewels. Inside the crown is a cap of purple velvet, turned up with ermine, so that the ermine appeared below the circle of the crown. Queen Victoria was not crowned with the crown of St. Edward, but with the Imperial crown, similar to that of St. Edward, but lighter and more richly jeweled. The large stone, which, it is said, was worn by Henry V. in his helmet at the battle of Agincourt, is in the centre of the cross, which rises above the wearer's forehead, and the orb on the top is made of a single aquamarine. The Imperial crown was made anew for the late Queen, and the arches were made to represent oak leaves intertwined.

The present crown of St. Edward dates only from the time of Charles II. Charles I. was the last Monarch who wore the ancient regalia at his coronation. Poor Charles I.! The text that his coronation sermon was preached from was:—"Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life."

Wedding Ring of England

The Wedding Ring of England is supposed to have had a miraculous origin. The old legend runs that Edward the Confessor gave to a beggar a valuable ring that he wore; and that soon after a very old man gave the ring to two pilgrims in Palestine, saying that he was St. John the Evangelist, and bidding them return it to their King, which they did. In reference to this legend, Edward II. presented at the second oblation of his coronation service, a piece of gold made in the shape of a man stretching out his finger to receive a ring. The ring used to be a "table ruby" set in gold; and later this ruby has been engraved with a cross. Since 1830 the Episcopal custom has been followed, and a sapphire has been made the foundation stone with rubies set like a cross of St. George in the big sapphire.

Another tradition in connection with the ring is that the closer the ring fits the fingtr of the sovereign, the more will that sovereign be beloved and longer will he reign. It is curious to note—in regard to this tradition—that in 1838 the ring was made by mistake for Queen Victoria's little finger, but that the Archbishop insisted on putting it on the ring-finger—the wedding finger, of course—thereby causing the young Queen considerable pain from the tightness of the ring.

For once, at least, tradition proved true.

The Coronation Robes.

The following account has been given by Mr. W. H. St. John Hope of the Coronation Robes of Queen Victoria in a paper by Dr. J. Wickham Legg on "The Sacring of the English Kings" in the Archaeological Journal, vol. li.

"The Colobium Sindonis.—The vestment known as the colobium sindonis, which was worn at the last coronation, is a sleeveless rochet of fine linen open at the sides, where it is edged with lace, and with a lace flounce nine inches deep round the bottom. At the neck it is cut low and edged across with lace. It is not made to put over the head, but opens on the left shoulder, where there are three small buttons to fasten it. There are three like buttons but shams, on the right shoulder.

"The Tunicle or Dalmatic.—The tunicle or dalmatic only slightly resembles the vestment of that name; it has been opened up the front and otherwise altered in the fashion of a woman's upper garment.

"It is in the shape of a long jacket with pointed sleeves, of yellow cloth of gold, woven with green palm branches, from which issue pink roses green shamrocks, and purple thistles. It is edged throughout with gold lace half an inch deep, and lined with rose-colored silk. There are no fastenings of any kind, and the vestment seems to have been worn in the manner of a jacket.

The Vestment.

"The dimensions of the vestment are these: From the neck to the waist, 9 inches; from the waist to the hem 40 inches. The length of the front opening is 44¼ inches, and of the sleeve from the waist to the point, 27 inches.

"The Armilla or Stole.—The armilla is a band of yellow cloth of gold, three inches wide and five feet two inches long, with gold bullion fringe at the ends. It is shaped to fit the figure and is embroidered with tudor roses, shamrocks, thistles and silver eagles, with Royal coronets between. The central device is a rose. At each end is a square panel with a blue and white torse above and below, and worked with a pink cross of St. George on a silver ground.

The Imperial Mantle.

"The Imperial Mantle.—The Imperial Mantle resembles in shape the back of a cut-down chasuble. It is six feet five and one-half inches long, and measures in width across the top twenty-eight inches; seven and one-half inches lower, forty-three inches and at three feet two and one-half inches; five feet four inches.

"It is made out of four breadths (each twenty inches wide) of yellow cloth of gold woven with a golden branched pattern which forms a series of pointed oval loops. These severally contain a slipped rose (per fess argent and gules), a slipped thistle, or a shamrock leaf. The loops are connected at the top by silver fleur-de-lis, and at the sides by Royal coronets. The interspaces are filled with silver eagles facing to the sinister.

"The mantle is edged throughout with gold fringes, 2½ inches deep, and is lined with rose-colored silk.

"To the upper edge is attached on one side an oblong gilt morse, with an eagle between two palm branches in the centre and the rose, shamrock and thistle at the sides."

The Coronation Chair.

The famous coronation chair was made during the reign of Edward I. to receive the stone which that King carried away from Scone, and which is still to be seen under the seat of the chair. The chair rests on lions, above which is an oblong open space, the sides of which were adorned with quatrefoil tracery, but this has now been broken away in front. In this is placed the stone. Above this is the seat from which rise the back and the arms of the chair. The back is quite straight; where the upper line of the arms joins the chair there used to be two long and narrow finials, and the top of the back, which begins at this spot, is triangular and adorned with crockets, terminating in a finial which is now lost. The arms of the chair rise at first perpendicularly; but at a height of about a foot from the seat is the top of the arm, the line of which is concave. On the back and inside the arms of the chair, are some remains of the original gilded gesso decoration, which can just be distinguished, in spite of the abuse to which the chair has been subjected, notably at the Jubilee of 1887, when it was smartened up with a coating of brown paint.

Caviare Sandwich.

An appetising sandwich is made by cutting a white loaf in thin, even rounds, buttering lightly, spreading with caviare and sprinkling over it the powdered yolks of hard boiled eggs.

Apples in Japan.

Of the fruits wholly unknown in Japan until introduced from abroad the apple has proved the most successful, and it has become a chief product of some districts in the Hokkaido or northern islands. The apples are of fine appearance and excellent flavor, and the trees yield a good profit.

Frogs in France.

In France it is illegal to capture frogs at night.

A Rockery.

In making a rockery begin with a foundation of small stones, broken bricks or similar material. Build in circular fashion against a wall or corner, finishing with large rocks. Fill crevices with good soil and fertilizer as you build and supply seeds and plants after moistening thoroughly with fine spray.

Australia's Climate.

The climate of western Australia is said to be most agreeable, for even if the midday sun is hot a cool breeze generally springs up toward evening, making the air almost chilly at night.

Diamond Cement.

To make diamond cement take five ounces of fine gelatin, four ounces of water and one ounce of glacial acetic acid. Let the mixture stand some hours, heat to effect solution and add ten drops of carbolic acid to keep from spoiling.

GLADSTONE'S ORATORY.

One Critic Likens It to the Rushing of Waters in a Tempest.

Gladstone was a great financier and perhaps the very greatest expositor of finance who ever lived. He had a magical influence over masses of men and a power of words the effect of which was more like that of huge masses of water in a tempest than anything else. His Midlothian speeches made one think less of a river coming down than of the sea coming up. His skill in constructing a difficult measure was not even approached by any man of his time and perhaps was never exceeded by any man at any time.

These and many other merits we must freely allow him, but when the final estimate of him is made many traits must be introduced and not least his extraordinary power of believing precisely what he wished to believe. He had a tender conscience, but, save only where finance was concerned, he had that conscience thoroughly under command. If it showed the slightest recalcitrancy, his will was always ready to say, "Just you dare!"

And yet when all has been said for and against him there can be no doubt that he will remain the most notable Englishman of his generation—as much out of place among the Liberals as Disraeli was among the Conservatives, but, like him, a head and shoulders above all his rivals and as much superior to Disraeli himself in most of the higher arts of statesmanship as that immensely clever child of Israel was superior to him in all its secondary arts.

The Day of Miracles not Past.

A Toronto Star reporter investigated the case of Mr. George Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhozone.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be cured. Catarrhozone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from impaired hearing, deafness, head noises and ringing in the ears, are advised to inhale Catarrhozone, and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. The Seven Golden Cities.

The "Seven Golden Cities," one of the most popular legends of the latter part of the dark ages, were said to be situated on an island west of the African coast. The island is represented as abounding in gold, with magnificent houses and temples, "the high towers of which shone at a great distance." The legend also relates that at the time of the conquest of Spain and Portugal by the Moors, when the inhabitants fled in every direction to escape slavery, seven bishops, followed by a great number of people, took to ships and put boldly out on the high seas. After tossing about for some time they landed on an unknown island, the famous spot which in after years became the seat of the "Seven Golden Cities."

"This island," Heylyn says, "was exactly in midocean." After all had landed safely the wise old bishops burned the ships to prevent their followers from deserting and founded the cities which have become so famous in song and story. This mysterious island was often sought by the early navigators. Those who went in search of it and never returned were popularly believed to have been detained by its inhabitants.

fellows who were cooped up inside It was first intended to remove the men from the King street barn in three carriages, and the mounted police were called in to escort them. Then the cab drivers discovered that they were to convey scabs, they refused to go to the barns and turned west on King street, from Church. The police were then asked to furnish the vans.

Other Attempts to Run.

Six cars were taken out of the Yorkville barns, but after some rioting they were returned without having made their intended trips.

All was quiet in the West End, as no attempt to run cars from Roncesvalles barn was made.

W. H. Moore, secretary to the president of the Street Railway Company, was hit with a missile at the corner of Queen and Spadina avenue, about 9.30 a.m. He had undertaken to run a car from the Yorkville barn around the belt line, down Spadina. All along the way, bricks and stones were hurled at the car, and one of them came through the vestibule window and was planted fairly on the side of Mr. Moore's face. Mr. Moore rushed the car through without wasting much time, and ran it into the North Toronto barns. The car was manned by two of the company's old employes, two detectives and five or six police. Mr. Moore has his face in bandages.

Harry Webb had an order to supply bread and pastry to the car barns. The contract was discontinued on Sunday, and the company had to look elsewhere for the means of sustaining their imported men.

A number of the imported men made enquiries from the police regarding the use of firearms in this country. They came from the United States, and were under the impression that they could carry weapons to defend themselves. The police had instructions to warn every man that it was not only an offence to use them but to carry them.

The Arrests.

William Brown, 15 Munro street.
Thomas Cook, 60 East King street.
Benjamin Finkley, 465 East King street.
Joseph Christie, 114 Duke street.
Thomas Ibbels, 46 Brunswick ave.
Harry Madill, 102 Belmont street.
Thomas Fecney, 160 East Esplanade street.

Charged With Theft.

William Mark, 193 Saraurens ave. It is alleged that he took the points at the King and Queen intersection and threw them into the lake. He says he did not.

The Injured.

Robert B. Johnson, 866 Yonge street, nose cut with a piece of glass.
W. H. Moore, secretary to President Mackenzie, hit by a half brick.
Motorman Quigley, hit on the head and rendered unconscious.
Policeman McKay, hit in the back by a missile.
Policeman Welch, struck on the head by a chunk of asphalt.
Thomas Hewitt, a spectator, hit on the forehead by a stone.
John Ross, Driver No. 4 Patrol, hit in the back by a stone.
Fred Lynn, a Union Conductor, struck by a stone.
Cabman, face cut by a stone.

AN ATTEMPT AT PEACE.

President Ames Again Interferes But Nothing Comes of It.

Late yesterday afternoon, President Ames of the Board of Trade, got Mr. Flavelle to see Mr. Nicholls of the Street Railway Company with a view to peace. After a vrief conference with Mr. Nicholls, Mr. Flavelle sent for Mr. Dilworth and the Strikers' Committee.

Mr. Nicholls was not called upon until after midnight. At that hour the strikers' committee and Mr. Flavelle went to the office of Mr. Ames and there met Mr. Nicholls. This conference started just before 1 o'clock. The question of recognition of the union seemed to be the question most at issue, but since any committee selected by the employes for whatsoever purpose must be dictated by the union, since the members are in the majority, Mr. Dilworth urged that the men could afford to waive the mere wording of the agreement.

At 2.30 this morning the committee of the men was in consultation with Messrs. J. W. Flavelle and Frederic Nicholls, the latter a director of the company, but no decision has been given out.

The strikers held a mass meeting yesterday afternoon. International Delegate Daniel Dilworth and Business Manager James McDonald of the local union were received. Both gentlemen cautioned the men to avoid trouble and not resort to violence. If they followed this rule victory was assured, but if the police authorities were given an opportunity to interfere the public sympathy was liable to be diverted to the company.

"You have public sympathy," asserted Mr. McDonald, "and you will keep it as long as you serve it. Don't forget that. Be firm, but don't be violent."

This sentiment was cheered, and when Mr. Dilworth told the men he had received official information that the strike had received the endorsement of the international organization the cheering was prolonged and vigorous.

The strikers are receiving many offers of help from other trades unions in the city.

TIED-UP TIGHT SATURDAY.

No Street Car Service in Any Part of Toronto on the Last Day of the Week—Company's Call.

One lone car moving westward on College street Saturday morning and bearing a conductor, a motorman, and a single passenger constituted the sole service given by the Street Railway Company Saturday.

The tie-up was general and complete.

Proceedings which culminated in this state of affairs began at midnight in the Star Theatre and lasted until 9 a.m. The final vote was taken at 8.30 a.m., and the result was an overwhelming decision to strike. The last vote was upon the question of striking, and was as follows:

For strike..... 918
Against a strike..... 1
Did not vote, 15.

One employe for religious reasons opposed the motion to go out. He was the sole exception to the great army of employes who approved vigorous measures in dealing with the company.

Call by the Company.

NOTICE.

Inasmuch as the company recognize that their men are exhausted by their long conference, and, therefore, physically unable to operate their cars to-day, the management wishes to state that all the men desiring to continue in the employ of the Company are expected to report for duty to-morrow, Sunday at 7 a.m., and will receive full pay for Saturday.

E. H. KEATING,
General Manager.

The above call to work by the company was posted up at the various buildings and barns of the company shortly after the officials received notice of the above unanimous vote to strike by the men.

With the exception noted not a car ran all day Saturday.

BAPTIST CONFERENCE.

The 100th Anniversary of the Peterborough Association of Baptist Churches Held in Cobourg.

(Cobourg World.)

On Tuesday afternoon delegates began to arrive in town to attend the meeting of the Peterborough Association of Baptist churches and by night about 125 were present.

The afternoon meeting on Tuesday was devoted more especially to the work of mission circles and bands. Excellent addresses were given by Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Marshall and Miss Priest, a returned foreign missionary from India.

The evening sessions were each characterized by a very enjoyable song service conducted by Mr. W. J. Huston.

On Tuesday evening the opening meeting of the Association was held. Vacancies were filled upon committees as follows: Nominating Committee—Mr. W. J. Huston, Rev. J. H. Hanna, Mr. L. B. Randall, Mr. W. B. Riggs, Pastor A. W. Torrie. Resolution Committee, Rev. T. Watson.

Mrs. W. A. Gunton read the report of the directress of the Circles and Bands. The report showed an increase in gifts to missions. One new Circle has been organized, two life certificates granted. Boxes and bales of clothing have been sent to the needy.

The pastor of the entertaining church, Rev. J. T. Marshall, gave the address of welcome and the moderator, Rev. O. C. Elliott, Belleville, replied. Rev. W. E. Orton, Campbellford, preached the annual sermon. His text was John 16, 7, and his subject, "The Holy Spirit's Work."

Miss E. Priest of India, addressed the meeting on Foreign Missions, confining her remarks chiefly to "Fellowship in service." Mrs. Randall and Miss Hume, Port Hope, sang excellent solos.

The morning and afternoon sessions were characterized by devotional expositions. Rev. J. H. Hanna, Peterborough, taking charge in the morning and Rev. P. K. Dayfoot, Port Hope, in the afternoon.

On Wednesday morning Moderator Elliott introduced to the association Rev. A. McNeill and Pastor Hawkings as visitor and new pastor, respectively.

Rev. O. C. Elliott delivered the Moderator's address, dealing with the condition of the churches in the Association.

The digest of church statistics was read by the Clerk, Rev. W. A. Gunton, Peterborough, after which Pastors Hawkings and Torrie read the messages from the churches. Prof. Norman of Grand Linge, was introduced and spoke briefly.

The Nomination Committee reported as follows;

Moderator—Rev. J. T. Marshall.
Clerk—Rev. W. A. Gunton.
Preacher of Sermon—Rev. P. K. Dayfoot.
Alternative—Rev. J. H. Hanna.
Nominating Committee — A. C. Baker, L. B. Randall, Jas. Isbister, Rev. R. Wallace, Rev. J. Bustow, Rev J. E. Hawkings.
Obituary Committee — Rev. W. E. Orton, John Chard.
Resolution Committee — W. B. Riggs, Rev. T. Watson, Pastor A. W. Torrie, J. M. Roberts, Thos. H. Graham.
Local Secretaries — Home Missions —Rev. P. K. Dayfoot; Foreign, Rev. Robert Wallace, Grand Linge, G. S. Matthews, Manitoba and British Columbia, L. B. Randall, Education, Rev J. H. Hanna; B.Y.P.U., O J Raddon.

The report was adopted.

The secretaries of the various missions reported, and a profitable discussion ensued.

Pastor. J. E. Hawkings conducted a vigorous and interesting discussion on young people's work at the close of the afternoon session.

In the evening Mayor E. C. S. Huycke, K. C., addressed the meeting briefly and extended to them a hearty welcome on behalf of the town. He expressed the high esteem in which the Baptist church is held and paid a high tribute to the good work done by Rev. J. T. Marshall, and referred to the high regard in which he is held. He wished the association good will and God speed.

Rev. O. C. Elliott, in replying, thanked Mr. Huycke for his kindness and said he was glad that Cobourg, like Belleville, had a Christian man for its Chief Magistrate, and hoped that before long we should have more such men in Parliament.

Addresses were made by Rev. C. J. Cameron, Toronto, Prof. E. Norman, of Grand Lingna, and Rev. J. G. Shearer, Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance.

STRIKE IS SETTLED.

Industrial Peace Again Reigns in "Toronto, The Good."

TROOPS HAVE BEEN WITHDRAWN

Men and Company Both Yielded on Some Points—Cars Again Running as Usual—The Conditions of Settlement Give the Men a Substantial Advance in Wages—No Further Rioting.

Toronto, June 24.—After three days in which practically not a car moved Toronto will wake up this morning and find the street railway service once more in full operation. The strike has been settled, a compromise having been arranged on terms honorable and satisfactory to both the company and the men, and a struggle which threatened to have most serious consequences is happily averted. The fourteen hundred troops on duty yesterday to prevent rioting in case the company made another attempt to run the cars were fortunately not needed to keep order, yet their very presence was an unpleasant reminder to citizens of what might have been had timely intervention not succeeded in bringing the contending parties amicably together. The experience of the past few days to Toronto is not one that citizens would like to see repeated. It has been a costly one for the men, the company and the city. At 3.15 yesterday afternoon, the Board of Trade Committee, which had acted as mediator between the men's committee and the company's officials in the negotiations, which lasted all night and which were resumed during the day, announced the following compromise as having been signed:

The Agreement as Signed

Toronto, June 24.,1902.—The committee of the Board of Trade having again intervened between the officers of the Toronto Railway Company and the committee appointed by the employes at the meeting held under the auspices of the Board of Trade, and recommending further negotiations, a meeting was held on the morning of the 23rd inst., and the following compromise was arrived at:

The wage scale which has been established (by the company last Friday) to stand until the first of July. In the meantime the employes may hold a meeting to be called under the auspices of the Board of Trade Committee and if the majority of the regular and relief men vote by ballot to substitute the scale of eighteen cents per hour for first year of service and twenty cents thereafter, the company will substitute it for the present scale.

The company will not interfere with the freedom of the railway employes to organize under any form of constitution, but the company decline to give recognition to the union or to receive a grievance committee from the union, but any employe who may have been suspended or dismissed, or who may have any other grievance, shall have the right of an appeal in person to the general manager, and to bring with him such of his fellow-employes or other witnesses who may have any knowledge of the facts and circumstances of the case.

The company agree that the cars shall be cleaned for the motormen and conductors in the morning, but that the motormen and conductors will report fifteen minutes ahead of time as at present, without additional pay, and will keep the inside and platform of their cars cleaned as formerly, while on duty. That on Sunday the increase shall be such as to make the day equal to a working day in the week.

(Signed, approved) E. H. Keating, Manager Toronto Railway Company; A. E. Ames, J. D. Allan, J. W. Flavelle, Paul Jarvis, Committee of the Board of Trade; J. H. Pickles, Chairman committee of the men.

Men Accepted It.

Delegate Dilworth and Organizer McDonald carried the news to St. Andrew's Hall. Seven hundred strikers were there. Nothing remained but the endorsement of the men. The meeting was secret. Mr. Dilworth was chairman, and he explained the situation. It was a partial victory. Each had made concessions. It was his honest opinion that the men ought to accept the terms.

The Executive Committee added their voices to that of the international delegate.

The vote was unanimous, and as there was not a dissenter, it was recorded by a rising vote. The result of the meeting was transmitted to the Board of Trade delegates and the work was done. The men cheered and rushed out on the street to tell the good news to their friends.

At the company headquarters similar relief was manifested, and directions were at once given to withdraw the militia. The closing chapter of the animated struggle will be written at the mass meeting of the men at the Star Theatre to-night. This will be merely an informal feature, as the men will vote on the proposition as a unit.

General Manager Keating was seen at 6 o'clock last night. "The service will be resumed to-morrow as usual. We thought it best to not try to move cars to-night. I have nothing to say over the result. I must refer you to the report of the committee. It is official."

The Men's Side.

Daniel Dilworth, international delegate, after peace had been declared, said: "I am very glad the strike is over. It was brief. There is no disposition on the part of the men to regard the result in the nature of a personal triumph. We give the Board of Trade Committee full credit. We did not get all we asked nor all we felt that we were entitled to, but the men have reasons to congratulate themselves because victory came after so brief a contest. The work has been hard. I desire to say in defence of the men, that any violence that ensued was not of their making but was the work of their enthusiastic friends. This they could not control."

"I feel very good over the result," observed Organizer James McDonald, "The men were right, and therefore, public sentiment supported them. I always feel that the great mass of people—the common people, those who know what it is to work hard for all they receive—can be relied upon to sympathize with right in all cases."

The Militia's Experience.

The militia corps, as scheduled the day before, began to come in at daybreak and to assemble at the armouries. They were on duty all day. In the morning there was an angry demonstration against them near the Yorkville barns, but nothing came of it, except that the temper of the big mob turned on the arrival of the peace news when the troops execrated in the morning, were cheered at night. The troops were wholly withdrawn by evening.

Means $112,000 to Company.

Financially, the concession finally wrung from the company means, in round numbers, about $112,000 increases in salaries annually to the men as compared with the scale in force when the strike was declared. The scale voluntarily offered by the company gave the men an increase of $76,000 annually.

Losses by Strike.

The direct losses incident to the strike are very large, and the indirect loss is incalculable. Estimates along this line in the rough, are as follows:

Three days' receipts to the company	$15,000
City's share	1,500
City's expense for troops	10,000
Loss to strikers in salaries	6,000
Company property damaged	5,000
Expense to city, extra police service	1,000
Company's expense preparing to meet strike	2,000
Total	$40,500

Rioters Were Remanded.

The six men and a boy arrested on Sunday were charged in the police court yesterday with being members of an unlawful assemblage. They were William Brown, Thomas Cook, Thomas Feeney, Joseph Christie, Perry Finkle, Thomas Shell, and Harry Madill, the last named being the boy. They were all remanded till to-day. Young Madill was released on his own bail. William Marks, the ex-conductor arrested for the alleged theft of a switch point, was also remanded till to-day. T. C. Robinette, K.C., appeared for him.

Harness Makers Strike.

Toronto, June 24.—Forty-nine members of Local Union No. 93, International United Brotherhood of Leather Workers' on Horse Goods, employes in Adams Bros., harness manufactory, East King street, were called out on strike yesterday. The complaint against this firm is that they discriminated against the chief movers of the organization by discharging its president. Robert Glocking, secretary of the Labor Bureau, will be asked to intervene.

Montreal Street Railway.

Montreal June 24.—The conductors and motormen of the Montreal Street Railway have sent in a petition to the company asking for an increase from 15 to 18 cents an hour during the week, and 20 cents on Sunday.

FERNIE DISASTER VERDICT.

Jury Recommends Government to Take Steps on Important Conditions.

Toronto, June 24.—The following telegram has been received by Managing Director Elias Rogers, of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company, from the company's solicitor, G. G. S. Lindsey, who has been at Fernie, B. C., attending the recent disaster in the mines:—

"At 10.30 to-night the jury brought in the following verdict:—'The initial cause of said explosion is at a point in No. 2 mines aforesaid, not clearly defined in evidence, and that the said initial cause extended from the said undefined point throughout the greater portions of Nos. 2 and 3 mines coal dust being the conveying medium, and we find, in consequence, that the inadequate method of watering and removing the dust left the mine in such a condition as to be dangerous, and thereby provided a medium whereby the initial cause was augmented and intensified. That we, the said jury, recommend the Government to take such steps to enforce (1) the immediate installation of the most approved system of watering for allaying dust in coal mines; (2) that a more thorough inspection be adopted at these mines throughout the old workings and rooms contiguous to the air channels that are now being worked; (3) that the safest explosive and most approved safety lamps be used.'"

NORTH GREY APPEAL.

Hearing of the Argument Before Mr. Justice Maclennan.

THE FOUR FAMOUS BALLOTS.

Argument of Counsel Heard in the Most Intricate of Recount Appeals at Osgoode Hall—Mr. S. H. Blake, K.C., Argues the Case For the Conservative and Mr. G. H. Watson, K.C., For the Liberal.

Toronto, June 24.— In the Court of Appeal yesterday morning Mr. Justice Maclennan began the hearing of the North Grey election appeal on behalf of Mr. G. M. Boyd, the Conservative candidate. There is also a cross-appeal on behalf of Mr. A. G. McKay, the Liberal candidate.

Each petitions against Judge Morrison's decisions respecting about 30 ballots.

Mr. George H. Watson, K.C., and Mr. Grayson Smith, Toronto, and Mr. W. H. Wright of Owen Sound, are counsel for Mr. McKay, and Mr. S. H. Blake, K.C., and Mr. W. D. McPherson represent Mr. Boyd.

The result of the recount before the Junior County Judge was that Mr. McKay was declared elected by a majority of five. Special interest attaches in the appeal to the four ballots from No. 9, St. Vincent, which were found during the recount to have small crosses for McKay, as well as plain crosses for Boyd, and which were disallowed by the Judge.

Addressing himself more particularly to these four ballots, Mr. Blake said the deputy returning officer had declared them good and properly marked for Boyd. He submitted that the County Judge wrongfully limiting himself to the four corners of the ballot, and excluding any evidence as to what the deputy returning officer had done, and finding semi-surreptitious markings for the Liberal candidate, had no right to interfere and disallow those ballots. Nor could he disfranchise those voters if the deputy returning officer had pronounced their votes valid. He quoted from the report of the County Judge, who was of opinion "under the circumstances that the markings on the four ballots in McKay's compartment had been made after the count by the deputy returning officer." The punctuation was not very clear, Mr. Blake said, but he presumed the Judge meant that the count and not the markings had been made by the deputy returning officer. All the deputy returning officer and the scrutineers saw, said Mr. Blake, was the clear and distinct marking for Boyd. The indistinct markings had only been discovered in the recount before the Judge, and while the Judge had expressed the view that these had been made subsequent to the first count, he yet disallowed all four. Mr. Blake claimed that the Judge had a wrong view of the statute, and that he had no right to reverse the finding of the D. R. O., Nor, be submitted, could the Appellate Court in which he was arguing find otherwise than that the four ballots were properly allowed on the original count. Mr. Blake also argued that the Junior Judge had no authority to hold the recount against which appeal is made, and quoted from the statute to show that, where there are two Judges in a county, the one holding the prior commission shall be known as "County Judge," and the other shall be known as the "Junior Judge."

Mr. Watson objected to this portion of the argument, as it has not been referred to in the notice of appeal.

In the afternoon, Mr. Watson argued that the junior judge had the same jurisdiction as the senior judge, and quoted authorities in support. Taking up the question of the four spoiled ballots and the remarks of Judge Morrison that there was room for the gravest suspicion that the ballots had been tampered with after they were counted by the deputy returning officer. Mr. Watson held that the county judge had no right to draw an inference of wrong-doing. To establish wrongdoing there should be affirmative evidence, which should have been taken at the scrutiny. The duty of the scrutinizing judge is to count the ballots as they appear, and the presumption is that they are in the same condition now as when marked by the voter.

Counsel for the Conservative candidate brought up about 20 ballots. Eight were marked with a single straight line for Mr. Boyd, and it was argued that these should count. The bounty judge disallowed the ballots, and Mr. Justice Maclennan sustained him.

Mr. McKay's counter-appeal stands over until judgment is delivered in this case.

His Lordship reserved judgment on the appeal.

The South Brace appeal will be heard on Saturday.

PROTEST IN NORTH YORK.

The First Entered Is Against Hon. R. J. Davis.

Toronto, June 24.— The first election petition following the recent Provincial vote was filed yesterday afternoon at Osgoode Hall by the Conservatives, represented by Bristol, Cawthra & Bayly, against the return of Hon. E. J. Davis in North York. The petitioners are Christopher Kennedy of the Township of Whitchurch, Samuel Roberts and George Coulter of Aurora. One of the general charges preferred is that the respondent was "personally guilty of corrupt practices," and on this ground his disqualification is asked for. The other charges are of the usual character, personation, undue influence, giving and lending of money or valuable considerations, advancing and payment of money,

SELF-FEEDING PRISONS.

The plan of the Minister of Justice to make our penitentiaries self-feeding as far as possible, is an excellent one. One hundred and sixty-five acres have recently been added to the farm at St. Vincent de Paul, and we are told that it is now expected that the Penitentiary will be able to raise all its own farm produce.

So far as practicable, every permanent prison should be self-supporting. The objection of all sorts of workers to having prison-made goods sold in competition with their output, is natural and reasonable; but there is no opposition to the policy of compelling prisoners to make and grow the clothing and food they themselves consume. Certainly, a Penitentiary full of men perfectly able to work, should not be permitted to buy anything that can be grown on the lands connected with the institution; and, in the same way, the workshops of the prison should supply most of the articles required by the inmates.

When public money is spent to provide for any part of the living of a prisoner, it means that some hard-working, honest man outside of the prison has had to put his hand in his pocket to support an idle criminal who owes his ability to live off the work of others to his crime. This is an exceedingly undesirable state of affairs. Crime should not tend to lease men from the responsibilities of life, and honesty should never be handicapped by a tax levied for the support of criminals.

ANGLICISING THE BOERS.

Whether or not the Boers will become rapidly in sympathy with British political ideas and institutions, there can be no doubt of them lending themselves very readily to being Anglicised in other directions. If Tommy Atkins couldn't always touch the Boer's heart with a bit of lead, he knows how to touch it through the Afrikander's stomach. This is the way he did it. A despatch from Pretoria says;

"The remarkable feeling of comradeship displayed between the British soldiers and the Boers, is a leading feature of the surrenders everywhere. The soldiers have behaved magnificently, not a single word being uttered which could possibly hurt the feelings of the defeated burghers, who are most enthusiastic in their appreciation of this considerate treatment. They declare that they never expected such magnanimity, and that the British soldier is a thorough gentleman. Every Boer on his arrival received first a pint of beer and was then supplied with as much food as he wished."

What could be more English, you know, than Tommy Atkins pinning his faith to grub and beer as potent pacificators.

Industrial Canada, says in the current issue:—"Thousands of new settlers are now on their way to the Northwest Territories, and there are many indications that before long the west will become the most important market open to us. So little manufacturing is done there that almost all their goods must be brought in, and, unless the merits of our own manufactures are pointed out, and an effort made to retain the market now, we will be driven from the field. The situation will surely appeal to the keen manufacturer and business man. Immediate action is demanded. An earnest effort should be made to convince the people of the west that their own manufacturers can supply them with the very goods they require, and give them the best value for their purchases. With this in view, every enterprising Canadian firm should secure display space at the Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition. It is the best advertisement given in the west, and Canadian firms will be given every encouragement by the Exhibition authorities and the transportation companies. It is expected that 100,000 people will visit the Exhibition this year."

A FARMERS' COMPANY.

The Ontario People's Salt Company, a joint stock company organized a few years ago by four hundred and fifty farmers throughout the province, who now own and operate the extensive salt works erected by Scott and Grey at Kincardine, held their annual meeting in Toronto on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week.

The meeting was largely attended and very harmonious.

The financial statement showed the past year had been fairly prosperous. In addition to supplying the shareholders with salt for their own use at reduced prices, the company declared a dividend of five per cent. out of the profits of the year's operations.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are E. H. Hilborn, Toronto, President; Dawson Kennedy, of Peterborough, Vice-President; John Tolmie, M. P., Kincardine, Secretary and Manager.

The directors are, J. Robinson, Middlemarch; Robert Currin, Wingham; W. Clark, Orangsville; Robert McMorden, Kippen.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND
DR. PHELPS' WONDER - WORKING MEDICAL PRESCRIPTION.

Paine's Celery Compound is the world's great leading medicine and life saver. It has no equal for feeding exhausted nerves; it stands first as a builder of the weak and shattered nervous system.

Paine's Celery Compound has long ago proved its power as a banisher of dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuralgia kidney disease, liver complaint, and as a purifier of the blood. Thousands of men and women, tired out, sleepless, nervous, morose and despondent, have been given perfect health, strength and buoyancy of sprits through the well-advised use of Paine's Celery Compound. It has given a new and happy life to a vast number of people who once were tired of life and suffering.

If your health is impaired; if you are burdened with any weakening or painful malady, use Paine's Celery Compound to-day; it is specially adapted for your case; it will make you well and strong. Mr. H. Bell, Chatham, Ont., says:

"I was so seriously ill I was obliged to take to my bed, where I laid for four months. The doctors here and in Toronto said my trouble was Addison's disease of the kidneys, and told me I would never walk again. In November I commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound. After having used a number of bottles I was enabled to attend to business, and felt like a new man. I can affirm with confidence that Paine's Celery Compound saved my life."

PETERBOROUGH COUNTY COUNCIL.

The June Session Concluded on Saturday.

THE COUNTY ASSESSMENTS.

The Finance Committee Made its Report—Special Meeting for November 14th—Roads and Bridges.

At the Saturday morning session of the Peterborough County Council the matter of equalization of assessment for the county came up for consideration, and was finally disposed of after changes had been made in the assessment of every municipality of the county. The report of the Assessment Commissioners, Messrs Hawthorne and Edmison, was made at the January Session of the council and was as follows, as compared with the old valuation;

	New value.	Old value
Ashburnham	$ 443,764	$ 370,373
Havelock	148,736	97,998
Lakefield	287,735	209,947

	$8,650,244	$8,861,067

Nothing was done with the report of the Assessment Commissioners at the January meeting of the County Council, but during the present session there were deputations from various municipalities urging changes in their assessed value. The council fully considered the report of the Commissioners, and the result was that there were changes made in the assessment of every municipality. The Committee on Equalization finally reported as follows;

Ashburnham	$ 407,068
Havelock	109,803
Lakewalk	233,366
Norwood	206,141
Asphodel	905,663

Otonabee	2,008,108
Smith	1,520,496
	$8,506,164

Compared with the old valuation and the valuation just decided on, by the Council, a comparison would be as follows, in the municipalities where the valuation has been lowered;

A Mean Thrust.

"Ten thousand dollars for a dog!" he exclaimed as he looked up from his newspaper. "Do you believe any one ever paid any such price, Maria?"

"I'm sure I don't know, James," she returned, without stopping her needlework even for a moment. "Does the paper say that much was paid?"

"Yes. There's an article on valuable dogs, and it's speaking of one that was sold for $10,000. I don't believe it."

"It may be true, James," she said quietly. "Some of those high bred animals bring fancy prices, and there's no particular reason why the paper should lie about it."

"I know that, Maria, but just think of it, just try to grasp the magnitude of that sum in your weak feminine mind. You don't seem to realise it—$10,000 for a dog! Why, hang it, Maria, that's more than I'm worth!"

"I know that, James, but some are worth more than others."

She went on calmly with her sewing while he fumed and spluttered for a moment and then dropped the subject, especially the weak feminine part of it.

KITCHENER'S PEACE SPEECH.

Briton and Boer Shaking Hands Says the British Commander.

Cape Town, June 23.—Lord Kitchener received a great public ovation on his arrival here to-day. The town was decorated, the streets were lined with troops and the mayor and corporation welcomed the British Commander at the Town Hall and presented him with an address. In the course of his reply Lord Kitchener, referring to the country of his nativity, paid a special tribute to the Irish troops during the war in South Africa.

Subsequently, at a luncheon, in accepting the presentation of a sword of honor, Lord Kitchener took the responsibility of having enforced martial law in Cape Colony. He declared it had prevented a general rebellion by stopping the dissemination of lies. Now he asked for the suppression of all racial feelings and all leagues and bonds. Briton and Boer had a good fight and were now shaking hands.

Lord Kitchener also said his hearers could be sure that the rebels would not be dealt with vindictively.

Sail For England.

Cape Town, June 23.—Lord Kitchener and General French sailed for England to-day on the Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamer Orotava.

Want to Go Home.

The Hague, June 24.—C. H. Wessels and P. G. W. Robler, who have been on the Continent of Europe for some time past in the interest of the Boers, have started for England, with the view, it is said, of taking the steps necessary to permit of their return to South Africa.

Lord Roberts to the Public.

London, June 24.— Lord Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief of the Forces, gas again appealed to the public to refrain from treating the returning soldiers, so that the "well-deserved welcome may not be the means of sullying the fair fame of my gallant comrades, of whose stainless reputations I am as jealous as I am proud."

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possible derive from them. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure, be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

ROYAL DINNER PARTY

Royal Representatives of All the Monarchs of the World.

CZARWITCH HEADED THE ARRAY

Earl Marshal Superintended a Rehearsal of the Coronation Ceremonies at Westminster Abbey—Archbishop of Canterbury and the Lord Chancellor Among Those Who Were Drilled—The Crowded Streets.

London, June 24.— King Edward and Queen Alexandra gave a grand dinner party last night at Buckingham Palace to seventy royal personages who practically represented the sovereigns of all the monarchies of the world.

The list of Their Majesties' guests was headed by the Czarwitch of Russia, who arrived in London last evening, and included an imposing array of princes and princesses, and all the members of the British royal family.

Buckingham Palace was beautifully decorated, and the bands of the Grenadiers and Coldstream Guards discoursed music throughout the evening. The dinner was followed by a brilliant reception, which was attended by the members of the suites of all the foreign potentates now in London.

A full and strictly private rehearsal of the coronation ceremonies to be held in Westminster Abbey took place there yesterday afternoon, in which everybody, with the exception of the royal personages and the participants in the musicales and religious features of the functions, rehearsed their respective duties. The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Rev. Frederick Temple and the Lord Chancellor, the Earl of Halsbury, were among those who were drilled in their parts under the superintendency of the Duke of Norfolk, the Earl Marshal.

The rehearsal lasted for two hours, and after it was over the musical service for the coronation was rehearsed in full in the church house adjoining the Abbey.

The crowds were so great last night in Trafalgar Square, and in the various thoroughfares leading from this point, that the omnibuses found it impossible almost to proceed. The congested condition of traffic above ground was practically repeated in the various underground routes, and the travel resources of the two-penny tube and the steam underground lines were heavily taxed. Passengers on those lines had to wait long before they were able to board the overcrowded trains.

Again on Horseback.

London, June 24.—Queen Alexandra was seen in Windsor Park last Saturday, riding horseback, for the first time in many years.

Colonial Premiers Received.

London, June 24.—Joseph Chamberlain, Colonial Secretary, and Mrs. Chamberlain, received the colonial Premiers and other distinguished visitors from Great Britain's colonies at their London residence last evening.

SIR WILFRID IN LONDON.

Was Ill on the Ocean—Will Not Discuss Conference.

London, June 24.—Sir Wilfrd Laurier spent Sunday quietly in the Hotel Cecil. He had a bad passage, and was confined to the cabin almost throughout the voyage. He still looks pale, but says he expects to be quite himself before Thursday, and is keeping quiet as far as possible. Lady Laurier was also unwell yesterday. Sir Wilfrid had an interview with Lord Strathcona at the hotel yesterday morning.

Canadian Ministers and Provincial Premiers are suffering from Londoners' extortionate general demands. Some are paying 80 guineas per carriage to take them to Westminster Abbey on Thursday.

Prisoners to Be Freed.

Ottawa, June 24.—There will be no general jail delivery in Canada in the King's honor, but the five men—John Reginald Hooper, John Baptiste Narbonne, David Prevost, Thomas Newton and Michael Kennedy—will be released from the penitentiary. They are either long-term or life prisoners.

Hooper is an Ottawa man who was sentenced to 25 years' imprisonment for attempting to drown his wife.

Narbonne was convicted in 1881 of murdering a brother. The crime was committed at the instigation of his parents.

Prevost got a life sentence for a murder committed in 1881. It was done at the instance of another, who has since died.

Michael Kennedy was convicted of manslaughter in British Columbia and was given a life sentence. He has served ten years in Stony Mountain Penitentiary.

Edward Oak Tree.

Cobourg, June 24—On Thursday an oak tree, to be known as the King Edward Oak, will be planted in the Town Hall Park. Addresses will be delivered by Mayor Huycke, ex-Mayor J. D. Hayden and other prominent citizens.

Fatalities at Ottawa.

Ottawa, June 24.—James Thompson, who worked on Rideau street, Ottawa, was drowned in the Gatineau River yesterday. Thompson had been drinking.

The body of William Watchorn, jr., Ottawa, was found floating in the Ottawa river yesterday, below the Queen's wharf. He is supposed to be one of the two men who leaped from the Canadian Pacific Railway Bridge into the Ottawa River and was swept over the falls.

Killed His Brother.

Edmonton, N. W. T., June 24.—A man named Nils Johnson, a Swede, was arrested and brought here from Wetaskiwin Sunday night for the murder of his brother, to get possession of his cattle. It is rumored he has confessed to have paid for the cattle, and he was therefore entitled to them. The murder is similiar to the Bullock affair, the body having been buried.

Hail Hurts Corn.

Windsor, June 24.—A terrific hailstorm passed over this city at 5.45 last evening. The hailstones were large, and the downpour very heavy. Although the storm was of comparatively short duration, it is feared that inestimable damage has been done the young corn, the principal crop in this county.

Sleeps For All Time.

Montreal, June 24.—Miss Eva Roach, who will be remembered as "the little sleeper," passed away yesterday afternoon at her home. In 1898 Miss Roach slept 28½ days without awakening, the second time for 11 days, the third time for 5 days, and the last time for 35 hours.

Why Rheumatism is Like Catarrh.

Both are inflamations. The former of the muscle tissue, the latter of the mucous membrane. The only way to cure either is by a course of blood purifying and blood enriching treatment. Merrill's System Tonic is the most thorough blood purifier and at the same time the most rapid blood making remedy known. 50 pleasant-to-take doses for 50c. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

The Indian Creation Legend.

The earliest source for the religion of India is the hymns of the Rig Veda, the date of which is now fixed at about 1000 B. C. In one of these hymns we encounter as the creator Purusha, who is simply a "magnified man." A pantheistic turn, however, is given to this conception under the influence of which Purusha becomes the "all in all" and is identified with the universe, with what has been and what shall be. All gods, animals and castes are parts of him. The moon is his mind, the sun his eye, from his mouth sprang Indra and Agni and from his breath Vayu, space from his navel, heaven from his head and the earth from his feet. This emanation theory when freed from its primitive elements becomes pantheism pure and simple. In accord with this view the source of creative activity is carried back in other hymns to "desire." We read in Vedic literature that "desire is the seed of the mind."—Morris Jastrow, Jr., in Harper's Magazine.

Health and Hope.

"He who has health has hope; and he who has hope has everything." But hope flies at the approach of kidney disease with the dreadful pains which accompany it. With the flesh gradually failing, the back aching, and the despair comes to victims of this ailment, only the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will restore hope, confidence and health. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box.

Temperature of Forests.

For many years the Swiss government has been making observations through its forestry stations on the temperature of the air, of the trees and the soil in the forests. These observations show that the temperature in the forests is always below the temperature outside. The temperature also varies according to the trees composing the forests.

A beech forest is always cooler than a forest of larch. As to the trunks of the trees, they are always cooler than the surrounding air. Regarding the temperature of the soil, it is found that in the forest the temperature is invariably below that of the air. Outside the forest the soil is always warmer than the air in summer and colder in winter.

Preserving a Shark's Head.

When a big shark is taken on board ship, the skull is usually preserved, the flesh being removed from the bones, and it is a favorite pastime with sailors to crawl one after another through the distended jaws. It would be far from safe to do this, however, when the head has been but freshly cut off, because under such conditions the jaws will snap together fiercely for some time afterward if anything be placed between them.

Sore throat, ulcers on the tongue or in the mouth, hair falling out, aching pains, thickness of the skin, sores or blotches on the body eyes red and smart, dyspeptic stomach, sexual weakness—indications of the secondary stage. Don't ruin your system with the old fashioned mercury and potash treatment which only suppresses the symptoms for a time only to break out again when happy in domestic life. Don't let quacks experiment on you. Our New Method Treatment is guaranteed to cure you. Our guarantees are backed by bank bonds, that the disease will never return. Thousands of patients have been already cured by our New Method Treatment for over 20 years. No names used without written consent.

Mr. R. A. C. writes: "Your remedies have done me more good than Hot Springs and all the doctors and medicines I had previously tried. Courtship in Spain.

In Spain the courtship begins with gifts of flowers, and the wedding ends with a shower of blossoms on the couple, who pass into a floral bower on the roof of the new home. The suitor begins his courtship by asking for a gourd of water at the home where the object of his affections lives. If this request is granted, he may persist in his attentions, but if it is denied the matter ends there. Later the man calls again, accompanied by musicians and torchbearers, and while the mandolin players strum their instruments the lover's companion makes his advances. Any time during the courtship the suitor may be rejected by the gift of a pumpkin. Three times he must make formal suit for a wife, as his request cannot be granted at first. But if her father refuses the third time he may consult a magistrate, who demands that the daughter be produced or that her father give his consent to the marriage, provided he is an honorable man. He can then carry off his bride. But this emergency does not often arise.—Woman's Home Companion.

THE INQUEST CONCLUDED.

The Child was Born Dead, so the Jurors Say.

The inquest, which for the past week or two has been enquiring into the cause of death of the female infant that was found in the sawdust heap, near the Dickson Company's mill, on Sunday, June 8th, concluded its work last night in a verdict stating that they believed the child to have been still born.

When the inquest was resumed last night the first witness called was a local physician, who told of having attended a woman on the morning of the 29th of May. She was delivered of a headless child, answering in every description to the dead child found in the sawdust heap. He believed it to be the same child.

Another witness who was called, gave evidence which went to show beyond a doubt that it was the same child.

The Coroner and County Crown Attorney appeared to be convinced that the child was born dead, but that very poor discretion had been used in the disposal of the remains.

Those who went out in boats got a bad soaking especially the three in the canoe, who afterwards had to be stripped of their garments and hung up to dry.

The remaining members stayed in doors and played ping pong up to the time of leaving.

The drive home was rather a chilly one, but songs and stump speeches kept the club in good humour.

The next outing will be to White Lake on Saturday next. 'Busses will leave Fitzgerald's livery at 1.15 p.m.

THE KING'S CORONATION INDEFINITELY POSTPONED.

He is Too Ill to Stand the Strain Incidental to Such a Ceremony.

AN OPERATION PERFORMED

And Was Most Successful—His Majesty's Condition is Still Favourable—There Will be no Public Holiday Thursday.

KING EDWARD, THE SEVENTH.

(Special to the Examiner.)

London, June 24th. — Coronation has been postponed indefinitely on account of the indisposition of King Edward. King Edward is suffering from peritonitis, and is undergoing a surgical operation.

Ottawa, June 24th. — The following proclamation was issued this afternoon, by the Hon. R. W. Scott, Secretary of State:

Canada, Edward the Seventh, by the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Sea, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of Indie. To all to whom these presents shall come, or whom the same may in any way concern, greeting. Proclamation —A power acting Deputy Minister of Justice, Canada. Whereas by our proclamation dated the twenty-fourth day of May last, Thursday, the twenty-sixth day of June instant being the day fixed for the coronation of His Majesty King Edward the seventh, was appointed and set apart as a public holiday to be observed as a day of public thanksgiving and rejoicing thoughout the Dominion of Canada, and whereas owing to the deeply to be regretted illness of His Majesty the coronation has indefinitely been postponed.

Now, therefore known ye, that we have thought fit by and with the advice of our Privy Council of Canada to withdraw the said proclamation and revoke and cancel the same of all which our loving subjects and all others whom these presents may concern, are hereby required to take notice and to govern themselves accordingly.

London, June 24th, 2.46 p.m. —The following Bulletin has been posted at Buckingham Palace: "The operation has been successfully performed. A large abscess has been evacuated. The King has borne the operation well, and is in a satisfactory condition."

London, June 24th. — No date for the carrying out of the ceremonies has been indicated. It is feared that weeks will elapse before the King will be in a fit condition to undergo the strain. Even now, when it is known that the operation was successful, business throughout the city is practically suspended.

London, June 24th. — A bulletin at 6 p.m., announces that His Majesty's condition is still favourable, and that he seems much relieved by the operation.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—The Young Men's Guild excursion will take place to Stony Lake on Thursday, as arranged.

—The cancelling of Thursday as a public holiday will not interfere with the excursions that have been arranged for.

—The Deputy returning officers in the recent provincial elections can now obtain their remuneration from the Sheriff.

—There can positively be no sale of tickets at the station for the Young Men's Guild excursion, as the supply is exhausted.

—Parties attending the Young Men's Guild excursion on Thursday around the lakes, are asked to have their baskets properly addressed, and they will be looked after from the time of leaving the station.

—The Chief is still waging war on the owners of dogs who have not as yet taken out their necessary tags. There are to be a number of dog owners up at the Police Court to-morrow morning. There are a number of citizens whose names appear on the assessment roll and who are assessed as dog owners who have not taken out their tags and summons will be issued to them at once.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—When figures are given to the public it is best to have them exactly right.

Will you therefore allow me to correct some figures which appeared in the Examiner last evening, re Charlotte street church. The debt five years ago was $13,500. It is now $4,000, therefore $9,500 have been paid off in five years.

The subscriptions taken amounted to $6,400, of this amount $5,200 have been collected, and the balance is considered good.

The total reduction of debt includes the amount collected of subscriptions and $3,300 applied from pew rents.

Yours truly,
D. O. CROSSLEY.

The Executive of the Colts Cricket Club meets to-night at 7 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. building.

CORONATION DAY.

Universal and heart-felt regret will be expressed throughout all Christendom on the fiat being issued that His Majesty, King Edward, is too ill to permit of him participating in the coronation ceremony which was to have taken place on Thursday next. Not only have the festivities, incidental to the occasion, been suspended in London, but throughout the entire Empire, the day which was to have been observed as a holiday, will be observed rather as a day of sorrow and mourning.

As stated in another column, a proclamation has been issued by the Government at Ottawa, revoking the order making Coronation Day a public holiday, and business will, therefore, be carried on as usual in the town. As large numbers of the citizens have completed arrangements for leaving town on Thursday it is hardly possible that they will be able to re-arrange their plans on such short notice, and the many excursions which have been advertised will be largely patronized.

Word has not been received from Lieut.-Col. Ponton, of Belleville, regarding the proposed trip of the 57th, but all work of preparation for the outing has been stopped.

PUBLIC NOTICE!
Foresters' Excursion to Jubilee Point will take place on Thursday, June 26th, as previously announced. Don't miss this trip.

NO TRIP TO BELLEVILLE.

The 57th Will not Leave Town as was Intended.

The postponment of the coronation of King Edward, through illness and the consequent cancelling of Thursday as a national holiday, will be felt by none perhaps more keenly than the members of the 57th Regiment. For some time back the officers and men of the 57th Regiment have been counting on going to Belleville, and the annual inspection of the regiment was to have taken place on Thursday. An advance party was to have gone down to Belleville this afternoon to have the camp in readiness but all arrangements have been cancelled. The special train has been cancelled and the men will have to wait for further orders as to their inspection.

LACROSSE.

The second team of St. Peter's T. A. S. has completed arrangements for a trip to Campbellford on Coronation Day, when they will play a friendly game with the team of that town. Lacrosse has not been played in Campbellford for some time, and this season a few enthusiasts in order to revive interest in the game, organised a junior team. The second team of St. Peter's T.A.S. will turn out for practice to-night, after which the team for Campbellford will be selected by the committee.

The executive of the Peterborough town Lacrosse League met last night and decided that the next game in the series should take place to-night on the Nicholls oval between the Y.M.C.A. and the Athletics. This is a much better arrangement than having the teams come together on Wednesday night.

The Y.M.C.A. will send a team to Millbrook on Thursday.

Notwithstanding the fact that the executive of the town league had decided that the T.A.S. and Y.M.C.A teams should play to-night, there will likely be no game. The T.A.S. team refuse to play. The reason they give is that the time of notice was too short.

LADIES' GOLF.

On Thursday afternoon the members of the Ladies' Club intend holding a tournament in which the married ladies will play against the unmarried. All those wishing to participate in the tournament are asked to be at the links at 3.30 p.m., sharp. They will also kindly bring refreshments with them.

GOLF.

The trip of the Golf Colts to Sturgeon Point to play a match with the Lindsay team has been postponed from Thursday until Dominion Day.

BASEBALL.

On Saturday afternoon the Shamrocks defeated the Elms of Ashburnham in a close and exciting game of baseball by a score of 8 to 5. The teams were as follows:

Shamrocks.—Fitzpatrick, 2b; Cahill, 1b; Quinlan, p; Mann, lf; Craig, rf; Watson, c; Sharpe, cf; Darocher, ss; Sawers, 3b.

Elms.—Gillespie, c; Conroy, 1b; Hudson, 3b; Mulhern, cf; Disten, lf; Swanston, p; Sullivan, ss; Barrie, 2b; Crane, rf.

The Shamrocks would like to arrange a game for June 26th.

AS TO DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

A Joint Meeting of School Boards Last Night.

The Representatives Will Report to Their Respective Boards When Further Action Will be Taken.

A joint meeting of representatives from the various school boards of the town was held last night in Secretary Morrow's office. The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing more fully the advisability of introducing the study of Domestic Science and Manual training in the local schools. The matter was discussed from various standpoints, and various rooms and apartments were considered as suitable places for the establishment of such a school.

The result of the meeting was that the members of the committee will make a report to their respective boards, after which further action will be taken.

The following interesting letter on Domestic Science was read;

Stratford, June 9th, 1902.

W. G. Morrow, Esq., Secretary Public School Board, Peterborough:

Dear Sir,—In reply to your request for my opinion of the value of Manual Training and Domestic Science as subjects in the public school course, I would submit the following statements:

Both these subjects are popular with pupils and teachers, and an overwhelming majority of the general public, who have any acquaintance with the work, either through personal investigation, or through having children attending the school strongly approve. Almost without exception any hostile criticism comes from those who have not informed themselves of the nature of the work attempted.

Attendance at the Manual Training and Domestic Science classes is optional, but very few pupils indeed are absent, and in nearly all such cases the prejudice of parents, who have not investigated the matter, is the obstacle.

With only six month's experience in Manual Training work it is too soon to estimate results, if we exclude purely theoretical considerations; but some things have already been demonstrated. In case of neither of the boys nor girls can we observe any falling off in efficiency in other subjects. From Easter, 1901, to mid-summer of that year, the Fourth Class girls attended the Domestic Science department for two hours weekly—the boys devoting the time to regular class work. At the entrance examination it was observed that the girls took just as good an average standing as in former years, and their examination standing compared just as favourably with that of the boys as ever.

The interest of a number of the larger and more backward boys in general school work has markedly increased, due apparently to their success in Manual Training work, which has increased their self-respect, and secured in a larger degree that of the teacher.

The interest of the boys is further shown by the unremitting attention given to their work while in the room. In no school work is it so easy to maintain satisfactory order as in these new subjects.

Teachers have called my attention to the increased power shown by some of the boys in arithmetic, due to their close examination, accurate measurement, drawing, and construction of definite forms.

All that has been said regarding the popularity of Manual Training and the interest shown by the pupils can be repeated with equal emphasis in regard to Domestic Science. This department has been in operation for more than a year and is certainly passing beyond the stage of experiment.

The training received by the girls is giving good results, as the testimony of many parents proves. I have never met nor heard of a mother whose daughter has attended these classes who does not aprove of the work.

One important benefit to which the teachers testify, and which I have observed myself, is a very general improvement in personal neatness and cleanliness on the part of the girls. It is certain that these girls will grow up with a better appreciation of the needs of an intelligently managed home and much more efficient in house work, and liking it better, and with an increased respect for work which they have learned demands as much intelligence and good taste as any other human effort to secure good results. They are getting too, an intelligent appreciation of what household sanitation and scientific cooking mean in family welfare and comfort. Those who have observed the apparent tendencies of recent social changes will be disposed to place high value on the system of education which makes house work more dignified and attractive, and home life more cheerful and comfortable.

In this statement I have confined myself pretty well to noting observed results developed in our own experience and offer no theories. These the members of your Board can study from many sources without my suggestions. Our experience has confirmed my opinion of the high economic social and moral value of Manual Training and the teaching of Domestic Science, and I believe that when continued and developed into complete technical courses for all who take up the mechanic arts, they will accomplish much in the direction of a practical common sense education, which will not lose sight of the great benefits of literary studies, but also provides a training suited to the demads of modern life. Such training is becoming an absolute necessity in Canada, if we are to hold our own with other countries in which it is receiving increased attention.

If I can be of any use in giving further information do not hesitate to write me.

Faithfully yours,
J. RUSSELL STUART.

'TWAS A WET DAY IN CAMP.

Drill Abandoned on Saturday Forenoon.

Brigadier Rogers Well Satisfied With the Progress the Men are Making—No Ammunition Served yet.

(Kingston Whig.)

The men in camp at Barriefield were given a half holiday on Saturday forenoon owing to the heavy downpour of rain. Brigadier Rogers considered this a wise course to take, and in consequence the troops were in much better trim for the afternoon manoeuvres. Before noon the rain ceased, the sun shone forth in all its splendor, and a strong west wind soon dried up the grounds. The lines where the horses stood were very muddy, and so the animals were removed to various positions outside the camp, and the lines carefully cleaned. In a few hours they were comparatively dry again. The officers and men were truly thankful that they were not visited by such a flood as they experienced last summer. The camp is located in a far superior position this year.

On Saturday afternoon the men were exercised at sword drill for the first time since camp opened. They made good progress, despite the fact that many of them never wore the uniform before.

"How will coronation day be observed in camp?" Brigadier Rogers was asked. "I do not think it will be observed at all," he replied, "unless we receive instructions to that effect. Dean Smith has kindly invited us to attend the coronation services in St. George's cathedral, but I do not think we can accept of the offer. We have lost half a day already because of the rain, and we cannot afford to lose another day. The time in camp is short enough as it is."

The new uniforms were issued to the Dragoons late on Saturday afternoon, and they wore them that night for the first time. The cavalrymen have long been in need of their new togs, and feel quite proud of their bright red coats and the broad yellow stripes on their trousers.

Major Loyat, of the 4th Hussars, was field officer yesterday, and Major Seyer, 3rd Dragoons, was field officer to-day.

In "C" Squadron of the 4th Hussars, there are 56 men. Of this number 28 are Methodists, 19 are Presbyterians, 6 are Episcopalians, and 3 are Roman Catholics. This is said to be about the ratio among the other squadrons in camp.

There are only about 470 men under canvas. If the two regiments were up to establishment they would number 722 men, or 361 to each regiment. Nearly all the squadrons are below the uniform strength. This is due to two causes. First, the establishment was this year increased by twenty-eight men to each squadron, and thus 224 new men would have to be enrolled. Secondly, only one week's notice that a camp would be held was given, and so there was little or no time to get the regiments into shape, and enlist the extra troopers. Had a longer notice been given every squadron would have been up to full strength. Lt.-Col. Rogers, of Peterborough, did not receive the official notice of his appointment as brigadier until Saturday yet he was on hand Tuesday to attend to his duties.

If the South African war has taught one lesson above all others it is that good marksmanship is a first necessity in a soldier. The staff recognizes this fact, and regret very much that ammunition has not been served out for them. They made application for it the first day of the camp but none has arrived. While regular ammunition cannot be used in practicing at the old rifle butts on Barriefield common, there is no danger when the Morris tube or gallery ammunition is used. The latter is a new explosive for carbines and is splendid for rifle shooting at about 2000 yards. It is expected, however, that some provision will be made in a day or two for giving the cavalrymen a good practice with the carbine.

Brigadier Rogers is well satisfied with the progress the regiments are making in their drill.

During the rain Saturday afternoon, an officer of the Dragoons marched up and down the lines holding an umbrella over his head. The men smiled at so undignified an action on the part of a soldier—especially an officer. It is said the umbrella-armed officer received a severe calling down.

(Kingston News)

Lt.-Col. Montizambert, D. O. C., and Col. Hemming, of the District Staff, yesterday inspected the men and horses connected with the 4th Hussars. Everything was found satisfactory.

The general health of those in camp is very good. There are but three men in the camp hospital, viz., one who is sick, and two who were kicked by horses.

So far there has not been a single man or horse in either regiment deemed as being unfit for service.

Most of the men are opposed to the holding of the church parade announced for Sunday.

Picked teams have had several baseball games on the grounds lately.

The men generally drill from 9 to 11.30 a.m., and from 2 to 4.15 p.m.

On Friday the men had mounted drill in the forenoon and exercised on foot in the afternoon.

So far but few of the cavalrymen have come over to the city at night, the distance being somewhat too far, the more so as fewer conveyances than usual are travelling between the camp and the city.

Getting Ready To Move.

After considerable delays, owing principally to the scarcity of skilled workmen, we've got a hustle on to move to our new premises.

The three stores which are now being remodelled for our new home, include the whole of the block on the corner of George and Hunter streets, except that portion used by the Bank of Toronto. The store on George street is the spot Where we built up our business, and from which we moved to our present premises twelve years ago.

When we held our first Winter Red Letter Removal Sale at the beginning of the year, we, expected to move in June. The Sale was so successful and the stock so well reduced, that we were then in good shape to move. Now, we expect to move the first week in August. We have, therefore, decided to hold a

THE COURT OFFICERS.

Description of Their Duties and Services at the Coronation.

The person to anoint and crown the King is the Archbishop of Canterbury. The right of the Archbishop seems to have rested at first on tradition, and on the fact that he is the first prelate of the realm.

Perhaps the most important on the day of the coronation is the Earl Marshal. For it is he who, as chief of the Herald's College, superintends the arrangements for the coronation. The present Earl Marshal is the Duke of Norfolk—the head of the Roman Catholic persuasion in England—a sincere and devout Catholic himself. His actual duties on the day itself are neither numerous nor wearying. He has to keep order in the King's presence, and by the help of the King's ushers to keep the doors of the King's palace. He goes in the processions with the Lord High Constable, with whom he accompanies the champion on his entry into Westminster Hall. He has claims, however. His duty it is to carry the crown in procession, to help to put it on the King's head, and to support it "by holding the fleuron on the front of the crown." As his fee—all these officers have their fees—he claims the King's palfrey with its harness, and also the Queen's, used when they come to the coronation; the cloth of the King's table; the cloth spread behind the King at dinner, and "the chines of all swans and cranes served up." Since 1483 the Dukes of Norfolk have filled this office. This Duke is the only man in England who has the privilege of wearing his hat in the presence of Royalty.

Greatest Lay Officer.

The Lord Great Chamberlain is one of the greatest lay officers on the day of the coronation. He has to dress the King on the morning of the coronation, to provide the coif and linen gloves, to bring the oblations, or offerings, to strip the King for his unction—which means undoing the specified garment at the neck, whereby the King may be anointed on the breast—to provide the crown and robes used after the service, and at the banquet to bring water for the King to wash. In the procession he walks by himself with his white wand of office in his hand, behind the Lord Mayor of London, Garter, and Black Rod. His "fee" is enormous. It is forty yards of crimson velvet, the King's bed, bedding, and apparel, and all the furniture of the room in which the King slept the night before the coronation.

The Chief Butler serves the King with wine at his coronation banquet, and he has to provide the wine for all others who are present at the banquet. His "fee" consists of the best gold cup with a cover, which is on the table, and all the wine "under the bar of the Hall, and all the pots and cups which are not of gold or silver, which are in the wine cellar after dinner."

THE DUKE OF NORFOLK.

Earl Marshal is Chief Butler.

The Duke of Norfolk is Chief Butler as well as Earl Marshal.

The Chief Sewer is the officer who arranges the dishes at the King's table. The office has long been extinct. It is rumored, however, that Edward VII. will revive it.

The Grand Carver's duty is plain from the name of his office—another extinct office.

The Chief Cupbearer has to bring to the King at his banquet, the first cup of drink and he receives as his fee the golden cup that he offers.

The Grand Almoner for the day is the Lord of the Manor of Bedford. He has to distribute the alms in a silver dish, and provide the blue or "ray" cloth which is spread before the King from Westminster Hall to the throne. His "fee" is the dish and its linen cover, also a "tun" of wine.

The Napier has to provide the cloths and napkins for the King's table. These he receives as his "fee." The Chief Lardiner provides the meats for the banquet. His "fee" is the remains of the feast.

The office of The Panneter was to carry the huge golden salt cellar and carving knives to the King's table. These, with the golden spoons, constituted his fee.

The picturesque office of the King's Champion has already been described. His fee is conditional.

The Why and Wherefore.

It may be advanced: "Why those ridiculously named offices?" Our Southern cousins—while most eager to participate or rather to witness the solemn rites of coronation—will be sure to ask this question, will be sure to make merry over it, to caricature it, to affect to despise it. The fact remains, however, that these ancient and quaint ceremonies are the foundation and the preservation of the monarchy of the great British Empire. The old, old meanings of the old, old and forgotten Kings; the marvelous records of the Kings and Queens of old Britain—the absolute foundations upon which the throne of Empire sits, steady and steadfast—beyond laughter or jeers, beyond, far, far beyond the frivolous and the tawdry, holding a deeper meaning in them, as they are, old and reverent rites, than may ever be gotten out of "the new Republics—the new order." Therefore, are they and ought they to be sacred in the eyes and hearts of the children of the Empire; of the builders and promoters of the greatest, the most solid, the most benevolent and progressive—within stout conservative limits—that the worlds have ever seen.

God save the King.

All the old ceremonies, gracious, quaint, most attractive, have their reverent traditions. And these have been most carefully cherished. Our good King shows the desire to preserve, nay, to magnify them. May he be successful! And may God bless our King and our lovely Queen, and save and keep them for many years to come, to maintain and hearten what, after all, is the grandest Empire in the world! God save the King!

IN INDIA.

Reasons Why This Visit Was Considered of Vast Importance.

It had been the hope of the Prince Consort that his eldest son should go to India in order that he might make himself acquainted with some of the conditions under which so many millions of his future subjects lived. It was not given to the Prince Consort to see the wish realised in his lifetime, but three of his sons eventually made tours in India, to the manifest satisfaction of the Indian population and to their own great advantage. Queen Victoria had the wisdom to urge on the Prince of Wales the advisability of undertaking such a visit in 1875, when his health was restored to its customary state, and when, for reasons of State, the opportunity seemed an excellent one. The Viceroy of India at the time was that sensible statesman, Lord Northbrook, who had been in office for three years, and the Secretary for India at home was the Marquis of Salisbury. Mr. Disraeli, who was Prime Minister, was convinced of the utility of such a tour made by the Heir-Apparent, and already is was in his mind to urge the assumption by the Queen of the new title of Empress of India. More attention than usual was given to the matter in Parliament, and the expenditure which it was anticipated would be required, was discussed by such economists as Mr. Henry Fawcett with a fierceness which to-day seems absurd. But it must be remembered that India was in a very poor condition to bear an additional burden of taxation, and at home our finances were none too flourishing. However, ultimately all the preliminary difficulties as to the exact status of the Prince, the route which he was to follow, the order of his going, were settled, and his suite chosen. For the full story of the tour, which was a complete success, we must refer our readers to the interesting volumes written by Sir William Howard Russell, who had made his fame as special correspondent of the Times during the Crimean war and was deputed to be the chronicler of the Prince's travels.

Incidents of the Tour.

The Prince left England on October 11th, 1875, and returned on May 11th, 1876, so that his tour lasted exactly seven months. During that time he enjoyed very good health, and went through the arduous programme of work with undiminished vigor. In Bombay, soon after his arrival, he celebrated his birthday, and was the recipient of a large number of congratulations from his relatives in England. At Poona he enjoyed some good sport; in Ceylon he visited the tea gardens; in Benares he saw the celebrated temples; at Lucknow he stood before the touching memorial of native gallantry; and at Agra he was amazed and delighted with the lovely Taj. It was a splendid holiday as well as a valuable education for the Prince, and he has never forgotten his experiences in India. The gifts which were lavishly bestowed upon him, and the animals which he brought home, were inspected by tens of thousands of people after his return. Most of the animals found a permanent home in the Zoological Gardens, and often the Prince would go and see them there. Others of the animals were taken to Sandringham, and have given pleasure to the Prince's guests.

THE KO-HI-NOOR.

TO BE WORN BY QUEEN ALEXANDRA.

A great reception awaited the Prince when he came home. In the evening of the day when he reached London he and the Princess appeared in the Royal box at the Opera, and the music was delayed by the enthusiastic welcome accorded them. The Corporation of London gave a ball in their honor, and it was preceded by the presentation of a gold casket containing an address from the citizens of London, expressing their satisfaction at the way in which the Prince's tour had linked the loyalty of Indian races to the British Throne. There is not the slightest reason to doubt the lasting value of the Prince's visit to India. He made the acquaintance of more Rajahs than any Viceroy had ever met, and he was always most careful to respect the susceptibilities of all the rulers of the provinces to whom he was introduced in a country where caste is paramount this involved considerable tact, and it says much for the skill and knowledge of advisers like Sir Bartle Frere that any serious faux pas was avoided. On the voyage homewards the Prince called at Egypt for five days, and also spent a short time in Spain, where he was the guest of the King. Ten days before the Prince landed, his mother had been proclaimed Empress of India, a fitting conclusion to a great tour. Later in the year he was installed Grand Master of the Free Masons in England. The year closed with much public excitement caused by the Bulgarian atrocities. A terrible sad event followed, for on the seventeenth anniversary of the Prince Consort's death the Princess Alice, the favorite sister of the Prince of Wales, died at Darmstadt, having caught diphtheria from nursing her children, who were suffering from it. The Prince of Wales, who could never forget the devotion with which the Princess had watched over him while lying ill at Sandringham, was overwhelmed with this sorrow. He was at the funeral, which took place at Rosenhobe. Within three months a son of his sister, the Crown Princess of Prussia, died of diphtheria—a disease which has been specially fatal to our Royal Family.

On March 13, 1879, the Duke of Connaught was married at Windsor to a daughter of the "Red Prince," Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia. It was not a brilliant function, owing to the recent bereavements which had befallen both branches of the alliance; but Prince Arthur, as people still called the bridegroom, was congratulated heartily on his wife by all who made her acquaintance. The Duchess of Connaught is of a retiring disposition, and, consequently she is less known to the British public than almost any Princess; but Aldershot, Dublin and other places where her husband has been stationed on military duty, she has won the admiration and affection of those who had an opportunity of studying her character. The Duke has so genial a disposition that no one could help liking him.

The sad death of the young Prince Imperial in Zululand occurred on June 1st, and the news was a great shock to the Prince and Princess of Wales, who had known the poor fellow for many years, and who had bidden him farewell two or three months before, when he had gone as a guest of the British forces to see the warfare in Zululand. They were swift to show their sympathy with the now doubly stricken Empress Eugenie, and the Prince acted as one of the pallbearers at the funeral—an act which recommended itself most warmly to the French nation. Not less did the sympathetic act appeal to his own people. It is a matter over which they cannot, and would not if they could, make any demonstration, but they love the King for his kind-heartedness.

HAD TO BE LIFTED.

A Helpless Cripple is Restored to Health and Strength.

Lame Back had This Man a Prisoner for a Long Time, but at Last he Found a Cure Though Given up by the Doctors

Napanee, Ont., June 22.—Special.—The doctors told Simon Warner that they could do nothing for him. He had tried many medicines and treatments with no good result.

He was a helpless cripple with lame back, and for a long time his wife had to lift him in and out of bed, the pain in his back was so very severe.

In this extremity a friend's advice saved him. This man had suffered with backache himself, but had been completely cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills, thus when he heard that Mr. Warner was so bad he went to his home and recommended this medicine to him.

Mr. Warner and his good wife were at first inclined to be somewhat doubtful, but here was the evidence that Dodd's Kidney Pills do cure Lame Back right before their very eyes in the person of the man who had been cured. Surely it must be true.

So after some deliberation they decided to try, and now they are very much pleased that they did so, for in a short time Mr. Warner's backache had vanished. He grew gradually stronger and better and at present enjoys the best all-round health he has had for many years.

There is not a trace of lame back remaining, not a single symptom, and the helpless man who used to be a burden to himself and his wife is now strong and a comfort to his faithful helpmate. He says:

"We have used in all about twenty-five boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and given some away to our neighbours. I find that when they use a box they themselves are about as strong in their recommendations as we are.

"I can certainly highly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a sure cure for Lame Back, for they cured me, and I never heard of a worse case."

A Strange Pond.

Hicks pond, in Palmyra, Me., is a strange body of water. It is only twelve acres in area, but it is more than 100 feet in depth. It has no visible inlet, although a fair sized stream flows from it into Lake Sebasticook. The volume of its water is not materially affected by either drought or freshet, and the water is always cold.

How He Took Her Refusal.

"What did Mr. Strongnerve say when you told him you would be a sister to him?"

"Why, he had the impudence to say that was 'better still!' Then he kissed me, lighted a cigar and asked me to please mend his gloves for him."

MONEY IN LETTER BOXES.

People Who Try to Pay Postage in That Way.

"Here are two pennies just turned in to the superintendent of delivery by one of the carriers," remarked an official of the Washington city postoffice a few days ago. "The amount of cash gathered up by the collectors of mail is really surprising. Hardly a day passes without a certain percentage of the coin of the realm finding its way to my desk through the medium of the street letter boxes.

"It is hard to believe, but hundreds of persons every day in the year drop unstamped letters in the box with pennies to accompany them to cover the postage. They think the money will do just as well as stamps. But they are mistaken. All such unstamped letters, if there is no identifying mark on the envelope, ultimately land in the dead letter office.

"It often happens," added the postal official, "that coins placed in envelopes for transmission work their way through the paper. In nine cases out of ten, even when the money so lost is no more than a dime, this office is notified of the occurrence by the loser, who requests that he be reimbursed."

Lonely in the Gallery.

Years ago our theaters did not have the large audiences they now have, and it was a common sight to see a house of "empty benches."

"I was employed at the gallery box office of one of the theaters," says a reminiscent Philadelphian, "and one stormy evening sold but one ticket, that to a boy about thirteen years of age, who rushed up to the window and asked if I thought he could get a good seat. I replied that I thought he could. I felt sorry for the little fellow and wondered how he would feel sitting in the gallery all by himself. After the first act was over I was aroused by a tap on the window and, upon opening it, saw my solitary ticket purchaser standing there with a very sad expression on his face.

"'Mister,' he said, 'I'm the only one up there, and it's so lonesome that I am afraid to stay. Won't you give me another ticket, and I'll bring our gang around tomorrow night to help you out?'

"I took the lad to the manager and explained the situation. That boy witnessed the balance of the performance from a plush covered seat in the front row."

The Day of Miracles not Past.

A Toronto Star reporter investigated the case of Mr. George Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhozone.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be cured. Catarrhozone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from impaired hearing, deafness, head noises and ringing in the ears, are advised to inhale Catarrhozone, and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. The Moslem Creed.

A German Christian missionary who has worked for many years among the Mohammedans says: "Honesty compels every candid student to acknowledge that the old view formerly entertained in Christian circles concerning Mohammedanism, according to which the teachings of the great Arabian prophet are nothing but devil's doctrines and dogmas, is altogether incorrect. In reality, Mohammedanism is nothing but a rationalistic type of Christianity in the form of a most unfortunate state religion. The times are past when scolding about the Moslem creed as the production of the devil will satisfy, and the struggle against Islam on these premises is a failure. Practically all of the mission literature that in the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries was written against Mohammedanism is useless."

OLD PEOPLE'S FAVOURITE.

A Medicine That Invigorates the Kidneys and Liver, Takes Away the Pains and Aches and Regulates the Action of the Bodily Organs, Strong Recommendations for

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The experience of Mr. Brown, as stated in his letter below, is similar to that of scores of men and women who feel old age creeping in upon them. The Kidneys grow weak and inactive, the back aches, there are deposits in the urine, and pain and smarting in passing water. The legs swell and there come pains and aches not unlike rheumatism.

Under such circumstances old people turn to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for relief and cure, and are not disappointed. They have learned by repeated trial that they can depend on Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills every time, and consequently they have become known as the old people's favourite medicine.

Mr. John Brown, 66 Nelson street, Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I am getting up in years and have been a hard worker all my life; I am now beginning to fail. For some time past I have thought there was something wrong with my kidneys. I seemed to bloat up, was very short of breath, and feared heart disease, although I was told there was nothing wrong with my heart. I got so bad that I had to do something.

"Hearing of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, I began using them, and by the time I had used up the first box I felt considerably improved. I continued using this medicine and today feel ten years younger. I am strong and hearty and do not suffer from my former ailment. I consider Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills an excellent medicine for old people."

There are people in nearly every town, village and country side read who have proved the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Ask your friends or neighbours about them. One pill a dose; 25c a box. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 11

BRIEF OUTLINE OF THE CORONATION

CONSECRATION AND PRESENTATION OF ROYAL ORNAMENTS.

Service in Three Divisions—Election of the King by the People and the King's Oath—The Rite of Unction—Delivery of the Royal Ornaments and the Enthroning of the King—The Queen Anne Oath.

The conservatism of England has been shown in no way more absolutely than in the services attending upon the coronation of her kings and queens. Of course coronations are comparatively rare, but the ancient rites such as unction and the delivery of the Royal ornaments are fixed rites, and in return for these gifts the King has always bound himself by certain promises. The naked outline of the coronation service means those fixed rites—the consecration of the monarch and the presentation of the Royal ornaments. Many additions to these bare ceremonies have been added but once an addition made, it remains. Whatever new ceremony King Edward VII. introduces will be faithfully observed and carried out by the heir to the throne when his time for reigning comes. From 1307 to 1685 in spite of the Wars of the Roses and the religious confusion of those far times, the coronation prayers remain the same. The procession from the Tower to Westminster remained until the coronation of James II. when it fell into disuse.

KING EDWARD'S CROWN.

But the actual service remains as it was in remote times.

A coronation service is the confirmation of the elected Prince as King. The King—or Prince rather—is actually elected, for, on entering the church, the Archbishop addresses the people, enquiring if they be willing to accept the Prince as their sovereign. A mere ceremony, of course, but still a modern one and one likely to be part of the coronation service of our King.

Reign Begins on Sovereign's Death.

The theory that the reign began on the day of coronation lasted in England down to the time of Edward I. who was the first King to date his reign from the death of his father. The chief difference between the consecration of a Bishop and the consecration of a King lies in the absence of the imposition of hands in the sacring of the King. Not so was it in the dusty ages. King Edward may revive the custom as it is said he will revive many of the old quaint customs. Queen Victoria cut down many of these curious ceremonies, for at her coronation there was neither champion nor banquet; it was reduced, it is said, to the lowest ebb; shorn of much of its ancient grandeur, but seeing that it was a child-queen who was being crowned, no doubt everything was reduced to the most simple form, as indeed there was precedent for in the coronation of William and Mary, and that of William IV. and Queen Adelaide.

Service in Three Divisions.

Coronation service falls into three divisions. First, the election of the King by the people and the King's oath. Secondly, the rite of unction—the greatest act of the service. Thirdly, the delivering of the Royal ornaments and the enthroning of the King. The coronation prayers are long and rambling, filled with a wealth of Old Testament, as well as truculent allusions to "heretics."

In the first detailed account that we have of an English coronation—that of Richard I.—the regalia are almost the same as those of to-day, which, doubtless, many of my readers have seen in the jewel chamber of the Tower of London. Steadily on from that time until the coronation of George IV. the procession from Westminster Hall to the Abbey took place. Some changes occurred at the coronation of William and Mary, the most important of which was the change of oath, which becomes scarcely recognizable. The order for William and Mary has been the model which subsequent coronation services have followed.

The Queen Anne Oath.

As to the much-talked-of oath. At the coronation of Queen Anne in 1702 there was inserted before the oath a long declaration against transubstantiation. This has been supposed by many to be part of the oath, but in reality it is quite separate, and at the coronation of George III. and since then the custom has been that it be not included in the service, but be read by the Sovereign in the House of Lords. In the Coronation Order of Queen Victoria, the Oath as administered ran thus: The Archbishop goes to the Queen and standing before her says:

"Madam. Is your Majesty willing to take the Oath?" The Queen answers "I am willing."

Then come these questions:

"Will You solemnly promise and swear to govern the people of this United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the Dominions thereto belonging, according to the Statutes in Parliament agreed on, and the respective Laws and Customs of the same?"

"I solemnly promise to do so."

"Will You to Your power cause Law and Justice, in Mercy, to be executed in all Your Judgments?"

"I will."

"Will You to the utmost of Your Power maintain the Laws of God, the true Profession of the Gospel, and the Protestant Reformed Religion established by Law? And will You maintain and preserve inviolably the Settlement of the United Church of England and Ireland and the Doctrine, Worship, Discipline and Government thereof, as by Law established within England and Ireland, and the Territories thereunto belonging? And will You preserve unto the Bishops and Clergy of England and Ireland, and to the Churches there committed to their Charge, all such Rights and Privileges, as by Law do, or shall appertain to Them, or to any of Them?"

"All this I promise to do."

The Queen than, going to the altar, there made her solemn oath in the sight of the people to observe all these things, saying, with her hand upon the Great Bible:

"The things which I have here before promised, I will perform and keep. So help me God."

And how well our dear little dead Queen Victoria did perform and keep them, all the world knows.

The Coronation of George IV.

It remains to be seen in how far King Edward the Seventh will reinstate certain old coronation ceremonies which have fallen into disuse. It is said that the King has a great love and reverence for ancient customs, and it has been hinted that many of these old-time ceremonies will be revived at the coming coronation. The last occasion on which the coronation ceremonies included processions to and from Westminster Hall and a banquet was at the coronation of George IV. Peeresses did not appear as the Queen was not crowned. As it has been reported that King Edward will follow the coronation rites of George IV. with perhaps some of the more ancient customs added, it is interesting to observe the order of the ceremonies. On the morning of the coronation a merry peal of bells and the discharge of artillery in the Park set people astir at the dawning. All the space about the Abbey was thronged with people, and carriages began to rattle along the streets and there was the buzz and rumble of voices and the sound of merry laughter. The platform from Westminster Hall to the Abbey was covered, sides and flooring, with fine blue cloth. The canopy to be borne over his Majesty by the Barons of the Cinque Ports was of yellow silk profusely ornamented with heavy gold fringe and bullion. The King preceded by the officers of State entered the hall at ten o'clock, and took his seat in the great chair at the head of the Royal Table. One big gun, fired amid a general silence, told outsiders that the rites were about to begin.

Enter the High Officials.

Then came such high officials as the Lord Great Chamberlain, the High Constable and others. The sword of State was laid upon the table; the Curtana, or sword of Mercy, with the two swords of Justice were drawn from their scabbards and presented to the King; after which the Gold Spurs were delivered. Then came the procession with the regalia.

"Up the great hall walked those officials whose titles sound so strangely odd to the peoples of this continent, such as the Rouge Dragon Pursuivant, the Blue Mantle Pursuivant, CORONATION CHAIR.

the Dean of Westminster, carrying St. Edward's Crown on a cushion of cloth of gold, the first Prebendary, with the Orb; the second Prebendary, carrying the Sceptre with the Dove; the third, with the Sceptre with the Cross; the fourth carrying St. Edward's Staff; the fifth carrying the Chalice and Patina; the sixth Prebendary of Westminster, carrying the Bible. These dignitaries being presented to his Majesty, the regalia was laid upon the Royal Table.

The Order of Persons.

The second gun was then fired, and the procession formed upon the blue cloth spread from the hall to the great steps in the Abbey Church, and moved forward; the anthem "O, Lord, Grant the King a Long Life," being sung in parts, in succession with the playing of the King's band, the sounding of trumpets and the beating of drums. The first persons in order of procession, at George IV.'s coronation, were the King's Herb Woman (Miss Fellowes), with her six maids, strewing the way with herbs, then came numerous grand officials in scarlet cloaks and carrying staves; the trumpeters with their silver trumpets; the kettle drums of crimson damask fringed with gold, the Sergeant Trumpeter, with his Mace, and the Clerks and Masters in Chancery, gentlemen of the Privy Council, Pursuivants of Scotland and Ireland "in their tabards," followed by his Majesty's band in full State habits. More officials, Privy Councillors, Chief Justices, Rouge Dragons, officers of the King's household, the Standard of Hanover; the Standard of Ireland, the Standard of Scotland, followed again by bishops, heralds and viscounts, four abreast, arrayed in crimson velvet, and carrying their coronets in their hands.

The Standards.

The great Standard of England heads the next part of this mighty procession, then the Union Standard, followed by the Royal Standard. Now came the Regalia, the Ushers of the Green Rod, and the White Rod; the Lord Mayor of London; the the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, and the Deputy Lord Chamberlain of England. The Royal Princes came next, in splendid State garments, walking alone, their trains borne by officers so appointed. Each Prince carried his coronet in his left hand. After them walked certain dignitaries bearing the Royal Ornaments, and then came King George, in his Royal Robes, with the cap of maintenance adorned with jewels upon his head, walking under a canopy of cloth of gold, supported by sixteen Barons of the Cinque Ports; his Majesty's train borne by eight eldest sons of peers.

The King's household followed. Lords of the bedchamber, grooms of the bedchamber, ushers, equerries, physicians to the court, pages, the Royal apothecary, surgeon, and solicitor, while the yeomen of the guard closed the procession. I have not mentioned the titles of one-quarter of these gorgeous officials, as space will not permit, but a slight idea may be gathered of the length of this Kingly march when George IV. was crowned. That the pageant will be even more magnificent than it then was is assured, as King Edward is determined to make his coronation and that of his beautiful Queen the most splendid that has been seen within the old walls of England's great gray Abbey.

The Banquet.

The banquet, after the coronation, when the procession again moved back to Westminster Hall was observed at the crowning of George VI. It spread upon the elevated platform

"IS MY CORONET ON STRAIGHT?"

in the hall. The first course was brought up in procession by the clerks of the kitchen, those of the Board of Green Cloth, and the controllers and other officers of the household. Three great officers of State, mounted on horses richly caparisoned, accompanied it. When the first course was served, the procession moved backwards, the horsemen backing their horses with great precision. His Majesty then had his hands washed by the Cupbearer, in a golden basin and ewer, and with much arranging of peers and dignitaries the banquet began.

The King's Champion.

A long and cheerful flourish of trumpets sounded, as the first course ended, and the gates were thrown open to admit the King's Champion. With another flourish and amid ringing applause, the Champion, on horseback, in a full suit of polished armor, and rich plumes of ostrich feathers, appeared under the porch of the triumphal arch. His procession was immediately formed, and moved slowly towards the entrance to the hall. Here the Lancaster Herald proclaimed the challenge as follows:—

"If any person, of what degree soever, high or low, shall deny or gainsay our Sovereign Lord George the Fourth of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, son and next heir to our Sovereign Lord George the Third, the last King deceased, to be the right heir to the Imperial Crown of this United Kingdom, or that he ought not to enjoy the same, here is his Champion, who sayeth that he lieth, and is a false traitor, being ready in person to combat with him, and in this quarrel will adventure his life against him on what day soever he may appoint."

Gauntlet Thrown Down.

Whereupon the Champion threw down his gauntlet; which having lain for a short time upon the ground was returned to him by the Herald. Three times during their progress up the hall towards where the King sat at table, the trumpets flourished, and the challenge is uttered, the gauntlet thrown and returned. The King took the gold cup from his Cupbearer, drank to his gallant Champion, and sent him the cup. With a low bow to his Lord and Chief the Champion finishes the King's wine and retains the golden cup with its cover as his fee.

Only once in the records was the gauntlet picked up, and then it was lifted from the floor by a little old woman, who, offering it to the Champion, said she was afraid the gentleman would lose his "glove" in the crowd, or that it might get trampled upon.

Then came the King's "largesse," the second course, and "God Save the King." Honors were distributed, and after a long and weary day, King George retired to Carlton House, from the banquet at eight o'clock. Many of the ceremonies are not set down here, but I believe that the last Champion and the last banquet ceremonies occurred at this coronation. It is to be hoped King Edward will revive them.

How to Beautify the Complexion.

To have a soft, smooth, skin, free from eruptions and pimples, the blood must be healthy and pure. Ferrozone invigorates enfeebled blood, and cleanses it of all impurities and poisons; it brings colour to the lips and cheeks, brilliancy to the eyes, whitens the teeth and sweetens the breath. No tonic compares with Ferrozone in rapid action and permanent results. Try it; price 50c., at Ormond and Walsh's.

He Ran.

Sol Smith Russell had three young nieces living in the west, of whom he was very fond. On one occasion, so the story goes, he took the youngest of them for a walk and bought her some candy on the agreement that it was not to be eaten until they reached her home. They started, but before they had gone far the little girl proposed, "Let's wun!" Her uncle declined, and there was long pleading, all to no purpose. Finally the little girl stopped, knelt down on the pavement and offered up the petition, "Dod, please make Uncle Sol wun."

"It was simply a question of my losing my dignity or her losing her faith in God," said Mr. Russell in relating the incident, "so we ran as fast as we could for home."

The Age of Brain Work.

"In these days, half our diseases come from the neglect of the body in the overwork of the brain. In this railway age the wear and tear of labour and intellect go on without pause or self pity. We live longer than our forefathers but we suffer more. They fatigued only the muscles, we exhaust the finer strength of the nerves." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest medicine of this age because it is best suited to the needs of the present day. It restores revitalizes wasted nerve cells and makes the pale, weak and exhausted strong and healthy and vigorous.

Sounds of Words.

A negro boy was in the habit of giving his name as "Nedicudineasa Beltikedishasza Sham Ham Jafac Maxwell Brown," mispronouncing nearly every word.

The sound of words has a great attraction for the negro, and he uses them regardless of their meaning.

A negro woman was with difficulty prevented from naming her child "Crucifix," the sound of the word attracting her.

A negro preacher in a sermon declared emphatically:

"I comes not to contaminate any other sect"—repeated still more emphatically—"I comes not to contaminate any other sect; I comes to exonerate your minds."

Cancers are caused by poisonous humours in the blood. The only non-surgical treatment known is Merrill's system Tonic. This is a powerful blood purifier and at the same time blood builder. It cures Scrofula, Eczema and Salt Rheum in thirty days and boils and pimples in a week. 50 doses, price 50c. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

The Value of Pain.

When ether was first discovered and used in surgery, it was said that to abolish pain would be to change the laws of nature herself; that pain is a safeguard; that it indicates in cases of injury the seat of injury and in some instances the cause of injury; that if men learned to minimise or prevent it at pleasure they might annul it altogether and invent a new constitution in which this sentinel of danger would be at all times off duty.

Negative Compliment.

Blood Disorders

are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. They are in need of stimulation, strengthening or doctoring. One medicine will do all three, the finest and most imitated blood medicine there is

A CHARMED LIFE.

Baggage Man Pitched out of a Train Going at Full Speed—Passenger Thought he was Stealing His Trunk.

There is an employee of the C.P.R. who is frequently referred to as the man who bears a charmed life. He is so modest that he will not have his name printed, but any old employee will tell you all that befel him. First of all, he had typhoid fever; he got better, and took it over again; then he had two operations for kidney trouble. Still he was happy, like Mark Tapley, under the most trying circumstances. It is related at the Windsor street station with a humorous relish, that recently the plucky baggage man, sitting in a baggage car, with the door open on a tolerably warm day, had a strange experience. The man was sitting on a trunk, — one of those patent trunks with rollers, which will run all about the house if one gives it the least encouragement, like the cannon in Victor Hugo's story, the cannon which, once it got loose on board ship, could not be recaptured. The hero of the story was sitting on the trunk reading a story. He had an off moment. The train was going at the rate of forty miles an hour. All of a sudden the train gave a lurch and the hero and trunk were shot out of the open door with the force of a catapult. The baggage man described several somersaults in the air, and was seen, indeed, making several circles with infinite rapidity, while the train sped on.

Now, it happened that just at the moment that the baggage man and trunk disappeared from the train a passenger rushed up to the conductor and yelled that there was a man on the train who had just stolen his trunk, which he recognized by its size and colour.

The passenger was angry. He wanted to know what the company meant by subjecting his property to such danger. He evidently thought it was a common thing in Canada (he was an English tourist) for thieves to enter a swiftly moving train, and hoisting the passengers' trunks upon their shoulders, to jump out at a convenient moment. The conductor repressed a smile with difficulty, but he stopped the train, and a party went back about two miles and found the baggage man sitting on the top of the trunk, nursing his leg, but whistling. He was laid up for a few days, but is now at his work as a shipper as a clerk.

STOCK MARKETS.

New York, June 23rd,—The Gould stocks were conspicuous in to-day's activity and the strength in the Wabash issues were leaders of the market, advancing two points. We think they are going higher. M.O.P. sold above 109, while Manhattan advanced a point and a half to 153 1-2. We are as bullish upon Man. as we were last week, when we noted signs of its accumulation. The coalers were higher under leadership of R.G.D. which rose over a point. P.A. shows signs of going higher shortly. C.F.I. fell over two points shortly after the opening, then regained all of its loss only to go lower afterwards than before, below 90. Cop. was weak all day, dwelling down about about two points. Sugar was steady. The decline in C.F.I. and A.C.P. caused slight recessions in the railroad market in the closing hour. Stocks are a purchase whenever concessions in prices apear. Money closed 2 1-2 and 3 per cent., last loan 2 1-2 per cent. Total sales, 548,100.

HAIGHT & FREESE CO.

Appertaining to C. F. I. and Other Steel Stocks.

Considerable inquiry has arisen as to causes of current weakness in C.F.I. especially directly after the bullish outspoken talks of J. W. Gates, when the stock was selling around 109. This stock and its movements are more or less robed in mystery. The available known facts are as follows: C.F.I. drew moderately upon its reserves of surplus to pay its last dividend. This gives currency to rumour that the next dividend may be reduced, consequently invites bearish manipulation. There appears to be two factions dealing in the stock at present who are at loggerheads. The company has expended considerable sums recently in the line of improvements. Had they not done so it would not have been necessary to draw upon the surplus for any part o fthe last dividend. It is simply a matter of bookkeeping as to whether the withdrawal from surplus was for account of the dividend, or for account of funds expended for improvements. C.F.I. will more than likely eventually be absorbed by the U.S. Steel corporation. Possibly the current bearish manipulation may be directed directly in the interest of such accumulation. The closeness with which facts relative to C.F.I. are held render the shares extremely susceptible to rumour, specially when followed up by inside manipulation. Intrinsically the property is not dear and it should ultimately sell very high. It is a bad stock to sell when down and bear rumours are rife, also equally dangerous to buy after an extended advance and when good stories are abundant. To make money trading in C.F.I. one must trade directly contrary to rumour and inclination. As we said in Saturday's letter, also the day before in vigourous language, we believe the corners to be turned in steel shares, and that from now on they may be safely purchased on each recession in price. Other steel issues should be safe purchases at current prices including T C.I.

Yours truly,
HAIGHT & FREESE CO.

RIVERDALE.

Riverdale Sunday School held their annual "Children's Day" service on Sunday afternoon, and a goodly number assembled to enjoy the interesting service prepared for the occasion.

Several good choruses, solos and recitations were given, and a responsive service by the older scholars of Bible promises to and for the children was especially interesting.

Miss C. Edwards of Toronto, who is visiting here, delighted the audience by her rendering of a solo, entitled "Jesus is calling," which she sang with much feeling and expression.

Mr. Sorsoleil of town, gave a splendid address on the subject "What Shall I Do?" holding the attention of both old and young by his earnestness and enthusiasm, and all who heard him must be inspired to do their very best.

Presenting Arms to a Cat.

Some fifty years ago a very high English official died in a fortress at a place that is one of the centers of Brahmanic orthodoxy, and at the moment when the news of his death reached the sepoy guard at the main gate a black cat rushed out of it. The guard presented arms to the cat as a salute to the flying spirit of the powerful Englishman, and the coincidence took so firm a hold of the locality that up to a few years ago neither exhortation or orders could prevent a Hindoo sentry at that gate from presenting arms to any cat that passed out at night.

Progressive Tippling.

A correspondent of the Lancet tells a story in reference to the rapid growth of the habit of tippling which may be developed in unsuspecting subjects. Two elderly ladies, he says, were surprised by a visitor in the act of drinking neat brandy. Upon his expressing some surprise they said that brandy had been recommended to them as a capital preventive against cholera and that they first took it with water, and then they took it without water, and now they took it like water.

CHINESE TYPESETTING.

The Celestial Compositor Has to Master 11,000 Characters.

Typesetting for a Chinese paper is a vastly different matter from typesetting for a journal in another language, for there are 11,000 characters in use. When one recalls the statement of Chinese sinologues that the sayings of Confucius require 7,000 characters, this seems to be a moderate estimate. The Chinese language is derived from 214 root words, which expand into the 4,000 or 5,000 words of daily use and the thirty odd thousand of the dictionary.

It requires 11,000 spaces to hold a font of Chinese type. The large cases, or false partitions, are ranged about the room and divided into spaces for each individual type, each a word complete in itself. A Chinese printer, it is estimated, can arrange 4,000 characters a day. The work has been carefully systematised, and the characters are arranged according to their formation. A simple character designates its group, and the elaboration of form is the elaboration of its meaning, as our terminatives and prefixes elaborate the root.

A division is devoted to the simple character that stands for "wood" and all of its amplifications. In this space or column are to be found "box," "bed," "plum tree" and so on through a long list of objects pertaining to or made of wood. Should an unusual word be needed, type is cut and delicately patched to make the required character. Comparing our combinations of twenty-six letters and ten figures, besides common symbols, an idea of the labor of a Chinese compositor can be formed.

He Knew the Lady.

"Yes," said the eminent professor at a social gathering, addressing his remarks to a small man to whom he had been introduced, "I flatter myself that I rarely fail to read a face correctly."

"So?" queried the small man.

"Yes. Now, there is a lady," continued the professor, pointing to a two hundred pound specimen of the fair sex, "the lines of whose countenance are as clear as print to me. The chin shows firmness of disposition, amounting to obstinacy; the pointed nose, a vicious temperament; the capacious mouth, volubility; the square chin denotes trouble for those who oppose her wishes; the eyes show a hardness of heart"—

"Wonderful, truly wonderful, professor!" interrupted the small man.

"You evidently know something of the lady, then?" said the professor.

"Sure!" replied the small man. "She is my wife."

Wouldn't Commit Himself.

There is in a town in the north of England a certain preacher of Hibernian antecedents who considers himself to be a speaker of perfect English, but who is generally credited with the possession of as rich a brogue as can be found anywhere in Tipperary.

Some mention was made of his peculiar pronunciation at a church meeting, which greatly angered him. He immediately called upon one of the members and, after complaining of the injustice done him, asked him whether in his opinion a single trace of the brogue was to be observed in his speech.

"Well," his friend answered, "if you wish to deny it I should advise you to do so in writing."—London Answers.

The Polonsolo Arrow.

"An arrow studded with the most costly of stones, tipped at both ends with pure virgin gold and headed with the feathers of the rarest birds." Such is the description given of the "Polonselo arrow," which in 1434 was presented to Sir John Dalcourt by a Spanish gentleman. This wonderful arrow was made in 1204 by an ancestor of the Spaniard's, and every stone and jewel with which it was set was said to represent a human life cut short through its instrumentality. The stones indicated the number of men to whom it had carried death, while the curiously fashioned gold and silver jewels represented the women who had fallen under its poisoned point.

How to Sharpen a Carving Knife.

A carving knife needs to have a different kind of an edge from a razor. The steel which ordinarily accompanies a carving knife and fork is very well to give a finishing touch to the edge, but an ordinary whetstone, such as a reaper uses for his scythe or sickle, is the most useful implement a carver can keep at hand. One or two rubs on each side of a knife whet it up mightily, and then two or three finishing touches from the steel and the knife is in order to do most excellent execution.

The White Shark.

The most dreaded and ferocious shark now in existence is the great white shark of tropical waters. It is the man eater par excellence. Specimens have been captured which measured forty-two feet in length. Whether it has done so or not, this frightful creature would certainly have no difficulty in literally swallowing a man whole.

Cruel.

Mrs. Street—I have been very careful with my daughter. I have told her whenever she is going to speak to stop and listen how it sounds.

Mrs. Lane—You ought to tell her to follow the same rule when she is about to sing.

One Failure.

"It's funny our minister never gets married," remarked the young husband who had just refused his wife a bonnet in his endeavor to change the subject. "I think he'd make a good husband."

"Well," replied the wife warmly, "he didn't seem to make a very good one when he married us."

Fitting.

La Moutt—Here is a periodical devoted to air navigation.

La Moyne—Ah, it must be a fly paper.

Give what you have. To some it may be better than you dare to think. —Longfellow.

THE CARNAHUBA PALM.

It Is Called the Most Marvelous Tree in the World.

Undoubtedly the most marvelous tree in the world grows in Brazil. It is the carnahuba palm and can be employed for many useful purposes. Its roots produce the same medicinal effect as sarsaparilla. Its stems afford strong, ligh fibers, which acquire a beautiful luster and serve also for joists, rafters and other building materials as well as for stakes for fences.

From parts of the tree wines and vinegar are made. It yields also a saccharine substance as well as a starch resembling sago. Its fruit is used for feeding cattle. The pulp has an agreeable taste, and the nut, which is oleaginous and emulsive, is sometimes used as a substitute for coffee. Of the wood of the stem musical instruments, water tubes and pumps are made. The pith is an excellent substitute for cork. From the stem a white liquid similar to the milk of the cocoanut and a flour resembling maizena may be extracted.

Of the straw, hats, baskets, brooms and mats are made. A considerable quantity of this straw is shipped to Europe, and a part of it returns to Brazil manufactured into hats. The straw is also used for thatching houses. Moreover, salt is extracted from it and likewise an alkali used in the manufacture of common soap.

Rings and Rheumatism.

Sufferers from rheumatism who believe that they will be cured of their aches through wearing a certain kind of metal ring would be surprised perhaps to hear that they are keeping alive an old superstition that owed its origin to one of the ceremonies performed on Good Friday. The ceremony was called the blessing of the cramp rings and was carried out by the king himself, who went into his private chapel, accompanied only by his great almoner, crawled on his knees to the crucifix and there blessed a silver bowl full of gold and silver rings. These rings were afterward distributed to people who were afflicted with rheumatism or epilepsy. The idea is supposed to have originated in a certain ring given by a pilgrim to Edward the Confessor, which was kept in Westminster abbey and used as a cure for such ills.—London Chronicle.

The Hairspring.

The hairspring of a watch is a strip of the finest steel about 9½ inches long and .01 inch wide and .0027 inch thick. It is coiled up in spiral form and finely tempered. The process of tempering these springs was long held as a secret by the few fortunate ones possessing it, and even now it is not generally known. Their manufacture requires great skill and care. The strip is gauged to the .020 of an inch, but no measuring instrument has yet been devised capable of fine enough gauging to determine beforehand by the size of the strip what the strength of the finished spring will be. A twenty-thousandth part of an inch difference in the thickness of the strip makes a difference in the running of a watch of about six minutes per hour.

Miniature Holland.

The striking thing about Holland is that everything except the old parish churches, the town halls, the dikes and the trees is in miniature. The cities are not wide, and one can go from the most northern point in the country to the most southern or from the extreme west to the extreme east in a single day and, if it be a summer day, in daylight, while from the top of the tower of the cathedral at Utrecht one can look over a large part of the country. The Hague and Rotterdam are only sixteen miles apart and The Hague and Amsterdam only forty miles. Arnhem and The Hague are the two most cosmopolitan cities in the kingdom, and one meets in the streets all sorts and conditions of Netherlanders.

Brass and Bronze.

Brass and bronze are two alloys of copper. The first is composed of copper and zinc, the latter of copper and tin. Both historically and scientifically these two compound metals are of greater interest than almost any others. Copper was one of the first metals discovered, extracted and utilized in the earliest periods of our history, and antiquaries are accustomed to speak of a "bronze age" to express that interval of time during which this metal formed many of the implements used for industrial purposes and in warfare.

The Usual Thing.

"Wasn't that an odd thing for the minister to say just as we were leaving?" asked the Chicago bridegroom of his bride.

"I don't think I noticed what he said," replied the bride. "What was it?"

"He invited us to come again."

"Oh, that was just ordinary politeness. He always does my marrying."

Intellectual Slumming.

Querist—Doing any slumming these days?

Painnick—Oh, yes; occasionally I read a modern society novel.

An Error of Judgment.

"What caused Puffleigh's failure?"

"He was a victim of overconfidence."

"In"—

"Himself."—Puck.

Plant Trees.

It adds to the homelike character of a city to embower its houses in maple and elms, to give hiding places for the birds, and it adds to coolness and salubrity as well as beauty to provide shade against the blistering days of summer.

No Way to Wealth.

Short—If I had as much money as you have, I wouldn't be so blamed stingy with it.

Long—My dear boy, that is the very reason you will never have it.

Advice.

"Advice," said Uncle Eben, "is like mos' ev'ything else. If it's any good, you doesn' have to give it away. You kin jes'ly sell it."

OUR STRICKEN KING.

His Majesty Undergoes a Painful Surgical Operation.

HIS PROGRESS IN BULLETINS.

Coronation Is Postponed in Consequence —King Is Ill With Perityphlitis—Royal Patient Maintains His Strength and Takes Nourishment—Consternation Everywhere—The Queen Brave.

London, June 25.—(4.45 a. m.)—Sir Frederick Treves, Sir Francis H. Laking and Sir Thomas Barlow remained at Buckingham Palace all night. The Associated Press learns that about midnight last night His Majesty enjoyed some refreshing sleep. It is not likely that any further bulletin of the King's condition will be issued before 7 o'clock this morning.

London, June 25.—(4.50 a.m.)—At 20 minutes past four o'clock this morning the officer of the guard at Buckingham Palace informed a reporter of the Associated Press that he understood that there was no new developments in the King's condition. At that hour the Palace was everywhere closed and there were no signs of life about the building, except sentries outside and a small lot of messengers and reporters awaiting a possible bulletin.

In Doubt For Days.

London, June 24.—The following bulletin was issued at 11.10 p.m.: "The King's condition is as good as could be expected after so serious an operation. His strength is maintained, there is less pain and His Majesty has taken a little nourishment. It will be some days before it will be possible to say that the King is out of danger." (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow.

King's Condition Extremely Critical.

London, June 25.—5.10 p.m.—Sir Francis Knollys informed a representative of the Associated Press that there had been practically no change since the operation.

"His Majesty," he said, "continues to sleep and is progressing satisfactorily."

There is no question, however, that the King's condition is extremely critical.

Coronation Postponed.

London, June 24.—12.29 p. m. — The coronation has been postponed indefinitely on account of the indisposition of King Edward.

Makes Satisfactory Progress

London, June 24.—The following bulletin was posted at Buckingham Palace at 6 o'clock this evening:

KING EDWARD VII.
An Empire's Prayers Go Up For His Majesty's Recovery.

"His Majesty continues to make satisfactory progress and has been relieved by the operation." (Signed) Lister, Treves, Smith, Laking Barlow.

Large Abscess Evacuated.

London, June 24.—(2.46 p. m.)—The following bulletin has been posted at Buckingham Palace: "The operation has been successfully performed. A large abscess has been evacuated. The King has borne the operation well, and is in a satisfactory condition."

Suffering From Perityphlitis.

London, June 24.—(12.46 p. m.)—Sir Francis Knollys, the King's private secretary, has issued the official medical announcement: "The King is suffering from perityphlitis. His condition on Saturday was so satisfactory that it was hoped that with care His Majesty would be able to go through the ceremony. On Monday evening a recrudescence became manifest, rendering a surgical operation necessary to-day." (Signed) Lister, Smith, Laking, Barlow, Treves.

The King's Physicians.

Treves is Sir Frederick Treves, surgeon to the King, and was surgeon extraordinary to the late Queen Victoria.

Lister is Sir Joseph Lister, surgeon in ordinary to King Edward, famous for the discovery of antiseptic treatment in surgery.

Smith is Sir Thomas Smith, surgeon to the King, and late vice-president of the Royal College of Surgeons.

Laking is Sir Francis Laking, physician in ordinary and surgeon apothecary to the King.

Barlow is Sir Thomas Barlow, physician to His Majesty's household, and professor of clinical medicine and physician to the University College Hospital.

SAVED BY OPERATION.

The Doctors Believe His Majesty Would Have Been Dead Ere Now But For the Operation Performed.

London, June 25.—With dramatic suddenness the King has been stricken down upon the eve of his coronation. This morning he lies in a critical state at Buckingham Palace.

In spite of the intensity of this tragic interruption, the lower elements of London were last night "Mafeking" through the flag-decked streets, and a portion of society, in coronation gowns and jewels, gathered at what was called a gala coronation dinner at one of the fashionable hotels.

It must be admitted that the revellers have been misled by the technical language of the bulletins; they seem to have no conception of the gravity of King Edward's condition. The thinking portion of the nation, however, went home numbed by the events which the day has brought forth.

Indescribable consternation prevails throughout the country, and this consternation is reflected in the cablegrams received from all centres of the universe. King Edward is in a room facing the beautiful gardens of Buckingham Palace, and far from the street and the crowd. If tonight's progress is maintained, he will probably tide over the effects of his severe operation, which has successfully removed the local trouble. But should any complication occur, such as sceptic peritonitis or blood poisoning, it is feared His Majesty's present physical and nervous condition would prove unequal to the strain involved. There is consequently intense anxiety as to the outcome.

Operation Saved Him

The King's doctors believe His Majesty would have been dead before now, except for the operation. His condition became so alarming Monday night that at one time it was feared death might ensue before the surgeon's knife could afford him relief. Intense swelling of the extremities, accompanied by alarming symptoms of mortification, constituted the emergency which demanded an immediate operation. To the last the King tried to avoid this, and he was willing to be carried to the Abbey for the coronation ceremony, in order that it should occur as arranged. The influence of Queen Alexandra was enlisted, however, and at an early hour yesterday morning the royal patient was prepared for the operation, which, even in the skilful hands of England's best surgeons, was fraught with grave danger.

Operation at 12 p.m.

Shortly before 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon His Majesty was moved from his couch to the operating table, and the anaesthetic was administered. Sir Frederick Treves made the incision near the patient's groin, and carried it upwards with an outward slant, for nearly four inches. The obstruction was removed, and a tubing was placed in the affected intestine.

King Edward's first words when he returned to consciousness were to ask for "George," and the Prince of Wales, who was waiting in the new room was immediately admitted to his father's presence.

While the operation was being performed, the great central courtyard of Buckingham Palace, so lately the scene of such brilliant gatherings, was utterly deserted, and an impressive silence reigned throughout the building. The equerries talked in whispers, servants tip-toed about, and the tension grew almost unbearable. Then the word was passed around: "All had gone well."

Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour then went in to congratulate Queen Alexandra, and afterwards an informal and perhaps historic discussion occurred between the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught and Lord Salisbury and several other members of the Cabinet.

Before the end of the afternoon over 2,000 callers, who included all the foreign representatives in London and members of the House of Lords and the House of Commons, had inscribed their names on the visitors' book at Buckingham Palace. All the royal princes called personally on the Prince of Wales and bade him good-bye. The majority of them will leave London to-day for their respective countries.

Special Intercession.

In striking contrast to the happy anticipation with which the day opened is an order issued last night by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Rev. Frederick Temple, and the Archbishop of York, the Most Rev. William D. MacLagan, appointing special services to be held next Thursday.

"The congregations" say the Archbishops in their joint order, "would doubtless be thankful to join at this juncture in prayer to the Almighty for blessings on His Majesty the King and for his speedy recovery. The first two prayers in those prescribed for the visitation of the sick might be used for this occasion."

The Archbishop of Canterbury also asks for "the public and private prayers of all in behalf of the King in his serious illness."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The statisticians are now at work figuring up the cost of the Boer war and making some interesting calculations as to the incidence of the expenditures. Up to March last there had been an estimated expenditure of $1,100,000,000, compared with $30,000,000 for the war in China. There had also been a deficit of $80,000,000 in ordinary revenue and expenditure. By war taxation $300,000,000 has been raised, not providing for the sinking fund has added $69,000,000 for war purposes, and some $780,000,000 will be added to the public debt. It is curious to observe that, as the total area of the Orange River Colony and the Vaal River Colony is some 167,000 square miles, to two annexed republics will have cost Great Britain more than $6,500 a square mile by the end of the year, or over ten dollars an acre. Then, if the total white population at the beginning of the war was some 325,000, the cost will be very close to $3,400 each, while if the Boer force is taken at 35,000, the cost of conquering them foots up to $32,000 each. Yet, after all this outlay Great Britain grants the enemy the most magnanimous peace terms ever recorded in history. It seems to have touched the feelings of those who were formerly her most bitter enemies, as even De Wett counsels his late followers to be heartily loyal and faithful to the new government.

A BIT OF "SPREAD-EAGLEISM."

Canadians, perhaps from having lived so near to this country for so long, have grown accustomed to the sort of oratory which is usually denominated "spread-eagleism" and do not exhibit any sign of nervous collapse when they hear that some flamboyant orator with gas enough to fill Santos Dumont's balloon, has been expending a little of his superabundance in telling what will happen when the American eagle perks the British lion's tail over some Canadian boundary or other matter. The Canadian papers scarcely ever notice the occurrence, although one of them remarked mildly the other day to the effect; "Spread-eagle oratory in the United States has not wholly died out; and a very fine speciman of it went on the records the other day. Mr. Griffith, a Congressman from somewhere in Indiana, made a speech in the House of Representatives on the Alaska boundary issue, and wound up his discourse with the following peroration, which is quite equal to any utterances of the Hon. Elijah Pogram, recorded in the pages of Martin Chuzzlewit;

"When the British lion, roaming up and down the earth, laid it heavy paw upon little Venezuela, and insolently growled 'This is mine,' Uncle Sam, in the person of Grover Cleveland, took that voracious animal by the tail and gave it such a mighty twist that its roar of anguish echoed across the Atlantic Ocean. And straightway it took its wounded appendage between its legs and hastened home. When some other man of patriotism and unflinching courage shall stand at the head of our affairs, Alaska will be defended against the robber nation of the world, and our bright flag will be drawn again to the masthead wherever it has a right to fly."—Chicago British American.

SEEDS EXAMINED BY GOVERNMENT.

An Analysis Which Means Much to Agriculturalists

THE VITALITY DETERMINED.

Method of Ascertaining Purity of Samples—The Results Which Have Been Obtained so far.

Department of Agriculture,
Ottawa, June 17, 1902.

While intelligent farmers, with a fair knowledge of the seed trade, can obtain high classed seeds, a large proportion of them get their supplies in small towns or villages from local dealers who have but a limited knowledge of seeds. The result has been that those farmers who are not within easy reach of a good commercial centre have experienced difficulty in securing reliable grass and clover

This led Agricultural Societies, Farmers' Clubs, and individual farmers to direct the attention of the Department of Agriculture to various grievances connected with the seed trade, and investigation has proved that there has been just ground for complaint.

In order to secure more definite information with regard to the actual conditions of the trade in the common grass and clover seeds, arrangements were made early in the year to collect a few hundred one-half pound samples of timothy, alsike, and red clover seeds that were offered for sale by local dealers. Over five hundred samples have been obtained at various points in the different provinces in Canada where such seeds find a market.

The information which was received with each sample included the place where the sample was obtained, its origin, the price at which it was offered for sale, and the year in which it was stated to have been grown.

These samples of seeds reached the Department under a variety of names which were intended to designate their grade or quality, but which rather served to mystify the less intelligent purchasers. Such names as Linnet, Otter, No. 66, Salmon, Elk, Prime, Pine Tree, and such like terms have been given to seeds by wholesale seed firms, and are not in any way expressive of their real worth. They are terms which have been coined in wholesale seed houses and are evidently intended to take the place of such terms as Grade No. 1, Grade No. 2, Grade No. 3, Screenings, etc., which, if used by a seed firm bearing a good reputation, would mean a good deal to any intending purchaser.

The samples which have been collected are being analyzed for both purity and vitality. The necessary equipment for a modern seed laboratory has been secured, and the rules adopted by the association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations for testing seed are being followed in detail throughout. In making a purity test ten grams of Red Clover and five grams of Timothy and Alsike seeds are carefully weighed out from each of the one-half pound samples on a precision balance sensitive to one millegram; the impurities are separated, and the percentage of pure seed is thus obtained. The impurities are then examined and the percentage by weight of weed seeds determined; the weed seeds are identified, and the number of each kind of weed seeds in a pound of the seeds offered for sale is calculated.

To test the vitality of the seeds, four lots, containing one hundred seeds each, are indiscriminately taken from pure seed, which has been thoroughly mixed for the purpose. The seeds are placed—one hundred in each group so as to check one against the other — between folds of blotting paper and set in a Standard Seed Germinator. This germinating apparatus, specially designed for this work, is so arranged that the heat, moisture, air and light are absolutely under the control of the operator—conditions which cannot be had except by laboratory methods. The seeds are kept at a temperature best suited to their germination. After they have been in the germinator 24 hours those which have sprouted are removed, counted and the number recorded. This number is repeated each day for ten days. By this method not only the vitality but the vital energy of the seed is shown.

Out of thirty-five samples of Red Clover Seed which were collected in the province of Ontario, twelve samples contained over five per cent. by weight of foreign seeds. These foreign seeds consist of various kinds, of more or less noxious weed seeds, the most prevalent being those of pigeon grass, rib grass, catchfly, Canada thistle, rag weed, curled leaf dock and sorrel in varying proportions. As a rule it would be expected that samples of this kind would be offered for sale at a price commensurate with their quality; but such is by no means the case. The average retail price per bushel of the ten samples which contained the largest percentage of weed seeds was $5.95 per bushel. The real value of these seeds cannot, however, be accurately given until the germinating tests have have been completed, as seeds which are free from weed seeds have not always shown the highest percentage of vitality.

The results of the investigation thus far would indicate that there has been comparatively a small amount of timothy, alsike, or red clover seed wilfully adulterated this spring, although a number of samples which have been analyzed show a large per cent. of inert matter such as sand, broken pieces of stems, etc. Four of the samples which were secured from local dealers in Ontario contained an average of seventeen and one-half per cent. of total impurities, one of which was purchased in Renfrew at $7.20 per bushel, and from an average of three tests showed 23.6 per cent. of total impurities.

Sixty-four samples of red clover seeds were secured from local dealers in the Province of Quebec, but the testing of these samples for purity has not as yet been completed. The results of the work thus far, however, indicate that the farmers of Quebec do not get all the screenings from the Ontario-grown seeds. The percentage of total impurities from the sixty-four samples ranged from one fifth of one per cent.—which was obtained from a sample secured at St. Francois, and was being sold at the rate of $6.60 per bushel—to eighteen per cent.—which was obtained from a sample received from St. Hyacinth, and which was being sold at $6.45 per bushel. Thirty-three per cent. of the samples of red clover seed obtained from Quebec Province contained more than five per cent. of total impurities.

The results so far include only the analysis for purity of the red clover seeds obtained from Ontario and Quebec. In examining the seeds for germinating the testing is all done in duplicate, and results will be published later on.

This seed investigation work, which is being conducted by Mr. G. H. Clark, B.S.A., has brought to light some important facts connected with the seed trade, and it is the intention of the Department to continue this work with a view to bringing out such information as may be helpful alike to seed growers, seed merchants, and to seed consumers, and to ascertain if the actual conditions of the seed trade in some of the more common grass and clover seeds require a system of seed control such as has been adopted in other countries for the safeguarding of the best interests of agriculture.

STATE BANKS.

The question is often debated, Why should there be any state banks in the United States when the national banks are so much better and when the system might so easily be made universal? The answer is that national banks must have a capital of $25,000, whereas state banks may have as little as $500. That is the case in Virginia, which requires a capital of at least $500 for any incorporated company, making no distinction as regards banking; while ten states do not prescribe the amount of capital a bank shall have, but leave that to the directors. Nearly always, if not quite, the capital required by the state law is less than that required by the national law, and state banks are required to be most abundant in the small towns of the Middle, Southern, Western and Pacific States, when the capital required is less than $25,000 to each bank. There were 5,204 banks organized under state authority, according to the last report of the comptroller of the currency, which number does not include loan and trust companies, savings banks and private banks. The number of the national banks at the same time was 4,279, with a capital of $663,000,000, or nearly $155,000 each. The reports of the state banks were not complete but the aggregate capital of the 4,983 banks reporting at the comptroller's office was $255,000, or slightly exceeding $51,000 each. An additional reason for the existence of state banks is that, with very few exceptions, they may take real estate as security for loans, whereas the national banks may not.

It was thought, when the National Bank Act was amended in 1900 by "lowering the capital limit to $25,000, while allowing the issue of notes to the par value of the bonds, supplying a two per cent. bond upon which the premium was relatively small, and reducing the tax on circulation one-half," that the majority of the state banks of $25,000 capital would adopt the national system. Such has not been the case, however, and according to Mr. George E. Barnett, of the John Hopkins University, who has written a monograph on state banking legislation, it is because the advantages, if any, offered by note-issuing under the national system, are offset by the prohibition of loans on real estate under the national law. Real estate for many obvious reasons, has never been favoured as a banking security, especially in older countries, where the laws relating to it are complex, expensive to put in process, and uncertain of result, and in the new world conservative banking has only accepted real estate security perforce and as a temporary expedient. In California more than one-third of the security of the state banks for loans is loans, and the same applies more or less to many of the other states. This accounts more than anything else for the state banks becoming so frequently insolvent. There are 48 Legislatures in the United States, and the variety of bank legislation is extensive and peculiar. It applies to incorporation, capital, real estate loans, stockholders' liability, public supervision, and what not, and amid its bewildering diversity, the Canadian economic student may well be thankful that we long ago emerged from divided counsels in this respect and have now a banking system homogeneous, elastic and secure. A Wrong Burial Certificate.

When a physician issues a burial certificate to one who has died from consumption or throat trouble, he should say, Cause of death, neglect to take Four T's when the cough first started. Four T's cures a cough in 24 hours and the worst cold in two days, and you get a large bottle for 25c at Ormond and Walsh's drug store.

Although the medicine business should, above all, be carried on with the utmost conscientiousness and sense of responsibility, the unfortunate fact is that in no other is there so much humbug and deception. The anxieties of the sick and their relatives are traded upon in the most shameful manner; impossible cures are promised; many preparations are absolutely worthless, and some are positively dangerous to health.

As a consequence, all proprietary remedies are regarded with suspicion by many people, and the good suffer for the bad.

OUR ARMY'S MAGNIFICENT WORK.

It is estimated that the Boers had an army of 80,000 men. This force acted generally on the defensive was well armed and knew how to "ride and shoot" and take cover. They were fighting in their own country, where they knew the lie of the land, and had a base of supplies in every farm house.

Given these conditions, and it is doubtful whether any European power would attempt to conquer such an army with even the force which Great Britain employed. The advantage possessed by the defence is now one of the commonplaces of military tactics; and we shall not likely see any nation assume the offensive again unless assured of overwhelming superiority in numbers or arms.

Certainly the British army in South Africa has reason to be proud of its achievement. It was not a large force pitted on even terms against a small one; but a very small force doing work which might well have taxed the ability and courage of a far larger. When this war comes to be contrasted with some similar conflict, fought under modern conditions, we will learn to appreciate fairly the magnificent showing of our army during the last few years. And it is doubtful whether we will properly understand it until we have some such, up-to-date war between well-equipped civilized powers to contrast it with.

European officers who accompanied the British forces in the field were frequently reported to have said that they did not know any other troops who would have "gone ahead" on some occasions when "Tommy" faced "fearful odds" and overcame them. This can easily be credited; and one of the assets which the British Empire will bring out of the Boer war is a splendid army with the prestige of a splendid record.—Montreal Star.

Edward, the Seventh, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India.

To all whom these presents shall come, or whom the same may in any way concern. Greeting:

Proclamation.

A. POWER,
Acting Deputy Minister of Justice, Canada.

Whereas by our proclamation dated the 24th day of May last, Thursday, the 26th day of June inst., being the day fixed for the coronation of His Majesty King Edward the Seventh, was appointed and set apart a public holiday to both serve a day of public thanksgiving and rejoicing throughout our Dominion of Canada.

And whereas, owing to the deeply to be regretted illness of His Majesty, the coronation has indefinitely been postpontd.

Now, therefore, know ye that we have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Privy Council of Canada, to withdraw the said proclamation and to revoke and cancel the same.

Of all which our loving subjects and all others whom these presents may concern are hereby required to take notice and to govern themselves accordingly.

All Military Parades Off.

In consequence of the postponement of the coronation, all military parades and celebrations fixed for June 26 will be called off. A militia order was issued yesterday afternoon cancelling the order for the firing of a royal salute on Thursday.

A PESSIMISTIC CANADIAN.

Inner Circles Believe That the King May Not Recover.

Toronto, June 25.—The Telegram has the following cable from London from its correspondent, a Canadian: The gravest fears are entertained here for the King's recovery.

A prominent surgeon informs me that the belief is held in inside circles that the ending will be fatal. It was known on Sunday last that His Majesty's illness was occasioned by appendicitis, but until yesterday the fact was carefully concealed.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the other Canadian Ministers here express their most profound sympathy with His Majesty's affliction. Canadian visitors generally are deeply moved and cannot find words to express their sorrow.

The announcement came as a staggering blow to the people of Great Britain. Evidences of grief are everywhere, business is practically suspended, and there is but one topic.

Lord Strathcona is keenly impressed with the serious condition of the King.

Notification of the postponement of the coronation ceremony has been sent to all the agents-general of the colonies.

The Canadian Ministers here, Dominion and Provincial, called at the High Commissioner's office yesterday, also scores of Canadian visitors to London.

At 4.30 o'clock the King was sleeping, but insiders still maintain that the case is most serious, and they are extremely doubtful of the result.

The deep sympathy with the royal family is universal. Crowds are in the vicinity of Buckingham Palace eager for the bulletins.

In the event of recovery, which a united Empire is praying for, the coronation ceremony will take place in August, but the royal patient must be given at least six weeks to convalesce.

Court officials were afraid even a week ago that the coronation ceremony would have to be postponed. His Majesty's condition during that period fluctuated greatly, he having his good and his bad days. On Sunday it was thought the operation could have been postponed until after the ceremony at Westminster Abbey, but the surgeons were fearful and decided upon prompt action.

Canadians who had gathered on the route to the King's drive from the station to Buckingham Palace, on his return from Windsor on Monday, remarked his peculiar pallor and appearance of ill-health.

Groups on the London streets are discussing the situation with scared looks and regard the bulletins from the Palace as portentous of ill. Nothing else is discussed at clubs, hotels and on the thoroughfares.

The Canadian troops, quartered at Alexandra Palace, have been greatly saddened by the news from Buckingham Palace, and are naturally much disappointed at the turn matters have taken. They will return on the date already arranged.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier remarked at 5 o'clock last evening, with reference to the proposed celebrations in Canada, that the matter of holding these must be left to the discretion of the people.

Perityphlitas Is Appendicitis.

Montreal, June 25.—Speaking of the King's illness, Dr. T. G. Roddick, dean of the medical faculty of McGill University, said: "Perityphlitis is another name for appendicitis, and is almost exclusively known in this country by the latter name. It very rarely happens that a man of the King's age is affected by the disease, but cases have been known where such has occurred. In the case of the King the disease has probably been the indirect result of the attack of typhoid fever which threatened the life of His Majesty in 1871. It could have been induced by the chill he contracted while attending the review at Aldershot. Under ordinary circumstances, a recovery is made in from fourteen to twenty-three days, but sometimes aggravating symptoms arise which retard the recovery of the patient in that time. In the case of the King or any man of his age, there is more or less danger connected with an attack of perityphlitis, but this can be minimized by careful surgical attendance. I do not think, however, that the King will be able to undergo the fatigue incidental to the coronation ceremony for at least six weeks, and, if I am right, it means that the coronation will have to be postponed for that period."

THE NEWS IN CANADA.

Montreal Calls Off Its Grand Military Parade—In the West.

Montreal, June 25.—It can be readily imagined that Montreal would deeply deplore the illness of King Edward. Mayor Cochrane has issued a proclamation countermanding the holiday. Consequently, the grand military parade and other items on the program will not take place. There will be services of intercession in the Protestant churches, while all the priests of the Roman Catholic churches in the diocese will pray daily for the King's recovery.

The News in Toronto.

Toronto, June 25.—The news was received in Toronto with profound regret and surprise. The bulletins were eagerly scanned, and the public had no other thought than for the safety of His Majesty. The postponement of coronation day by proclamation was a bitter disappointment, and all loyal Canadians who were preparing to celebrate Thursday are united in the hope that the King may have a speedy issue out of his affliction.

News in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, June 25.—The news of King Edward's serious illness and consequent postponement of Coronation Day festivities, was received with the greatest consternation by Winnipegers yesterday. A provincial proclamation has been issued by the Manitoba Government, revoking the proclamation declaring Thursday a public holiday, and the Mayor has cancelled all civic demonstrations.

Why Rheumatism is Like Catarrh.

Both are inflamations. The former of the muscle tissue, the latter of the mucous membrane. The only way to cure either is by a course of blood purifying and blood enriching treatment. Pacific Cable in November.

Ottawa, June 25.—C. H. Reynolds, manager of the Pacific Cable Company, arrived here yesterday from the Pacific coast, along with Mr. Kent, manager of the C.P.R. Telegraph Company. They are on their way to Canso, and will inspect the cable station there. Mr. Reynolds will then leave for England. He expects the Pacific cable will be open for business in November.

Milner Takes the Oath.

Bloemfontein, Orange River Colony June 24.—Lord Milner, Governor of the Transvaal and British High Commissioner in South Africa, arrived here to-day and took the oath as Governor of the Colony. The constitution of the colony was promulgated in the presence of the military and civil officers. General Dewet and other prominent Boers were present.

Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Plural Names of Edible Fish.

A few days ago I was asked by a foreigner, "Why do you say 'two herrings' and 'two soles' and not 'two cods' and 'two salmons?'" I do not think my answer was very satisfactory, but the question suggested the thought that there are several cases in which it would be difficult to say whether there is anything like a consensus of opinion as to whether a plural form of the name of a fish is admissible. We all speak of soles, herrings, sprats, lampreys and anchovies, the singular form never, I believe, doing service for the plural. No one, I think, says mackerels, cods, salmons, trouts, breams, shads, carps, plaices, basses, barbels, Sturgeon, perch, mullet, pike, turbot, tunny and skate have not unusually the plural form in "s."

Fishermen and fishmongers are inclined to avoid the plural form in some instances where it is employed by the majority of educated people. In some cases there is considerable uncertainty. This I have ascertained by means of a fair number of tests. Among them are carps, shads, tenches. Compilers of English grammars, so far as my experience goes, in treating of plural forms of nouns make no note of the names of fish which do not vary in the plural.

MAN BURIED IN A WELL

A Hundred Neighbors Working Hard to Reach Him.

TAPPING HEARD 60 FEET BELOW

An Anxious Time on the Skelly Farm Near Paris—Mr. Joshua Sanford Under Sixty Feet of Earth—Will the Rescuers Reach Him in Time—Brantford Engineer in Charge.

Paris, June 25.—A very serious, if not a fatal, accident occurred on the Skelly farm about two miles east of here at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the result of which Mr. Joshua Sanford, of Branchton, is buried alive under about 60 feet of earth. The young man was assisting in deepening a well, and something having gone wrong with the apparatus, he was let down by a rope to investigate. After making the necessary alteration, and while he was being drawn up, the well began to cave in from the top, carrying him back and completely burying him. He was able to respond to those engaged in the work of rescue by tapping on the iron pipe down the well, but nothing more is known of his condition. It will probably be morning before he is reached.

Neighbors to the number of one hundred or more have turned out and are making every possible effort to liberate the man, with but poor success. Engineer Jones, of Brantford, was brought to advise as to the best and quickest way to operate. Mr. Sanford lives at Branchton, near Galt, with his mother and father. He is thirty years of age and single.

Floods at Brandon.

Brandon, June 25.—Water in the Assiniboine River has risen 12 inches in six hours, and the situation looks bad. The engines in Hanbury's saw mill are under water, 26 acres of the experimental farm are flooded, and several families have had to move from flats. The flooring of the street bridge was removed to prevent its being floated away. Great damage has already been done by water, which at present is rising 1 inch per hour, and another foot will stop the waterworks system.

Banquet in Quebec.

Quebec, June 25—The banquet held yesterday afternoon in the skating rink in honor of Laval's golden jubilee was agreat success. Fully 1,-ilee was a great success. At 1.15 p. m. the Papal delegate, the various bishops, His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Jette, Rev. Mr. Mathieu, rector of the university; Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick, Minister of Justice, and other dignitaries arrived and were received with loud applause by the whole assemble, all rising to their feet. The chair was taken by Sir Adolphe Pelletier. About 2.15 p.m. the toasts began.

Anxious English Mothers.

In England it is a weighty matter when there are several daughters in the family and no man in sight to marry them except the curate. The romantic reserve with which we Americans approach the subject of settling our spinster relatives is about on a par in their eyes with the way Mrs. Trollope says we used to put pantalettes on the piano legs.

Over there they neither put pantalettes on the piano legs nor pantalettes on their feverish ambition to marry the dear girls well, if possible, but anyway to marry them.

The Rubber Plant In 1735.

The first accurate information regarding the wonderful rubber plant was furnished by La Condamine, a French scientist who was sent in 1735 by the government of France to measure an arc of the meridian near Quito. This brought him to the heart of the rubber growing country, and much valuable information was thus obtained.

The bride was beautifully attired in a dress of white organdie, trimmed with valenciennes lace and insertion, and wore the customary veil. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Bertha Wareham, while Mr. John Miller, brother of the groom, performed the duties of groomsman.

The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. W. L. Armitage, of All Saints' church, in the presence of about 50 guests, the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties. ABOUT DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

Letter to Secretary of Board of Education.

Mr. Preston, of Stratford, Tells How the System Works in That Town.

Mr. W. G. Morrow, Secretary-Treasurer of the Peterborough Board of Education, has received the following communication from Mr. W. Preston, of Stratford regarding the introduction of the teaching of Domestic Science and Manual Training into the High Schools of that city. After a few introductory remarks, Mr. Preston says:—

Stratford, June 9th, 1902.

W. G. Morrow, Esq., Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I must apologize for my inexcusable forgetfulness in not writing you in regard to the departments of Manual Training and Domestic Science in our Stratford schools. I was reminded of the matter yesterday by Mr. Mayberry who states that he received a telegram over a week ago asking for this letter, but which he in turn had mislaid and also overlooked. I hope that the letter may not be too late to be of some service and I am very sorry indeed that a matter of such importance should have escaped our memory.

I do not think the Peterborough Board of Education can make any mistake in adopting Manual Training and Domestic Science in connection with their schools.

The Domestic Science class here was formed over a year ago, while the Manual Training class was not formed until the beginning of this year. The results are quite up to our expectations in both classes so far as the interest of the children is concerned and also the results obtained. The children of both classes are very eager for the time allowed for their classes, and so far there does not seem to be any flagging in this interest. Both classes are, of course in the earlier stages of instruction, and the full benefit that we expect from the teaching of these subjects has not yet been received. We have, however, in some cases awakened a fresh interest in school life, and also in the elementary subjects of education, in some of the boys, who were lagging in their work, and some other boys, who seemed to find the studies a drudgery, now take quite an interest in Manual Training, that will have the effect of prolonging the average school life of the children. It will create a greater interest in the children for their other studies, as well as directing the minds of the boys to mechanical and technical pursuits as a suitable calling in life should their talent lie in that direction, instead of in the past being solely directed to a professional career. With the training of the senses and the broadening of the mind by this training, we think both the girls and boys will be better men and women no matter what their avocation in life may be.

It is unnecessary to state to you that in adding these studies, we are not taking up an experiment, but are following the lead of the best educational authorities not only in the Old Country but more especially in the United States.

I should be much pleased to hear that the Peterborough Board of Education has decided to take the matter up.

Yours, very truly,
W. PRESTON.

Amongst those who contributed to the very pleasing programme were Miss Nellie Davies, Miss Florence Butcher, Mrs. Mowat, Mr. John McCabe, Mr. Walter Wesley, Mr. Jos. Halpany and Mr. Willie Staples. ATTACKED BY A COW.

Fortunately the Animal was Dehorned —Mrs. Preston's Narrow Escape.

Mrs. Peter Preston, of North Smith met with a very serious accident on Friday last. A cow with a calf was in the field near the house where Mrs. Preston was working and some pigs which were in the field with the cow annoyed the animal till she was infuriated. Mrs. Preston went into the field to drive away the pigs and the cow, which was dehorned, attacked her knocking her down and inflicting a very serious wound on her lower limbs with its feet. The animal was luckily frightened away before doing further damage or it might have resulted fatally. The doctor was summoned and the wounds dressed. Mrs. Preston is doing nicely but it will be some time before she shall be around again.

Merits of Oriental Rugs

—AND—

ADVANTAGES OBTAINED BY PROCURING THEM.

The historical Oriental Rugs are hand-woven, and every thread of the long nap is tied to the warp, which is so closely woven, making them so durable that some of them wear more than a century. The few extra dollars that are paid for them repay a hundred fold. They are also dyed with the ancient vegetable dyes, which are obtained from fruit, vegetables, grasses, flowers, leaves, roots, etc. They not only retain their colour, but by constant use and exposure to the sun, they gain handsomer shades, whereby looking at them you will think they are real silk, as they have the natural lustre of that material.

An Oriental Rug does not need tacking to the floor, which makes it so convenient to clean, healthier to use and artistic to look upon. They are not only floor covering, but they stand out like a handsome piece of furniture. Volumes could be written about these handsome and historical art works, and a visit will reveal this fact.

Buying them is most advantageous, and the greatest investment to any procurer, as after fifty years' wear, they would have the same or better value than the day they were purchased.

You are cordially invited to inspect them at

Getting Ready To Move.

After considerable delays, owing principally to the scarcity of skilled workmen, we've got a hustle on to move to our new premises.

The three stores which are now being remodelled for our new home, include the whole of the block on the corner of George and Hunter streets, except that portion used by the Bank of Toronto. The store on George street is the spot Where we built up our business, and from which we moved to our present premises twelve years ago.

When we held our first Winter Red Letter Removal Sale at the beginning of the year, we, expected to move in June. The Sale was so successful and the stock so well reduced, that we were then in good shape to move. Now, we expect to move the first week in August. We have, therefore, decided to hold a commencing on SATURDAY, JUNE 28th. This will be the greatest chance to buy Summer Clothing this season. $40,000 worth of Boys' High-class Clothing and Furnishings to be cleared no matter what the sacrifice. All Summer Goods must positively go, as we intend to restock our handsome new premises with brand new Fall and Winter Goods.

Four Week's Summer Removal Sale

Yours truly,

STOCKTON'S KIND HEART.

The Author's Profound Respect For the Feelings of Others.

In the old days when Frank R. Stockton was my associate in editing Hearth and Home he invented or created a Marcus Aurelius of his own in the person of an imaginary office boy. Every week he would fill a column or two with a grotesque account of the doings and sayings of his fictitious Marcus Aurelius. At last the worm turned. Our actual office boy, a youth of unusual seriousness, requested him to stop the Marcus Aurelius humor.

"So you have taken it seriously?" asked Mr. Stockton.

"Well, you see, all my friends laugh at me about it, and it hurts," answered the office boy.

"I am sorry," said Mr. Stockton. "You are a good, honest and faithful office boy. I had no thought of hurting your feelings, and I shall write no more about Marcus Aurelius."

Here was an indication of the rare character of the man. His respect for the feelings of others was profound. His tenderness toward them was a most lovable characteristic of the man. It ran through all his conduct. He never willingly or knowingly hurt the feelings of any human being, for the reason that his soul was filled with an abounding charity and love for all his fellow men.—George Cary Eggleston in Collier's Weekly.

The Effects of Artillery.

It has long been a commonplace that the effects of artillery are mainly "moral," but for all that the introduction of new explosives, lyddite especially, and of quicker firing guns had insensibly revived the belief in the great material value of artillery. It would be gratuitous to say that artillery has had a great downfall in general estimation—among those who have always taken a sane view of its uses we do not think it has—but we may fairly say that relatively to artillery the rifle has gained in reputation. We know now that lyddite, although it may make short work of a mahdi's tomb, is of little use against earthworks, especially when it falls on very soft ground, and that the stories of men whose senses left them and whose teeth shook in their heads because they happened to be within a quarter of a mile of an explosion of lyddite were mere moonshine.

Tracing Responsibility.

A woman bought a cloth skirt ready made of a reputable firm. After wearing it for several days she discovered damaged spots in the front breadth. She took it back to the shop where she had bought it and was told that the error would be cared for. "It is not our fault, however," said the foreman, "and we will have to send it to the factory from which we bought it. It is up to them to make it good."

"And upon whom will they fall back?"

"On the manufacturer from whom they bought the cloth."

"And he?"

"Well, I suppose there would be no one but the sheep for him to blame, so he will have to bear the loss."

Also Important.

The Rev. Peter Cartwright, the famous pioneer Methodist circuit rider, while traveling to an appointment one day saw two young men of his acquaintance sitting idly on the bank of a small stream fishing. It was a fine spring day, and the scent of freshly plowed fields was in the air.

"Boys," he said, "I am sorry to see you breaking the fourth commandment."

"Why, Uncle Peter," they said, with a laugh at his expense, "this isn't Sunday!"

"I know it," he retorted, "but you are breaking the fourth commandment. You forget that one part of it says, 'Six days shalt thou labor.'"

HAD TO BE LIFTED.

A Helpless Cripple is Restored to Health and Strength.

Lame Back had This Man a Prisoner for a Long Time, but at Last he Found a Cure Though Given up by the Doctors

Napanee, Ont., June 22.—Special.—The doctors told Simon Warner that they could do nothing for him. He had tried many medicines and treatments with no good result.

He was a helpless cripple with lame back, and for a long time his wife had to lift him in and out of bed, the pain in his back was so very severe.

In this extremity a friend's advice saved him. This man had suffered with backache himself, but had been completely cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills, thus when he heard that Mr. Warner was so bad he went to his home and recommended this medicine to him.

Mr. Warner and his good wife were at first inclined to be somewhat doubtful, but here was the evidence that Dodd's Kidney Pills do cure Lame Back right before their very eyes in the person of the man who had been cured. Surely it must be true.

So after some deliberation they decided to try, and now they are very much pleased that they did so, for in a short time Mr. Warner's backache had vanished. He grew gradually stronger and better and at present enjoys the best all-round health he has had for many years.

There is not a trace of lame back remaining, not a single symptom, and the helpless man who used to be a burden to himself and his wife is now strong and a comfort to his faithful helpmate. He says:

"We have used in all about twenty-five boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and given some away to our neighbours. I find that when they use a box they themselves are about as strong in their recommendations as we are.

"I can certainly highly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a sure cure for Lame Back, for they cured me, and I never heard of a worse case."

CAPITOL RED TAPE.

The Building of a Stone Wall and the Stopping Thereof.

H. L. Nelson, in "Making Laws at Washington," says in The Century:

The work of preparing all measures is done in secret, and no one person or leader and no party is responsible for what is done or left undone. The country does not know why this item is inserted in an appropriation bill, why that economy has been practiced or what is the reason for some bit of extravagance. Sometimes the committee demonstrates that even it might be enlightened by discussion and criticism, and perhaps the letting in of light would show that advantage might follow if congress and its committees should leave to the discretion of executive and administrative officers some of the details of expenditure. I have been told of a "breast high stone wall" at West Point, for example. Years waxed and waned while superintendents pleaded for $20,000 for the construction of a "breast high stone wall" on the road leading from the wharf to the plain, the road running along the edge of a precipice. At last congress moved, and the twenty thousand dollar wall was built. Having moved, it was now impossible for it to stop, so it went on year after year appropriating $20,000 each year for a "breast high stone wall" until "breast high stone walls" became a drug at the Military academy. They ran around the post and threatened to choke it up. Superintendents begged congress to shut them off and finally succeeded.

Queer Icelandic Beliefs.

The orthodox Icelander believes that the earth has an opening through it from pole to pole—in other words, that it is the exact counterpart of a gigantic bead. According to their idea all waters which flow to the north are drawn thitherward by a suction created by the oceans tumbling downward through the hollow, which they firmly believe exists. Their authority for the curious belief is the "Utana Saga," a semisacred work written early in the fourteenth century.

If the ancient volume is to be relied upon, one Bjorn Liefson, a fisherman who was driven northward by a fierce gale about the year 1291, is the only human being who has ever seen the spot where the waters of all oceans plunge downward and are not seen again until they have passed entirely through the earth and again appear bubbling and frothing like a mammoth spring at the south pole.

A Valuable Secret.

There is only one genuine brand of eau de cologne in the whole wide world, and its composition is a family secret and has been so for nearly 200 years past.

It was in 1706 or thereabouts that the manufacture of the famous perfume was first established by one Giovanni Maria Farina in the city whence it takes its name. There are now in Cologne and its immediate neighborhood some fifty factories for its preparation, over forty of them being in the hands of persons bearing the name of Farina. The others are conducted by kinsmen and kinswomen, mostly relations by marriage. It has been estimated that from first to last the monopoly has brought into the coffers of the clan the enormous sum of $750,000,000, and probably this estimate is under rather than over the mark.

Dry Skins.

A mixture of glycerin and mutton tallow is excellent for restoring the oil of the skin when it is dry and hard.

Immature Fowls.

Never breed from immature fowls, no matter how handsome or perfect in looks. Continued early breeding is taking the very heart and life out of pure bred stock. Only well matured fowls should be used for breeding.

A Week of Suicides.

During a recent week there were no fewer than twenty-seven suicides committed in Madrid. Love and financial troubles claim most of the victims.

POETIC SALUTATIONS.

In our salutations we are poetical and pious without realizing it. "Good-by," which falls so flippantly from our lips, is really "God be with you," and "Good day" means "I wish you a good day—a happy, prosperous day." The Phœnicians on meeting paed to ask, "What occupies you?" Another of their everyday phrases meant to express joy and pleasure was, "Ficah, rejoice!"

Every day on our streets we hear the pet phrase of the Germans, "Wie gehts?" (How goes it?) or "Auf wiedersehen" (Till we meet again). And the Italian fruit dealer at the corner calls to his comrade in his native tongue, "God give you a good morrow."

The ancient Irish mother upon entering a house says in her own language, "The blessings of God be on this house."

"Peace be with you" is the Hebrew benediction, and the answer is equally beautiful, "With you be peace."

Interesting For the Husband.

A titled lady warned her new gardener that her husband had an irritating habit of disparaging everything he saw in the greenhouse and of ordering in a reckless manner new plants to be bought.

"But on no account humor him," she said. "Whatever he says, throw cold water on him, or he will ruin us with his extravagance."

At this point the new gardener turned on her a white and startled face.

"Ma'am," he said, "if he orders me to pitch every plant in the place on the rubbish heap, I sha'n't ever have the pluck to douse him in cold water. Won't it do as well if I get a drain of warm water out of the boiler and let it trickle gently down his neck?"

The Day of Miracles not Past.

A Toronto Star reporter investigated the case of Mr. George Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhozone.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be cured. Catarrhozone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from impaired hearing, deafness, head noises and ringing in the ears, are advised to inhale Catarrhozone, and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. Kettle Bridges.

Perhaps the most remarkable bridges in the world are the kettle bridges, of which Cossack soldiers are expert builders. The materials of which they are constructed are the soldiers' lances and cooking kettles. Seven or eight lances are passed under the handles of a number of kettles and fastened by means of ropes to form a raft. A sufficient number of these rafts, each of which will bear a weight of half a ton, are fastened together, and in the space of an hour a bridge is formed on which an army may cross with confidence and safety.

She Knew the Reason.

"Can you tell me why it is," he growled as he began diving under the bed, "that my slippers always seem to get pushed clear over against the wall?"

"Yes, dear," she answered pleasantly.

"You can?"

"Yes, dear."

"Then why is it?"

"Because you don't put them away in the slipper rack when you take them off, dear."

Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Piles or hemorrhoids are small tumours which form in and about the orifice of the rectum. They are caused by an enlarged and inflamed condition of the veins which are very numerous in this part of the body. As any obstruction of these veins induces piles, it is very common for women during the expectant period to suffer keenly from piles and itching of the skin. To all such we can commend Dr. Chase's Ointment with every confidence that it will prove of prompt and lasting benefit.

Mrs. W. E. Jeffries, 44 Hicks avenue, Kingston, Ont., states:—"I suffered agony with itching piles. In fact, I don't believe that any person who has not had piles can realize what I have endured. I had tried many remedies and almost despaired of ever being cured, when my husband brought me a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. The first application brought relief, and after using half a box I can truthfully say that I was entired cured. I give this recommendation in hope that it will be the means of bringing comfort and cure to other women suffering as I did."

Mr. James Elliott, Gananoque, Ont., states: "My wife was greatly troubled with piles, and put in an awful time of it. She could not get relief from the terrible itching and burning sensations. I bought a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and on the application she obtained relief. After using the one box she was cured of piles, and I can fully and heartily recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from piles."

If we could only make known the virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment there would not be a family but would keep it constantly on hand. It is the greatest healer that the world has ever known, and acts like magic in relieving itching and burning of the skin. 60 cents a box. At all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 12

ABSURD COSTUMES.

Outcome of a Curious Wager Made in England in 1806.

A wager was made in 1806 in the castle yard, York, England, between Thomas Hodgson and Samuel Whitehead as to which should succeed in assuming the most singular character. Umpires were selected whose duty it was to decide upon the comparative absurdity of the costumes in which the two men were to appear. On the appointed day Hodgson came before the umpires decorated with banknotes of various values, his coat and vest being entirely covered with them. Besides these he had a row of five guinea pieces down his back, a netted purse of gold around his head and a placard on his back bearing the legend, "John Bull."

Whitehead came on the scene dressed like a woman on one side, one half of his face painted and a silk stocking and slipper on one foot and leg. The other half of his face was blackened so as to resemble a negro. On the corresponding side of his body he wore a gaudy long tailed linen coat, his leg on that side being incased in half a pair of leather breeches and a boot with a spur. He wore a wig of sky blue braided down his back and tied with yellow, red and orange colored ribbons.

One would naturally fancy that he presented the most singular and ludicrous appearance, but the umpires must have thought differently, as they awarded the stakes, some £20, to Hodgson.

American Economy.

"American economy," says Hutchins Hapgood in Ainslee's, "is the economy that consists in doing things on a large scale, in producing much rather than in saving little. The old system of economy consists in picayune retrenchment. Take care of the pennies, and the dollars will take care of themselves,' is, from a modern point of view, as false as it is trite. That a hundred French families can live on what one American family throws away is an exaggeration, but were it not it would indicate the soundness of American economy, not the lack of it. Whence comes the tremendous energy of our nation in business, in production, in growth generally, in practical improvements and inventions? It comes from a high standard of living. To do much work nourishment is necessary, and who are so well nourished as Americans? What nation consumes so much good food, in what other country do the people demand so many luxuries? Where do they demand so much from life generally, in social equality, in full opportunity for work, pleasure and education?"

The Word "Woebegone."

The word "woebegone" is an interesting survival of the far past. "Begone" here represents the past participle of the Anglo-Saxon verb "began," to go round about, a word which has otherwise entirely disappeared from our vocabulary, but which has its analogies in such verbs as "beset" and "begird," in which the prefix "be" represents the modern preposition "by." A woebegone countenance is thus that of a man compassed about with woe, though perhaps it is most generally used in a somewhat slighting manner to imply that the appearance of grief is greater than the circumstances warrant. Thus it has partially undergone the same process of degeneration which has made "maudlin tears"—original tears of penitence from Mary Magdalene—bear a contemptuous meaning.

An Ancient Easter Custom.

An ancient custom once universal in England on Easter Monday and Tuesday is that known as heaving, lifting or raising. On the Monday, the men's heaving day, women were raised three times in a chair, after which they were kissed and liberated. On Tuesday the women lifted the men in the same manner, but it was usual for the men to give a small sum of money for "leave and license" to depart. In early times the practice prevailed among all ranks, and in a roll of the reign of Edward I. is a record of payment to certain ladies and maids of honor for lifting that king in his bed at Easter. The usage commemorated the resurrection of our Lord.—London Standard.

European Coins.

The standard coins on the continent are: In France, the franc; in Spain, the peseta; in Italy, the lira; in Holland and Austria, the florin; in Germany, the mark; in Russia, the ruble.

Belgium and Switzerland use the French name for the piece of 20 sous. Each of these pieces is, like the American dollar, divided into 100 parts, called kopeck in Russia, pfennig in Germany, kreutzer in Austria, cent in Holland, and in Italy, France and Spain by the word meaning hundredth.

The People's Delight.

Bolivar—I don't see that you answered any of Jellaby's argument in your speech. You simply pitched into Jellaby.

Silvertung—I didn't mean to. Didn't you see how my address took? People generally would rather hear a man abused than to listen to replies to his arguments.—Boston Transcript.

Miss Brighton—What, 11 o'clock! Why, I had no idea it was so late, had you?

Blood Disorders

are simply kidney disorders. The kidneys filter the blood of all that shouldn't be there. The blood passes through the kidneys every three minutes. If the kidneys do their work no impurity or cause of disorder can remain in the circulation longer than that time. Therefore if your blood is out of order your kidneys have failed in their work. They are in need of stimulation, strengthening or doctoring. One medicine will do all three, the finest and most imitated blood medicine there is

THE EGYPTIAN LOTUS.

It Grows Perfectly When Planted In Rich Mud.

Egyptian lotus roots may be obtained from any florist. The seed will readily germinate if a hole is filed or drilled through the hard shell that moisture may penetrate the kernel, otherwise they will lie dormant almost indefinitely. It is perfectly hardy and comes to perfection when planted in shallow water with rich mud and full exposure to the sun—simply naturalized in the same environments that suit our native water lily. Artificial ponds or cement basins are often made for the accommodation of this and other water lilies. Such tanks should be two or three feet deep and of any size and outline desired. Twelve by twenty feet is a nice size for the amateur. It is best to plant the lilies in boxes, say three feet square and one foot deep, filled with good rich soil and sunk in the tank.

The lotus submits gracefully to cultivation in tubs. Ordinary half barrels will do for tubs. Fill them two-thirds full of rich garden soil, in which plant the roots (I prefer roots to seed); then fill tubs full of water and set in a warm, sunny place. In winter remove the tubs with their contents to a cellar. A beautiful aquatic garden may be had by arranging several tubs of lotus and nymphæa into a mound or circle and filling the spaces between them with ferns, arrowheads and other moisture loving plants.

How Tropical Fruits Are Protected.

It may have struck you that most tropical fruits have thick or hard or nauseous rinds, which need to be torn off before the monkeys or birds for whose use they are intended can get at them and eat them. Our northern strawberries, raspberries, currants and whortleberries, developed with a single eye to the pretty robins and finches of temperate climes, can be popped into the mouth whole and eaten as they stand. They are meant for small birds to devour and to disperse the tiny undigested, nutlike seeds in return for the bribe of the soft pulp that surrounds them. But it is quite otherwise with oranges, shaddocks, bananas, plantains, mangoes and pineapples. Those great tropical fruits can only be eaten properly after stripping off the hard and often acrid rind that guards and preserves them.

They lay themselves out for dispersion by monkeys, toucans and other relatively large and powerful fruit eaters, and the rind is put there as a barrier against small thieves who would rob the sweet pulp, but be absolutely incapable of carrying away and dispersing the large and richly stored seeds it covers.—Cornhill Magazine.

Dr. Johnson's Marvelous Memory.

Dr. Johnson, the Ursa Major of English literature, had a prodigious memory and at one period of his life employed it in reporting parliamentary debates. Once Dr. Hawkesworth read to him a poem which he intended to publish and asked his opinion of it. "Why, sir," said Johnson, "I cannot well determine on a first hearing. Read it again." Hawkesworth complied. The next morning, the subject of the poem being resumed, Johnson said he had but one objection to it, that he doubted its originality, and to prove his statement repeated the whole poem, with the exception of a few lines, which so alarmed Hawkesworth that he declared he would never again read anything of his composing to Johnson, who, he said, had a memory which would convict any author of plagiarism.

Illusion and Delusion.

She—After all, what is the difference between illusion and delusion?

He—Illusion is the lovely fancies we have about ourselves, and delusion is the foolish fancies other people have about themselves

We should manage our fortune like our constitution—enjoy it when good, have patience when bad and never apply violent remedies but in cases of necessity.

A Secret.

Old Bachelor Uncle—Well, Charlie, what do you want now?

Charlie—Oh, I want to be rich.

"Rich! Why so?"

"Because I want to be petted. Ma says you are an old fool, but must be petted because you are rich. But it's a great secret, and I mustn't tell it!"

Thrilling Moments.

"Johnnie," called the mother, "I want you to go to the store for me."

"Wait a second, maw," replied the youth, who was absorbed in a five cent volume. "Pepperhole Pete has thirty-seven injuns to kill, an' it'll only take him about two minutes."

The Age of Brain Work.

"In these days, half our diseases come from the neglect of the body in the overwork of the brain. In this railway age the wear and tear of labour and intellect go on without pause or self pity. We live longer than our forefathers but we suffer more. They fatigued only the muscles, we exhaust the finer strength of the nerves." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest medicine of this age because it is best suited to the needs of the present day. It restores revitalizes wasted nerve cells and makes the pale, weak and exhausted strong and healthy and vigorous.

A Fair Exchange.

Clerical Customer (arousing himself from nap in barber's chair)—Finished, eh?

Barber—Yes, sir; quite some time ago.

Clerical Customer—Indeed! Then I must have been indulging in a quiet nap.

Barber—You surely have, sir.

Clerical Customer—It was certainly very kind of you not to awaken me. The rest has done me good, and I am very thankful to you for what was really a very refreshing sleep.

Barber—Don't mention it, sir. It's only a fair return. I attended your church last Sunday.

HISTORIC HASTINGS.

Happenings in the Village on the Trent —Personal Mention.

The most important event which has taken place in this village for some time was the launching of Mr. Harry Buck's trim new steam launch, on Monday morning. A large number of persons witnessed the event including many of Mr. Buck's friends from Norwood and others who took a personal interest in the affair. At ten o'clock, everythin being ready, the beautiful model slipped into the Trent River from its boat house, without a hitch. A young lady, the daughter of Mr. Buck, broke a bottle over the bow and formally proclaimed her name to be "Maida-Vale." The launch was built by Mr. A. W. Hickey, the well-known boat builder, whose craftsmanship has been utilized in connection with the building of a number of the steamers now plying on the inland waters of this district. It is safe to say that in no instance has he scored so complete a success. The launch is 48 feet long, over all, with 9 foot beam. She has two cabins, fore and aft, finished in cherry, upholstered in railroad plush and with a floor covering of Brussels. The fittings are up-to-date and include pantry, closet, wash room, extension bed slides, and numerous compact receptacles. A large safety water tube boiler, built by Messrs. Davis & Son, of Kingston, and a 12 horse power high-pressure engine are compactly installed amidship, calculated for a speed of 12 miles an hour. She draws three feet of water, and the steering gear is concealed and of a new type, controlled by a new model 36 inch wheel. Mr. Buck received the congratulations of numerous friends on the success of his much-admired pleasure boat, and to Mr. Hickey, great credit is given for his skill and handiwork.

Mr. John Coughlin, of Peterborough, with a number of his workmen, arrived in the village yesterday for the purpose of erecting a new monument in memory of the late Major Howard. The monument is a heavy granite shaft of the sarcophagus style. It is to be erected on the family plot in the beautiful new Roman Catholic Cemetery about half a mile south of the village. These grounds are beautifully located on a slightly elevated site. They have received much careful attention from Rev. Father Maguire, to whose taste and good judgment the people are indebted much for its very attractive appearance.

Councillor Learmouth, the energetic chairman of the street committee, is making a record for himself by the skilful manner in which he is grading and improving the village streets.

The Clarendon House has been the headquarters for quite a number of enthusiastic fishing parties from Toronto and elsewhere. The Trent river, which runs past the village, abounds in the gamey bass and maskinonge, and is a sort of "sportsman's paradise" just now. Mr. Spellman is an entertaining host, and places no censorship on the fish stories that are told round his hospitable hostelry. Enterprising as ever, "Art" is at present engaged in improving and decorating his house and finds that it pays to keep a good house as well as to advertise.

THE 57TH REGIMENT.

The weekly parade of the 57th Regt. took place last night, there being a fairly large attendance of all ranks. No. 4 Company was deplorably weak for some reason. Keen disappointment was felt on all sides on the fact that the Belleville trip was cancelled, although, of course, unavoidable under the circumstances. No orders were read last night, and it is not known definitely when the annual inspection will take place.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

Of the South Ward Kindergarten Yesterday Afternoon.

The children of the South Central Kindergarten held their annual summer closing yesterday afternoon. The affair was one of universal interest and the many parents and friends of the little ones who responded to the kind invitation to be present, filled the class rooms to over-flowing.

The South Ward Kindergarten has on many previous occasions of the kind presented a very pretty appearance but the decorations yesterday surpassed anything of the kind ever before attempted in this line. The decorations were for the most part of Marguerites and the gaily decorated May-pole in the centre presented a picturesque appearance. The work of the little ones was highly appreciated and proved to be most entertaining. The guests present included several of the prominent ministers of the town. Miss Davidson and her assistants, Miss Harding and Miss Bell, were warmly congratulated on the excellence of the entertainment and the highly creditable manner in which the various songs, figures, etc., were executed by the kindergartners.

The programme was as follows:

Prayer.
Morning Hymn, "Sunshine."
Spring Songs, (a) "Spring Rain," (b) "Pussy Willow."
Trade Song, "The Blacksmith."
Spring Birds, "Robin," "Swallow."
Summer Songs, (a) "May Song," (b) "Summer Song."
Presentation of Flower Baskets.
Recitations, Gifts and Occupations.
Fancy March.
Circle Games.
Dance, by 12 children.
Coronation Song.
God Save the King.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

LACROSSE.

The Y.M.C.A. and the T.A.S teams will come together on the Nicholls oval to-night. There should be a good attendance.

The following players will represent the second team of St. Peter's T.A.S. in their game with Campbellford in that town to-morrow;

Gilman, goal; Whaley, point; Pope, cover point; Doris, 1st defence; McCormack, 2nd defence; Mulligan, centre; Primeau, 1st home; Doherty, 2nd home; Doris, 3rd home; O'Brien, inside home; O'Brien, outside home; J. McNichol, spare man; Geo. Lynch, field capt.

The medals that will be competed for at the T.A.S. Athletic Sports on the Separate School Grounds, on July 1st, are now on exhibition in the window of Mr. W. A. Sanderson. The medals are costly looking and should arouse keen competition.

OUR STRICKEN KING.

A large congregation in St. Paul's Cathedral listened yesterday afternoon to the Bishop of Stepney, who is one of King Edward's friends. The Bishop referred to the King's recent presence in the cathedral in the thanksgiving as a sad contrast to yesterday's circumstance, and asked his congregation to pray for His Majesty, the royal family, the King's physicians, and to learn to hope. Then followed a solemn pause, while the vast congregation knelt reverently in solemn prayer. A short service of intercession followed.

Coronation Postponed

A brief notice has been published in The Gazette, as a result of which the entire state, social and business arrangements throughout the country are paralyzed. The order is dated from the Earl Marshall's office, and reads as follows: "I have to announce that the solemnity of the coronation of Their Majesties, King Edward and Queen Alexandra, is postponed from the 26th to a date hereafter to be determined."

The best informed opinions hope for the date of the coronation in about three months' time, provided King Edward progresses well in the meantime.

In spite of the royal wish the provincial celebrations be carried out as arranged, many towns have abandoned the festivities which were to be held, although at Liverpool and other large cities hurried meetings were called, and it was decided to carry out all the charitable arrangements as previously made.

Among the hundreds of postponements caused by the sudden illness of the King is that of the publication of the list of coronation honors.

Queen Is Brave.

Queen Alexandra has borne the strain of the past week with the bravest spirit. She was always fearful of what might happen. Her Majesty took her part in the festivities at Ascot and elsewhere without revealing any sign of her inward anxiety, and when she was told yesterday that an operation was imperative and that the coronation would have to be postpontd, she quietly answered: "Have I not felt that this would happen," and asked "How does the King bear it." Upon receiving an assuring reply, Queen Alexandra exerted herself to appear cheerful, and to devise means to lessen the King's grief and disappointment, although she was evidently greatly distressed.

Cabled Inquiries.

The Pope and the King of Italy and other monarchs have cabled anxious inquiries concerning King Edward's progress, and despatches received from all parts of the world reflect the intensity of feeling occasioned by the unexpected news of His Majesty's illness and sympathy with the British nation.

Roosevelt to Edward.

Washington, June 25.—The President, just before he left the White House for the railroad, sent the following cablegram to King Edward:

His Majesty Edward VII.—"I ask Your Majesty to accept my sincere assurance of sympathy and wishes for speedy convalescence."

(Signed) Theodore Roosevelt.

STOCK MARKETS.

New York, June 24—When the next general movement in security values sets in, and we are of the opinion that the time for it is drawing near, the best stocks to buy for profit making will prove to be the higher priced issues. Our special favourites for immediate purchase are Pa., Ill. C., N.Y.C., L.N., M.O.P. and U.P. We also think well of the Gould South Western shares, including the K.T., Tex., Tex. Pac. and the Wabashes. The higher priced shares have recently shown the best profits and they will, in our opinion, do so the next move. There is every reason for anticipating further advances in these issues. They are all earning so far in excess of their present dividends, and so many of them have extensions and consolidation plans ahead of them that in many instances some choice melons will be cut as last week in Ill. C. St.P. and the Atchison issues also look specially attractive at the present time. There is no doubt that it is St. Paul's ultimate destiny to rule above 200, while there is every reason to expect Atchison to cross par. Atch. is earning at present, and Pres. Risley states that he expects it to show earnings of at least ten per cent. for its current fiscal year. Stock that can show ten per cent. earned upon its common shares is intrinsically cheap when selling in the eighties. The Berwind party are ultra-bullish on the stock, and with excellent reason. Bear in mind the time is now near when the war tax becomes a thing of the past. Activity should become more pronounced right after the first of the coming month, when dividend and interest disbursements are out of the way and repeal of the war taxes becomes operative. We still believe, as we have frequently announced, that increased activity will be accompanied with enhancement of values, and that the stocks that will show the greatest improvements will be the higher priced issues. One thing is certain, stocks can be advanced much more easily than they can be depressed.—Haight & Freese Co.

HOPEFUL BULLETINS.

Condition of King Edward During Wednesday Till Midnight.

HIS MAJESTY NOW TAKING FOOD

Physicians Expressing Great Confidence, Although Several Days Must Elapse Before the Possibility of Danger Can Be Eliminated—Queen Dined With Members of Royal Family—Her Majesty's Message.

London, June 25.—(10.45 a. m. — The official bulletin issued at 10.30 on the condition of the King, is as follows: "His Majesty was very restless and had no sleep during the early part of the night. He obtained some sleep however, after one o'clock this morning and no untoward symptoms presented themselves. Considering all the circumstances, His Majesty may be said to be progressing satisfactorily. (Signed.) Lister, Treves, Laking, Smith, Barlow.

A Comfortable Morning.

London, June 25.—(2.13 p. m. — The following bulletin was issued at 2 p.m.: "The King passed a comfortable morning, and his condition so far is satisfactory." (Signed.) Treves, Laking, Barlow.

No Special Anxiety.

London, June 25. —(6.35 p.m.)— The following bulletin was issued at 6.30 p.m.:

"His Majesty passed a fairly comfortable day. His general strength was well maintained and there was no symptoms causing special anxiety." (Signed.) Lister, Treves, Smith, Laking, Barlow.

More Cheerful—Wound Doing Well.

London, June 25. — This bulletin was issued after 11 o'clock to-night: "The King continued to make satisfactory progress. He slept some hours during the day. He complains very little of discomfort and is more cheerful. The wound is doing well." (Signed.) Treves, Laking, Barrow.

A DECIDED IMPROVEMENT.

His Majesty's Condition Is Even More Satisfactory Than Was Indicated by the Last Bulletin.

London, June 26.—King Edward's condition last night at midnight was even more satisfactory than has been indicated by the last bulletins. He has made a decided improvement, and the feeling at Buckingham Palace is very hopeful. His Majesty is able to take nourishment. He had scrambled eggs and a little hock and soda last evening, and with his own hands opened several telegrams.

The bulletin issued at 11 o'clock last night is regarded as intensely satisfactory. This bulletin is generally taken as being the first occasion upon which the King's doctors have allowed themselves to express even to a small degree the hopeful feelings they undoubtedly, even though privately, entertain. Thirty-six hours had then elapsed since the operation was performed, and the absence of complications creates hopefulness in all quarters, although several days must pass before the possibility of danger can be eliminated.

Notwithstanding the fact that last evening was the eve of the intended coronation day, and that London is now even more crowded with people than it was Tuesday, the scenes witnessed on the streets last night contrast with those of Tuesday evening. The boisterous rejoicing which was then so prominent was quite unheard last night. Traffic pursued its way unimpeded, and even the most popular thoroughfares were comparatively deserted. No illuminations dispelled the natural gloom which settled over the metropolis. Quiet and depressed, the crowds waited outside Buckingham Palace for the night's final news of the Sovereign. For several hours they kept their patient vigil, wandering aimlessly, but with palpable anxiety, about the open space which fronts the royal residence. For some reason or another a feeling pervaded the crowds that if the King lived until last night he would live to be crowned.

About the Palace.

Inside the palace all was still. Queen Alexandra, who had been in the vicinity of the sick room the entire day, dined with a few members of the royal family. The callers who came to the palace in the course of the evening contented themselves with driving up to the outer gates, where they alighted and walked in to inquire at the equerries' entrance for the latest news. There they met only liveried servants and small knots of reporters. With the exception of these callers, and the noblemen who have the entree to the court, everybody was rigidly excluded from the palace by the police.

Lord Grey, a director of the British South Africa Company, is among those having entree to the court. He said last night, that he had good hopes for the King's recovery, and that he was sure every Englishman was deeply touched with the sympathy of the United States in the present calamity, although. Lord Grey added: "Such kind expressions of feeling are only what I should expect after my recent pleasant experience of American hospitality."

Shortly before 11 o'clock the tension of the crowds was relieved by the appearance of a footman bringing a bulletin. This was put up on the palace railing, and instantaneously, the crowd converged toward the notice. The welcome words were read in silence and the the crowds slowly dispersed.

Message From the Queen.

The first direct expression of opinion from Queen Alexandra was received yesterday by the Lord Mayor of Leeds. Acknowledging a message of sympathy from the Lord Mayor, Queen Alexandra telegraphed: "His Majesty is progressing favorably."

To-day instead of a day of coronation and rejoicing, will be one of prayer and intercession. At noon all England will be praying that the life of the King be spared.

The Doctors Watching.

Sir Frederick Treves, Sir Francis H. Laking and Sir Thomas Barlow are again spending the night watching Buckingham Palace, and they have arranged for Sir Joseph Lister to join them in consultation in the morning.

Chances Are in His Favor.

The reports which are again being circulated in New York of King Edward's desperate condition are untrue. Sir Thomas Lipton spent an hour at Buckingham Palace yesterday afternoon.

"The chances yesterday," said Sir Thomas, "were decidedly against his recovery, but you can say that at 2 o'clock he was doing well. His Majesty's physicians were satisfied with his progress. The chances were then in his favor."

Dinner to the Poor.

The King's mind is entirely clear, and while Sir Thomas was at the palace he received word that it was His Majesty's wish that the arrangements for the dinner to about 500,000 of the poor of London on July 5 should be proceeded with.

By this morning over half a million invitations will have been sent out. The dinner involves the employment of over 6,800 stewards, an army of waiters and 1,500 music hall entertainers. All the arrangements are in Sir Thomas Lipton's hands, and it can be imagined that he would not proceed with the final arrangements unless he and others were confident of being able to carry them out.

World-Wide Intercession.

To-day has been officially appointed a day of intercession for the King, and, in every parish church in the United Kingdom, special intercessory services will be held. Catholics, Non-Conformists, Jews, Salvationists and other religious bodies are all arranging special prayers, while in the camps of the colonial and other visiting troops, be they Mohammedans, Sun Worshippers, Brahmins or Fire or Fetich Worshippers, whether from China, Borneo, Fiji, Central Africa or Hindustan, or from the Indian reservations of Canada, the usual hour for prayers finds them supplicating their deity in behalf of the King.

Prayer For the King.

Washington, June 26.—The chaplain, in his prayer at the opening of the Senate yesterday, invoked "blessings upon our sister nation, England, which holds, with us, the sacred trust of Christian progress. We remember her tears and prayers for us when our great ruler fell. And now, we have Christian sympathy and brotherly concern in this, her hour of sorrow. Bless her King, and give him a happy issue out of his present sickness."

The chaplain of the House, in his invocation yesterday, also prayed for the restoration to health of King Edward.

PRISONER IN THE WELL.

Still 70 Feet Below the Surface of the Earth—Rescuers Working Continuously Since Cave-in.

Paris, June 25.—10 p.m.— Joshua Sanford of Branchton, who has been since 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, entombed in a well on the Skelly farm, is still in that awful position 70 feet below surface.

The work of rescue is progressing rather slowly, at least so it seems to his impatient friends, and must seem infinitely more so to the entombed man. An iron casing running down the well serves as a medium of communication between him and the outer world, and by rapping on this casing he is able to let them know that he is still alive.

Rescuers are hard at work, under direction of T. Harry Jones, C. E., of Brantford, but they cannot reach the entombed man.

The rescuers have got down about 30 feet. They are digging a new well alongside the other, in order to remove chances of his being smothered by the falling in of the earth when near the bottom.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

Another Letter on the Subject—Mr. Mayberry, of Stratford, Writes.

Mr. C. A. Mayberry, B.A., Principal of the Stratford Collegiate Institute, has sent the following communication to Mr. W. G. Morrow, Secretary of the Peterborough Board of Education:

Stratford, June 9th, 1902.

W. G. Morrow, Esq., Peterborough, Ontario.

My dear Mr. Morrow,—As to the establishing these new branches I may say that we have never been sorry for doing so. They are, considering the novelty of the thing, very popular in the city and are almost universally supported by our people. Our leading citizens and especially our leading manufacturers, and the master mechanic of the G.T.R., who has 700 men under him, give the scheme their unqualified approval.

As far as Collegiate Institute work is concerned, it has been a help rather than a hindrance. It has given boys who naturally had no love for school an interest they did not have before taking up the Manual Training work, and has made their school life more pleasant as well as more profitable. Our attendance has increased largely—about 50—the past half year. The falling off of attendance at Easter this year was about half the usual number of pupils. The discipline in the first forms, which take this work, seems decidedly easier than before. How far these results are due to the introduction of Manual Training and Domestic Science I am not prepared to say, but I have no doubt that in some measure they are due to this work.

Parents who at first refused to allow their boys to take up Manual Training have come to me and asked that they be permitted to go to the classes in that subject. It appears to me that the work has come to stay. It gives the boy the power of "doing something," of producing some visible result. I trust I am not a "faddist" but I think this work will help us to remodel our whole system—in which the theoretical and the literary have so far out-grown the practical needs of our ordinary pupils. It will tend to bring our educational institutions more into touch with the industrial life of the community.

Yours sincerely,

C. A. MAYBERRY.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Hamilton Times: "Dr. McKay told the Liberals of South Oxford at their meeting last week that his defeat was not due to lack of exertion on his part. He had been assured that he lost the votes of 400 Liberal Prohibitionists; he lost the support of the liquor men as well on account of his refusal to pledge himself to follow the course that they asked. He said he could prove that money had been sent into the riding by such men as Seagram, Walker, Corby and Gooderham, to fight him! What a combination that was! The prohibitionists who worked hand in hand with the distillers to defeat Liberal candidates and help the Tories will now, we suppose, be content with such support as Mr. Whitney may choose to give them on the referendum vote. They have made their bed."

THE TIME TO CUT HAY.

The aim of our farmers in growing forage crops is to produce from a given area as large a quantity as possible of the digestible nutrients in a palatable form. The time at which a forage crop is harvested may affect the crop in three ways, viz., in the quantity of material harvested, in the composition of the crop, and in the palatability of the fodder. As a general rule it has been found that the greatest amount of hard, dry matter is secured where forage crops are allowed to fully mature and ripen. The only exception is in the case of clovers and other legumes, there the leaves rattle off or are lost, either before or during the process of curing.

It does not follow that when a plant increases its yield of dry matter that its nutritive value is proportionately increased. It is quite possible that changes in texture and composition of the dry substance may offset the greater yield. The dry matter of mature grass contains a large proportion of crude fibre. The plant hardens in texture and loses in both palatibility and digestibility. It is therefore usually advisable to begin cutting hay early, and where there is a large crop to be gathered, work should begin early in order that it be completed before the grass seeds are ripe enough to shell from the heads of the late cut grass. Chemical analysis has shown that plants are richer in protein in the earlier stages of growth than when fully grown or nearly mature. The chief difficulty with which our feeders have to contend is the lack of protein in the rations made up of our common feeding stuffs, and they should recognize the fact that by cutting early they can get two crops of highly nitrogenous fodder where they only get one by late cutting. Cutting the first crop even before the heads are fully grown will tend to cause a vigorous new growth, and in this way a good crop of rowan is secured.

The two crops are more valuable, especially for feeding dairy cows, than one mature crop on account of the increased proportion of protein. The early cut hay seems more palatable to stock, and weight for weight more satisfactory. On the other hand by late cutting we secure a considerably larger quantity of carbo-hydrates, which are valuable for feeding, and of crude fibre which is of low feeding value.

For the dairy cows and sheep, grass should be cut early, since these animals do not relish hay that is woody and lacking in aroma, as is the case with late cut hay. For horses and fattening cattle later cutting is allowable, as these animals subsist mostly on concentrated food, and hay serves more for "filling," as horsemen say. In tests made by Prof. Sanborn and Henry in fattening steers with early and late cut hay, it was found that late cut hay gave the best results. If cutting is delayed too long the stems of the grass become tough and stringy and the seeds scatter from the heads. Such hay has little aroma and lacks palatibility if not nutrients. Though an indefinite quantity, the aroma of grass has real value in rendering hay more palatable. When the sun dissipates the dew from the dying grass grass in the meadow, we detect the escaping aroma, because the dew in rising carries some of it into the air. This is one reason why hay should not remain scattered over the field at night. Green coloured, sweet smelling hay is really the best, and prudent farmers will not overlook such seemingly small points as preserving the aroma and preventing bleaching.

LAKEFIELD.

Interesting Items From the Village to the North.

Quite an exciting runaway occurred on Friday when Waldron & Gray's horse which was left in charge of a boy at the station came dashing down the main street ran into a post in front of Fitzgerald's hardware store and freed itself from the wagon to which it was attached. The noise of this started a horse belonging to Major Walsh, which was tied in front of Tanner's drug store, and it broke loose and also ran away breaking the buggy considerably, fortunately no one was hurt.

Rev. Mr. Tibb was in the village on Sabbath in the interests of Sabbath school work. Some contemptible villain has lowered himself to such a depth of degradation as to maliciously and wilfully poison Dr. Harrison's valuable thoroughbred collie. LOST FIFTY POUNDS.

The Terrible Experience of an Old Lady Through the Starvation of Dyspepsia —A Very Aggravated Case.

There is no more highly respected family in the neighbourhood of Lochaber, N. S., than that of Mrs. M. Sears.

The good lady, who is now over 70 years of age, had enjoyed good health up to a few years ago, when her stomach went wrong.

Acute Indigestion came upon her in her old age and so badly that she nearly died. As it was she lost over fifty pounds in weight before she found out about Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and was cured.

In her letter on the subject Mrs. Sears makes the following very strong statements:

"I was a great sufferer from Dyspepsia, experiencing fearful pains in the pit of my stomach. I lost about fifty pounds in weight because of my not being able to eat anything; indeed I was almost starved. My case was a very acute one.

"I tried all kinds of medicine but got no relief whatever.

"I used a stomach pump several times and did everything I could to get better.

"I went away to Newfoundland for some months hoping that the change might do me good, but I came home no better and quite hopeless.

"I saw Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets advertised, but as I had tried the doctors and almost everything else without any good results I had little faith that they would help me.

"I had failed from 186 pounds until I weighed less than 136 pounds before I commenced to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I got a box in Antigonish and they gave such relief that I sent for four more, which I used. Now I am cured. I gained in weight, health and strength from the very first, and am to-day well and strong.

"Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the best doctor for Dyspepsia or Stomach Trouble."

Health and Hope.

NO NAVAL REVIEW.

South African Men Arrive and Are Greatly Affected by the News.

London, June 26. — The British transport, Bavarian, which had been racing against time, in order to land the war contingent of South African veterans, who were to take part in the coronation procession, and which reached Southampton Tuesday, debarked her troops yesterday morning. The ragged, sunburned troopers, were much affected when they received the news of the King's dangerous illness.

No Naval Review.

A final effort was made yesterday to have the naval review carried out in some fashion, since it was considered deplorable that so many warships, home and foreign, should disperse without any official inspection; but the Government leader in the House of Commons, A. J. Balfour, decided it was impossible. The Admiralty has announced that all entertainments planned for the officers and crews of the ships off Spithead have been cancelled.

Admiral Sir Charles Hotham in command of the British fleet off Spithead, received all the foreign admirals on his flagship to-day. The commanders of the foreign vessels are awaiting instructions from their Governments regarding their departure. The British fleet will begin to disperse June 30.

Bonfires Escaped Demolition.

The only features of the coronation decorations, etc., escaping demolition are the illumination devices in London and the bonfires, which had already been laid on 300 hilltops throughout the United Kingdom. These, for the present, will not be touched, in the hope of using them to celebrate the King's recovery.

To Review Colonial Troops.

It was practically decided yesterday afternoon that the Prince of Wales will review the colonial troops, probably next week. They will then return to their respective countries.

A favorable factor mentioned by several of those at the palace yesterday was the King's adaptability to the severe regimen involved. "He is an excellent patient," said a peer who had just seen one of the members of the royal family. "He does everything he is told, and does not weary like many royal personages. This considerably helps the doctors in their efforts to pull him through. With a younger and thinner patient, the King's progress up to this afternoon would probably permit the doctors to be more optimistic, but they are carefully avoiding any possibility of inspiring premature rejoicing."

TWO PROTESTS FILED

Petitions Against Dr. Pyne and Mr. Hugh Clark.

THE USUAL CHARGES ARE MADE

Registrar Cartwright Has Received No Petition in Relation to East York, So That Mr. John Richardson Holds the Seat—Missing Ballots Delivered Safe and Sound—Time Up in Other Cases.

Toronto, June 26.—At Osgoode Hall yesterday, a protest was filed against the election of Dr. R. A. Pyne in East Toronto. The usual charges of bribery and corruption are contained in the papers, including the personal charge against the respondent for assisting in the alleged wrongdoing.

The petitioners are Michael F. Mogan and James Deaney, and Lawyer J. H. Denton filed it.

The time for filing the West York and West Toronto protest expired at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but Registrar Cartwright received no petitions. The protests in South and North Toronto are due before June 27 and July 2. The time in East York expired on June 23, so that John Richardson is safe.

Yesterday afternoon Registrar Cartwright received word that a protest had been filed by the Liberals of Centre Bruce against the return of Hugh Clark. No particulars, however, were received.

Missing Ballots Delivered.

The ballots in the Prince Edward election, in which the recount was protested, were thought to be missing for a few hours yesterday. They were mailed to Toronto on the 16th, but had not been received at Osgoode Hall, and the officials there knew nothing about them. Mr. G. O. Alcorn, K.S., of Picton, with Mr. Eric Armour, was at Osgoode Hall yesterday, endeavoring to find some trace of the ballots. They were delivered later in the day by the Dominion Express Company to Mr. C. S. Grant, assistant registrar of the Court of Appeal, properly sealed and packed.

CONSERVATIVES MEET.

The Convention in Toronto Discusses the Recent Elections.

Toronto, June 26.—A meeting of the Conservative Association for Ontario was held in Victoria Hall yesterday afternoon, at which a considerable amount of enthusiasm was displayed by the four hundred representatives of the various local associations who were present. Mr. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P.P., President, presided, and among those on the platform, were:—Mr. J. P. Whitney, K. C., M.P.P., Richard Blain, M.P., W. H. Bennett, M. P., Mr. R. Shaw Wood, Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, M.P.P., Claude Macdonnell, A. W. Wright and T. H. Leavitt.

The Chairman in opening the meeting said that the Conservatives had not yet obtained that control of the Government to which their popular majority entitled them. He thought the counting of the ballots by the Court of Appeal might give the Conservatives a majority. Even if it did not, there would be protests into the manner in which the ballots had been maltreated since they were deposited in the ballot box.

A number of others followed in the same strain, and, after passing a number of resolutions, the convention adjourned.

JANE TOPPAN CONFESSES.

Boston Nurse Who Murdered 31 Persons Declared Insane.

Boston, Mass., June 25.—Suspected of the death of 11 persons, and indicted for murdering three, Miss Jane Toppan, who was legally declared insane, yesterday, has confessed that during her career as a professional nurse she killed no less than 31 persons. This statement was made to Judge Fred M. Bixby of Brockton, her senior counsel at her trial at Barnstable yesterday, when she was found not guilty because of insanity, on the charge of having murdered Mrs. Mary D. Gibbs. Judge Bixby said also that Miss Toppan admitted that she had set fires and committed other serious acts. She said she could not help committing the crimes. She argued, moreover, that she was not insane. She said she knew she was doing wrong when she administered poison to her victims, and she asked Judge Bixby, how, under such circumstances, she could be of unsound mind.

Morphine was Miss Toppan's agency of producing death. Many of her victims were unsuspecting, and most intimate friends; others were the patients of reputable physicians, who employed her on account of abilities as a nurse. She was so expert in her knowledge of how to employ drugs and poisons, that she was able to escape detection for years.

Heavy Loss of Life Reported From Indiana Country Districts.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 26.— The most terrific storm in many years swept over Central Indiana about 9 o'clock yesterday morning. Telegraph and telephone wires are down along its trail, and at noon communication with the storm-swept country was almost entirely lacking. From information which has reached Indianapolis, it is believed there has been heavy loss of life. The storm spent most of its forces in the country, 20 or 30 miles northeast of Indianapolis. A telephone message from Greenfield said that a terrific storm swept over Hancock County. It blew down houses in Wilkinson and Pendleton, and from ten to eighteen people in those towns are reported killed. Three men are believed to have been killed in the chain factory, which was demolished at Maxwell. Property was greatly damaged in Cleveland, Ind., Greenfield, McCordsville and Lebanon, according to reports.

A JUNE WEDDING.

Nuptials of Mr. John H. Stinor and Miss Gertrude Maud O'Neil.

A very pleasant event took place at the residence of Mrs. M. O'Neil last evening, when her daughter, Miss Gertrude Maud, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. John H. Stiner, by the Rev. W. A. Gunton.

The bride was charmingly attired in a dress of white organdy, and carried a beautiful bouquet of white roses. She was given away by her brother, Mr. Wilbert O'Neil. Miss Maggie O'Neil, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and was also dressed in white organdy. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Miss Cora Bradburn acted as maid of honour, and was dressed in white organdy; she carried a basket of pink and white roses. The groom was assisted by Mr. John Rome.

A number of beautiful presents were received, amongst which were a magnificent silver tea set from the Armature and Test Department of the C. G. E. Works.

About fifty guests were present, and a very enjoyable time was spent. The happy couple left this morning on a short honeymoon. Their many friends will wish them every happiness in their future life. On their return they will take up their residence at 67 Bolivar street.

THE INSPECTION.

It Will Likely Take Place Some Day Next Week—The Ranges.

Owing to the fact that a large number of the young men of the town have arranged to leave town on July first, the inspection of the 57th Regt. will not take place on that date. After the Belleville trip had been declared off it had been thought advisable to hold the inspection on Dominion Day. However, out of consideration for the private arrangements of the men Lt.-Col. Edwards, the commanding officer, has decided to arrange another date.

As it is difficult for a number of the men of the regiment to get a day off, the inspection of the 57th may take place in the evening, instead of during the afternoon, as has been customary. The annual inspection may take place during the latter part of next week, or at the beginning of the week following.

As Tuesday of next week will be a holiday the weekly parade of the 57th will be held on the Wednesday following.

Lt.-Col. Cartwright, Inspector of Musketry, Ottawa, was in town yesterday looking over suitable sites for new ranges. Lieut.-Col. Cartwright appeared to be well satisfied with the location of the present ranges and considers the hill to the rear an excellent background.

SUCCESSFUL PUPILS.

In the College of Music Examinations—Won Honours.

The result of the examinations which were held here recently in connection with the Toronto College of Music, are now out. The examiner was Mr. W. H. Fairclough. Four of Mr. Gliddon's pupils were successful, their percentage being as follows:

Florence Butcher, 94; Ethel White, 80; Tena Elliott, 76; Geraldine King, 69.

It requires a percentage of 50 to pass; 65 per cent. carries with it 2nd class honours, and 75 per cent. obtains first class honours.

It will be observed that Miss Butcher and Miss White carried off first class honours and Miss Elliott and Miss King obtained second class honours.

CHEERING NEWS OF THE KING.

His Progress Towards Recovery is Considered Remarkable.

THE INTERCESSORY SERVICES

St. Paul's Crowded Even as Westminster Abbey Would Have Been Crowded To-day.

London, June 26. — The arrangements for the Marlborough House entertainment of children were carried out to-day in spite of the postponement of the King's coronation. About 1300 youngsetrs enjoyed the dinner provided for them by the Prince and Princess of Wales, who were present and remained in the gardens with their little guests for a couple of hours.

London, June 26. — At 4.30 p.m. it was said at the palace that King Edward continued to make remarkable progress.

London, June 26. — In most of the churches throughout the land to-day, the services which were to commemorate the coronation of King Edward are taking plans in the changed form of intercessory services. At the hour when the King should have been crowned a great and distinguished gathering, almost identical with that which would have sat in Westminster Abbey, gathered in St. Paul's Cathedral.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—The chief has a lady's jacket, for which he would like an owner.

—The high wind of last night levelled some shade trees in exposed positions.

—The Belleville people have now decided to postpone their celebration to some future date.

—The annual excursion of the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church, took place to-day to Stony Lake. Quite a number took in the event.

—Owing to the fact that the first Tuesday in July falls on Dominion Day, the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education will be held on Friday night of this week, instead of on Tuesday evening.

—The ruins of the Campbellford Skating and Curling Rink, and the ground upon which the building was erected, were put up at auction on Saturday afternoon, and sold for $1050. All the material, lumber, iron, electric wiring and other fixtures, were purchased by Reeve J. E. Diamond, while the lot has become the property of Ferguson and Blakie, stock brokers of Toronto.

—Hamilton Spectator: "In the Peterborough Examiner's report of the Ontario Historical Society, it is stated that Mrs. Fessenden, of this city, was the Hamilton delegate, and was also the president of the Wentworth Historical Society. A prominent officer of the society askes the Spectator to say that F. W. Fearman is the president of the society, and Mrs. Rose-Holden was its delegate to the Peterborough meeting."

—Beekeepers are not encouraged at what they see in their hives and fears are entertained that the honey production this summer will be very much below the average unless the conditions of the weather change very soon. June has been unfavourable for honey making, the frequent rainfalls, cool temperature, and cold nights having made the little workers rather sluggish, and their cells are being filled slowly. Even though July and August bring forth sunshine and warmth every day, the bee's business season will be short, and it cannot make up for lost time to the extent of as large a production as in former years.

INTERCESSORY SERVICE

Held in St. John's This Morning by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt.

An impressive intercessory service for the life of King Edward was held this morning in St. John's church in place of the arranged coronation service. About 150 were present. The service opened with the singing of the hymn, "Be Thou our Guardian and our Guide and hear us when we Call," after which Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's, preached a sermon suitable for the occasion from the text, "James v, 6, "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." In his sermon the preacher elucidated what an acceptable prayer had to consist of. After the sermon, "O God, Thou Help in Ages Past," and the National Anthem" were sung, which was followed by the Litany, said by Rev. J. C. Davidson, interspersed with special petitions for the King, the Queen, and Royal Family, and the Empire.

WEDDED IN ENNISMORE.

Mr. Roger Torpey, of Ashburnham, Takes as His Bride Miss E. Mahony.

In the Roman Catholic Church, Ennismore, on Tuesday, June 24th, Mr. Roger Torpey, of Ashburnham and Miss Ellen Mahony, of Ennismore, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Father Keilty of Douro, assisted by the Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, P. P.

Before beginning the ceremony Father Keilty, in words of eloquence and feeling, reminded the young couple of responsibilities they were about to assume, and requested them to beg of God, during the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass the graces necessary to fulfil well their duties. After the Holy Sacrifice the officiating priest in his usual fluency spoke of the new obligations imposed upon the young couple and encouraged them to exercise love for each other and Christian charity towards all.

The bride, who looked charming in her beautiful suit of gray, was assisted by her sister, Miss Katie, as bridesmaid, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. E. Torpey. No special decorations of the church were found necessary on the occasion of this pretty wedding as the church itself is a model of beauty and art.

During the repast, unusually long extended on account of the numerous courses, the reverend gentlemen, as guests of honour, entertained all by their delightful conversation, made interesting by no slight sprinkling of humour and wit. Rev. Father Keilty, in a few well chosen words, expressed his pleasure at being present, and on behalf of the bride, said he thanked her Peterborough friends for their generosity and respect, of which they had given such ample evidence. The reverend gentleman concluded by proposing a toast in honour of the bride and for the future happiness of the couple.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, in his pleasing manner, also addressed the company. As parish priest he extended a warm welcome to those who had come for the first time to his parish, and assured them that he would always be pleased to meet them in the future. To a silent observer, very evident was the fact that this reverend gentleman enjoys the highest respect, confidence and admiration of his parishioners for his piety, earnestness and erudition.

The next speaker called upon was Mr. Harry Long, who in a very suitable manner expressed the satisfaction it gave him and his friends to be present upon such a happy occasion.

After a pleasant afternoon the couple repaired to their beautiful residence on Stewart street, Ashburnham.

RAILWAY ENGINEER KILLED.

Found Early Wednesday in Ottawa With Cracked Skull.

Ottawa, June 26.—Alexander Sinclair, a railway engineer, was found lying on Sparks street early yesterday morning in an unconscious condition with a cracked skull and bruises. It was thought that he was the victim of foul play, but as his watch and money were undisturbed, this theory was routed. He was taken to St. Luke's hospital, and died at noon, never having recovered consciousness. Death was caused by hemorrhage of the brain The doctors say the mishap may have been caused by the man taking convulsions and falling heavily to the sidewalk. The relatives hint at foul play, and have asked for an inquest. Deceased was 30 years of age and unmarried.

Improvements on C.P.R.

Montreal, June 26.—By the end of 1903 Canada's transcontinental highway will not have a wooden trestle or a temporary structure of any kind from Montreal to the Pacific Ocean, and throughout that immense distance the main line will be laid with 80-pound steel rails.

Yale Honors Roosevelt.

Cambridge, Mass., June 26.—Commencement at Harvard University was of unusual interest yesterday because of the presence of President Roosevelt, who graduated therefrom in 1880, and because he received the honorary degree of LL.D. from the university.

Sailed For England

New York, June 26.—Lady Pauncefote, widow of the late British Ambassador to the United States, and her daughters, the Misses Maude, Sibyl and Audrey Pauncefote, sailed for England yesterday on the St. Paul.

Ottawa Trolley Men.

Ottawa, June 26. — The Ottawa street railway employes are asking for an increase in wages. It will likely be given as a result of the victory of the Toronto employes.

Increased Wages

Montreal, June 26.—The Canadian Pacific Railway have given an increase of 15 per cent. to their bridge and water supply men.

Miners' Mortality.

One miner is killed for every 1,000,000 tons of coal raised.

Queer Taste.

A wealthy Warsaw landowner sleeps each night in a room draped with black, decorated with skeletons and having in the middle of the floor a catafalque, on which is a metal coffin.

Rice.

Rice is the emblem of fertility, and the custom of throwing it after a bridal couple arose from a wish that they might be blessed with a large family.

Parasols.

The umbrella and parasol were used by the eastern nations many centuries before the Christian era. The oldest chinaware shows pictures of ladies and mandarins shaded by parasols of patterns similar to those now in use.

A Horse Made a Priest.

Incitatus, the famous horse of the Roman emperor Caligula, was actually consecrated as a priest, had a manger of pure ivory and was never given a drink from anything but a gold pail.

Wood in China.

In China probably more wood is used for coffins than for any other purpose. The coffins are made of lumber from four to nineteen inches thick. It is not a high estimate to say that from 8,000,000,000 to 10,000,000,000 feet of lumber are annually thus utilized.

Watch Beats.

A watch that makes five beats a second makes 432,000 a day or nearly 158,000,000 in a year.

Stamped Envelopes.

The first stamped envelopes were issued in 1853 of the two denominations of 3 and 6 cents, and it was not until two years later that the ten cent envelope was added.

Buds and Flowers of Home Life.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

MAKES AND KEEPS THE CHILDREN WELL AND STRONG.

Mothers Make it the Home Medicine for the Little Ones.

The children, God bless them, are the buds and flowers of our homes, without their prattle and hearty laughter, our homes would be desolate. They should ever be carefully tended in childhood and youth, if we expect them to ripen into perfect men and women.

In the home and at school the children have their days of ill health and suffering. We often note the pallid and bloodless cheeks, heavy eyes, nervous movements and twitchings of limbs and muscles. They complain of headaches, drowsiness, weariness, dyspepsia and indigestion. All such symptoms and ailments mean that the seeds of disease will have a fast and firm hold unless prompt and proper measures are taken to restore a perfect condition of health.

Thousands of wise and prudent parents have made there children happy, healthy and vigorous by giving them nature's medicine, Paine's Celery Compound. In many severe and complicated cases, Paine's Celery Compound has restored health when the little ones were given up by the physicians.

If your little ones are not as hearty, strong and rugged as they should be in June, try the health giving virtues of Paine's Celery Compound. It makes and keeps the children well.

They got their price, and all was sold. Welch got 580 for James Alexander, and Welgar 310 for T. S. Williamson. The balance was not called on board, but sold on the curb at the same price.

WILL VOTE ON REFERENDUM.

Ontario License Holders' Protective Association Choose Officers.

Toronto, June 25.—The ninth annual convention of the Ontario License Holders' Protective Association was held yesterday afternoon and evening in Victoria Hall. About 300 delegates were in attendance. The chair was occupied by Frank Collins of Dundas.

After the routine opening business, Mayor Howland delivered an address of welcome on behalf of the city.

Among the important questions up for discussion was the referendum, and it was decided that the best course to pursue was a "voting campaign."

The treasurer's report showed a substantial balance on hand, and Toronto was chosen from the place of meeting for 1903.

Officers were elected as follows: President, F. X. St. Jacque, Ottawa; first vice-president, D. B. Birrell, York Mills; second vice-president, J. M. Brooks, Peterboro; secretary, E. Dickie, Toronto; treasurer, James McFarlane, Toronto; auditors, J. W. Scrandett, London and H. A. Coffen, Georgetown; Executive Committee, H. Maxey, Hamilton; F. J. Collins, Dundas; John Coffey, Barrie; T. P. Phelan, Toronto; E. Hartnett, St. Catharines; M. J. Frawley, Orilla; T. K. Haffey, Toronto.

The Day of Miracles not Past.

A Toronto Star reporter investigated the case of Mr. George Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhozone.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be cured. Catarrhozone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from impaired hearing, deafness, head noises and ringing in the ears, are advised to inhale Catarrhozone, and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. Rich Blood

Strong Nerves

Are Necessary to Good Health —Both Result From the Use of

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Evidence From Your Neighbors

About one-fifth of all the blood used in the human body is sent direct to the brain, and out of this is created the nerve force, which controls and regulates the action of the various organs.

When the blood gets thin and watery, as it usually does at this time of year, the nerves are first to suffer; they are starved and exhausted. Headache, dizzy spells, indigestion, weak action of the heart, languid, depressing feelings, weakness and functional derangements of the bodily organs are the result.

You can feel Dr. Chase's Nerve Food doing you good day by day, as it strikes at the root of the trouble and creates new, rich, red blood. You can prove that it builds up new tissues and adds flesh if you weigh yourself each week while using it.

Mrs. Smeaton, No. 191 Rubridge st., Peterborough, Ont., and whose husband is employed with the Canadian General Electric Co., states;

"My little son was very much run down in health, had no colour in his face and was quite nervous. As his appetite was poor and he seemed tired and listless, we became anxious about him, and began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It was not long before I noticed a marked change in his appearance. His appetite improved, his colour became better, and his health generally was very much better than it had been for a long time. I have much pleasure in adding my testimony to the hosts of others who are praising this medicine."

Mrs. Crose, No. 148 Rubidge street, Peterborough, Ont., states;

"I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in my family and have found it to be a great nerve builder. One of my children had been troubled with nervousness for a number of years and suffered greatly from dizzy, nervous headaches. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has entirely freed her of these symptoms, and to-day she is real strong and healthy. We do not lose an opportunity of recommending this splendid medicine."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is for the blood as well as the nerves. It cures each and every ailment resulting from thin, weak, watery blood. Its cures are permanent, because it restores and re-vitalizes the wasted and depleted cells. 50 cents a box; 6 boxes for $2.50; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Toronto.

RELICS OF EARLY DAYS.

Rail Fences and Dugout Canoes Survive Civilization's March.

One of the remarkable features of country life in America is the singular persistence of the rail fence and the dugout canoe. No matter how thickly settled a section may become or how long it may have been settled, these two survivors of early settlement linger on as stubbornly as ever. Today in the thickest settled parts of New England and New York the rail fence is met with, while the shad fishermen of the Potomac and James rivers and Chesapeake bay, on the banks of which the first English settlements in America were established, still manufacture and employ the old dugout canoe in making the rounds of their shad nets.

The dugout canoe is the simplest and most primitive water craft known and was used by prehistoric man, both in this country, Europe and Asia. It is made out of a log of wood by trimming the outside down to the proper proportions of a boat and by "digging out" the inside with an ads and by the aid of fire. The Potomac river dugout is today pretty much the same as it was in the days of Powhatan and differs from the general run of dugout canoes in the absence of a curved bow and stern and in having rather high sides, which rise to a summit from either end of the boat, being highest in the middle, where the seat is placed.

Canny In Second Engagement.

For years a young man and young woman had been engaged, and each had economized with a view of having the more to spend when they should marry. Six months ago, however, the engagement was broken, and shortly afterward the young woman became the fiancee of another man. This man she encourages to spend his money lavishly—on her. He has bought her beautiful silver for her toilet table, the latest design and engraved with her initials; a handsome leather traveling bag completely fitted out, rugs, books and other articles to make home comfortable.

"No more economizing for me," says the girl. "If he invests so much in me, we won't be so likely to quarrel, and certainly he will not have the money to spend on another girl," which is the wisdom that rules sentiment in these modern days.

These Dull Ducks.

I recall Mr. Lowell telling, jocosely, in an after dinner speech in Cambridge how he met an acquaintance (of dubious standing) whose cheerful face and happy demeanor led him to ask the cause of such exuberant felicity.

"Why," said the genial smiler, "I've discovered a way to make my fortune. We all know that the reason for the fine flavor of the wild duck is the wild celery on which it feeds. Now, I propose to feed it to the domestic duck and supply the market."

Some weeks later, on meeting his acquaintance again, Mr. Lowell found him quite depressed and inconsolable. "Why are you looking so unhappy? I thought the last time I saw you that you were on the point of making your fortune with ducks. Wouldn't it work?"

"No," was the reply; "the things won't eat it."

Tartly Answered.

The principal of a certain high school tells a joke on himself with much enjoyment. One day during an examination, when he was visiting the various rooms, he stopped to ask a very bright boy a sum in algebra, and, although the problem was comparatively easy, he could not answer it. The principal remarked with some show of severity:

"My boy, you ought to be able to do that. At your age George Washington was a surveyor."

The boy looked him straight in the eye and answered:

"Yes, sir, and at your age he was president of the United States."

The conversation dropped at that point.

Men and Apes.

Were it not, as Huxley says, that "the ignorance of the so called educated classes is colossal," there might be need for apology in restatement of the fact that man is not descended from the ape. The relationship between them is lateral, not lineal, both being offshoots of the same stock, but each remaining, of course in very different degrees of development, isolated groups of mammals.—Edward Clodd's "Thomas Henry Huxley."

Punctuate It.

Take this sentence, printed nakedly: "It was and I said not of." As it stands it is enough to give the reader vertigo before he grasps its import. Properly stopped and buoyed with commas, it is a perfectly simple and natural sentence, as you will see when you have got the grip of your senses.—London Chronicle.

Winning a Kiss.

Aunt Hannah—I saw that young man kiss you, Jane. How did it come about?

Jane—In the most natural way in the world, auntie. He asked me if I would be offended if he kissed me, and I told him it was impossible for me to say until I knew what it was like.

A Very Old Stone.

The seat of the coronation chair of England is made of a monster slab of sandstone. Brewer's "Dictionary of Phrase and Fable" says, "It was brought from Scone by Edward I. and is said to be the stone upon which Jacob rested his head the night of his famous vision."

Zero.

Zero, like many other popular standards, is arbitrary in its origin. It is the temperature obtained by mixing ice and salt, which Fahrenheit supposed to be the extreme of cold.

Asparagus.

Asparagus is the oldest known plant used for food.

Imitations

of Dodd's Kidney Pills are legion. The box is imitated, the outside coating and shape of the pills are imitated and the name—Dodd's Kidney Pills is imitated. Imitations are dangerous. The original is safe. Dodd's Kidney Pills have a reputation. Imitators have none or they wouldn't imitate. So they trade on the reputation of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Do not be deceived. There is only one DODD'S. Dodd's is the original. Dodd's is the name to be careful about—

Nut Candy.

Adults as well as children like nut candy. Butter a plate and place in it half a pint of hickory nut kernels, a pint of maple sugar boiled until thick. When hard, pour over the kernels and stir quickly.

Canine Intelligence.

By barking and scratching at him until he awoke a dog in Berlin has saved his master from death by asphyxiation. The man's wife had turned on the gas in the room where he was asleep, with the deliberate intention of causing his death.

The First Americans.

One theory is that America was peopled by migration from northwest Europe and northeastern Asia by land in the stone age.

Money in North China.

In the interior towns of northern China slips of the bark of the mulberry tree bearing the imperial "chop" and a stamp which denotes their worth have long been used as we use banknotes. Marco Polo found this kind of money there in his time, and they still have an extensive local circulation.

North Sea Codmen.

A North sea codman carries an outfit of lines which extends eight miles in length and has usually fixed upon it the amazing number of 4,680 hooks, every one of which must be baited.

Electric Speed.

It takes about three seconds for a message to go from one end of the Atlantic to the other.

Russian Photographers.

The Russian photographers have a strange way of punishing those who, having received their photo, do not pay their bills. They hang the pictures of the delinquents upside down at the entrance to their studios.

Bicycles In China.

The social laws of China act as a barrier to the native women riding bicycles. Japanese women think it would be unladylike to use the wheel.

London's Lake of Tea.

It has been calculated that something like 1,250,000,000 pints of tea are imbibed yearly by Londoners and that the teapot necessary to contain this amount, if properly shaped, would comfortably take in the whole of St. Paul's cathedral.

Egg and Coffee.

An egg added to the morning coffee is a good tonic.

Cleaning Paint.

Paint should never be scrubbed, but wiped with a soft woolen cloth dipped in warm water. A slight touch of sand soap may be used on a stubborn stain. Dry with a piece of flannel cloth after a good rinsing.

Dresses of Gold.

The costliest dresses in the world are worn by the women of Sumatra. They are made of pure gold and silver. After the metal is mined and smelted it is formed into fine wire, which is woven into cloth and afterward made into dresses.

Expert Needleworkers.

It is considered that Japanese men are among the best needleworkers in the world, their only equals being the women of Russia.

The First Review.

The first literary review was published in Paris in the latter part of the seventeenth century, in the reign of Louis XIV. It was called the Journal des Scavens and was much like the literary reviews of today. The founder of the review was M. de Sallo, a famous French litterateur.

Vienna Coffee.

Vienna coffee is not hard to make. To a strong coffee add some thick sweet cream and then put on ice. When served in whatever sort of glass you may prefer, add some ice cream.

Garlic in Salads.

An easy way to impart a tang of garlic to salads is to put a clove of garlic in a quart bottle of oil and let it remain there for twenty-four hours. In that time the oil will have absorbed a flavor which is quite strong enough for a delicate taste.

TANKS OF FACTS.

There Is a Difference Between Information and Knowledge.

A great many people mistake information for knowledge. What a man most needs is not that he may be possessed of an accumulation of facts, but that he may know where to look for the facts when he wants them. We all know the unpleasant individual who is continually seeking information. You show him about your city and he asks: "How many miles of street railway have you in your city?" "What is the price of ice here this summer?" "How many churches are there here?" "How long has that building been standing?" etc., ad nauseam. You don't know and wonder why he wants to. You know where you can find out, and that is enough for you.

And then there is that equally disagreeable person who actually seems to be a tank of facts. He has more information than anything else and delights in asking you most extraordinary questions. When you confess your ignorance, he will look upon you with pity and exclaim, "What, don't you know?" and then tell you when you don't want to know at all. For example, he is much surprised because you don't know how long the Amazon river is. He permits you—nay, he insists—that you should guess, only that he may the better humiliate you. His brain is so incumbtred with facts that it is almost useless. Life is too short for a man to try to constitute himself a library of universal knowledge when the reservoirs of such knowledge are ready to hand when it is needed.

The Age of Brain Work.

"In these days, half our diseases come from the neglect of the body in the overwork of the brain. In this railway age the wear and tear of labour and intellect go on without pause or self pity. We live longer than our forefathers but we suffer more. They fatigued only the muscles, we exhaust the finer strength of the nerves." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest medicine of this age because it is best suited to the needs of the present day. It restores revitalizes wasted nerve cells and makes the pale, weak and exhausted strong and healthy and vigorous.

How Victor Hugo Worked.

Victor Hugo always wrote standing at a high desk especially constructed for him, throwing off sheet after sheet as fast as he filled it till he would be quite snowed up in leaves of foolscap. He often rose in the middle of the night to note down an idea or a verse. He got up for the day usually at 6 o'clock and would devote from six to eight hours per diem to his work. He made but few corrections, his poems being thought out complete in his brain before he put pen to paper. It is a well known fact that he indulged in the arduous task of composition while traversing the streets of Paris on the top of an omnibus. When working out some great conception, he would spend hours in this way.

The Khedive and the Rascal.

Even to the adventurers and downright swindlers who hung about his court at Cairo and afterward pursued his wanderings Ismail extended a good natured, half contemptuous patronage. He liked a rogue far better than a fool. Once, when he had formally forbidden his door to a flagrant offender, the man, who knew his character, got a ladder and climbed into the viceroy's room, remarking, "I have obeyed your highness' commands and have crossed your threshold by the window and not by the door." The humor of the thing at once appealed to Ismail, and the offender was reinstated in his favor.

How to Beautify the Complexion.

To have a soft, smooth, skin, free from eruptions and pimples, the blood must be healthy and pure. Ferrozone invigorates enfeebled blood, and cleanses it of all impurities and poisons; it brings colour to the lips and cheeks, brilliancy to the eyes, whitens the teeth and sweetens the breath. No tonic compares with Ferrozone in rapid action and permanent results. Try it; price 50c., at Ormond and Walsh's.

The Kadiak Bear.

The largest known living carnivorous animal is the Kadiak bear. Although the biggest creature in the western continent, the Kadiak bear has the most limited habitat of any animal in the world. The island of Kadiak, just off the western coast of Alaska, is the only place where it is found. The largest one killed by a white man measured fifteen feet in length and was six feet high at the shoulders. Standing upon his hind legs, this monster would tower nearly twenty feet in the air.

ARE YOU A PRISONER?

THOUSANDS of men are prisoners of disease as securely as though they were confined behind the bars. Many have forged their own chains by the vices of early youth, exposure to contagious disease, or the excesses of manhood. They feel they are not the men they ought to be or need to be. The vim, vigor, and vitality of manhood are lacking. Are you nervous and despondent? tired in the morning? have you to force yourself through the day's work? have you little ambition and energy? are you irritable and excitable? eyes sunken, depressed and haggard looking? memory poor and brain fagged? have you weak back with dreams and losses at night? deposit in urine? weak sexually?—you have

INSPECTION ON THURSDAY.

Colonel Lessard Will Visit Barriefield Camp.

Ammunition Served to the Men Yesterday—Trooper Ill Treated in the City—Notes of the Camp.

(Kingston Whig.)

The troops in camp at Barriefield were inspected yesterday afternoon by Col. Montizambert, D.O.C. The brigade was drawn up in squadrons on the parade ground, the Hussars on the left and the Dragoons on the right. The colonel afterwards stated that the brigade was in uncommonly good shape, and had made satisfactory progress. The movements were now gone through with in an orderly and thoroughly military manner. Brigadier Rogers also expressed himself as very pleased with the showing the men made. For the short time they have been in camp both Dragoons and Hussars deserve the highest credit for the rapid advance they have made. They now present a dignified and imposing appearance when manoeuvring on the field. The brigade will be in good condition for inspection.

Brigadier Rogers yesterday afternoon received a telegram from Col. Aylmer, adjutant-general, Ottawa, apprising him of the fact that the brigade would be inspected on Thursday by Col. Lessard, the inspector of cavalry, and now commanding officer at the Niagara camp.

The ammunition has at last arrived —25,600 rounds of it, and the troopers were given their first practice at rifle shooting this morning. Owing to the late arrival of the cartridges, there remains but three days in which to practice marksmanship. The "galery ammunition" is the name of the new explosive, and this is the first time it has ever been used in camp at Barriefield.

Many of the troopers complain bitterly of the treatment they receive in the city. On Saturday night one man was set upon by a gang of toughs and his shoulder blade broken. On Monday night two other troopers were also badly beaten, one of them getting his upper lip severely cut. The troopers mind their own business when in the city, and give offence to no one. The officers think that the police should be around to see that such disgraceful attacks do not occur. The treatment accorded the volunteers the past few years was ideal, but this summer things have changed. The men sacrifice considerable in leaving their occupations to spend two weeks in camp at the paltry pay of fifty cents a day, and every Canadian should show them courtesy and kindness wherever possible.

On Monday evening the officers of the brigade were given an interesting and instructive lecture by Major Johnston of the 3rd Dragoons. The subject was "Discipline and Organization," and it was ably handled. A good programme of songs, recitations, etc., was afterwards given in which the splendid voice of Capt. Garvin was heard to good effect. Major Johnston, the lecturer, is a Peterborough man, who taught in the cavalry school at Toronto for nearly a year. During the absence in South Africa of Col. Lessard and Major Forester, he was second in command of the Royal Canadian Dragoons in Toronto. He is an ideal soldier, and is said to be one of the best qualified cavalry officers in the Dominion.

Major Seyer, commanding "B" squadron of the 3rd Dragoons, attained to his present rank two years ago. In 1897 he represented his squadron at the late Queen's jubilee celebration in London. The Major resides at Millbrook, and is a popular squadron leader.

Capt. McLaughlin, Bowmanville, in command of "A" squadron, 3rd Dragoons, has just been gazetted captain. This year he is in command of the troop, owing to the absence of Major C. H. Rogers in South Africa. Capt. McLaughlin is a graduate of Toronto University and a rising young barrister. He is well liked by every officer and man in the regiment.

Capt. McDonald succeeded to the command of "D" squadron, 3rd Dragoons, three years ago. He is a capable and popular officer, and as soon as he qualifies by examination will receive the rank of Major.

Captain W. H. Bradburn was appointed to his command, "C" squadron, 3rd Dragoons, two years ago. He is an officer of eleven years experience and is a member of the well-known Bradburn family of Peterborough.

Capt. William Hall, acting-Adjutant of the Dragoons, is the eldest son of Adam Hall, one of Peterborough's first citizens. He takes a great pride in military matters, and is a most efficient officer, though yet only a young man.

Baseball matches are frequently played at the camp, Capt. Garvin, the quartermaster of the third Dragoons, having furnished the boys with an outfit. So far the Hussars have generally come out victorious.

Sergt. Terrell, of Wellington, formerly of Major Vanluven's troop, the Royal Canadian Dragoons, when they were campaigning in South Africa, visited the Major on Sunday, and was a most welcome visitor to the lines of the 3rd Dragoons.

The opening day of the last week in camp at Barriefield passed off very quietly. The troops have got down to business, and are doing their work in earnest. The camp is a quiet one, owing to its small size, and there is little to disturb the tranquility.

It was a lamentable accident that befell trooper Kenny on Saturday night. Kenny is a Prince Edward county man, and belongs to "D" squadron of the 3rd Dragoons. He visited the city on Saturday night, and according to his story was set upon by a gang of toughs, who, without provocation, beat him unmercifully. They left him with a broken shoulder blade and a few others injuries. He is now in the Kingston General Hospital undergoing treatment.

The officers of the brigade express themselves as having been delighted with the service at St. George's cathedral on Sunday morning.

Brigade Quartermaster-Sergeant Victor Stroud is a very popular young fellow in camp, and has shown himself to be thoroughly fitted for the position.

The drilling exercises yesterday afternoon were very interesting. It was a sample of how mounted men do dismounted drill. The "Boer formation," as it is called, consists of the squadrons riding up to a certain point, and then being ordered to dismount and form a skirmishing line. After a volley has been fired, the lead horses are brought up and the men gallop away at high speed.

The field officer to-day was Maj. Bennington, 4th Hussars; next for duty, Maj. Vanluven, of the same corps. Lieut. Henry Ovens, of Kingston, was regimental officer for the Hussars to-day. Lieut. Burton was next for duty.

A government employee at Fort Henry visited the camp on Sunday night, and stayed rather late. A guard from the 3rd Dragoons ran him into the guard tent, and kept him a prisoner there all night, despite his threats and appeals. The man swears that he will have revenge.

A large number of people from the city visited camp on Sunday, and were most hospitably welcomed by the officers and men.

The cold, damp weather is not at all relished. The men have plenty of blankets, however, and so do not suffer at night. There's one thing about the weather of late; it won't cause the men's faces to "burn up" very much.

Most of the troopers are very fond of vegetables, but they get little of them in camp. Yesterday three fellows were noticed returning to the camp carrying about a dozen parsnips, which they had "swiped" from a farmer's field near the camp. "Where did you get those parsnips?" demanded an officer, who chanced to see the happy trio. "Stole them," was the prompt reply. "Ah," said the officer, triumphantly, to a bystander, "you see my boys may steal, but they won't lie!"

MARRIED IN TORONTO.

Nuptials of Mr. Herbert H. Loosemore to Miss Mary P. Davidson.

Toronto Globe: The interior of St. Luke's church, looked more beautiful than ever yesterday morning, when the marriage of Mr. Herbert Hatherley Loosemore, son of Canon Loosemore, of Canterbury Cathedral, to Miss Mary Suzanna Davidson, daughter of Mrs. S. Ferrara Davidson, of Charles street, took place. The many willing hands and loving hearts of the members of St. Luke's Girls' Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, had wrought garlands and festoons of marguerites and ferns to deck the church for the marriage of their loved president, and the result was extremely pretty. The bride, who was escorted by her brother, Rev. John C. Davidson, rector of St. John's church, Peterborough, wore a gown of white crepe de chene trimmed with lace and chiffon, and her veil was fastened with orange blossoms. Her bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Rose Davidson, who wore a gown of white silk mousseline de soie, with touches of pink, and her bisque hat was trimmed with pink roses and lace. Her bouquet was also of pink roses. The groomsman was Mr. Frank Loosemore, brother of the bridegroom. The service was read by the Rev. Rural Dean Langtry, who was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Roper of the Theological Seminary, New York. The ushers were Mr. George Hargraft and Mr. Harry Rae. A large number of friends were in the church. After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the residence of the bride's mother, and Mr. and Mrs. Loosemore left later for their wedding journey. On their return they will occupy the residence 25 Charles street during the absence of Mrs. Davidson and Miss Rose Davidson in England.

A SMITH BOY'S SUCCESS.

Rev. Henry Cullen Making a Name in Literary Circles.

The following is clipped from the Savanna Evening Times of Illinois, published on June 3rd last and will be of interest to our readers as referring to Rev. Henry Cullen, a brother of Mr. Thos. Cullen of Smith. His many old friends will be pleased to learn that Mr. Cullen is making a name for himself across the border:

"We are in receipt of The Bible Student, published at Columbia, South Carolina, for June. The cover bears a marked head "The Incarnation" by H. Cullen, D.D. On getting into the inside among the reading matter we find this to be the subject of the leading article in the magazine and is by our Presbyterian minister of this city, the Rev. Henry Cullen. It is an eight page article full of religious meat and beautiful thoughts such as only can emanate from a truly good and religious man. It treats of the Incarnation as a fact in history and recites some strong points to sustain the argument. It is well written in a clear style and shows Mr. Cullen has devoted considerable time and hard study on this always interesting subject. We congratulate Mr. Cullen on his success in the literary field as it is honour to be classed among the writers of this most excellent magazine and we will await with pleasure his next effort which the publishers say they have already in hand."

STOCK MARKETS.

New York, June 25.—The day's dealings were more or less restricted, owing to the condition of England's King. Bulk of market interests centered in M. O. P., St. Paul, Penna., S. Pac., and U. P. There was a good demand for all these issues, and all of them will sell much higher. Copper rose over a point from its opening price, then lost part of its gain. Sug. lost about a point, then partially recovered. C.E.T. made its customary erratic movements, rising over three points. The stock then lost all of its gain. The directors meeting in Denver at 5.30 to-day to act on the dividends.

New York, June 25th.—The news of Tuesday morning announcement of the Coronation ceremonies, and accompanied by a considerably lower range of quotations from London, was calculated to depress prices to a considerable extent, as usual. In Wall street, the unexpected happened. The market, after a few lower sales at opening, actually advanced, showing the selling from fright to be most meagre. Ordinarily, there would have been heavy liquidation in the market, as it was exemplified its remarkable undertone, and the littleness of public holdings. The past six months have witnessed several episodes, illustrating the point. One conclusion can be drawn from the facts of yesterday's market. Stocks do not go down easily and consequently it is reasonable to expect the stocks to do much better during this summer. Even the death of King Edward VII. would have but fleeting and transitory effect upon American securities. Fears of any trouble in English financial and political circles would more than likely cause much English money to seek safe investment in this country. The English Royal Family own considerable American railway securities. Crown money usually seeks investment of an absolutely safe nature. In times of political discord, especially in countries with Royal rulers, much capital seeks investment under other flags.

After considerable delays, owing principally to the scarcity of skilled workmen, we've got a hustle on to move to our new premises.

The three stores which are now being remodelled for our new home, include the whole of the block on the corner of George and Hunter streets, except that portion used by the Bank of Toronto. The store on George street is the spot Where we built up our business, and from which we moved to our present premises twelve years ago.

When we held our first Winter Red Letter Removal Sale at the beginning of the year, we, expected to move in June. THE KING'S PROGRESS

His Majesty's Condition is Even Better Than Bulletined.

THE QUEEN'S HOPEFUL MESSAGE

There Was a Pain From the Wound, But It Was Not, However, Considered a Serious Factor—His Majesty Smoked—As Usual, He Was Thoughtful For Others—Date of the Coronation.

London, June 26.—(10.04 a.m.)—The Duke of Connaught called at Buckingham Palace this morning at 9.30 o'clock. Later he said: "The news concerning the King this morning is most encouraging. The King's pulse and temperature are normal and his condition on the whole is most satisfactory."

Improved in All Respects.

London, June 26.—The official bulletin on the condition of King Edward, issued at 10.15 o'clock this morning, is as follows:

"His Majesty has had a better night and has had some refreshing sleep. He has improved in all respects. His constitutional condition is quite favorable and the state of his wound also satisfactory.

(Signed) Lister, Treves, Smith, Laking, Barlow.

His Majesty Less Weak.

London, June 26.—The following bulletin was posted at Buckingham Palace at 5.15 p.m.:

"His Majesty passed a good day and has taken nourishment well. He is less weak and his temperature is now normal." (Signed)

Lister, Treves, Smith, Laking, Barlow.

A Fairly Comfortable Day.

London, June 26.—The following bulletin was posted at Buckingham Palace at 11 o'clock to-night:

"The King has passed a fairly comfortable day and has maintained his strength. There is returning desire for food which has been very carefully given. There has been some return of the pain in the wound."

(Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow.

King's Strength Maintained.

London, June 27.—(12.15 a.m.)—Buckingham Palace was closed up for the night rather later than usual. It is understood, however, that the King's strength and progress are maintained and it is not anticipated that there will be any necessity of issuing another bulletin before half past ten this morning.

PEACEFUL SLEEP.

Queen-Wife Sat With Husband All Day and Left Him Only in Nature's Restorer's Hands.

London, June 26. —(Midnight.) — Those around King Edward continue to be astonished at his rapid recovery. The slightly annoying symptoms mentioned in the bulletin issued at 11 o'clock to-night are quite inconsequential compared to the fact that His Majesty again took food to-night and was afterwards allowed to smoke a cigar.

Queen Alexandra sat with her husband all the evening, and only left him after he had fallen into peaceful sleep.

Mention by the King's doctors of the care with which food is administered to the royal patient, and of the return of the pain in the wound, can safely be taken as merely an instance of their conscientious intention to make public the slightest adverse symptom however unimportant.

The King's courage and good temper are remarkable, and to-day he personally wrote several telegrams and one or two notes.

As evidence of the King's persistent refusal to efface himself from his connection with state affairs, and in corroboration of the statement that the physicians are satisfied with their patient's condition, besides personally opening telegrams Wednesday evening, King Edwaed then insisted upon a final inspection of the honor list. There was one appointment of considerable importance which had not been definitely decided at that time. The King approved this nomination, and gave the final order to the department interested, thus saving one of the recipients of honor from severe disappointment.

To-night King Edward is better in every way than he was last night or this morning. The return of pain in his wound is not accompanied by any appreciable increase of temperature. In fact, King Edward's doctors are inclined to regard the patient's pain and his appetite as healthy symptoms. To these hopes of a favorable issue of the King's illness, no less an authority than the Queen, gives encouragement. Writing to the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, to-day, to thank him for his expressions of sympatny of the city of London, Queen Alexandra says, through her secretary: "The Queen rejoices to think that the bulletin of this morning gives a favorable report of the King."

By the King's personal desire, the royal pardons of offenders in the army will go into effect just as if the coronation had occurred. This last instance which suitably brings to a close the day which was to have been notable in English history.

The most striking feature of Coronation Day, as it is still called, was the universal substitution of service of intercession for those of rejoicing. The services observed throughout the country and on board the great fleet that lies unrevewed in Portsmouth harbor.

With the favorable progress of the King, there is much discussion as to how the coronation will eventually be effected. While nothing has in any way been definitely settled, it appears that King Edward is likely to celebrate this event very quietly and with merely the ceremony that attends the opening of Parliament. This consists of a drive direct to Westminster Abbey, accompanied by a small escort, and a speedy return to Buckingham Palace, and it is rumored that no foreign princes or envoys will be especially invited for the occasion.

Providing King Edward maintains his present rate of improvement London will soon be emptied of its holiday crowd and the postponed coronation will be looked forward to as an occasion for sedate thanksgiving, bereft of pageantry.

More Coronation Honors.

London, June 27.—In addition to the Canadians honored with the distinction of Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, the Gazette also contains the names of Captain Gifford, Newfoundland; and Major Hudon, R.C.A., Kingston, who receive the decoration in recognition of their services in South Africa.

To be granted distinguished conduct medals, Strathcona Corps Sergt. S. A. Kelly, Sergt. P. G. Routh, Farrier Sergt. A. Gillies, Right Hon. Edmund Barton, Premier of Australia, is made an ordinary member of the first class Order of St. Michael and St. George.

CONFERENCE TO GO ON.

Colonial Premiers Hold an Organization Meeting Thursday.

London, June 27.—Despite the illness of the King, the preparations for the Colonial Conference are being proceeded with. It can be easily understood that a meeting of the colonial statesmen in conjunction with the imperial home advisers of His Majesty is not easily brought about. Therefore the present unique occasion it is felt, must be taken advantage of.

Accordingly, yesterday afternoon, the colonial premiers had a preliminary meeting at the Hotel Cecil. Sir Wilfrid Laurier presided. A sort of program was planned and various matters came in for informal discussion. Yesterday's conference also touched especially upon trade matters.

Yesterday's meeting will not interfere with Monday's conference at the colonial office which has not been postponed, despite the illness of the King. The colonial premiers, have, however, cancelled all public engagements till the crisis at Buckingham Palace is past

It was stated yesterday that the Canadian coronation contingent will return to the Dominion on July 3rd. They of course, share in the general disappointment incident upon the postponement of the coronation.

King a Kind Friend.

New York, June 27.— The World says: Prof. Goldwin Smith had much to do at Oxford with shaping the education of King Edward VII. The World asked Prof. Smith for his estimate of the King's character, and attributes, founded on relations begun when the King was in his early manhood. Prof. Smith pays a touching tribute to his old pupil in his telegram:

Toronto, Ont., June 25.

Very sorry that, in present crisis and considering personal relations, do not feel able to meet your wish. The King has always been a kind friend to his old perceptor.

A GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. J. W. Caldwell's Parents Celebrate Their Fiftieth Anniversary in Hope Township.

Mr. J. W. Caldwell, of Peterborough, has returned from Perrytown where he was attending the golden wedding of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Caldwell, of Hope. The Port Hope Guide gives the following account of the affair:

On Wednesday, 23rd, 1852, a quiet wedding took place at the house of the bride's parents, Garden Hill, the contracting parties being Mr. Samuel Caldwell, of Perrytown, and Miss Margaret Mulligan. The officiating minister was the late Rev. Mr. McCullough, the then pastor of the Port Hope circuit.

On Monday last, June 23rd, 1902, the 50th anniversary of that event was duly celebrated in a most worthy fashion in the presence of some 30 guests, at the present home of Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell, Perrytown, where continuously for half a century they have lived happy and prosperously, in the enjoyment of the filial affection of their family, the warm friendship of a wide circle of intimate friends and the highest esteem of the whole community.

The occasion was one of unusual interest and peculiar gratification. Congratulations were the order of the day, and were showered upon the worthy and venerable couple—who are both still hale and hearty—on their having arrived at the jubilee of their wedded life, and also the 73rd year of each of their natural lives.

The entire family of eight sons—with the exception of the eldest, now deceased—was present, with four of their wives and several grandchildren, Williard, of Tyrone; Erastus, of Zion; J. W., of Peterborough; T. M., of Emily; P. A., G.T.R. agent, Omemee; W. A., at home, and W. H., G.T.R. agent, Powassana.

A rather remarkable coincidence, and an interesting feature of the occasion was the presence of the original groomsman and bridesmaid, in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. James Dunbar of Perrytown. Among others there were also present Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Fee, of Cavan; Mrs. Fee, a sister of Mrs. Calwell, having also been present at the wedding fifty years ago; Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Caldwell of Port Hope; and the Rev. S. C. Moore, of Canton.

At the dinner hour the guests sat down to a sumptuous repast, the centre of the table being ornamented by a beautiful wedding cake, on which was indicated in gilt letters the respective dates of the original wedding and the present anniversary —1852 and 1902.

Many beautiful and valuable gifts betokened the tender regard which the sons still entertain for their father and mother, among others a very handsome and costly bedroom set of heavy dark oak.

Several photos were made on the lawn, of separate groups of the guests and of the family, after which an informal meeting was held, in which many interesting reminiscences were recalled, many expressions of good will were tendered and sincere praise and thanksgiving were offered to Almighty God for His kindly providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell have been worthy and active members of the Methodist church for over fifty years, both having united with it previous to their marriage. Mr. Caldwell has held an official position continuously for over fifty years, and has been a class leader for about forty years, a position which he still holds, and a capacity in which he is still most acceptable. He has been a lifelong temperance worker, and is an ardent prohibitionist. He has always evinced an intelligent interest in municipal and provincial politics, as well as every movement that had for its aim the moral and material advancement of the community.

AS TO THE POPULAR VOTE.

We hear a good deal from the Conservative press these days about the enormity of the Ross Government attempting to hold on to office in view of the fact that it did not secure a majority of the popular vote in the recent elections.

The cry is a silly one for the reason that the popular vote is distributed over 98 constituencies, and members of parliament are not returned on the basis of the aggregate vote, but on the vote by constituencies.

Under this system the Conservative party has usually been represented at Ottawa out of all proportion to its strength in the province, but we have never heard from its newspaper advocates in this province any protest because of this fact against minority representation. In this connection the appended statistics will be found most instructive;

Dominion Election Of—	Total Lib. Vote in Ontario.	Total Con. Vote polled in Ont.	Liberal Members in Ontario.	Con. Members in Ontario.
1882	184,555	188,316	33	54
1887	178,464	181,849	37	55
1891	184,036	183,172	44	48
1896	198,563	191,916	47	45
1900	207,482	215,775	37	55

In 1882 when the first general election after the gerrymander was held, the Liberals were only in a minority of 3,761 in the popular vote, but the Conservatives sent 54 members to Ottawa, while the Liberals sent only 35, or sixteen less. Had the principle of representation on the basis of the aggregate vote been maintained, the two parties would have been about equally represented.

A similar discrepancy prevailed as a result of the general elections of 1877, when the Conservatives with a majority of only 4,885 of the aggregate vote, sent to Ottawa 18 more representatives than their opponents.

In the general elections of 1891, the Liberals had a majority of the popular vote in this province, yet they were placed in a minority of four as regards representation at Ottawa.

In 1896 the Liberals had a majority of 3,637 of the popular vote, and a majority of two at Ottawa. This is the nearest example of representation in proportion to actual voting strength in the province which the record of Ontario representation at Ottawa affords.

In 1890 the Liberals were in a popular minority of 8,293, but the Conservative preponderance in representation was out of all proportion thereto, or 18.

After two general elections the Conservatives have been in a minority of the popular vote cast for representatives of the House of Commons, and save in one contest, they have been represented at Ottawa since 1882 largely in excess of what they were fairly entitled to.

In Ontario, as the result of a fair estimate, the Liberals are in a minority of about 4000 in the popular vote and they have a majority in the Legislative Assembly at the present time of three votes. There may be on the face of such figures something anomolous in this position of affairs, but such anomalies are always possible under our present system of representation, and it is as nothing compared with the anomolies which, thanks to the gerrymander of 1882, have so often prevailed in the matter of Ontario's representation at Ottawa — Brantford Expositor.

UNJUST TO ONTARIO.

(Toronto Telegram, Con.)

Ontario's public school system has nothing to fear from comparisons with any other school system on earth.

Comparative tests are uncertain, because the maker of comparisons is prone to favour his own country and his own ideas.

Ontario should not rest on the results of comparative tests. Let us measure what is against what ought to be, and keep up our ideals in order to keep up our achievements.

It is good to find fault with the Public school system. There is danger in too much self-satisfaction and there is at least equal danger in too much self-denunciation. The discussion in the Anglican Synod did no credit to the educational system, which formed the minds of most of the contributors to that discussion. It was not the Ontario Public schools which turned out the reverend defamer of his own countrymen, who is reported as daring to say;

"The Public schools no longer turn out moral beings but degenerates."

The "degenerates" who are turned out of the Ontario Public schools average up in all the human virtues as well as the "moral beings" who are the products of the voluntary or other schools which rest in the shadow of State churches in any country.

The Canadian may not be all that he ought to be. He has had great opportunities. He has fallen short of these opportunities, but the average man who comes out of Ontario homes and Ontario schools is not inferior to the average man of any nation on earth.

The Ontario Public school system can point to South Africa for proof that her pupils know how to die.

The Ontario Public school system is represented in Canada and the United States, and all over the world by pupils who have learned how to live. It is a pity that the various systems of education which are represented in the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto did not produce some scholar and thinker who would have taken the trouble to raise the voice of justice and fair play against the theorising of bigots.

THE USE OF OIL ON STREETS

(Montreal Daily Star.)

As for the unpaved streets—where it may be said the dust originates—some facts made public by Mr. Eldridge, assistant director of the Department of Good Roads Inquiries, Washington, D.C., would seem worth looking into. He strongly recommends the use of oil as a means of laying dust. He says the proper oil to use is what is known as residuum oil, which is usually discarded as useless.

"It has considerable body to it, and when sprinkled on the road, consolidates with the dust particles, forming a crust on the surface resembling leather, which is almost impervious to water."

He says when the oil is properly applied, the surface should last a year. Kerosene or petroleum, according to Mr. Eldridge, should never be used, on account of their volatile nature. In Persacola a fund was made up for the purpose of purchasing a quantity of the crude oil from the Texas oil fields. The first consignment of oil when placed on the streets proved so satisfactory that quantities have since been ordered.

It certainly is time we, in Montreal, made some earnest attempt to utilize the resources of the age to make our streets more respectable. The discomfort and ill-health caused by such an atmosphere of dust was realized last Sunday; the loss of money occasioned to shopkeepers in deterioration of stock every day that we do not have rain; the evil reputation the city is getting in the eyes of visitors—all these are considerations which go to prove how it would pay to have our city authorities do something. It is the veriest folly to pretend that what is now being done is satisfactory.

STOCK MARKETS.

The Stocks for Immediate Purchase.

Two Stocks for Immediate Purchase.

New York, June 26. — We again call your attention to the probable immediate market movement in certain issues, enumerating St. Paul and Penn. shares at present writing for immediate purchase; both of these issues are in our opinion on the eve of recording considerable advances. Possibly St. Paul will be the first one to commence its movement, in fact its accumulation has been under way for several days past. Some one is steadily and persistently absorbing the shares when poor news comes out. St. Paul marks but comparatively small recessions and is greedily purchased whenever offered. Last Tuesday after opening down upon the news of the postponement of the English coronation due to the illness of the King it then made a gain of nearly 2 points, losing part of it later on on disquieting rumours as to his condition. St Paul has expended in five years $26,000,000 upon its property charging same to operating expenses. It will in our opinion very shortly sell above 180, and it is only a question of a few months when it will be quoted above 200, barring accidents. A five point margin should hold purchase made at present prices; we urge you to buy some immediately, and hold it for a good rise. If you get an opportunity to purchase some more, say at a concession of five points, we believe it will be like finding money to do so. Penn. has been more or less slow, and in its market movement recently signs are abundant however that it has been picked up extensively since it sold last ex dividend by the inside interests. Whenever outside attention has been attracted to the shares by strength and the demand therefore they have been allowed to recede, and the buying temporarily stopped apparently discourage outside purchases. Once past over the demand from the same source is immediately renewed. These shares ought to sell well above 160 and very soon. Their market value has not kept pace with the improvement in other properties and they are bound to get their turn. The stock should sell above 175 this year. One thing is certain in purchasing either of these stocks; if owing to anything unforseen you should have them go against you you can be sure that they will come back again and excel in price your original purchase price. They classify amongst the best.

Our current favourite St. Paul overshadowed in market interest other issues. It made another day's extreme advance of about 2 points, falling off about a point from its best price on profit taking. The issue shows strong indication of going almost immediately higher. We continue to advise its purchase. Mop sold up to 109 5-8—a new high price for this stock. Coalers were all firm and in demand. The Man Bull party continued their purchases. U. P. insiders were buyers of their speciality. The Can Pac people struggled along but made no material progress. Reappearance of good buying was noted in the tractions. Steels and Sugars quiet. What little market there was was of the bull variety.

THE YOUNGEST STAR.

Newest and Most Brilliant of Luminaries—Only One of Her Kind Alive—Only Bareback Somersault Rider Before the Public.

Dallie Julian is a little lady who still wears her hair in pigtail style. She is not only young but extremely pretty. She is not only pretty but she is remarkably intelligent. She is better informed on general topics than a vast majority of women of twice her age, while her manners are those of one who has descended from generations of court and drawing-room life. She is sweet simplicity itself and absolutely free from any sort of affectation.

Dallie Julian might be well imagined to be a sweet girl graduate from a preparatory school. Not yet in long dresses she is famous. And fame has not spoiled her. In her class she is at the head. Despite her youth she is at the very head of one of the most difficult of all professions in which women engage—equestrianism. She is a circus rider. But there are circus riders and circus riders. Dallie Julian is the only rider of her sex now living who throws somersaults upon the bare back of a swiftly running horse. There have been only three of them in all circus history. She not only does this difficult thing but does it easily and gracefully, and must be very unlucky when she does not alight squarely upon her feet and maintain her balance.

Dallie Julian is one of the star riders of the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Enormous Shows United which will exhibit here soon and display the greatest list of star riders that has ever been seen in any show in this country. It numbers no less than twenty-three and the managers make the astonishing claim that no other show has a rider that is the equal to any one of them. And this little girl is at the top of the list. If we are to believe the claims of the managers of the shows the greatest rider of her sex who has ever been seen on a horse is this same modest and pretty little Dallie Julian.

TIMELY BUSINESS THOUGHTS.

Try advertising as a preventive of summer dullness. Some merchants can't get as many people into their stores at this season as they would like. They admit the impossibility and accept the inevitable, and it grows no better. Other merchants regret the tendency to stay at home in hot weather—and we shall get it yet, probably hotter than ever to make up for lost time—and try to create some enthusiasm over the articles they have bought—try to make people see that it is to their interest to buy even if the weather is warm. The only way to get at the one who wants to stay at home when the sun is hot, is to talk about things which will stir the sluggish spirit into activity. There are many things can be said of a stock in June and July to create business; there are many things which should be said to prevent dullness. It is the duty of the merchant to hustle in June to keep the people as active as possible. If for no other reason than the desire of doing good for others, the merchant should keep the interest up to as lively a pitch as possible. Make people think things are being done. Make them realize the energy you are putting forth. This makes them feel as if they ought to come out and and get what you have prepared for them. Energy is just as contagious as scarlet fever. Energy can be instilled into people at this season of the year. Dullness will not follow if the activity is what it should be. Energy will be observed when the merchant starts the contagion. Push for what you get, keep after the stragglers, work for months, and the end will be satisfactory. The hustle of the past two months kept the business up to a higher point than you had expected. The only way to keep it up during the next six weeks is to continue to hustle. Keep after the people and see that when you land them in your store you give them values sufficient to compensate them for the coming. It pays as well now as it would in December. — Advertising World.

SAFE GUIDE.

Nature generally knows what is best, and when it shrinks from the itchy, irritating wool, we can safely accept its guidance.

Wool was never intended to wear next the body, and its use as an undergarment is of comparatively recent origin, due to false reasoning.

MAHAFFY'S APPEAL.

Offset by Dr. Bridgeland's Who Asks That Ballots Counted Out by Conservative Candidate's Brother Be Allowed.

Toronto, June 27.—Arthur Arnold Mahaffy, the Conservative candidate in the recent Muskoka election, has appealed against the return of Dr. Bridgeland, the Liberal member-elect on the ground that fifty-five of the ballots should have been disallowed and 122 others which were given Dr. Bridgeland should have been counted for him.

There is a counter appeal from Dr. Bridgeland against the decision of Judge Mahaffy of Bracebridge throwing out 83 ballots which were marked for him. He also claims that five ballots at different polling places should have been allowed for him, and that all the ballots at Polling Districts Nos 17 and 18, Medora and Ward, should be counted.

The eighty-three ballots were thrown out in Medora and Wood by Judge Mahaffy, because the deputy-returning officers neither signed their names nor placed their initials on any of them. There were forty-eight good ballots in No. 17 and two rejected ballots. Thirty-five ballots were thrown out in No. 18, making eighty-three all told which were rejected. In No. 17 the deputy-returning officer whose name is Henry Cully Gay, simply put H. G. on the ballots, while his initials are H. C. G. William D. McNaughton, who was deputy in No. 18, put nothing at all on the ballots.

These appeals will come before Mr. Justice McLennan at Osgoode Hall at 11 o'clock on Monday.

The Prince Edward protest will be heard on Saturday at 2 p.m. by Mr. Justice Osler.

A Curious Tree.

There is a peculiar tree in the forests of central India which has most curious characteristics. The leaves of the tree are of a highly sensitive nature and so full of electricity that whoever touches one of them receives an electric shock. It has a very singular effect upon a magnetic needle and will influence it at a distance of even seventy feet. The electrical strength of the trees varies according to the time of day, it being strongest at midday and weakest at midnight. In wet weather its powers disappear altogether. Birds never approach the tree, nor have insects ever been seen upon it.

Why Rheumatism is Like Catarrh.

Both are inflamations. The former of the muscle tissue, the latter of the mucous membrane. The only way to cure either is by a course of blood purifying and blood enriching treatment. Merrill's System Tonic is the most thorough blood purifier and at the same time the most rapid blood making remedy known. 50 pleasant-to-take doses for 50c. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

"GOD SAVE THE KING"

The Universal Prayer Offered by the Whole World.

SUBSTITUTED FOR CORONATION

A Solemn Service, Attended By a Distinguished Assemblage, at St. Paul's—India, Australia, Canada, Africa, Everywhere Where Britons Congregated, Hold Impressive Supplicatory Services.

London, June 27. — At the hour yesterday when the King should have been crowned, a great and distinguished gathering, almost identical with that which would have sat in Westminster Abbey, gathered in St. Paul's Cathedral. The approaches to the cathedral were lined with silent throngs, through which drove peers and peeresses, colonial premiers, foreign envoys, ambassadors and members of the House of Commons, all in sombre clothes. In the chancel were the leading members of the nobility and some American officials. In the nave about a thousand of the Westminster Abbey ticket-holders, mainly women, were seated.

Shortly before noon the big western doors were swung open, sunlight streamed in, and the Duke of Cambridge, leaning heavily on the arm of an equerry, walked to the chancel. As twelve o'clock struck there arose from the far end of the nave the clear notes of the opening sentences of the litany, chanted by four of the cathedral clergy. Their tones were in such unison that they seemed to emanate from one powerful voice. The choir took up the responses. At each supplication the procession, headed by the cross, advanced a few steps and then stood still until the responses were completed. Through the kneeling congregation the choir advanced to the chancel steps. A score of the clergy followed, and behind them were ten bishops in gorgeous robes. Then came the Archbishop of York, the Most Rev. William Dalrymple MacLagan; the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Rev. Frederick Temple, and the Lord Mayor, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, the corporation in full state, bringing up the rear.

With evident feeling the choir sang the three psalms of intercession, after which the Bishop of Stepney, the Right Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, read the lesson, Isaiah, chapter 38, verse 10: "I said in the cutting off of my days, I shall go to the gates of the grave; I am deprived of the residue of my years."

The Bishop of London, the Right Rev. Arthur F. W. Ingram, from the altar steps, read the prayer, "O Lord save the King." His voice rang out to the furthest recesses of the dome, and brought a whole-souled response from the choir and the congregation.

The anthem and the singing of the hymn, "Thine arm, O Lord, in days of old was strong to heal and save," and Psalm 51 concluded the short service, whereupon the Bishop of London, surrounded by the archbishops and bishops, from the altar steps impressively pronounced the benediction.

For a few moments complete silence reigned and all heads were bowed in prayer, after which the almost blind Archbishop of Canterbury was carefully led down the steps, the procession re-formed and the congregation went out into the sunlight, gladly discussing the wording of the latest bulletin from Buckingham Palace.

Simultaneously a similar service was conducted at St. Margaret's church, Westminster. It was largely attended by Cabinet Ministers, peers and members of the House of Commons, and was concluded with singing "God Save the King."

In most of the churches throughout the land yesterday the services which were to commemorate the coronation of King Edward are taking place in the changed form of intercessory services.

THROUGHOUT THE EMPIRE.

Impressive Supplicatory Services Held by Britons Everywhere.

London, June 27.—From India, Australia, Canada and Africa, everywhere where Britons congregated, telegrams announce the holding of impressive supplicatory services.

Services in Toronto.

Toronto, June 27.—In a number of the churches yesterday, special intercessory services were held, invoking divine mercy on behalf of the King in his present serious illness.

In St. James' Cathedral a large number assembled to take part in the service, among whom were many business men and young men and women employed in the down-town factories and stores. The gathering sang Rev. John Gurney's hymn of supplication, "Great King of Nations, Hear Our Prayer." This was followed by the litany, in which special petitions were offered for the recovery of the King and for divine strength to sustain him in his sufferings.

Rev. Canon Cayley officiated at the service in St. Paul's Church, East Bloor street. There was a large congregation.

The Baptists held a service in the Sunday school hall of Jarvis street Baptist Church. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Thomas, prayed that God's blessing rest upon the stricken sovereign, and that His Majesty might be restored to health. Short addresses touching on the life of the King were made by Rev. P. C. Parker, Rev. W. J. Stott, Rev. Dr. Stewart, Rev. Dr. Weeks, Rev. Mr. Warnicker and Rev. Mr. King.

A large congregation attended the service in Knox Church. Rev. Alexander McGillivray, Moderator of Toronto Presbytery, presided. The doxology was sung, after which Rev. Mr. McGillivray asked for the blessing of Almighty God upon the stricken sovereign. Rev. Principal Caven made a short address. Thirty years ago, he said, the great British Empire prayed for his restoration when he was ill, that he might be a help and a comfort to his illustrious mother.

Haly Molony officiating, and all joined in the Lord's Prayer, after which the prayers for the sick were read, the benediction pronounced and God Save the King solemnly sung. The men quietly returned to their lines.

Service in Jamaica.

LOST FIFTY POUNDS.

The Terrible Experience of an Old Lady Through the Starvation of Dyspepsia —A Very Aggravated Case.

There is no more highly respected family in the neighbourhood of Lochaber, N. S., than that of Mrs. M. Sears.

The good lady, who is now over 70 years of age, had enjoyed good health up to a few years ago, when her stomach went wrong.

Acute Indigestion came upon her in her old age and so badly that she nearly died. As it was she lost over fifty pounds in weight before she found out about Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and was cured.

In her letter on the subject Mrs. Sears makes the following very strong statements:

"I was a great sufferer from Dyspepsia, experiencing fearful pains in the pit of my stomach. I lost about fifty pounds in weight because of my not being able to eat anything; indeed I was almost starved. My case was a very acute one.

"I tried all kinds of medicine but got no relief whatever.

"I used a stomach pump several times and did everything I could to get better.

"I went away to Newfoundland for some months hoping that the change might do me good, but I came home no better and quite hopeless.

"I saw Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets advertised, but as I had tried the doctors and almost everything else without any good results I had little faith that they would help me.

"I had failed from 156 pounds until I weighed less than 136 pounds before I commenced to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I got a box in Antigonish and they gave such relief that I sent for four more, which I used. Now I am cured, I gained in weight, health and strength from the very first, and am to-day well and strong.

"Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the best doctor for Dyspepsia or Stomach Trouble."

By falling down a flight of stairs in the Canada Life Building in Toronto Thursday morning, Alex. Martin, a miner, living at 177 Carlton street, received such terrible injuries that the doctors at the Emegency Hospital say that he cannot recover.

Alfred Gale, Jordan, a Grand Trunk section man, while working on the double track at Jordan, near Hamilton, was struck by the express train from the east and thrown a considerable distance. His left leg was broken in two places, and his skull was crushed in.

EXCURSION OF THE Y. M. G.

The Weather was Against Them, but a big Crowd was in Attendance.

The annual excursion of the Young Men's Guild of St. Andrew's church to the Kawartha Lakes was held, yesterday, under circumstance which would have been most discouraging to almost any other organisation. But the friends of the Guild rallied around it and the result was that, although the weather was not of the best, yet quite an enjoyable day was spent at the lakes and the excursion was a financial success, as well as a success from the standpoint of the young men, who have always endeavoured to make things pleasant for the patrons of their annual outing.

The Malorana Italian Orchestra was brought down from Toronto especially for the excursion, and their music was most pleasing. The excursionists took dinner at Burleigh and after a stop at Juniper and Mount Julian landed at McCracken's for supper.

THE MACCABEES EXCURSION.

A Good Gathering of the Members and Their Friends Spend the Day on Stony Lake.

In spite of the discouraging weather nearly one hundred excursionists took in the trip to Stony Lake on Thursday, under the auspices of the Knights and Ladies' Order of the Maccabees. This excursion was looked upon as a favourite before the holiday was cancelled, and it must have been a great disappointment to many that the holiday was declared off. The excursion, however, was carried out as near as possible to the programme and the committee have to thank Capt Scollard and his crew for the consideration shown them under the circumstances. The Majestic left Lakefield on the arrival of the morning train, and the sail was continued on up through Young's Point, calling at McCracken's, Mount Julian and Burleigh.

An orchestra was on board and dancing was the favourable pastime. Dinner was taken at Mt. Julian, and after sailing to some of the principal points on the lake, the steamer returned to Lakefield in time to connect with the 6.45 train. The party arrived home quite early, satisfied with their "windy" trip. The committee did all in their power to make the breezy day a pleasant one for their party.

DR. LIONEL KING'S WEDDING

He Espouses a Fair American Girl—Three Canadian Boys as His Groomsmen.

A social event of unusual interest took place at Cass City, Michigan, on Wednesday last, when Dr. Lionel King, of Caro, Michigan, formerly of Peterborough, was married to Miss Ora M. Wickware, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sheldon Wickware, of that city.

The ceremony, which took place at half-past one o'clock at the handsome residance of the bride's parents, was performed by Rev. Albert Torbit, of the Cass City Presbyterian church, in the presence of about one hundred and fifty guests, including friends from Peterborough, Toronto, Caro, Pontiac, Saginaw, Bad Axe, Oxford, Vassar, Tennessee, New York, Chicago and Florida.

The spacious drawing rooms were magnificently decorated for the occasion with cut flowers and foliage plants. The bay windows were banked high with ferns and palms, and the ceremony was performed beneath a huge bell of roses and ferns.

Rev. Mr. Torbit entered the room first, followed by Mr. George Flavelle of Toronto, and Dr. Robert Conroy, of Battle Creek, Michigan, formerly of Peterborough, who acted as groomsmen. Dr. King followed, accompanied by Mr. Fred Bunting of Toronto, who also supported him. Misses Madeline Sully, Maris Brooks, and Helen Jones of Cass City, and Miss Reta Hooper, of Caro acting in the capacity of flower girls, came next, strewing the carpet with blossoms. Little Kathleen Torbit, carrying the ring in a basket of roses, preceded the bridesmaids, Miss Winnifred McLinton, of Jansen, Florida, and the maids of honour, Miss Gertrude Schoole, of Saginaw, and Miss Florence Clarke of Cass City. The bride entered on the arm of her father as Miss Mamie Whalen sang De Koven's "O, Promise Me." Dolwin's wedding march and also that of Mendelssohn was played by Miss Laura Wickware.

The bride was beautifully gowned in a handsome costume of peau de soie over white silk with old point lace applique studded with pearls. She also wore a pearl collar and necklace, the gift of the groom, and carried white roses. Miss McLinton, who acted as bridesmaid, was very prettily attired in pink organdie and carried pink roses. The maids of honor were costumed in similar dainty gowns.

The groom's gift to the young ladies assisting the bride consisted of very handsome pearl crescents and to the groomsmen he gave pretty little turquoise crescents with pearl stars for stick pins. The bride's father gave her an exquisite hand-painted Haviland China dinner set. From Mr. Bunting she received a dozen silver spoons; from Dr. Conroy, a cut glass water pitcher; from Mr. Flavelle a gold berry spoon; from the young men of Peterborough, a heavy cut glass water set, and from the Caro young men a sterling silver teapot and spoons. A number of gifts were received from Dr. King's old Peterborough friends and the gifts received from the bride's relatives and friends included a sterling silver service of plate and many other rich offerings.

During the afternoon a wedding dejeuner on a magnificant scale was served, after which Dr. and Mrs. King left for a trip to Detroit, Buffalo, New York and the Eastern States.

Very hearty congratulations and expressions of good will are extended from many Peterborough friends.

It is merely painting the lily to enlarge on the reputation of "DARDANELLES," a pure Egyptian cigarette. Packed in Silver, Cork and Plain tips. Sold everywhere, 15 cts. per package.

Miss Gumpricht has been very successful, as usual, with her studies, having passed her organ examinations she also obtained the highest prize for general proficiency in piano playing given by Messrs. Wiedheimer, of Toronto.

The Kingston Whig says:—Capt. J. W. Garvin, B.A., Peterborough, the popular quartermaster of the 3rd Dragoons, now in camp at Barriefield, is a man of literary attainment. He has published a small book of poems, and has been a frequent contributor to the press. He is now engaged in his latest literary effort, viz., the editing of a complete edition of the poems of Isabella Valancey Crawford, to whose memory a monument was recently erected in the cemetery at Peterborough. Many of her poems are beautiful compositions, full of tenderness and fancy. She died before the the opportunity came to put these in book form, and Mr. Garvin has undertaken the task. Only one member of the Crawford family survives—Stephen Crawford, a brother of the poetess, who resides at Thompson, on the north shore of lake Huron. He has placed all the poems and manuscripts of his late sister in the hands of Mr. Garvin, who expects to have the book on the market in time for the Christmas trade.

The committee appointed to confer with the Board of Education and the Separate School Board reported, and the general opinion of the meeting was that it would be advisable to introduce the subjects, but there was some anxiety expressed as to what percentage the Ashburnham School Board should bear in the matter, providing the three boards entered into the scheme jointly.

IN LATEST SPORTING CIRCLES

The T. A. S. Played a Tie Game Campbellford.

The First Team Shoot in Connection With the Canadian Military Rifle League.

GOLF.

Three members of the Peterborough Golf Club, Messrs. S. Ray, R. M. Hamilton and J. H. Burnham, took a trip to Port Hope yesterday to play a game of golf. They enjoyed themselves immensely, winning by 3 up. Mr. Hamilton played a very fine game, winning, making the round in 85.

LACROSSE.

A meeting of the City Lacrosse League was called for yesterday afternoon to arrange for the game which had been called off the night before on account of the rain. There was no representative of the T.A.S. present and consequently there was no meeting.

The second team of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society journeyed to Campbellford yesterday, where they crossed sticks in a friendly game with the team of that town. The match was played in a drizzling rain, and after eighty minutes play the game resulted in a tie, each team having scored a goal. The T.A.S. notched a goal, however, just as the umpire had called a halt, owing to the fact that Jack Mulligan had met with an accident, but it did not count. There was a fair attendance at the match, which was said to have been a really excellent exhibition of the game, both teams playing first class lacrosse. The second T.A.S. team showed remarkable improvement in their style of play, and by constant practice it is confidently expected that the boys will develop into first-class stick handlers. Gillman in goal is credited with playing gilt-edge lacrosse, and McCormack at second defence took in everything that came his way, and was the speediest man on the field. The other members of the team also did their duty in their respective positions. Jack McNichol was the lucky man in scoring the goal for the T.A.S. in three minutes from the face off. Mr. George Lynch acted in the capacity of field captain with splendid satisfaction.

Campbellford possesses a team that gives promise of making things interesting in lacrosse circles. They play fast scientific lacrosse with plenty of combination work. The game has been dormant in that town for some time, and an effort is being made to revive interest in the game. Mr. Ed. Chrowe, who acted in the capacity of field captain, yesterday, and Messrs. Dryden and Snelgrove are the gentlemen who have this year's team in hand, and to these the T.A.S. team are indebted for the courteous treatment accorded them yesterday. The boys were delighted with their visit and will endeavour to reciprocate when Campbellford visits this town for the return game. Mr. H. B. R. Dryden, editor of the Despatch, made an excellent referee, his decisions being entirely satisfactory in every respect.

The following players accompanied the T.A.S. second team;

Gilman, goal; Whaley, point; Pope, cover point; Doris, 1st defence; McCormack, 2nd defence; Mulligan, centre; O'Brien, 1st home; Doherty, 2nd home; Doris, 3rd home; McNichol, inside home; O'Brien, outside home.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien accompanied the boys to Campbellford, and was, together with Rev. F. McGuire, Hastings, and Rev. Father McCloskey, Campbellford, an interested spectator at the game. Mr. Jack Dennaird was coach yesterday for the boys.

A well known gentleman about town has offered to put up a valuable silver cup for competition between the T.A.S. second team and Campbellford.

CRICKET.

The following players are asked to be at the oval on Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m.;

Team No. 1. — A. Boucher, F. Bradburn, Hammond, G. Rogers, J. Lundy, H. Walkey, B. Hall, G. Ferguson, N. Miller, R. Munro, Lowry.

Team No. 2. — C. Stapleton, Hal Burnham, Smith, Geo. Lundy, Mason, Gerald Hall, H. Wood, R. Cameron, A. Moore, F. Orr, C. Ackerman.

A scratch match will be in order and it is asked that everyone turn out.

THE NEW RINK.

There will likely be a meeting of the shareholders of the new skating rink company some night next week. The two promoters, Messrs. R. H. Kells and J. S. Knapman, have been very successful in soliciting subscriptions for stock, and sufficient money has been secured to guarantee the success of the venture.

The promoters have options on several choice lots and a selection of these will likely be made at a meeting next week.

Mr. Blackwell, architect has prepared plans of the new structure, and they will be submitted for approval at the meeting next week. Many have been wondering at what stage the proceedings in regard to the new rink are, and the Examiner is able to state the above facts.

BASEBALL.

The Auburns went down to Jubilee, yesterday, where they played against the Rosseath team winning by a score of 6 to 5 and an innings. The Auburn team was composed as follows:—McCurry, p and 3b; Belleghem c; Johnston 1b; Davidson 2b; Pargell 3b and p; Foy rf; Cassan cf; Shaw lf.

AT THE RANGES.

Another match in connection with the Canadian Military Rifle League was held yesterday afternoon, at Curtis' Ranges, when the members of the first team tried their hand. The scores were as follows;

	200	300	600	Tl.
C Curtis, C Co...	32	26	33	91
G B Cameron, D Co.....	33	26	32	91

There are three of the scores not included in the above, the members not having handed in their cards.

DR. McALPINES' STRANGE THEORY.

He Excuses Doctors for not Reporting Fever and Says Better Post no Placards.

Lindsay Watchman-Warder.

A secret meeting of the Board of Health was held on Monday night. Dr. McAlpine, the medical health officer, was criticised for not having placarded McConnell's hotel when the fever was there. The doctor said he had had the patient isolated in the hotel; but Mr. Staples insisted that the law required that houses in which the disease was, should be placarded, and that hotels should come under the law as well as other houses.

Mr. Mills said it was disgraceful that the doctors had allowed scarlet fever to spread as it had.

Dr. McAlpine said that the doctors had to look after their own interests. If a man insisted on reporting the disease he would become unpopular and lose custom. He did not think there would be so many cases of the fever if there was no placarding. He would not placard on Kent street as on other streets because it would hurt a business house to be placarded. He urged that an isolation hospital be built.

JOSHUA SANDFORD STILL LIVES

Despite a Second Cave-in, After Which Work Was Abandoned For Three Hours —His Voice Heard Faintly at Three O'clock This (Friday) Morning— Rescue Then Expected in Half an Hour.

Paris, June 27.—(3 a. m.)—Joshua Sandford still lives and with chances of release considerably brighter than at any time since the well caved in on Tuesday afternoon.

At noon yesterday, the earth over the unfortunate man sank considerably, and all hopes of rescuing him alive were abandoned. Some time after, however, he was heard rapping again, and work began more vigorously than ever to effect his release. He now taps on the brick wall of the old well, instead of on the pipe as formerly, and can be heard quite distinctly by those at the bottom of the tunnel, through which, it is hoped, he will be brought. At 10 o'clock last night, it was thought they were about opposite the place he occupies, and preparations were made to penetrate the old well, which is about three feet from the vertical tunnel just dug. While these preparations were being made, his voice was heard, but so indistinctly that nothing could be gathered of what he was trying to say.

After a little more digging, the words "Oh! Oh!" were, feebly heard, as though they were whispered. Still nearer dug his rescuers, and at midnight he was able to say that he was still alive, but he implored them to be quick. It is thought at the time of writing that about four more feet will have to be taken out of the bottom of the tunnel before it will be prudent to penetrate the old well, but it is hoped that before many hours he will be rescued. Hundreds of people have been on the scene all day, and during the evening the road was lined for half a mile on each side with vehicles. Silence seizes the entire crowd whenever an announcement is to be made, and news is eagerly waited for.

At 8 o'clock Thursday morning it was reported that the diggers had reached a point on the level with the imprisoned man, and that in two or three hours a tunnel would be excavated through to him.

The cave-in came so suddenly that it was hard to understand that all the efforts were in vain. Sandford communicated to those above him that he was well and that he would be able to hold out for a day longer if such a long time were necessary, and those above him wondered at the wonderful courage he had shown in the face of what was almost certain awful death. He was made to understand that the work was being done as rapidly as possible, and that it was being kept up all the time. He, himself, never lost hope.

Towards the end he appeared to be getting anxious from the frequency with which he tapped the pipe, and those above cheered him on as much as they could. Finally they told him that they men were about to reach him, and five minutes later the earth caved in upon him, and there was no more tapping for a time.

The father of the imprisoned man, whose home is in Galt, visited the scene quite by accident on Wednesday afternoon. He had not heard of the cave-in, and went to the Skelly farm to see his son. Then he was told of what had happened, and was entirely overcome. Afterwards he returned to his home in Galt, being told that he could do nothing, and that there were those there that would do all the work that was possible.

City Engineer Jones of Brantford was sent for on Tuesday afternoon, and he has remained there, directing the operations, ever since the accident occurred, never getting any rest and being unwilling to leave.

The work of rescue continued without intermission up till 3 o'clock this (Friday) morning, and will be continued with vigor until Sandford is rescued dead or alive. It is expected in half an hour.

The Age of Brain Work.

"In these days, half our diseases come from the neglect of the body in the overwork of the brain. In this railway age the wear and tear of labour and intellect go on without pause or self pity. We live longer than our forefathers but we suffer more. They fatigued only the muscles, we exhaust the finer strength of the nerves." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest medicine of this age because it is best suited to the needs of the present day. It restores revitalizes wasted nerve cells and makes the pale, weak and exhausted strong and healthy and vigorous.

ALL QUIET AT MINES.

Seventh Week of Strike Seems to Have Developed Into Waiting.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 27.—The seventh week of the great strike finds the situation extremely quiet, so far as the miners are concerned. Nothing has been given out at headquarters since the last statement of President Mitchell, leaving the men with nothing to do but wait developments, which they are doing in the most creditable manner. No disturbances have been reported throughout the district during the present week.

Paterson, N.J., June 27.—The General Committee of the different branches of the silk industry met last night and declared against a general strike.

Another Liner Ashore.

Montreal, June 27.—The Nassau St. Lawrence liner Indiana, from Montreal to Antwerp, ran ashore yesterday morning at Baul Island on the Labrador coast, and already a good deal of damage has been done. The ship had 150,000 bushels of grain, 21,120 bushels of peas, 1,... head of cattle, 457 sheep, and 4,... bales of hay.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be cured. Catarrhozone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from impaired hearing, deafness, head noises and ringing in the ears, are advised to inhale Catarrhozone, and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. Rice Case Before Cabinet

Ottawa, June 26.—T. C. Robinette, K.C., of Toronto, waited on Hon. Charles Fitzpatrick, Minister of Justice, yesterday, and laid the case of Fred Lee Rice, sentenced to be hanged at Toronto on July 18 for the murder of County Constable Boyd, before him for executive clemency. Mr. Robinette urged that the capital sentence should not be carried out, because the jury were unable to declare that Rice fired the fatal shot, but found him guilty upon the ground of common design. The Minister gave Mr. Robinette an attentive hearing.

The Cabinet has declined to interfere and Rice will hang on the 18th July.

OLD PEOPLE'S FAVOURITE.

A Medicine That Invigorates the Kidneys and Liver, Takes Away the Pains and Aches and Regulates the Action of the Bodily Organs, Strong Recommendations for

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The experience of Mr. Brown, as stated in his letter below, is similar to that of scores of men and women who feel old age creeping in upon them. The Kidneys grow weak and inactive, the back aches, there are deposits in the urine, and pain and smarting in passing water. The legs swell and there come pains and aches not unlike rheumatism.

Under such circumstances old people turn to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for relief and cure, and are not disappointed. They have learned by repeated trial that they can depend on Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills every time, and consequently they have become known as the old people's favourite medicine.

Mr. John Brown, 66 Nelson street, Ottawa, Ont., writes; "I am getting up in years and have been a hard worker all my life; I am now beginning to fail. For some time past I have thought there was something wrong with my kidneys. I seemed to bloat up, was very short of breath, and feared heart disease, although I was told there was nothing wrong with my heart. I got so bad that I had to do something.

"Hearing of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, I began using them, and by the time I had used up the first box I felt considerably improved. I continued using this medicine and today feel ten years younger. I am strong and hearty and do not suffer from my foreign ailment. I consider Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills an excellent medicine for old people."

There are people in nearly every town, village and country side road who have proved the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Ask your friends or neighbours about them. One pill a dose; 25c a box. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 11

A HONEYMOON CLOUD.

Why the Bride Feared Her Husband Did Not Love Her.

"It was pretty hard to have the honeymoon clouded before we had been married two hours," complained a newly married man. "Fact is, though, the excitement of the wedding day took away the little sense I had remaining.

"We were married at noon and, after dodging the customary rice and old shoes, left for the station. We had barely time to catch our train, and I rushed up to the ticket window at once. Then, once more, we had to run the gauntlet of friends, who think it smart to throw rice down one's collar and have it sift down into one's shoes.

"We got into the train at last, and when it started I heaved a sigh of relief. When the collector came round for tickets, I handed mine over. After looking at it for a moment he asked me if the lady was traveling with me.

"That was the last straw, and I snapped out for him to mind his own business.

"'That is what I am trying to do,' he answered coolly. 'One more ticket, please.'

"Then it flashed upon me that in the hurry and excitement of the moment I had forgotten I had a wife. I paid the other fare and tried to laugh it off, but the look that my wife gave me will linger with me as long as I live. It took me two hours to argue her out of the impression that I didn't love her any more, and she isn't fully satisfied yet."

The Habits of the Robin.

Let us hide behind that clump of blackberry bushes and watch the parent birds as they come to feed their young. There comes the father robin now. You can distinguish him from the mother by his darker plumage. You will notice that in coming with the food he alights on a particular twig, hops along a particular branch and alights on a particular side of the nest. If you watched him for a week, you would probably see him approach the nest in precisely the same way each time. Now here comes the mother, a lighter colored bird, with gray on the back of her head. You see that she reaches the nest by quite a different route and alights upon the other side of it, and she will do this over and over and over again. Like men and women, birds acquire habits which they rigidly adhere to unless something happens to prevent them.—Ernest Harold Baynes in Woman's Home Companion.

Honest Mistake.

The story is told of a little New England girl the workings of whose Puritan conscience involved her in difficulties on one occasion.

She was studying mental arithmetic at school and took no pleasure in it. One day she told her mother, with much depression of spirit, that she had "failed again in mental arithmetic," and on being asked what problem had proved her undoing she sorrowfully mentioned the request for the addition of "nine and four."

"And didn't you know the answer, dear?" asked her mother.

"Yes'm," said the little maid; "but, you know, we are to write the answers on our slates, and before I thought I made four marks and counted up, 'Ten, 'leven, twelve, thirteen,' and then, of course, I knew that wasn't mental, so I wrote twelve for the answer to be fair."

Hats in Church.

"Time was," says the London Chronicle, "when men wore their hats in church, and Pepys evidently considered it an unnecessary piece of strictness to insist on the bare head in church. In his diary for Nov. 17, 1661, he has the entry, 'To church and heard a simple fellow upon the praise of church musique and exclaiming against men's wearing their hats on in church.'

"On Sept. 28 following he went to the French church at the Savoy, where 'the minister do preach with his hat off, I suppose in further conformity with our church.'

"Probably it was about this date that the custom of removing hats in the church began."

Glad There Was Something.

"There are not a few people who take a pitiable and morbid delight in believing that they are assailed by an incurable disease which must shortly close their careers," observed a doctor.

"I am sure there is something the matter with my lungs. Please tell me the truth," said a very anxious old lady to her physician the other day.

The latter made a careful examination and replied, "I find that your lungs are in a normal condition."

The patient, with a deep sigh of resignation, asked, "And about how long can I expect to live with them in that condition?"

Cassidy—Indade Oi am. It makes me feel great to think av the turrible toot'ache Oi had lasht noight.

Casey—Phwhy should thot make ye so happy?

Cassidy—Bekase Oi hoven't got it this mornin', thot's phwhy.

What is Sin?

Recently a neighboring pastor was preaching to the children in our church. After asking many questions and impressing on the minds of the children that they must be saved from sin he asked the question, "What is sin?"

A bright little boy, six years old, quick as thought replied, "Chewing, smoking, cursing and tearing your pants."

Condensation.

"How did you happen to be so small?" asked the angular female who had accompanied her curiosity to the dime museum.

"My nurse stuffed me with condensed milk when I was a kid," replied the midget.

MISSED THE PARTY.

Why One Girl Had to Keep Secluded For Over a Week.

They were two pretty girls, and when they happened to meet on one of the quiet streets of the city the girl in gray turned and walked in the direction the other one had taken.

"Now, let me know all about the party," said the one who had turned. "I've been just dying to see you and have you tell me."

"Oh, but I wasn't there at all," said her companion. "This is the first time I've been out of the house for more than a week."

"Why, have you been ill?" her friend inquired, surprised and solicitous.

"No, I really think it was worse than that," she replied.

"You know I'm a little proud of my hair, for it's my one redeeming point"—modestly—"and because it is naturally wavy it is always fluffiest after it has been shampooed.

"A day or two before the party I washed my hair, using what I thought was borax in the water. When I attempted to dry my erstwhile 'bonnie brown curls' they were stringy and hard and looked as if they had been frozen in wisps. Then to my horror I discovered that I had used powdered alum in the water. It took me a whole week to get it out of my hair. I missed the party I had set my heart upon attending and wouldn't let any of my friends see me, for I was a perfect fright!"

Sins of the Tongue.

The sins of the tongue all point to the necessity and profit of self mastery. There is danger in the tongue that often brings the deepest sorrow to innocent ones, as well as throws a reflection on a pure character. If this confession of failure and magnifying of the office of the tongue seem exaggerated, let any one sit down quietly and think of the sins and cruelties of human speech. The careless words which no repentance can call back again, the rash promises which it has cost us so much to fulfill, the expression of the lower nature which has shamed the higher, the confessions of evil and yielding to falsehood, the hot and angry words which sober thought condemn—these are some of the perils of the tongue. On the other hand, like most of the uses of the world which turn so easily to evil, the tongue may be the instrument of great and lasting good.

A Rejected Novel.

Before he had achieved fame the French novelist Xavier de Montepin, on concluding a long and elaborate tale of adventure took it, full of hope, to a publisher, who promptly declined it on even the most advantageous terms, to the writer's poignant mortification. Twenty years afterward this identical publisher besought at his hands a sensational story, one of those serials which were the delight of grisettes, offering any price within reason. "Well," said De Montepin, "I will oblige you, but my terms must be somewhat heavy. I want £4,000." After many protests it was paid.

In telling the story De Montepin used to add, "The best of the business was that it was the very same story which he had previously rejected and which I had in various directions endeavored in vain to dispose of."

Thackeray as a Showman.

In Thackeray's case the justification of artificial names, if it be right to speak of justification, lies in this, that with all the solid reality of the life portrayed we are never allowed to lose sight of the author and his art in portraiture. He is ever at hand to underline the snobbery or laugh off the pathos. There is a strong strain of the satirist in him, and satire is akin to allegory. There is even a strain of the caricaturist ready to emerge in the midst of his noblest art.

He is especially fond of putting on the airs and graces of the showman. His preface to "Vanity Fair" is headed "Before the Curtain," and this great novel of real life concludes with "Come, children, let us shut up the box and the puppets, for our play is played out." And we accept Thackeray's showman's humor.

What We Owe to Cockfighting.

The now disreputable amusement of cockfighting, which was once respectable enough to divide with scholarship and archery the attention of Roger Ascham, has provided the language with "crestfallen," "in high feather" and Shakespeare's "overcrow" (cf. to crow over). "To show the white feather" is from the same source, since white feathers in a gamecock's tail are a sign of impure breeding. Often the origin of such words or phrases has been quite forgotten, but when traced discloses their true character at once. "Fair play" is still recognized as a figure from gambling, but "foul play," now specialized to "murder," is hardly felt as a metaphor at all.

Health and Hope.

"He who has health has hope; and he who has hope has everything." But hope flees at the approach of kidney disease with the dreadful pains which accompany it. With the flesh gradually failing, the back aching, and the despair comes to victims of this ailment, only the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will restore hope, confidence and health. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box.

He may sit with his hat on in courts of justice, and should he be liable to the last penalty of the law he can demand a silken instead of a hempen rope.

Sorry He Spoke.

When some ladies in Charleston were eulogizing Colonel Washington, it is said that Tarleton replied, with a scornful air: "I would be very glad to get a sight of Colonel Washington. I have heard much talk of him, but have never yet seen him."

"Had you looked behind you at the battle of Cowpens," rejoined one of the ladies, "you might easily have enjoyed that pleasure."

With the proverbial luck of drunken sailors the first escaped with a broken leg and the second without a scratch.

OF INTEREST TO NURSES.

The Subject of District Nursing in Canada

Is Discussed by Miss Charlotte McCloud, Superintendent of Victorian Order in Canada.

The American Journal of Nursing of a recent date contains an interesting article on the subject of District Nursing in Canada. The article is written by Miss Charlotte McCloud, superintendent of the Victorian Order in Canada, and is as follows:—

The pioneers in district nursing in Canada were the Sisters of Charity, who also led the way in hospital nursing. The well-known Sisters of Providence have long been engaged in this work, especially in the cities of the Province of Quebec. They go their rounds in pairs, taking with them whatever material is necessary for the services they may be called upon to perform, and they frequently remain hours, or even days, with patients who are too ill to be left in the care of inexperienced hands.

Several of the hospitals also send their nurses out as district nurses, notably the Maternity and Western Hospitals in Montreal. The Winnipeg General Hospital has boarded and lodged one of its graduates for this purpose for the last three years. Nor has the field been left entirely to the hospitals and orders mentioned. Various philanthropic societies have taken up the work of district nursing and are doing all in their power to thus lessen the sufferings of humanity. Perhaps the one of longest standing is the Nursing-at-Home Mission in Toronto, which began operations about fourteen years ago in this lovely way:

A nurse, who was taking a post-graduate course at the Children's Hospital in Toronto, was so impressed with the sad condition in which many of the children were brought to the hospital that she determined to see what could be done by carrying the skill and tenderness of a trained nurse into the homes of the poor. She therefore left the hospital, rented a room, and began work in the district. Her example of devotion was soon followed by another nurse, and shortly afterwards this work came under the auspices of the Mission Union. Finally a home was provided where three women were taken in for training. The superintendent, who is herself a thoroughly qualified nurse, visits the patients with the probationers and gives them practical lessons at the bedside. Experience is also gained in a free dispensary with which the home has been connected for the last seven years. Courses of lectures too are given to the nurses by many of the physicians who employ their services. The period of probation is two years, after which time a diploma is granted. The rate of remuneration received by these nurses depends entirely upon the amount of charity support accorded the mission from year to year, the work itself being the first consideration. In the report for 1900 it was stated:

"Gratuities to nurses (eight in number,) four hundred and twenty-one dollars and twenty-five cents. In addition to the home being rent free, there is a city grant of two hundred and fifty dollars, but the remainder of the support is from voluntary subscriptions, no charges being made to the patients."

Two sets of deaconesses, the Anglican and the Methodist, do district nursing also in the city of Toronto. Some of these women are admitted to Grace Hospital and Western Hospital for three months' training, and afterwards, in connection with their course in church and Bible history, they go out in district nursing work during the remainder of their two years.

In Montreal district nursing started in connection with a diet dispensary which was established in 1879, but it was not until six years later that the necessity for a visiting nurse became apparent to the managers of the institution. The success of this nurse's work was so marked that very soon an assistant was appointed. Neither of these women was trained, but the pioneer in the work served for thirteen years before her retirement.

Early in the year 1897, the year of the celebration of our late beloved Queen's Diamond Jubilee, the women of Western or Newer Canada recommended that an organization be formed as a Jubilee offering to her Majesty which would provide nursing service in the more remote districts of the Dominion. The Countess of Aberdeen, wife of the then Governor-General of Canada, responded in a most enthusiastic manner to this proposal. But to carry such a scheme to a successful issue in so varied and extensive a country as Canada proved to be a difficult task. When the project known as the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada was finally launched, owing to the false rumours as to the aims of the order, it met with little or no favourable response from either doctors or nurses. Dr. Alfred Worcester, of Waltham, Mass., who was invited by the Countess of Aberdeen for this purpose, aided very materially in overcoming the prejudices of many by giving addresses in some of the larger cities on district nursing, and by showing how the Victorian Order might be managed on more economical lines than were at first thought possible. Finally a fund was started and organization began. The constitution, bylaws, and regulations were drawn up and a royal charter procured. The royal charter authorized the formation of a Board of Governors which should have the management and control of the order and of its affairs, and it also appointed his Excellency the Governor-General of Canada as patron.

Five members of the Board of Governors are selected by the patron, and the others by the Canadian Medical Association, and by each local association according to the amount of its yearly income. There is an Executive Council, made up from the members of the board, whose numbers and powers are defined by the governors.

The chief lady superintendent is appointed by the Board of Governors, and the most prominent among her duties are the organizing of new branches, recommending suitable district lady superintendents and nurses, overseeing their work, and reporting on the same. The order undertakes to teach district nursing.

Only nurses holding diplomas from some recognized hospital training-school and who come highly recommended are considered eligible for the course of training in district nursing. A period of four-months' probation is given at the Training-Home either at Montreal or Toronto to test the adaptability, tact, and previous training of these nurses. During that time they are provided with board, lodging, laundry, and an allowance of twenty dollars a month. At the expiration of this course the nurse, if she is desirous and has proved herself acceptable, is recommended to the Board of Governors as a candidate for the the order. She is then presented with her diploma and badge, either by her Excellency, the wife of the Governor-General, or by one of the governors, who admits her to the order in the following words:

"By the authority of the Board of Governors, I have the honour of admitting you formally into the ranks of the Victorian Order of Nurses. You have been recommended to the Board of Governors by the chief lady superintendent as a nurse possessing the qualifications and training which our order requires, and have proved through your training in district nursing your efficiency in all your nursing work and your willingness to observe all the regulations of the order. We therefore welcome you very heartily to the order, and we enlist you for active service for two years. May you be enabled to carry into action the true spirit of the order, and may God's best blessing rest upon you."

The nurse thus admitted and pledged for two-years' service in the order must be prepared to go anywhere in the Dominion, either for district nursing or to serve in one of the cottage hospitals. She is provided with her outfit (uniform and nursing bag) and receives a salary of not less than three hundred dollars a year, with maintenance and laundry. She is also entitled to one-months' holiday each year. Should she remain in the order for three or more years, she will have a miniature badge presented to her like the one worn by her during her term of service, with the dates of entrance and retirement engraved on it, as a souvenir of her work.

The trustees of the Waltham Training-School for Nurses at the inception of the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada sent over their superintendent for three months, and afterwards released her from her duties at Waltham that she might accept permanently the position of chief lady superintendent of the order. She, with five nurses who had graduated at Waltham, began work early in February of 1898. During the three months branches were established in four of the larger cities and four nurses were equipped and sent with the militia to the Yukon, where they performed most heroic services.

The work of the order has slowly but steadily progressed, and has been extended from coast to coast. Out of the twenty-six branches which have been established in a little over three years, twenty-four are carrying on the work successfully. In all there are fifty nurses engaged in the work.

This year a greater effort than ever is being made to provide suitable buildings for cottage hospitals. Her Excellency the Countess of Minto is doing much to create a special fund for this purpose. It will be known as the "Lady Minto Fund for erect-Queen Victoria Cottage Hospitals" in memory of our late beloved sovereign. Model plans have already been drawn for cottage hospitals to accommodate either six or ten patients, two nurses and a maid. Since the inauguration of the order seven cottage hospitals have been established, and, although several of these buildings may be regarded as mere apologies for hospitals, most excellent work has been done within their walls. As an illustration of the assistance afforded by the order in establishing cottage hospitals, which, after all, are really district nursing stations, the following account is given:

In a small town in the Northwest Territories the women who are members of the National Council had put by a small sum of money towards a building fund for a hospital; but as they met with no encouragement from the men of the town, they felt their project must be postponed indefinitely. Just then the Victorian Order came to their assistance and advised them to rent a cottage and make it habitable for patients. A nurse from the order was sent to take charge. Within a few months a request was made by the local committee for a second nurse. In the following year patients were refused admittance, owing to the overcrowded condition of the building. Enteric fever, maternity, surgical, and chronic cases have all been cared for there, and several major operations have been performed in the small room which the nurses occupy as their dining and sitting room. Great inconveniences have been overcome by these devoted nurses in their desire to serve these patients, who otherwise in many cases would have been left to take shelter in a third-rate boarding-house with only such care as the slatternly servants might give them. However, the nurses have now been rewarded, having just moved into a fine building erected for this purpose. As the expense of keeping a staff of four Victorian Order nurses in this little hospital would be too great, a training-school consisting of four probationers under a highly qualified superintendent is now in progress. There are only twenty beds, but as the cases are varied, and a thoroughly well planned curriculum enforced during a term of three years, including three months of district nursing, there is no apprehension of their not being well fitted for district or cottage hospital nursing in the West.

These Victorian Cottage Hospitals will be open to give a training in nursing to the Deakebour, or educated Indian girl, that she may be of special service to her own people.

Innumerable instances might be related of the blessing the Victorian Order nurse has been in the cottage hospital to the homeless sufferer, in the humble room of the crowded tenement-house during her daily visits in the city districts, or in the rural districts, where she may have to drive ten or fifteen miles and even canoe up a river in order to reach her patient. In the latter case the nurse may have to remain a few days if her services are not required in the village and the patient requires special care.

One of the chief difficulties has been an inadequate supply of good nurses. This is pioneer work, and it does not appeal to those who like a city life with its brightness and comfort, though it should be said that even in remote districts the Victorian Order nurse is not by any means forgotten or neglected. No nurse practising her calling, even in most luxurious homes, can receive such honour and hearty gratitude as is accorded to our nurses amid their rude surroundings. In one of the most outlying districts, where every effort to procure suitable board and lodging for the nurse had failed, her committee had a small shack built and furnished for her use.

The Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada needs women in it for country as well as for city districts,—women who are capable of performing the highest duty on earth, namely, in helping their fellow-beings back to health, also helping them to lead noble, clean, and wholesome lives, inwardly as well as outwardly.

The Victorian Order, in common with the whole empire, mourns deeply the loss of her after whom it was named; but the Queen's nurses will undoubtedly respond more quickly than ever to the inspiration of her life—as noble Woman and as Noble Queen.

BURIED IN AN OLD PUNT.

Curious Wish of a Backwoods Settler in Addington County.

A correspondent informs the Campbellford Herald that "Woodcock's Island" at Big Lune Lake, in the northern extremity of Addington county, is now deserted and lonely. Up to a recent date it was occupied by Geo. Woodcock and his wife, who settled there some fifteen years ago. Now a mound a short distance back of the cabin marks the last resting place of the once sturdy islander, while his wife has gone to spend the remainder of her days with friends at Arden. Mr. Woodcock died on the 7th of June, at the ripe old age of 72, and was interred on the day following. According to his wish his favourite old punt was used as a coffin, contrary to the suggestion of the settlers on the mainland, who were desirous of making a proper coffin. The old man also wanted his potato pit for a grave, saying he would haunt them if his desires were not gratified. The pit, however, was not used as a place of burial. One of the pall bearers remarked as he stuck an unturned paddle at the head of the grave, "There, that is the last of poor old George Woodcock. He was an honest fellow, and I never knew him to do anything mean, or what was not right. Should I ever hear anyone say anything unkind of him, I would certainly knock him down."

A Wrong Burial Certificate.

When a physician issues a burial certificate to one who has died from consumption or throat trouble, he should say, Cause of death, neglect to take Four T's when the cough first started. Four T's cures a cough in 24 hours and the worst cold in two days, and you get a large bottle for 25c at Ormond and Walsh's drug store.

WOOD FAMINE AT AN END

The wood famine which has prevailed in town recently, came to an end on the receipt of two scows of hardwood, both green and dry, by J. E. A. Fitzgerald.

THE KING'S SYMPTOMS

Indicate Substantial Progress and Satisfy Physicians.

LAST BULLETIN EVOKED CHEERS

It Was the Best Announcement the Royal Doctors Have Made Yet—Illuminations at Liverpool—Tubes Not Removed —Daily Mail Says the King Is in Excellent Condition.

London, June 27, 10.15 a.m.—"His Majesty had a fair night, and has had some settled sleep. His appetite is improving and his wound is much more comfortable. On the whole, the King's condition is attended with less anxiety. (Signed) Lister, Treves, Smith, Laking, Barlow."

His Temperature Normal.

London, June 27, 2 p.m.—"His Majesty passed a comfortable morning. All his symptoms to-day are so far satisfactory. His temperature remains normal. No other than important fluctuations in His Majesty's temperature will be recorded in the bulletins issued. (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow."

Lord Lister's Statement.

London June 27. 2.27 p.m.—It is said that after the issue of this morning's bulletin Lord Marcus Beresford asked Lord Lister how the King was progressing, and that Lord Lister replied: "His Majesty is practically out of danger."

In the Commons.

London, June 27, 5.30 p.m.—At the adjournment of the House of Commons to-day A. J. Balfour, the Government leader, announced that the progress of King Edward was quite satisfactory.

Condition Maintained.

London, June 27, 6.15 p.m.—"The King has maintained the satisfactory condition described in the last bulletin. His Majesty shows no disquieting symptoms. (Signed) Lister, Treves, Smith, Laking, Barlow."

Substantial Improvement.

London, June 27, 11 p.m.—The following bulletin has just been issued from Buckingham Palace: "His Majesty's condition is in all respects satisfactory. The King has had a comfortable day and has made substantial improvement." (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow.

Improvement Maintained.

London, June 28.—King Edward's improvement has been maintained at 1 o'clock this morning.

PROGRESS IS SURE.

All King Edward's Functions Are Working Admirably and General Progress Is Very Sure and Steady.

London, June 28.—"It's the best yet," was the popular comment with which the bulletin posted at Buckingham Palace at 11 o'clock last night was greeted. A small crowd waited before the Palace until the bulletin was brought out, and, when the good news became known, there were cries of "Hear! hear!" and cheers. Lord Churchill, the acting Lord Chamberlain, drove up to the Palace just as the bulletin was issued, and he expressed his keen pleasure at the doctors' report of the King's condition.

The Prince and Princess of Wales dined at Buckingham Palace last night, in company with several foreign personages. All the guests returned early to their homes.

The unanimity among the physicians, when questioned in addition to the case of King Edward, is remarkable. All the professional opinions gathered are distinctly favorable and hopeful. The doctors questioned regard the danger of peritonitis to have been almost passed and believe His Majesty's recovery to be entirely probable.

Liverpool was illuminated last night, in recognition of the good news.

LETTER TO YOUNG LADIES

From the Treasurer of the Young People's Christian Temperance Association.

Miss Elizabeth Caine, Fond du Lac, Wis.

The advent of womanhood is fraught with dangers which even careful mothers too often neglect. Some of the dangers are belated and suppressed menstruation. "The lily droops on its stem and dies before its beauty is unfolded." It is well demonstrated in Miss Caine's letter that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certain to assist nature to perform her regular duties, and young women who are irregular, or have any ailment peculiar to their sex should hasten to commence the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then sit down and write a letter to Mrs. Pinkham telling her all about their illness; she will give the case careful and motherly consideration, and advise just what to do to get well; she considers such letters strictly confidential; she will charge nothing, and thousands of young women owe their present health and happiness to her advice.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all young women who are ill to write her for advice. Address Lynn, Mass., giving full particulars.

MISS ELIZABETH CAINE.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I want to tell you and all the young ladies of the country, how grateful I am to you for the benefits I have received from using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered for eight months from suppressed menstruation, and it affected my entire system until I became weak and debilitated, and at times felt that I had a hundred aches in as many places. I only used the Compound for a few weeks, but it wrought a change in me which I felt from the very beginning. I have been very regular since, have no pains, and find that my entire body is as if it was renewed. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to everybody."—MISS ELIZABETH CAINE, 69 W. Division St., Fond du Lac, Wis.

When the young girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she experiences headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep, pains in the back and lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude, and a dislike for the society of other girls, when she is a mystery to herself and friends, then the mother should go to her aid promptly. At such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and is the surest reliance for woman's ills of every nature.

When you ask for Mrs. Pinkham's medicine at your druggist, do not be persuaded to take something else said to be "just as good." Nothing in the world is so good for women's ills.

$5000 REWARD Owing to the fact that some skeptical people have from time to time questioned the genuineness of the testimonial letters we are constantly publishing we have deposited with the National City Bank, of Lynn, Mass., $5,000, which will be paid to any person who will show that the above testimonial is not genuine, or was published before obtaining the writer's special permission.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

A BRITISH TRADE VICTORY.

An example of what can be done in foiling the efforts of Americans to capture British trade is furnished by the formation of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Great Britain and Ireland, Limited, with a capital of fifteen millions sterling. The thirteen firms which this amalgamation comprises united their forces last autumn in defence of the great industry which the American combine had resolved to control. The thirteen firms mentioned control, and will continue to control, what may be called, the cream of the tobacco trade in the United Kingdom. The Imperial was formed a short time after the president of the American syndicate began operations in England last year by adopting the same tactics which had made him prominent in the United States. Having bought out a tobacco factory at Liverpool he began to reduce the prices of some of the articles produced there, and offered, at low prices, certain goods which the public were prepared to buy, the offer being conditional on orders being given for other articles which the public did not want. He next cut down the prices of nearly all his American manufactures—by as much as 40 per cent. in some cases. The British shopkeeper and the British smoker did not appreciate this generosity. The goods met with a poor sale. Those manufactured in the newly-acquired Liverpool factory decreased in consumption notwithstanding their reduced price. Then he resorted to advertising on a scale of prodigality rarely, if ever, equalled. Still the British smoker remained unmoved, except that he began to grow suspicious at the lavish advertising, shrewdly opining that money thus disbursed was expected to be recouped by him in some shape or other, and believing also that the goods so extravagantly "puffed" were inferior in quality. With the British smoker it is quality that tells, and the average Britisher is always ready to pay a fair price for a good article. Another point on which the American had not reckoned was the patriotism of the Briton, which, when satisfied as to quality, leads him to prefer home-made goods to foreign goods. The American tobacco syndicate is, therefore, making no headway in the United Kingdom, but is losing heavily.

It is gratifying to note that, since the American tobacco syndicate boastfully announced its determination to "capture" the British tobacco trade, and, in fact, the tobacco trade of the world, the business in the United Kingdom has immensely increased, with great profits to the home manufacturers. At Bristol one firm, employing nearly 3,000 people, is now enlarging its factories to enable it to employ 1,200 more. At Nottingham and Glasgow similar enlargements are being made.—Finance Chronicle.

COAL IN CANADA.

The New York Times says;—Who can it be that told the managers of the strike that Canada has no coal upon which this country can draw in case they succeed in putting an end to all mine operations here? Their informant was certainly wrong, and, if the "facts" upon which they base their hopes of bringing about an industrial cataclysm are all of the same kind, their threats need inspire no great amount of fear.

Canada has no end of coal, scattered all the way from the Pacific to the Atlantic, and the only obstacle to our drawing upon it in a time of emergency is a paper wall—the tariff law. Indeed that law has not been quite impervious to Canadian coal, even in the past, and a few words, spoken with due formality in Congress, prove conclusively to both the miners and their employers that our northern neighbours do count for something among our ultimate defenses against the recklessness of all sorts of coal barons.

Not only has Canada coal, and coal to spare, but much of it is most conveniently placed for shipment to the United States. The Cape Breton mines for example, can load almost directly from shaft to deep water ships, and there are others at the head of the Bay of Fundy which are only a few miles from the sea. In either case the journey to Boston or New York is only a matter of three or four days for tramp steamers, and, with good luck, not much more for sailing vessels. To be sure, the Nova Scotia coal is not of superfine quality, but it is good enough for many purposes, and would serve almost all at a pinch, especially with the experience of burning bad or low-grade coal of our own which the strike has forced many consumers to acquire—to the vast delight and profit of the speculators who had enormous quantities of it in store, waiting for just such an opportunity for unloading on the dear public as the strike has given them.

The country is neither so helpless nor so uninformed as the mining men, both those who wear black broadcloth and those who occasionally deign to don blue cotton, seem to imagine.

BINDER TWINE.

As the harvesting of wheat in the Western States progresses the moderate quantity of binder twine available becomes apparent, and prices have felt the effects of a nervous feeling that there will not be enough binder twine to harvest the crop. The demand for twine from all sections of the United States and Canada is good, especially where the harvest is near at hand. And prices are firm at a half a cent increase over May prices, with every indication of a further advance. The rank growth of straw, together with the improvement of crop conditions everywhere call for a larger amount of binder twine than merchants or manufacturers had anticipated thirty days ago. So little twine has been made that the increased demand has had the effect of raising prices. Wheat, oats, barley and rye are all in fine condition and the crops everywhere look better at this season than for several years. There is little doubt but what Manitoba will yield such crops that it will be a difficult matter to get binder twine enough to harvest them.

THE SON WILL RUN.

He Will Likely be the Liberal Candidate.

Pembroke Advocate. — It is said that Wellington Munro, eldest son of the late J. W. Munro, will be the Liberal candidate in North Renfrew at the bye-elections to represent the seat made vacant by the death of his father. We are pleased to hear that he has the courage and pluck, not only in politics but in business, to put forth every effort to perpetuate the manly character which his late lamented father possessed. The ambition and courage of Mr. Munro, jr., will, we hope, be endorsed by the general approval of a grateful public which after all is the highest tribute of man. In view of this we strongly advise that the convention be called and the election closely follow. The benefit of the organization, which performed good work for his father, can be again easily reunited to repeat the good work for him.

THE RECENT ELECTIONS.

West Hamilton and Stormont Appealed Against—North York Conservatives Have Paid $1,000 Into Court.

Toronto, June 28.—Election protests are commencing to arrive at Osgoode Hall now, notification of two more having been received yesterday, namely, Stormont and West Hamilton.

As regards the latter place, Mr. W. A. Logie, barrister of Hamilton, representing the Liberal interests, was at Osgoode Hall yesterday morning to find out where he should file a protest against the return of John S. Hendrie, the Conservative member-elect. It appears that the act as amended requires the protest to be filed with the local registrar, but there is no such official at Hamilton. The petitioners against the return of Mr. Hendrie are John Craig, Thomas A. J. Early and W. S. Moore.

Subsequently the Court of Appeal met to consider the case, and that body finally passed a rule directing that protests in all such cases shall be filed with the deputy clerk of the Crown, where there is no clerk, as called for in the Act.

A protest has been filed also against the return of William James McCart as member for Stormont. Mr. McCart was elected in the Liberal interest. Mr. John McLaughlin, the defeated candidate, claims the seat for himself.

The appeal against the recount in Halton has been adjourned till July 12 at 11 a.m. Mr. Justice Osler will hear the appeal.

By consent, the appeal against the recount in East Middlesex was dismissed this morning by Mr. Justice Osler without costs. Mr. Charles Moss appeared for Dr. Routledge and Mr. Eric Armour for Captain Robson.

The necessary deposit of $1,000 in connection with the protest in North York against the return of Hon. E. J. Davis was paid into Osgoode Hall this morning by Mr. Eric Armour.

Disease attacks the little ones through the digestive organs. Baby's Own Tablets are the best things in the world for all bowel and stomach troubles of children. They act quickly and gently and always cure indigestion, colic, constipation and diarrhoea. They are a great help to teething children. Mrs. Gabrielle Barnes, Six Mile Lake, Ont., says; "Baby's Own Tablets reached me just in time, as my baby was very ill with indigestion and bowel trouble, and I am happy to say the Tablets relieved him after a few doses. He is now doing splendidly with just a Tablet now and then when he is restless. I am the mother of eight children and have tried nearly all the old remedies but have never found a remedy equal to Baby's Own Tablets."

The Tablets are guaranteed to contain no opiate or harmful drug, and crushed to a powder they can be given to the smallest, feeblest child with a certainty of good results. Sold by all druggists, or sent post-paid at 25 cents a box, by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N.Y.

A LIGHT WEIGHT MIDSUMMER COSTUME.

Among the fabrics of the season is a sort of sebaline, iron grey in colour, with a surface showing white hairs, which is very similar to the material greatly liked for cold weather wear; but of course it is very light in weight. It is rather exclusive in effect when made up, as such materials do not seem to appeal to persons of common tastes. The gored skirt is very simple in outline, close fitting in the upper portion, flaring below, and finished on the edge with rows of stitching done with Corticelli stitching silk, a course silk generally used by the best dressmakers for this purpose. Overlaid upon this were applique flowers out from white broadcloth, stitched in heavy black silk, which is also used for the outline stitch, and French Knots which compose the centre and stamens of the flower and are worked with Corticelli embroidery silk. The belted blouse with basque shows the same flower, below which the white silk vest is bordered by scallops outlined by bias straps of the white cloth.

The Ninham Inquest.

London, June 28.—At the opening of the inquest into the Ninham murder last evening, the prisoner, McArthur, who is charged with Ninham's murder, was also present. After each of the four witnesses told his story, he was cross-examined by Mr. Magee, Mr. Fauld and the coroner. The inquest was then adjourned until Monday evening, at 8 o'clock.

The county detectives who are working on the Ninham murder case, have abandoned the theory of the stone. It has been discovered that the supposed blood staind on the stone are really rust marks.

An Absurd Custom In Vienna.

In Vienna every man's home is his dungeon from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. Vienna is a city of flats, and at 10 p. m. the common entrance door of each block is closed and bolted. Thereafter persons passing in or out must pay a fine of twopence to the concierge until midnight and fourpence from that hour to 6 a. m. To go out to post a letter costs twopence and the same amount to return. To prolong a visit to a friend after 10 p. m. means twopence to get out of his house and twopence more to enter your own. A natural result of this irritating tax is that of all capital cities Vienna is earliest to bed.

HAMILTON MAN DROWNED.

Hope Watson Lost His Life by the Upsetting of a Skiff.

Port Carling, June 28.—A sad accident resulting in the drowning of Hope Watson of Hamilton occurred about ten o'clock Thursday night. Mr. Watson, in company with Mr. Mewbourne, also of Hamilton, left the cottage of Mrs. Barnett at the mouth of the Indian river in a small skiff to go to Ferndale, a distance of about two miles. The night was very windy and the lake rough.

Mewbourne did not reach Ferndale until about five o'clock yesterday morning. He was very much exhausted and was not able to tell much about what had happened. It appears, however, that the skiff upset after going about a mile. He remembers no more till he found himself lying on the shore half in the water. He managed to get up the bank but was too exhausted to get further, and evidently lay there till he was able to find his way back through the woods to Ferndale.

The alarm was immediately given and search parties organized, but up to this evening nothing has been found of the body. Mr. Watson was a nephew of W. B. McMurrich, K.C., of Toronto.

ENGLAND'S PRINCELY KING.

An American Woman's Opinion of His Majesty Edward VII—His Visit to America During His Boyhood.

The following tribute to "England's Princely King" was paid him by Mrs. Sherwood in a contribution to "Smart Set" about a year ago, and will be particularly interesting as coming from an American woman:

The word Prince means much more than does the greater word King; it means a chivalrous gentleman.

Edward the Seventh—may he reign long and be prospered!—has that gift which is the most priceless possession of peer, prince and peasant—charm. He is said to have been a very dear little boy. He was apt to be clean and courteous and ready for his mother's kiss, even after eating gingerbread, while his next brother was always sour, unamiable, and from first to finish unpopular. Memoir after memoir of barons and courtiers mentions this difference between the brothers, and when he came over here at sixteen, every mother's heart warmed to that dear little Prince, who was apt to smooth down his hair and look boyishly frightened as he took off his hat to a crowd. He had no egotism, no bumptiousness; he was a sweet, cheerful, healthy boy. "Not too knowing," as Lowell says in his tribute to his two nephews who fell in the war.

And then he began the life of Prince Charming, which he has kept up ever since. It will be a great shame if he ever gives that name, Prince of Wales, which he has made so delightful, to anybody else. It should always be his field mark and device in history, as the "Black Prince" goes down into the future, as himself, and no other.

When he arrived in Paris Le Prince des Galles was his own advertisement. "Yes," said a witty woman, "especially, 'gal.'" And on this point Le Prince des Galles has been much maligned. Every woman, young and pretty, or pretty and not particularly young, or neither young nor pretty, was anxious to consider him in love with her. He did his "possible," no doubt—he was young, he was pleasure loving, he was a flattered prince—but he was not the much slandered man the gossips loved to prattle of. He was never very far from his Alexandra in England, an excellent family man, to all appearances, always driving about with her; and so long as the Duke of Clarence and Avondale lived, his father had him by his side. They would look at each other pleasantly as they drove through the Bois; and when the son died, Albert Edward nearly died, too. They have the bourgeois virtues, that family. They love each other and their own fireside.

Observe how well the Prince behaved in the Lady Mordaunt case; how he cleared her reputation, which even she tried so hard to sully. Doubtless the insanity that developed soon after this, was at work then in her poor, weak brain. She imagined herself worse than she was, as has many a hysterical woman. The letters of the Prince were published, and they did him infinite honour. They were principally about a pair of "muffatees" which she had knitted him; and one of them, notably she, was very much of a "muff," but he was a loyal and honourable man, asking her to be more kind in her judgment of her friends, and showing, as he always has done, a very kind heart and a most rigorous sense of honour.

Anyone who has been in London during the last twenty years has blushed to see how an American mother could throw her young daughter in his path; also has seen the English woman almost kiss the earth as he approached, while the deprecating manner in which he has waved his hand to the gentlemen-in-waiting, as much as to say, "Please be seated," indicated that this much beslavered man was very tired of it all. As for his manners they were always chivalrous toward women. Some of the older men thought him far more civil than was his revered father. Prince Albert thought that kings are made of a superior blood, and it was this foreign assumption that made him unpopular when he first came to England, and as all the writers say, "Prince Albert had to die to tell the world what a very superior man he was."

Now his son has only had to live to tell the world that he is a very lovable, clever man. His great popularity is a testimonial of the highest to his natural character. I remember an anecdote to this effect. I was walking around at a Queen's ball in Buckingham Palace with a nobleman, who had been a gentleman-in-waiting, after being a page to the Queen, and as we came on a picture of the Prince Consort in his fine clothes, I said;

"A very handsome man and, I hear, a very perfect character."

"A very handsome man, and a very prudent character," said he.

I asked him to define that phrase.

"I will," said he. "One evening I saw one of the maids of honour overfatigued and about to faint. I asked the Prince if I might carry her to a chair. "No,' said he, 'let her faint,' and," said the nobleman, "he did not care for the people about him, beyond his wife and children, unless they were of royal blood."

"How would the Prince of Wales have behaved?" I asked.

"He would have run with a chair; he is full of feeling, and we would all die for him," was the answer.

Everyone in England always spoke of the Prince of Wales in the same way. A few evenings after this conversation I saw him and the princess at Irving's Theatre. The door behind the lady-in-waiting was open and this kindly tempered man got up and shut it, and made her sit down in a safer seat.

Being a lady-in-waiting has not been quite such a servitude in the Victorian era as it was in poor Miss Burney's day, but I declare that I would rather have begged my way in London streets than to have been one even ten years ago. To be sure, the education which has perfect freedom behind it, that training which we get as American children does not help to make us subservient. The pregnant hinges of the knee get stiffened over here, nor do we relish kneeling to a mere mortal, and there is always something to me slightly suggestive of flunkeyism in the memoirs of even so noble a woman as the late Lady Canning, as recorded in "Two Noble Lives," by Augustus Hare. She describes her trip to Paris with the Queen, and apropos of an occasion, relates that "I and my fellow-servants courtesied as the Queen left and prepared to stand until she returned."

It seems to me that no Queen should have required such an abnegation of self nor do we at any time hear the gentlemen about the Prince complaining of his ever having made himself disagreeable in that way.

The real cleverness of the Prince of Wales has attracted the attention of everyone who has heard him make a speech. We must also accredit a man who has always shown such infinite tact with very great cleverness. I heard him several times make a speech rather off-hand at the "Healtheries," as were called the assemblages of colonists who came over from Canada, from Australia and from Africa, the year before the Jubilee. The happy and easy way in which Albert Edward acquitted himself on these occasions was much noticed. And one must remember that he was the servant of servants during his mother's reign, sent on all such duties as the greeting of every little princeling who chose to enter England. As he described himself, "I am simply a litte boy to be sent to the cars."

"I don't envy Wales," was one of the gruff remarks of the less amiable Duke of Edinburgh. No one ever asked him to do these good-natured errands. But at half an hour's notice the Prince was always ready with an appropriate uniform or a Prince Albert frock coat to drive off to talk to the New Zealanders, who, if Macaulay's prophecy ever comes true, will sit on a fragment of Buckingham Palace and moralize on the past and gone glories of Victoria. He never said the wrong thing, he was never supercilious, he never had the air of "Stand aside, for I am nobler than thou." In the House of Lords he was so courteous to the old dukes and the judges, putting his hand on their shoulders, and by voice and eye and manner urging them to not treat him as if he were of another clay, that it was positively refreshing to see him. And at a foreign watering place, Monte Carlo, for instance, his democracy of manner in the midst of a crowd of courtesying women who tired their kneepans to the uttermost to see who could courtesy the lowest, was always evident. If he caught sight of a lame, shabby old veteran, some half-pay officer who had come to Monte Carlo to live and to economize, the pleasure on his face, his hearty hand-shake, the unpretended simplicity of his good-natured greeting, were unfailing. He said once to one of his intimates that he "wondered how anyone educated at Court could possibly ever become a self-respecting, honest man," showing that he feared the effect of homage on his own character; but certainly it never affected his manner unfavourably.

American susceptibility to patronage is very absurd, but it is, perhaps, something a free born citizen can hardly outgrow. So is our susceptibility to criticism very much too great. Washington Irving refers to it in the "Sketch Book," and advises his countrypeople to outgrow it.

"Why are we so exquisitely alive to the aspersions of England?" he wrote sixty years ago. And we have but to turn to James Russell Lowell's fine essay, "On a Certain Condescension in Foreigners," to learn that even he had felt it. These were two literary men whom England has delighted to honour, who have expressed themselves in good set terms against this superciliousness.

How much do we owe to the man who now wears the crown! How cheerfully we read his most noble letter to President McKinley, thanking him for the appreciation service to Her Majesty on the day of her funeral; and from the coign of ventage of to-day we may go back over a quarter of a century of private recollections and find no American who can recall anything but polite social recognition from the Prince of Wales! No one can remember even a bow unreturned, and it would take a very uneasy vanity to suppose that the charming manner of this tactful man hid any patronage or the slightest sense of personal superiority.

Very much gifted by nature are such men who have a desire to please, controlled by a sense of dignity. The word "fulsome" is the most disagreeable word in the English language. It has made the Anglo-Saxon lip to curl in all countries, and doubtless the royal lip has felt very uppish as some Malvolio bowed too low, or some Coriolanus from Idaho did not bow low enough.

But the Prince of Wales has soothed every irritated sensibility.

Doubtless to him is owing much of the altered position of Americans in England. The charge against him of having admired American beauty too much has been doubtless exaggerated, as are all the stories of a prince's flirtations. And as the Princess of Wales, that beauty on a throne, has never made any public scandal, but has preserved her equanimity, we at least, as outsiders, can give the much courted Prince the benefit of the doubt. No one, either, can but believe that follies and extravagances will drop from him now as he realizes that Harry of England could not drag old Falstaff to the coronation.

It must be remembered that his royal uncles were not nearly so clever as he is. They seem to have been weak and foolish men. Even the Queen's father, the Duke of Kent, now being rather defiled by the English press, seems to have lacked common sense in the mere matter of his pocketbook, and he was the best of them. They none of them had the excellent education which the Prince of Wales has profitted by. George the Fourth, poor creature that he was, had something of his charm, but there the resemblance stops.

The Prince doubtless owes very much to the charm, the "simplicity" and the good temper of his wife. The royal pair are alike in their freedom from egotism, which is a great piece of good luck for England.

Lately, death has intensified a personality, adding to it a distinctness, a power, altogether commanding and irresistible, and we are in danger of deifying the human being who has so nobly gained the end of her journey. But life is for the living and not for the dead, and we must remember the noble souls still struggling in the flesh who have in their sphere shown all the virtues and self-abnegation and patience of Christian saints and martyrs.

Fame, power, wealth and royal station—these make a splendid frame for the virtues. But we must not forget the rigorous isolation of those lonely travellers who daily and nightly conquer the misery of human suffering, who will be unrecorded save by the Angel who writes them down in his golden book.

Accidents Never Come Singly.

Iron Mountain, Mich., June 28.—Nicol Petrottii, the young miner buried alive in the Vulcan Mine by a fall of the ground, was taken out late last night, but died a few minutes later. He was working in a slope when the ground fell, blocking the entrance. The work of rescue was commenced at once. At one time Petrottii was nearly dug out, when another fall of ground occurred. The men worked hard for 11 hours.

Approve Dr. Roddick's Bill.

Toronto, June 28. — The Medical Council gave its unqualified approval yesterday of Dr. Roddick's bill in regard to Dominion registration, and adopted the report of the special committee thereon by a unanimous vote.

In order that the bill can be enacted in the respective provinces, it must be ratified by the Legislatures and the provincial Medical Acts amended.

On motion of Dr. Powell, Ottawa, the special committee was authorized to take the necessary steps to have the amendment in question made to Ontario Medical Act.

The Property Committee then reported a recommendation that the present medical building, in which they were meeting, at the corner of Bay and Richmond streets, be sold and that a site be purchased on which to erect a smaller building. The report was adopted.

The Committee on Registration recommended that Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, be granted registration. The report was adopted.

Marian Murphy's Body Found.

Buffalo, June 28.—The body of little Marian Murphy, who disappeared several nights ago from her home, was found last night in the lake. It was bound with ropes, and there was a gag in the mouth, bearing out the theory that was at first advanced that the little girl was stolen by kidnappers who intended to hold her for ransom. The police are at sea, apparently, as to the identity of the kidnappers. A reward of $2,000 has been offered by the father of the dead child for their arrest.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Athletic Section of St. Peter's T.A.S. is an energetic organization, and is composed of a body of young men who certainly are hustlers, and not afraid of a little manual labour after hours. A few evenings ago an Examiner scribe in taking his evening constitutional, happened to pass the Murray street school grounds and the scene that presented itself was brimful of animation. A small army of young men could be seen tugging away at a rope which was attached to a tall pine, which in the course of a short time succumbed to their united efforts. Another detachment of enthusiasts could be noticed excavating around the other trees which were to be felled, and amongst the busy group could be noticed the popular Spiritual Adviser Rev. Dr. O'Brien, with crow-bar in hand working like a Trojan. A visit to the ground Friday evening revealed a wonderful transformation. The trees and roots had not only been removed, but the limbs and other debris had been all gathered up and burned, and the indentions in the grounds filled in. As a result of this labour the Separate School grounds are to-day the finest in the country for athletics. "Talk about enthusiasm," said a visitor to the grounds the other evening, "I never saw it displayed to such a degree before. The boys are certainly a credit to the T.A.S." In talking to a member of the Athletic Section it was learned that they were very anxious to have the grounds in shape for the field day of sports on Dominion Day, and everything indicates that their hopes will be fully realized.

Lacrosse is at present the only game indulged in on the grounds, and the way in which the boys have entered into the game this season has been most encouraging to their friends, who are fully satisfied with the showing the teams have made so far this season. Several of the senior team, it is understood never handled a lacrosse until this summer, and the work they have done so far this season is the strongest proof that practice makes perfect. The management of the team is not inclined to talk about their lacrosse aggregation, so that any information about the boys can only be obtained by observation, and by attendance at their practices.

BASEBALL.

There are some good stories of the olden time baseball when there were real coaches — not what are called coaches to-day out of courtesy. Latham was one of the best and was retained by a National League club two years after his arm gave out simply to coach, and he drew his regular "dough," too, you bet. He was an artistic kicker. In the early 90's, when he was playing with Cincinnati, Umpire Tim Hurst's decision did not suit that club. Latham was eloquent in silence. He glared at Hurst, then fell like a log, performing his famous "breakneck." He squirmed on his head and then floppe don his face. Holliday, also a humourist, ran over and tenderly set Lath on end again. Lath glared about until he saw Tim then down he went and over on his face once more like a pancake. This was too much for Hurst, whose Irish boiled over. He ran to Latham, shouting, "Say wan word and I'll fine ye tin."

But Latham was too wise to say "wan word." He could not be fined until he had said something, according to the rules as then interpreted, but he had registered one of the most effective kicks ever seen or heard on the baseball field. It was a kick which Hurst felt worse than if he had been called all the names in the calendar.

The next league game will be played here on Tuesday next, against Bowmanville.

BIG POWER PURCHASES.

Mr. J. Alex Culverwell Invests in Water Powers Near Campbellford.

Mr. J. Alex. Culverwell returned to town to-day, after an absence of several weeks in New York, and later at Campbellford, near by.

He has had a staff working on a survey of Healey's Falls, of which he has purchased the greater portion.

He has also purchased half of the Crow Bay Falls adjoining the corporation of Campbellford.

Healey's Falls, which has a head of over 70 feet on the Trent River, is within four miles of Campbellford, and Crow Bay Falls has a head of about thirty feet. These two powers having a minimum power development in a dry season of some fifteen thousand horsepower.

Mr. Culverwell met with opposition in the purchase of Healey's Falls but with his extensive knowledge of waterpower law and engineering, was successful in overcoming all difficulties.

Mr. Culverwell, who is Managing Director of the Central Ontario Power Co., owning Burleigh Falls, also purchased a couple of months ago, the Buckhorn Falls, both being within twenty miles of Peterborough. He states he has arranged a deal in New York to complete the development of the last two properties.

STONE-CRUSHING AT $2.65 PER CORD

Mr. S. Kennedy Receives the Contract for the Work.

BRIDGE NEEDS RE-PLANKING.

Planks Should be Laid Lengthwise and Kept Clean and Then They Will Wear Longer.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held last evening for the purpose of passing a bylaw regarding the stonecrushing agreement. Mayor Deane was in the chair, and the members present were Aldermen Clinkscale, Morrison, Batten, McGregor, Rush, Shortly and Best.

Mr. Samuel Kennedy has agreed to do the stone crushing at the rate of $2.65 per cord. He will crush, screen and deliver the stone at any point within three-quarters of a mile of the town yards—the town furnishing the crusher, engine, fuel and stone.

The bylaw confirming the agreement was passed.

Alderman Morrison brought up the matter of replanking the Hunter street bridge across the Otonabee. The County Council at its last session had decided that such a step was necessary, and asked the Town Council to bear half the expense, as usual. He moved that the matter be referred to the Joint Committee with power to act.

Ald. Batten suggested that if the planks were laid lengthwise, instead of crosswise, it would be a great saving, the wear and tear of travel not being as hard on the planks laid under the former conditions. An example of this could be seen at the Pigeon Creek bridge. Half of the bridge was planked each way, and the difference in favour of the planks laid lengthwise was wonderful.

Ald. Clinkscale pointe dout that if the bridge was cleaned regularly it would add greatly to the life of the flooring.

Ald. Best couldn't make out how the planking required to be renewed so often. It was only two years since the bridge had been floored.

Ald. Morrison thought that it had been only partly done the last time and that a good many of the planks bought for the purpose were still on hand.

It was decided that Ald. Morrison and the Town Engineer should enquire into this matter and report to the council.

A communication received from A. H. Stratton, & Co., asking the council to purchase 500 copies of a booklet containing views of Peterborough's manufacturing industries, etc., for the purpose of advertising the town, was referred to the Manufacturing Committee.

The council then adjourned.

As a souvenir the booklet will be thoroughly appreciated by all those who entertain pleasant memories of the town and surrounding summer resorts, while its value as a factor in advertising Peterborough and giving outside manufacturers an idea of what the town possesses, which will be of advantage to them, is inestimable. The engravure work in the booklet is beautifully done and the shade effects show up with marvelous distinctness. A short history of the town and and a brief recital of its principal features occupy the first two pages of the booklet, while the remaining 25 pages are devoted to the views. The souvenir has been placed on sale at the nominal price of 25 cents and may be obtained at the Peterborough Bookstore.

MR. AYER'S HOLIDAY.

He Left Last Night After Being Well Remembered.

Mr. Horace Ayers, the popular and capable Physical Director of the local Y.M.C.A. left this morning for Geneva, Wis., where he will attend the international Y.M.C.A. summer school for the next six weeks. The boys around "Y" had only a few hours notice of Mr. Ayers' intended departure, but they took good advantage of it, and in a very short while they subscribed and presented him with a purse, containing a substantial sum of money. The Physical Director was much surprised at the kind and appreciative spirit displayed by the boys, and thanked them for their kindness.

Mr. Ayers has been engaged by the local Board of Management for another year at an increase of salary. During the past twelve months that he has had had complete control of the Physical Department, he has shown marked ability, and has demonstrated his superior influence over the members of the classes. In all branches of Y.M.C.A. work he has proved to be most proficient.

The presentation last night was made by Mr. Sandford Hall and Mr. R. Merrell.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

The report of the Special Committe appointed to enquire into the advisability of establishing the teaching of Domestic Science and Manual Training into the schools of the town, through its chairman, Mr. J. J. Hartley, reported as appended:

To the Chairman and Members of the Peterborough Board of Education:

Gentlemen,—Your Special Committee beg leave to report that they met a Committee from the Separate, and Ashburnham School Boards, and after discussing the matter referred to them, the following resolution was passed:

That the members of this committee having heard the reports from the members who visited the several places where Manual Training and Domestic Science is being taught, and having heard the letters read from officials of the Stratford School Board, are of the opinion that it is desirable that steps should be taken to introduce those studies into the Public Schools and Collegiate Institute of the town, the Separate School and the Ashburnham School and that this decision be conveyed to the several bodies mentioned, with a recommendation that the necessary steps be undertaken to carry this recommendation into effect, and that if adopted by the several Boards a permanent Joint mittee be appointed consisting of ten members, two from the Ashburnham School Board, two from the Separate School Board, two from the Institute and four from the Public School Board of the town.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. J. HARTLEY,
Chairman.

THE DISCUSSION.

In addition to the above report, Mr. Hartley stated that the committee had taken some trouble in looking over suitable sites for the prospective location of the school. They had come to the conclusion that an ideal spot for such an institution would be above the old post office, at the corner of George and Brock streets. They could secure the first flat of this for a rental of $300 a year and taxes, and could have the rooms on the next flat nearly for the taxes. The entire cost of fitting up the school would be in the neighbourhood of $2,500. Of this amount the Government would grant them $1,800, which had been done in the case of Stratford.

Mr. Langford opened the discussion by declaring that the amount involved in establishing the undertaking was too much for them to enter into without further information. He was at one time not in favour of the introduction of the subjects at all, but he was gradually becoming favourable to the scheme. However, he believed in going into the matter intelligently, and he thought that the town council, who would have to vote the money, should be consulted. He therefore introduced a motion to that effect.

Mr. Hartley did not think that the matter should be submitted to the approval of the town council. The Board of Education was able to consider such matters themselves, without asking any advice from the Aldermen.

Mr. Wrighton was in favour of giving the matter a six months' hoist—there was not sufficient information at present.

Mr. Fair, who was on the special Committee along with Mr. Hartley, and who was thoroughly convinced as to the feasibility of the scheme submitted figures to show the cost of the equipping of the school and the maintenance thereof. The total cost would be about $2,900, of which amount they would likely get $1800 from the Ontario Government. This would leave about $1100 to be made up. The Ashburnham and the Separate school board would contribute $300, leaving a balance of $600 which the Peterborough Board would have to pay. The committee had obtained all the information possible with the exception that they were not sure as to what amount the Ontario Government actually would give.

Mr. Stevenson did not think that the Ontario Government would give $1800 for the fitting up of the old building as the town did not own it. He thought that they should have a building of their own, and he was not in favour of renting any room whatever. Let them wait until they could afford to build.

Mr. Langford spoke again, urging the Board to wait until they had all possible information. He wished to correct the misapprehension that Mr. Hartley was labouring under regarding consulting the town council. It was not that he considered that they knew more than the members of the Board of Education, as he considered that they did not, but he felt that they were all representatives of the people, and they should all get together and fully consider a matter of so much importance.

Chairman Hill then expressed his views. He said that the rent of the Menzies property for school purposes and the rent of a school for Domestic Science such as they proposed to have would represent the interest on sufficient money to erect a new High School, and they could have the present Collegiate Institute for Public School purposes, and for the teaching of Domestic Science.

Mr. Jameson was one of those who was not in favour of the scheme at first, but he thought that if the town was going to keep abreast of the times they should give the school a trial. He did not lean to the chairman's proposition to mix the matter of the establishment of a Domestic Science School and the erection of a new Collegiate Institute together as both should be dealt with independently on their merits. While he was in favour of renting a school for a while, still he believed in moving cautiously. It might not hurt to let the matter stand over for three months.

Mr. Stevenson did not think that the Separate School Board, or the Ashburnham School Board should be considered in the matter at all. If it is to be undertaken let it be done so independently.

Mr. Langford moved that the matter of introducing the subjects of Domestic Science and Manual Training into the schools of the town, be taken up along with the Town Council, after sufficient information had been obtained so as to deal intelligently with the matter, and that the secretary be instructed to write the Educational Department in order that they might ascertain just how much help they would get from the Government.

There was no seconder to Mr. Langford's motion, and the discussion developed into a free and easy talk.

Mr. McBain thought that a delay of a few months would not make a great deal of difference, but he was not in favour of taking the Town Council into their confidence every time they wanted to do anything.

Mr. Ferguson was anxious to know what amount the Government would give providing the town only rented a building. Peterborough's case was not the same as Stratford's.

Dr. Caldwell thought that it would be wise to rent for the first year or two, but he, like Mr. Ferguson, was anxious to know what proportion of the expense the Ontario Government would pay.

Mr. Hartley moved, seconded by Mr. Fair, that the report be received, and that the secretary be asked to communicate with the Minister of Education regarding the amount of aid they would likely give to Peterborough and that the matter be then further proceeded with.

Matters then became somewhat complicated. Mr. Langford's motion and Mr. Hartley's motion were almost identical, excepting that Mr. Langford's motion provided that the Town Council be consulted in the matter. Chairman Hill held that Mr. Hartley's motion was an amendment to Mr. Langford's.

Mr. Langford and Mr. Stevenson contended that it was not and that Mr. Langford's motion should be put first.

However, the chairman put Mr. Hartley's motion first as an amendment, and it was carried.

When the order of new business came up the appointment of a successor to Mr. Bamford on the Finance Committee was considered. Dr. Caldwell was added to the Committee, and will act as chairman.

STOCK MARKETS.

"Cling to the High Priced Stocks."

New York, June 27th.—We have been asserting that the greatest profits for the time being would be made by those who bought the higher priced issues; we again reiterate this opinion, and the current market is steadily bringing the same out. Ill., L.N., Can., M.O.P., C.I.L., and St. Paul have proven to be the best things to buy recently. These will sell very much higher, and in almost the immediate future. U.P. is also one of the stocks that is booked for a rise of considerable magnitude. We advise its purchase, and advocate holding same for a good advance. All of these issues once purchased after starting upon their upward march, can safely be pyramided upon to a moderate degree. We have refrained recently from advocating the purchase of C.F.I. It is now our opinion that the stock is scraping near bottom prices, and that its next good move will be in the forward direction. It is intrinsically very cheap, and will in a comparatively short time cross par. Buy some of it around these figures, and if it should possibly sell off two or three points, take on a little more. We are confident this operation will secure the profits. We said the only way to make money in C.F.I. was to buy it when the stock was weak and bearish rumors rife, and to sell it when it is up ten or twenty points. Mr. Gates and others are flooding the country with bullish advices. Gates rushed into print extensively, extolling the merits of C. F. I., when it was around 100, and advised his friends to purchase it. Bull tips were current in Wall street. At present writing the stock is down some 20 points and apparently has not a friend. The bull mouths at 109 are more than likely the buyers. We repeat—take on some C.F.I. at these prices. It is reported that the U.S. Steel Corporation will show earnings of 18 millions for the month. The stock is cheap at present, and we believe has scored its bottom prices. The entire market looks as if any issues will do to purchase.—Haight & Freese Co.

HOME AGAIN FROM THE EAST.

After an absence of five months Mr. Harry Ryrie of Ryrie Bros., Toronto, has just returned from a tour of the world, and, of course, as usual, is inclined to think there is no place like home. During this time he visited Japan, China and India, returning by way of Europe. He reports not only having made very satisfactory purchases in the east, but also having established some very satisfactory connections. The first object of his trip was, of course, the India market for pearls, sapphires and rubies. Mr. Ryrie reports having made some very satisfactory purchases of such goods, which are now en route, and are expected almost any day. Amongst these are some goods, such as one would suppose only New York or London would attempt. They include some very fine specimens of pearl necklaces, ranging in price from $100 to $25,000. He also purchased in Calcutta a number of parcels of rubies and sapphires, also cats' eyes and other semi-precious stones.

In Japan he found some very interesting lines of bronzes and potteries, which he expects will meet with great favour. Returning by way of Europe, he visited the usual art centres, securing in Amsterdam a very complete line of diamonds. He expresses himself as being much better pleased with his selections than on any previous occasion, and bought with a very free hand, in view of the bright propects that Canada is now enjoying.

Alexander Martin, who fell down a flight of stairs at the Canada Life Building at Toronto, Thursday, died at noon Friday from concussion of the brain. He was a miner.

Saran Fletcher, of Toronto, while crossing Bay and Adelaide streets Friday evening, was knocked down by Erskine Derby, a bicyclist. She sustained a fracture of the hip.

William Curtis, about 60 years of age, married, but no family, had one of his legs sawn off at the knee by a circular saw in Edwards' mill at New Edinburgh, near Ottawa, Friday.

Frank Sauriol, an Ottawa painter, aged 30 years, fell from a ladder to the stone pavement, a distance of about 12 feet, Friday, and suffered fatal injuries. He died four hours later.

The London Society of Arts will present a silver medal to W. T. R. Preston for a paper read before the society some weeks ago on, "The French-Canadians and their relationship to the Crown."

It is stated at Ottawa that Hon. W. S. Fielding was tendered a knighthood in 1897, and that the offer was renewed recently, but the Minister of Finance declined the honor on each occasion.

James E. Pearson, a well known lawyer, whose home is at Hempstead, L.I., and who had an office in Brooklyn, was found dead in his office Friday, having committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas.

The body of a small boy was found floating in Toronto Bay about 1.30 Friday and awaits identification. It is supposed to be the body of Robert Robinson, a nine-year-old boy who has been missing from his home, on Victoria Lane, since June 17.

LOST FIFTY POUNDS.

The Terrible Experience of an Old Lady Through the Starvation of Dyspepsia—A Very Aggravated Case.

There is no more highly respected family in the neighbourhood of Lochaber, N. S., than that of Mrs. M. Sears.

The good lady, who is now over 70 years of age, had enjoyed good health up to a few years ago, when her stomach went wrong.

Acute Indigestion came upon her in her old age and so badly that she nearly died. As it was she lost over fifty pounds in weight before she found out about Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and was cured.

In her letter on the subject Mrs. Sears makes the following very strong statements:

"I was a great sufferer from Dyspepsia, experiencing fearful pains in the pit of my stomach. I lost about fifty pounds in weight because of my not being able to eat anything; indeed I was almost starved. My case was a very acute one.

"I tried all kinds of medicine but got no relief whatever.

"I used a stomach pump several times and did everything I could to get better.

"I went away to Newfoundland for some months hoping that the change might do me good, but I came home no better and quite hopeless.

"I saw Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets advertised, but as I had tried the doctors and almost everything else without any good results I had little faith that they would help me.

"I had failed from 186 pounds until I weighed less than 136 pounds before I commenced to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I got a box in Antigonish and they gave such relief that I sent for four more, which I used. Now I am cured. I gained in weight, health and strength from the very first, and am to-day well and strong.

"Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the best doctor for Dyspepsia or Stomach Trouble."

A Wrong Burial Certificate.

When a physician issues a burial certificate to one who has died from consumption or throat trouble, he should say, Cause of death, neglect to take Four T's when the cough first started. Four T's cures a cough in 24 hours and the worst cold in two days, and you get a large bottle for 25c at Ormond and Walsh's drug store.

MONTHS OF PAIN

Caused by a Tumor of the Breast.

Mrs. J. M. Timbers, of Hawkesbury, Tells how She Obtained Relief After Doctors had Failed.

(From the Post, Hawkesbury, Ont.)

Mrs. James M. Timbers is well known to nearly everybody in Hawkesbury, Vankleek Hill and surrounding country. She was born in Vankleek Hill, but since her marriage, twelve years ago, has lived in Hawkesbury, and is greatly esteemed by all who know her. Mrs. Timbers is one of the many thousands who have proved the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and gives her experience for the benefit of other sufferers. She says: "While nursing my first child I suffered from a nursing tumour under the left breast. The first symptom was a sharp pain followed by a growth, which gradually increased in size until it became as large as an egg. It was exceedingly painful and caused me great suffering. I consulted a doctor, who gave me medicine, but it did me no good. Then I consulted another doctor, who said I would have to undergo an operation. In the meantime, however, the tumour broke, but would not heal, and as a result I was feeling very much run down. At this time my attention was directed to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I began using these. I soon felt that they were giving me increased strength, and after using a few boxes, the tumour disappeared, and I was as well as ever I had been. My health has since been good, and I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

These pills cure troubles like the above, because they make rich, red blood and drive all impurities from the system. Through their action on the blood they also cure such troubles as anaemia, heart palpitation, erysipelas, scrofula, skin eruptions, rheumatism, St. Vitus' dance and the ailments that make the lives of so many women miserable. The genuine always bear the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all dealers in medicine, or sent postpaid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A BIG TEMPTATION.

Labor Leader Offered and Refused $25,000 Bonus and $5,000 a Year.

St. Louis, Mo., June 28.—John T. Wilson, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen of America, has refused an offer of a bonus of $25,000 and an executive position with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, at an annual salary of $5,000.

The remarkable circumstances about the proposition is that it was made to Mr. Wilson by a railway company whose striking trackmen were recently led to victory by the president of their organization.

The executive ability displayed by Mr. Wilson while handling the interests of the striking maintenance of railway men, his fairness, honesty, pluck and perseverence so impressed the management of the railroad company that the offer of the handsome bonus and permanent position was made to him.

Mr. Wilson's ambition is to elevate the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen of America to such a position of influence that it can command the respect he believes the laboring men deserve, and he spurned the offer and returned to his desk in the Benoist Building to preside over the destinies of the organization he founded fifteen years ago in Talladega, Ala.

Marvellous Escape From Death.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND
Does a Wondrous Work for Mr. Geo. March,
After Failures of Other Medicines.

It is well known that terrible rheumatism and sciatica cause more helplessness, acute suffering and agony than any of the other diseases that afflict humanity. The great medicinal virtues of Paine's Celery Compound, make it the only trustworthy specific for the cure of all forms of rheumatism. Thousands of strong testimonial letters from the most prominent people prove that Paine's Celery Compound has completely banished rheumatism when all other treatment has failed. Mr. G. March, Victoria, Avenue, North, Hamilton, Ont., says:

"Having experienced all the pains and agonies of that dreadful disease, rheumatism, for the past ten years, and having met with so many disappointments after using medicines of all kinds, I consider it a duty to let suffering men and women know what Paine's Celery Compound did for me when my life was in peril.

"I was strongly recommended to give Paine's Celery Compound a fair trial for my troubles. I bought it and used it, and the results were simply marvellous.

"I was encouraged and overjoyed that I had at last found the medicine that could cure even such a long-standing case as mine. I continued the use of the Compound, and now find myself a new man in every respect. Paine's Celery Compound also banished pains and troubles that I experienced in the regions of the kidneys. I consider Paine's Celery Compound my health giver and life preserver."

ONE LEG STILL HELD

Joshua Sandford Pinned Down By Bricks and Debris.

PHYSICIANS GIVE NOURISHMENT

Prisoner in the Well Delirious When Found—Conversation With the Calm, Brave Man Whom Many Are Trying to Rescue—His Rescuers in Imminent Danger Themselves —Treacherous Quicksand.

Paris, June 28.—(8 a.m.)—The rescuers have one of Joshua Sandford's legs out of the earth and brick of his living tomb, and are working with renewed activity to entirely release him. It is thought that his foot is caught in the rope of his bucket, but that any minute might see him free and ready to be brought to the top. The imprisoned leg is quite dead dead from numbness, and one of his arms is also paralyzed. Notwithstanding this Sandford remains cheerful.

SANDFORD PARTIALLY RESCUED.

Joshua Sandford, Reached by His Rescuers and Given Nourishment, Is Held Fast by Tons of Debris.

Paris, June 28., 2 a.m.—The prisoner at the bottom of the deep well seems in most imminent danger. After consulting with his rescuers and being almost released from captivity, he has crawled back into the pit of the old well, and is making one mighty effort to tear his legs from the death-like grip in which they are held, and the supreme effort is as likely to produce a further settling of his prison as it is to afford him relief.

Since he was uncovered and fed at noon yesterday, Sandford had made the most superhuman effort to release his feet, all to no purpose. His body is free, but tons of earth hold his lower extremities in a most tantalizing grip. It is now realized that the most gigantic effort of the dramatic episode is being made and the next few hours must have Joshua Sandford free from the grasp of the treacherous quicksand, or bury him hopelessly beneath the tons of debris in the old well, where his body must remain in the tomb in which he has so long struggled with a most hideous enemy.

The quicksand at times now almost covers his face, and the most vigorous efforts are necessary to give the desperate man the breath for which he is so bravely fighting. It is the general opinion that the fight will be over before the dawn, and the great crowd huddled around the hughe pile of blazing logs are the huge pile of blazing logs are drama with a silence that is almost painful.

Pinioned From the Knees Down.

At 8 o'clock last evening, Joshua Sandford's body was almost wholly exposed at the bottom of a 65-foot well. From the knees down, however, the unfortunate man is pinioned by many tons of brick and earth. As darkness settled over the weird scene, the man may be rescued within a few hours, or days may elapse before the body can be extracted from its perilous position. It is the fourth night of his imprisonment in the bottom of the old well, but the crowds are working as steadily to release him as on last Tuesday afternoon, when the collapse first occurred.

The most dramatic feature of the whole eventful affair developed at noon, when the prisoner's face was first exposed to the view of his rescuers, and, in broken sentences, the young well-digger gave the workmen some idea of his frightful experience of four days in a living tomb. The situation is almost extraordinary, and the prisoner's story is the recital of a tale stronger than fiction ever portrayed.

John Carnie, a local building contractor, and T. H. Jones, civil engineer, who have been at the bottom of the well all day, uncovered the man's head. He was heard groaning and crying all the morning, and physicians said he had finally become partially demented from his frightful torture.

His First Words.

The crying and moaning ceased the moment the fresh air from the new shaft drove away the foul atmosphere of the prison cell, and the man spoke: "Pull up the buckets!"

His mind was still wandering.

When his arm was released, he partially turned his head and remarked: "Where am I?"

Then he recognized the faces of his rescuers.

The man appeared remarkable composed in spite of his frightful experience though his complexion was ashy from contact with the foul air.

Dr. Dunton descended into the shaft at once and administered wine on a cloth. The man's lips were barely moistened, so fearful was the physician of a collapse.

Strangely enough, the prisoner did not ask for water or food, but seemed more curious as to the details of the construction work, what day it was, and if it was yet night. The lanterns used in the excavating hurt his eyes and they were bandaged.

A Doctor Overcome.

Then another tragedy was almost enacted in the darkness of the pit. The physician fainted. This was partially due to the impure air and the physical condition of the physician. A rope was hastily placed under his arms, and he was hauled up, only to fall on the clods above like an inanimate object. He was not revived for an hour.

In the meantime, Jones and Carnie kept steadily at work, picking the bricks from around the entombed man. As the dirt was loosened and a bottle of hot milk was slowly poured into Sandford's mouth, the prisoner manifested the greatest interest in his surroundings.

Sandford's Connected Story.

"My body is free, but my legs are caught. I can move them and they are not crushed, but they are so tightly gripped they will pull off before they will give an inch. None of my bones are broken, but I am sore all over, my head hurts, my eyes burn; but I am not hungry.

"When the first collapse came there was a roar and I found myself in a small chamber-like space, the brick formed an arch over me. I could stand upright and even walk around, through the iron tube I could hear what was said by the workers above me, I distinctly realized my danger, but I thought I was going to get out.

"I was sitting down when the second crash came and I felt my box fall and I was cramped. I then dug into the side of the well. The bricks were loose. I dug a hole in the side of the old well, into which I squeezed my body.

"I realized that another move of the brick and I would be crushed, the air was still good, and I could hear the men at work. After a while another crash came and I felt that I was being slowly smothered. My head was pushed to one side.

"I think I lost my senses, and do not remember much else until to-day, when I felt my face grow cold and a man touched me. No, I don't feel hungry. I believe I will get out."

Just how air was supplied after the last accident is a mystery, as the pipe connection was not maintained. The physicians say enough air to sustain life probably percolated through the bricks from the end of the old pipe. Thus, if the walls of Sandford's prison had been wholly dirt, death from suffocation would have been inevitable.

The work of rescue continues in the most methodical manner, many shifts of men being used. Everything is directed in the most scientific manner, and each step in the remarkable drama is taken after consultation of engineers.

Feelings of the Family.

The father of the imprisoned boy sits on the timbers of the scaffolding like a stone. He has little to say, offers no comment, but keeps his eyes riveted on the dark hole as if he would thus solve the mystery of his son's preservation.

Two sisters of the prisoner with tear-stained faces anxiously await each step in the rescue work, from a building a few feet from the well.

The aged mother of Sandford is confined to her bed. She is very feeble. Yesterday she remarked that she had just finished reading the story of Jonah and the whale and she felt that her son would not perish. She held a ragged edition of the Old Testament in her withered hand while speaking, and her wrinkled face was strangely calm while discussing the peril of her only son and her support.

Her husband had not been in their house for ten years. He had not looked toward the house since he appeared on the scene, seemingly wholly occupied with his boy's sad plight.

The fortitude exhibited by Sandford is considered amazing, and the physicians say they would not have been surprised had he committed suicide. Still, he appears to think he will survive the accident. The physicians say his mind may be permanently affected by the awful experience and the rescuers may find a raving maniac on their hands when their hard work is over. At the same time the vigor and vitality of the young man is considered a favorable symptom for his complete recovery.

Everybody Wants to Help.

The unanimity with which all the people of the surrounding country are contributing towards rescuing the prisoner is amazing. All business in Paris, a town of over 8,000 people, is suspended and for twenty miles the farmers have flocked to the scene. Day and night from 2,000 to 3,000 people surround the scene where the dramatic fight for life is being made with such fearful odds against life. The ground for a distance of thirty yards around the wells have been roped off to prevent the crowds gathering too close to the spot and thus increasing the pressure on the earth around the prisoner's cell.

The keenest interest is taken in the progress of events at the bottom of the shaft and every few minutes a speaker announces bulletins such as:

"We can now see his head.."

"The man's body is free."

"Doctors are giving the prisoner milk."

"We will have him up within two hours."

"The man can now talk freely."

Expense Is Not Considered.

No expense is being spared to save the man, thousands of dollars have been spent for lumbers and machinery, for the construction of the new well, and a corps of able physicians—Drs. Sinclair, Burt, Addison, St. George, and Dunton, are constantly in attendance, ready to afford relief when the man is brought to the surface. These physicians are constantly risking their lives in the most reckless manner by going into the shaft.

All Risking Their Lives.

This is true of all the men who descend into the well, for in spite spite of the boxing of the 4x6 well, the quicksand is constantly making its appearance. John Penman, executor of the estate, for whom the man was working, is standing all expense and spending money wherever it will do any good. He says if Sandford's life can be saved, by the use of money, it will be saved.

WILL GO AFTER QUACKS.

Ontario Medical Council Intends Prosecuting Osteopaths and Other Healers

Toronto, June 27.—At the Ontario Medical Council yesterday Dr. Brock submitted the following motion: That this Council place itself on record as considering that the Ontario Medical Act, as now constituted, should not be amended so far as the composition of this Council is concerned.

A bylaw was submitted exempting members of the profession from the annual assessment when absent from the province. The bylaw was adopted.

Then followed the presentation of the report of Charles Hoss, the prosecutor. The report reviewed in detail the work he had done during the year. The number of informations laid by him was 51; convictions, 37; dismissed, 9; withdrawn, 2; yet to be tried, 3; could not be served, 1; warned to cease practising, 2; left the country before they could be served, 9; after investigation found there would be no case, 7; cases yet to be attended to, 1. Total, 71. The prosecutor recommended that the Council take steps towards effecting an amendment to the Medical Act, so that he could prosecute osteopaths, electric healers, etc., whom he designated as the worst class of quacks that could be turned loose upon the community, and yet under existing conditions he was powerless to put a stop to their depredations.

The report was adopted, and the executive will deal with the suggestions contained in it.

The Day of Miracles not Past.

A Toronto Star reporter investigated the case of Mr. George Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhozone.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing, deafness, head noises and ringing in the ears, are advised to inhale Catarrhozone, and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. Price, $1; small size, 25c; druggists, or N. C. Polson and Co., Kingston, Ont.

Speaking Italics.

A piece of parliamentary repartee quite as good as the famous retorts in the house of commons and our congress comes from a New England university. Two students ranged against each other in debate grew very warm and took to commenting on each other's oratorical manner. One of them spoke with much emphasis, letting the stress of his voice fall explosively on certain passages.

His opponent opened his speech by saying, "My friend on the negative thinks to win this debate by speaking exclamation marks and italics."

The other could do nothing at the moment to turn the laugh which this speech raised, but when his turn came he "got back" at his opponent with this retort:

"My friend on the affirmative says I speak italics. I should say that he uses italics in the way they are used in the English Bible—not to emphasize, but to mark what is not original and inspired."

Unexpected Applause.

Shortly after Mr. Wilson Barrett joined the theatrical profession he became a member of a company performing at the old Theater Royal, Dublin. His part, naturally, was a small one, and, greatly to his surprise, his first speech was greeted with a round of applause. This unlooked for tribute elated the young actor, and he exerted himself to sustain the good impression he appeared to have made. Just as he was leaving the theater one of the scene shifters grinningly accosted him and said, "Sure, it's got about among the bhoys that ye're a brother of the man that was hung!" A Fenian named Barrett had that morning paid the extreme penalty of the law.

Itching of the Skin and Itching Piles the Source of Much Acute Suffering—Women are Enthusiastic in Praise of

Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Piles or hemorrhoids are small tumours which form in and about the orifice of the rectum. They are caused by an enlarged and inflamed condition of the veins which are very numerous in this part of the body. As any obstruction of these veins induces piles, it is very common for women during the expectant period to suffer keenly from piles and itching of the skin. To all such we can commend Dr. Chase's Ointment with every confidence that it will prove of prompt and lasting benefit.

Mrs. W. E. Jeffries, 44 Hicks avenue, Kingston, Ont., states:—"I suffered agony with itching piles. In fact, I don't believe that any person who has not had piles can realize what I have endured. I had tried many remedies and almost despaired of ever being cured, when my husband brought me a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. The first application brought relief, and after using half a box I can truthfully say that I was entirely cured. I give this recommendation in hope that it will be the means of bringing comfort and cure to other women suffering as I did."

Mr. James Elliott, Gananoque, Ont., states: "My wife was greatly troubled with piles, and put in an awful time of it. She could not get relief from the terrible itching and burning sensations. I bought a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and on the application she obtained relief. After using the one box she was cured of piles, and I can fully and heartily recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from piles."

If we could only make known the virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment there would not be a family but would keep it constantly on hand. It is the greatest healer that the world has ever known, and acts like magic in relieving itching and burning of the skin. 60 cents a box. At all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 12

A FISHERMAN'S LUNCH.

How the True Angler Broils Trout For His Noonday Meal.

In the deep shade of the tree the baskets are laid, and now a fire is started nearby, one of Van Dyke's little "friendship fires," which shall also cook a few trout. "Get two flat stones, friend—and they'll be hard to find in this bowlder country, but they are sometimes worn quite flat—while I gather some sufficient wood." Into the fire the stones go, and the wood is heaped about them. Soon the intense glow of live wood embers indicates that the time has come.

The trout, a sliver of bacon in each, are placed on one stone, first well dusted of its ashes, and the other stone is laid upon them. Now the hot embers are raked about and over the stones, and the lunch is spread on the big rock near the spring.

O ye epicures, who think nothing good unless served by a Delmonico or a Sherry, go ye into the mountains, follow a brook for half a day, get wet and tired and hungry, sit down by an ice cold spring and eat brook trout cooked on the spot and delicious bread and butter liberally spread with clover honey. Not till then have ye dined.—"Trout and Philosophy on a Vermont Stream" in Outing.

Relics of Queen Victoria.

The King has lately been sending many interesting relics of Queen Victoria to Kensington Palace, where they are at present stored in private rooms until arrangements have been completed for placing them on view in the State rooms shown to the public, writes Sarah A. Tooley, author of "Personal Life of Queen Victoria," in a recent issue of The Daily Mail.

"The relics have come from the late Queen's private rooms at Windsor Castle and Buckingham Palace, and each has a unique personal interest, arising from the fact that they are things which her Majesty had treasured for many, many years, and which she practically always kept in her sight.

"Prominent among the relics is the late Queen's jewel case. It is a really wonderful structure—for one can call it nothing less—in ebony, standing in its entirety 6 feet high. The case itself is a square box, having on each side separate compartments, fitted with sloping velvet trays for the jewels. Each compartment has a glass door, through which the entire contents could be seen at a glance. The case revolves upon a beautifully-carved ebony pedestal, and is surmounted by an artistic design. Small figures originally stood in niches around the case, but appear to have been removed.

"This handsome receptacle, in itself a fine specimen of artistic workmanship, was specially used by Queen Victoria for keeping her decorations and orders, and one can imagine the gorgeous effect when the star and devices, set with their priceless gems, radiated through the glass doors, the brilliance of the rubies, emeralds, sapphires and diamonds being enhanced by the ebony framework of the case.

"In the same room with the jewel case are two large ebony cabinets, also of beautiful workmanship, and in these the late Queen kept other personal jewels and adornments. The entire set were a marriage present to Queen Victoria from the married ladies of England. . . .

"The floor of one room is almost covered with volumes having the late Queen's book-plate inside the cover and bearing interesting autograph inscriptions. A large proportion of these books, amounting to several hundreds, had been given by the Queen to her mother, the Duchess of Kent. An autograph collector would be in Paradise if let loose among these books, for they contain inscriptions in the late Queen's handwriting from her earliest years onwards. In round, unformed characters occur such items as 'To dearest mamma, from her loving child Victoria,' and then I came upon intermediate stages of the youthful Princess' caligraphy, and at length to the graceful, finished handwriting to which she had attained in her seventeenth year, when she inscribed a handsome illustrated quarto of Rhineland travels 'To dearest mamma, from her affectionate and devoted daughter Victoria.' Among these handsome volumes which she had presented to her mother I noticed an edition de luxe of Moore's 'Lalla Rookh.'

"Among the books which had been given to the late Queen was a Prayer Book, inscribed to her daughter by the Duchess of Kent in 1837, and which was used by her Majesty at her coronation. It is beautifully bound in red velvet, with monogram in gold, and enclosed in a red velvet case.

"Another interesting little volume is an illustrated German story book, given by the present Duke of Cambridge to his cousin. On the fly leaf is inscribed, in boyish round hand: 'To my dear cousin, Victoria.—George. Hanover, 1826.'

"It will be remembered that the Duke passed some years of his early life at Hanover, where his father acted as Regent. . . .

"The printed volumes, however, pale in interest before a pile of the late Queen's exercise and copy books, to which an additional interest is given by the fact that they have, after all these years, come back again to the room in which their owner actually wrote in them. The apartment at the palace where these books now are was Queen Victoria's old schoolroom.

"It is a sombre, wainscoted room, the bedroom and death chamber of Queen Anne, and looks down into Queen Anne's Courtyard, one of the old parts of the palace. Upon the floor is the same carpet which covered it when the little Princess Victoria sat on her high chair laboriously writing the characters in the copy-books which were before me. Probably it was the quietude of the room and the fact that it had no disturbing outlook on to the public gardens which induced the Duchess of Kent to select it for her daughter's schoolroom.

"Several of the exercise books contain French and German translations, written in a pretty running hand, indicative of a young lady's finishing studies. In this room also are other relics of childhood. Two tiny wicker chairs, seated with groups of wool-worked flowers, which have a surprisingly fresh appearance, accounted for by the red chintz covers which are on them, and which the Queen never allowed to be removed.

"There, too, are a child's tea-table and some dumb-bells and a couple of hassocks, carefully covered like the chairs. These relics of childhood always stood in Queen Victoria's private sitting room at Windsor. In vain I looked for the dolls which were the delight and solace of Princess Victoria's childhood. They have, I understand, been distributed among the late Queen's grandchildren."

The summer season is the time to make pigs pay. They then need no protection against cold, are not stunted in growth, and demand but little attention. Grass is the cheapest and best food for pigs, and they will thrive and grow upon such diet, as grass contains an abundance of mineral matter, which promotes the growth of bone. Grain is deficient in lime, which is essential for the growth of all young stock. Clover contains more than twenty times as much lime as corn. To feed corn to pigs in summer is to supply them with a kind of food which they do not require, as growth at this season is more to be desired than fat. Those who make a profit from hogs depend largely upon the pasture, freedom and the privilege of selecting a variety of food, promoting the thrift of the pigs and warding off disease.

A "LOT" OF LAND.

A Hartford lawyer is of the opinion that the term "lot" as applied to a parcel of land is an American product, not derived from any other uses of the word. He says: "I have been reading up some of the old histories of my state, of Long Island and other colonial sections recently, and I find that the term 'a lot of land' was originated in the colonies; that it is today considered an Americanism and stands apart from other uses of the word. It originated from the custom of dividing grants for townships, etc., into parcels of land and then numbering each parcel, putting the numbers into a hat or whatever was used and then having them drawn out by those who were to occupy the land. Each man took the parcel corresponding to his number, so his land came by lot literally, and hence the use of the term. This, I presume, is ancient history, but perhaps ancient enough to have been forgotten by most real estate dealers and other people who deal in land and not language."

Lightning and Watches.

"An electrical storm seems to have a peculiar effect on some timepieces," remarked the junior partner of a big downtown jewelry firm. "Every time lightning and thunder get active in this vicinity one of the results is that our watch repairing department is overworked for several days thereafter. The damage wrought chiefly consists of broken mainsprings.

"When business gets dull with us," added the jeweler jokingly, "we require all our employees to pray for a thunderstorm. Failure to comply with this order is considered sufficient cause for discharge. I am unable to make clear the whys and wherefores, but it is an established fact that after the lightning has frolicked awhile in come the watches with mainsprings wrecked."

Wanted Rainwater.

"Boy, bring me a large pitcher of rainwater and a small pitcher of well water," said the woman from the country who just had been assigned to a room in one of the fashionable uptown hotels. "Yes'm," said the boy, with an air of "Now, what kind of a drink's that? It's a new one on me."

At the bar they turned him down. "It's no mineral waters she wants. Just draw two pitchers of Croton from the faucets and pass 'em up to her. Rainwater! I ain't heard of it since I was a boy and lived in the country," said the bartender. "You couldn't use it if you could find it in New York."

The Age of Brain Work.

"In these days, half our diseases come from the neglect of the body in the overwork of the brain. In this railway age the wear and tear of labour and intellect go on without pause or self pity. We live longer than our forefathers but we suffer more. They fatigued only the muscles, we exhaust the finer strength of the nerves." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the greatest medicine of this age because it is best suited to the needs of the present day. It restores revitalizes wasted nerve cells and makes the pale, weak and exhausted strong and healthy and vigorous.

What They Were Hawking.

At an exhibition of paintings in London in one of the galleries hung the notable picture "Hawking In the Olden Times." An elderly farmer and his wife paused before this picture, viewing it with evident satisfaction.

"John," said the old lady, "what's that?"

John then turned over the leaves of the catalogue he carried.

"They ca' it 'Hawking I' th' Owden Time,'" said he.

"Hawking! Why, what are they hawking?" she inquired.

"I dunno," he replied, "but I spect they're trying to sell them birds."

GOING THE LIMIT.

A drummer named Peck put up at a hotel in Oklahoma, the landlord of which was the president of the school board. The landlord, who was a jolly, whole souled fellow, suggested that they visit the schools, the president of the board first putting on a long tailed coat, saying:

"She adds dignity, an' then she hides my gun, which are a bad example 'afore them children. I don't approve of anybody under fourteen carryin' a gun."

After returning to the hotel from the visit of inspection the president of the board, now transferred into a landlord, said:

"Peck, you're a good feller. You ain't goin' to let your light be hid under a bushel, Peck?"

"No, I ain't," said Mr. Peck, rather dubious as to the compliment.

"Well, I tell you what I'm goin' to do fer you. Bein' as you're a good feller, I'm a-goin' to have clean sheets put put on your bed, dad me if I ain't!"

Health and Hope.

"He who has health has hope; and he who has hope has everything." But hope flees at the approach of kidney disease with the dreadful pains which accompany it. With the flesh gradually failing, the back aching, and the despair comes to victims of this ailment, only the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will restore hope, confidence and health. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box.

The Bridal Wreath.

The bridal wreath is usually formed of myrtle branches in Germany. It is made of orange blossoms in France as well as in the United States. In Italy and the French cantons of Switzerland it is of white roses. In Spain the flowers of which it is composed are red roses and pinks. In the islands of Greece vine leaves serve the purpose, and in Bohemia rosemary is employed. In German Switzerland a crown of artificial flowers takes the place of the wreath.

When the Curtain Falls.

Your death and my death are mainly of importance to ourselves. The black plumes will be stripped off our hearses within the hour, tears will dry, hurt hearts close again, our graves grow level with the churchyard, and, although we are away, the world wags on. It does not miss us, and those who are near us when the first strangeness of vacancy wears off will not miss us much either.—Alexander Smith in "Dreamthorp."

The Canalboat.

"The captain was leading the horse and his lieutenant was at the rudder," said a lawyer in an English court recently, describing an incident in the voyage of a canalboat.

"Where was the crew?" inquired the judge.

Badly Mixed Metaphor.

London is laughing at the following recent brilliant exordium on the part of an English politician; "We shall never rest until we see the British lion walking hand in hand with the floodgates of democracy."

If you have diamonds, be thankful, but don't hold them up to the eyes of poverty in a street car.

MAMMOTH PRIZE COMPETITION TO BE HELD IN CONNECTION WITH

GOLD SOAP $2,500.00 IN PRIZES.

In order to get thousands of people in all parts of the country to see how pure and economical GOLD SOAP is for all manner of washing and cleaning, the manufacturers have decided to hold a Mammoth Prize Competition, to start May 15th, 1902, and end November 15th, 1902. The prizes will be awarded to the persons sending in the greatest number of Gold Soap Wrappers before November 15th, 1902. A full list of prizes will be found below, and all those who do not win a prize will receive a regular Gold Soap premium in return for their wrappers—varying in value according to the number of wrappers sent in. The manufacturers of Gold Soap could not afford to offer such an astounding inducement to the public, were it not for the fact that they feel sure that once Gold Soap is tried it will be used constantly, as no good housekeeper would think of going back to one of the common, impure soaps, after using the soap that is "worth its weight in gold." GOLD Soap is the purest, handiest, and most economical soap that it is possible to make, and if used constantly will keep down expense, make the washing more quickly and easily done, and will bring the clothes out beautifully white. In the following list

THERE ARE 5,213 PRIZES.

If you start now to save your Gold Soap wrappers, you will have quite a lot by November, and you will then share in the big Gold Soap competition. Do not be afraid to send in your wrappers, no matter how many you may have, because you are certain to receive a prize or a regular Gold Soap premium.

Please note that you are not asked to send any money or do any work of any kind—simply use the best Soap in the world, save the wrappers, and we send you a prize or a premium. This is the greatest offer ever made to the public, and will make GOLD SOAP known from ocean to ocean—and wherever it is known it is liked and recommended.

Of course, if you prefer to have one of the regular Gold Soap premiums that are described on the backs of the wrappers, you may send in your Gold Soap wrappers at any time, with a note telling which premium you wish. All Gold Soap premiums are guaranteed, so you don't take the slightest risk.

DIRECTIONS—Save your Gold Soap Wrappers and send them into Gold Soap, Toronto, marked, "Competition," before November 15th, 1902, with your own name and address enclosed. The prizes will be sent out on November 24th, with a full list of the winners. You may send your wrappers in at any time, so long as your name and address come along with each lot. Corticelli SPOOL SILK

For dressmaking and family sewing Corticelli Silk is the best silk made. For hand or machine use it has no equal. Corticelli Silk runs smoothly in the needle; it is always even in size and always full length and full strength.

Ask your dealer for "Corticelli" and politely but firmly refuse all substitutes, which some clerk may say are "just as good." You may be sure they all lack the many qualities of the genuine Corticelli Silk. If your dealer does not keep Corticelli Silk, it is probably because he makes a little more money selling you some other brand. As Corticelli costs YOU no more than poor silk, why don't you try it? Ask for Corticelli—the Dressmakers' Favourite Spool Silk.

MATTERS MILITARY

BY SENTRY.

Owing to Tuesday of next week falling on a holiday, the weekly parade of the 57th Regiment will be held on Wednesday night, when it is to be hoped that all the companies will be represented.

A recent Militia General Order increases the establishment of the 57th Regiment from six to eight companies. This change is an important one, but, of course, it remains to be seen whether or not it will be taken advantage of by the commanding officer and his associate officers of the local Infantry Corps. The ranks of the 57th Regiment are at present pretty well filled up. They are, at least, as far as the service rolls are concerned, as the members of the Regimental Band and the Bugle Band, when distributed amongst the present six companies, bring their respective companies up to about full strength, although it may not appear in such light when the Regiment is on parade.

If then, the present Regiment is, practically speaking, recuited up to full strength, there seems no reason why two more smart companies could not be raised here. We venture to say that the Village of Ashburnham alone could easily raise a company that would take second place to no company in the present establishment. It seems strange, too, that at the present time there is not a single officer in the 57th who resides in the thriving village across the river. There are a number of young men who would make desirable officers, could they be induced to enter the service, and as to the class of men who would fill the ranks of an Ashburnham company, it is a well-known fact that the village possesses the very best type of young Canadian manhood. Experience goes to show that a company made up of individuals from the one concern, of the same locality, of the same social connection or the like, flourishes in a far greater degree than a company the members of which have been picked up hap-hazard throughout the community. This principle was observed in the mobilizing of the 3rd C.M.R., when the men from Peterborough, Port Hope, Lindsay, etc., were placed in the same squadron. There is a certain company in the local Regiment that is made up almost exclusively of the employees of one of the town's largest manufacturing concerns, whilst again another company had in it a majority of the employees of the financial institutions of the town. The system invariably works satisfactory, and should there be a company chosen from across the river, it appears beyond a doubt that there would be the keenest interest in the venture.

Some may say that there is little use of attempting to raise two more companies, when the present establishment is not filled as it might be, but in this regard, too, experience has shown that it is just as easy to get eight companies in a town Peterborough's size as it is to get six. A captain and his junior officers can raise a certain number of men, and it does not seem at all likely that the raising of the extra establishment would in any way withdraw from the strength of the present companies. However, the matter will be dealt with by the proper authorities, at the proper time, and there need be no anxiety on the part of the local military enthusiasts, as the only course that will be taken will be that which is deemed to be in the best interest of the service, and in the best interest of the town.

Lieut.-Col. R. W. Bell, late commanding officer of the 57th Regiment, who is now residing in London, Ont., has lately received his "Colonial Auxiliary Forces' Officers' Decoration." Lieut.-Col. Bell was for 34 years a member of the Canadian service, and was 29 years of that time an officer. He served in every rank from Bugler to Lieut.-Colonel, and still continues to take a deep interest in the affairs of the Regiment.

The establishment of Cadet Corps in the High Schools and Collegiate Institutes of the Province is one of the latest but not the least important, advances made in the High School course. For some time, military drill had a place, or, was supposed to have a place, on the school curriculum, but generally this consisted of a few simple movements taught by a teacher who, perhaps, never enjoyed any military training himself, and in most cases, it was omitted altogether. In a few large schools, arrangements were made to have a drill sergeant come once a week. This was satisfactory, but expensive. Now, however, there is a similar course at Stanley Barracks, where teachers are prepared for this work.

The aims of the Cadet Corps are twofold. As a military organization, it seeks to give every boy a military training sufficient to fit him for bearing arms in defence of his country. From an educational stand point, it strengthens the discipline by training the Cadets to prompt obedience, and builds up their physical system by teaching them how to walk and carry themselves so as to develop the chest.

From the proper carrying-out of the organization, there should be good results along both of these lines. However, there are a few difficulties in connection with the corps. These will likely be remedied in time. Some of them could be overcome at once. One is the lack of numbers. Two causes can be assigned to this; the large number of small boys that are entering the schools and the unwillingness of many of the large boys to enter the corps. This could be overcome by making it part of the school course, the same as a lesson in mathematics or English.

Then there is often a lack of enthusiasm, owing to the lack of attractive, well-fitting uniforms. If they had these, they would take a pride in their dress, instead of being ashamed to appear in public. This is one point in which the local corp is behind, when compared with the city Collegiate Corps. The Government supply the rifles; it rests with the town to do the rest.

Another important matter that should be considered, is teaching the boys to shoot. Besides being the most essential, it is one of the most interesting parts of the drill. The Government is taking the matter in hand, and before long every corps where there is a military range will have facilities for target practice. Through the kindness of Lt.-Col. Edwards, the Peterborough Cadets were offered free ammunition and the use of the ranges. It is likely that many will avail themselves of the generous offer.

Lieut.-Col. Sam Hughes, having completed his term as commanding officer of the 45th Regiment, Lindsay, Major Sylvester succeeds to the comand of that corp.

By a special army order issued on Wednesday, June 4th, the following regarding the South African war medal and gratuity, are promulgated to the army, with the approval of the secretary of state for war:

"Officers, warrant officers, non-commissioned officers, and men who disembark in South Africa after May 31st, 1902, (will not be entitled to the war gratuity granted by army order 5 of 1901, or to the war medal granted by army order 94, of 1901. The words 'May 31st, 1902,' will accordingly be substituted for such date."

This looks as if the men on board the Cestrian got to Africa barely in the nick of time. If they get the South African medal it will be by the skin of their teeth. The greater number of Peterborough men were on board the Cestrian.

It is claimed for a new magazine rifle invented by a Scotchman and submitted to the British War Office that it will fire from a revolving magazine 23 shots in succession. Its range is about 2,500 yards. The breech is in a water jacket and the charge is fired by electricity.

The London Times contains the following very interesting item on the subject of Military Education;

"The Committee on Military Education has insisted upon the fact that officers of the army are as a class deficient in the general education which entrance examinations are intended to guarantee. The general trend of the evidence, in short, is to indicate that the early education of the young officer has not hitherto been conducted on proper lines. The committee points out that the state guards entrance to the military schools by examination originally designed to secure the selection of candidates who had availed themselves of the advantages of a good general education. But no sooner has this examination been reduced by the Civil Service Commissioners to a definite and permanent form than the schools proceed to adapt the education they give intending candidates to the great end of enabling them to pass. The instant this is done the examination ceases to secure the end in view. We have it on the authority of many distinguished officers that as a matter of fact young men pass the examination and afterwards turn out extremely deficient in general education.

We venture to think, however, that the military training of young officers after they enter at Woolwich or Sandhurst, and in the army itself, is of even greater importance than their precise acquirements when they enter. Unfortunately, the committee has felt itself compelled to report that this training, which is entirely in the hands of the War Office, is in a most unsatisfactory condition. The witnesses are unanimous in stating that the junior officers are lamentably wanting in military knowledge, and what is perhaps even worse, in the desire to acquire knowledge, and in zeal for the military art. The committee has been informed on very high authority that the majority of young officers will not work unless compelled; that keenness is out of fashion; and that it is not reckoned the correct form. Men, especially young men, are very much what circumstances make them, and it is not too much to say that if the War Office existed for the express purpose of destroying zeal, of killing enthusiasm, of promoting idleness and ignorance, and of fostering hopeless mediocrity, it would be one of the most efficient organizations that were ever constructed. The committee shows that there is no inducement for men to work, because the promotion of indolent officers is as rapid as—and may be more rapid than—that of their more industrious comrades. Not only is there no inducement to work, but everything under the existing regime is carefully arranged to discourage work, and indeed, to make it as nearly as may be impossible. Sir Evelyn Wood, being asked whether any steps are taken to encourage studies of military affairs, replied; 'No, there are no adequate steps taken, nor is there any possibility under our present system of their studying.' He further testifies that the existing system renders real military training absolutely impossible alike for officers, non-commissioned officers and men; and he is corroborated, not by the failures and disappointed men of the army, but by successful officers in high command.

It is impossible here to give the sickening details of inaptitude, stupidity, and shortsighted parsimony which go to make up the total of inefficiency. But one rises from a perusal of this report with a higher respect for the British officer than one ever had before. It is amazing that any man of ordinary brains can stand the thing at all, and not less amazing that men without much brains can turn out as well as they do. From end to end the system is a mass of shams, unrealities, and makeshifts. The men who the country fondly imagines that the War Office is making into soldiers are taught nothing but the narrowest drill, and are taught that only in what time they can spare from innumerable fatigue duties. The officers rarely see those they are supposed to command, and the junior officers of all ranks are completely divested of proper authority and responsibility. Teaching, what there is of it, is done by the non-commissioned officers; the officers being incapable of drilling a squad and taught to regard their proper work as beneath them. So on all through the piece. The system is a sham from end to end, and if our officers give themselves up to sport, and amusement, it is because there is nothing in the position marked out for them which can satisfy the natural impulse of a healthy man towards occupation of some kind."

Remember, Good Candy Is Sweet!

Suppose you try some of LANE & CO'S and compare it with some of the cheap, trashy kind that some call candy.

You will be surprised at the difference when you try them together.

What little Candy you eat let it, at least, be good.

That is the kind our's is.

WAS ALMOST ASPHYXIATED.

Albert Hall, a Peterborough Boy, now of Toronto.

He Will Recover, but he had a Very Close Shave—Well Known Here.

The Toronto Globe says; "Albert Hall, a young man, was found in his room at 189 Simcoe street early yesterday morning almost asphyxiated by gas. Medical aid was immediately summoned, and after restoratives had been applied Hall was removed to the Emergency Hospital, and it was stated there last night that he is out of danger and will be discharged in a day or two. Hall did not make any statement on recovering consciousness, but it is presumed that he accidentally turned on the gas after having put it out before retiring. The smell of escaping gas caused roomers in the house to make investigation, and luckily for Hall the leak was located and his condition discovered in time to save his life."

Hall is a Peterborough boy and has two sisters living here. An aunt of his, Mrs. Hall, resides on Queen st. His brother, Mr. Fred Hall, has been a resident of Toronto for several years and was in Peterborough yesterday. His brother Albert, walked to the Union Station with him on Saturday night, and it was upon his return to his boarding house that the accident occurred. Mr. Fred Hall was yesterday apprised of the occurrence by telephone, and returned to Toronto by the first train this morning.

CHANGED HANDS.

English Syndicate Purchases Corundum Property.

The Crown Corundum Company of Stony Lake has lately changed hands, passing into the possession of an English company possessing a capital of $500,000. Mr. Llewellyn Morrison, the manager of the new company, was in Lakefield on Tuesday last, and stated that he hoped to have 300 hundred men at work within a year on the company's property. Mr. Morrison further stated that Lakefield would be the port of shipment for the company's ore, which would be conveyed down from Stony Lake for transmission on the railway. If such is the case, the importance of the industry to Lakefield cannot be over estimated.—News.
